Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

The mails bring into the postoffice a number of letters addressed to L. L. Johnson, of Fort Scott, Kansas, in response to an advertisement appearing in many Eastern, Canadian and Southern papers purporting to be a letter from Johnson, setting forth the value of a certain egg incubator. Information is now furnished by the postmaster that there is not now and never has been any such person as L. L. Johnson in Fort Scott, and any statements in reference to egg hatchers or incubators purporting to have been written from here by said Johnson, are fictitious and fraudulent.

President J. D. Fish of the Marine Bank, New York, has been arrested. The affidavits assert: "James D. Fish, as president, caused to be paid out money belonging to the National Banking Association to or upon written orders of Grant & Ward and for the benefit of himself, and said Ferdinand Ward further sums in excess of all credits to the said firm, amounting to $766,402, at the time of said overdrafts, he (James D. Fish) well knowing the firm of Grant & Ward was then unable to repay the sums so overdrawn, and the firm being then indebted to the said bank to an amount exceeding $1,644,000, the total indebtedness thus augmented being six times the capital stock of said banking association."

Our press is full of remarks about the way Mr. Harrison, "the boy preacher," maltreated some colored persons who attended his meetings at St. Louis, requesting them to leave the body of the house for the gallery. As Mr. Harrison was an early playmate, and as all colored people are our brothers, we made inquiry of a competent authority in that city with the following result: The affair happened in the Centenary church of the M. E. Church, South, not Mr. Harrison, but the pastor alone is responsible for it. See contrast, however, with the action. Our correspondent says: "A few Sabbaths ago a nice colored man came to our Union Church (the leading Methodist Episcopal Church in the city) and was seated in the most prominent part of the church, without offense to any one. The family with whom he sat, and everybody else seemed pleased to see him." So the world does move. Honor to whom honor is due.—Bennett Seminary Visitor.

The Evening Journal thus comments on a statement of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton that the church has done more to degrade women than all other influences put together: "This is an untruth unpleasantly stated. To illustrate it a falsity, compare the women of America, where the church is the most powerful social influence, with the women of China or Turkey, where no church exists. The better the church, and the better its observances are kept in any country, the better the condition, not only of women, but of the entire people."

This we are sure of, that the record of Mr. Hayes's administration will stand honorable by the side of any that has gone before or since.

"I move," said a delegate in a Virginia convention, "that our chairman take a dose of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, he is so hoarse that I cannot understand him.' That gentleman had no doubt, tried this wonderful medicine.

If one whose mental faculties are suspended by intoxication is induced to swallow spirituous liquors to such an extent as to endanger his life, the persons taking advantage of his condition of helplessness and mental darkness, and imposing the draught upon him, must answer in damages for the injury that ensues.—Texas Supreme Court.

A Good Plan.

The children—lived in a little cabin home, and all three of them—Nell, Rob, and Lizzie— were taking a gay "make-believe" ride on an old log. Fido jumped and barked as if he enjoyed the fun as much as anybody.

A gentleman who was passing down the road stopped and laughed:

"Good-morning little folks! That is rather slow riding. Wouldn't you like a horse and carriage?"

"Yes, sir," said Robbie; "but we haven't any, and so we are getting the most fun we can out what we do have."

Was not that a wise answer? How much pleasanter this world would be if all the little people—and big ones too—would stop fretting about the things they cannot get, and make the best of what they have!

Do you know any verse in the Bible that teaches us to be satisfied with what we have?—Sunbeam.

We are not only to flee from sin, but we are to follow, and embrace, and enjoy righteousness, and faith, and love, and peace. We are not only to escape our enemies but we are to have the best of friends.

Talk to your children about good people; tell them of their generous and self-sacrificing deeds, not those who lived a thousand years ago, but those who live now. There are plenty of them, men and women of whom the unthinking word is not worthy. There will be enough hands pointing to the other side of the picture, with all its sin and corruption, without yours. Bring the sweet roses and pure lilies into your home, and leave the poison ivy outside.

Riots, brawls, and murders are such constant fruits of the whisky traffic, that the daily papers keep the words, "in a saloon" stereotyped for their criminal columns.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON X. June 8.
JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH. (Rom. iii, 19-31.)

There has been given to men a holy law. All have disobeyed this law or are inclined to, by the evil nature which every human being has inherited from Adam. So the whole race is condemned like a criminal that has been tried and found guilty. God, who is the judge as well as the law-giver, tells us that because his Son Jesus Christ had died for us, we may be not only saved from punishment, but may be forgiven and received into God's favor, as fully as if we had never lost it. This is "justification." We can do nothing to obtain it. It is a gift, and is not pay or reward for something that has been done. We must ask for this gift, and believe in and accept Christ as our Savior, or we cannot receive the salvation which he has bought for us. To do this is to have "faith," and when we do it we are "justified by faith." This is done freely to all men, for God is just as willing to save an African as an American, a Chinaman as a Frenchman, an Indian as a German. It seems sometimes as if men want to shut others out of God's kingdom of grace, but he turns away no one who comes in the right way. As our offer is made to all no one can boast, though the Jews in the days of Paul were foolish enough to do so. Propitiation is a large word for little folks, but it means something with which to turn away displeasure. Christ, our elder brother, by his death and his prayers for us, has turned away the displeasure of God toward us on account of our sins, so he is called a "propitiation." How blessed that we know the way to obtain this peace.—Western.

NEW BOOKS.

Messrs. Lee & Shepard, of Boston, have issued several editions of the speeches, lectures and letters of Wendell Phillips, at prices of $2.50, $1.50, and 50 cents, for tinted paper, cloth and paper respectively. The famous lectures on "the Lost Arts," and "Daniel O'Connell," are issued in paper at 25 cents each.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The June "Outing" is richer in illustrations than any previous number, beginning with Halsall's charming frontispiece of the start in the yacht race, and the other pictures accompanying Mr. Dodd's articles on the Hull Yacht Club, and the bicycling illustrations of Mr. Bates' account of the great Canada trip last year, and Mr. Hume's lively story of his 'cycling experiences in France; and ending with a number of reproductions of the out-door pictures in late Academy Exhibition in New York, and the usual lively caricatures at the close.

In the issue of The Current May 24, Lucy H. Hooper, in her "Celebrated Personages of France" series gives an entertaining and valuable array of facts and incidents regarding the life and career of the great French diplomat and engineer, De Lesseps.

The Pulpit Treasury for June is as good as its name. The portrait of Dr. John H. Barrows, of Chicago, is given, with a sketch of his life, a view of his church and a noble sermon on "Religion—The Motive power in Human Progress." Dr. C. H. Parkhurst's sermon on "Woman: her Dues and her Debts," is fresh, pointed and full of golden thoughts. Departments are excellent. Yearly, $2.50. Clergymen $2. Single copies, 25c. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 767 Broadway, New York.

The opening story of the June Wide Awake, is "The Cow with Golden Horns," one of Miss Wilkins' fanciful stories. Somewhat akin to this quaint tale, is Mrs. John Sherwood's boarding-school story of "The Little Jade Lizard;" Quite as interesting in its facts as these two in their romance, is Miss Harris' article, "Some Little Shakers." The boys will greatly enjoy Mr. Holder's paper "About White Elephants" in general, and Mr. Barnum's white elephant in particular. Generous installments of the serials are given. There are two notable illustrated serial poems: Wordsworth's "Intimations of Immortality," of which two stanzas are illustrated with two beautiful engravings, No. VIII. Æsop's Fables, "The Cats at Law," with six full page drawings by Garrett. The Chautauqua Supplement is excellent in matter, a peculiarly seasonable article being Mr. Skinner's "Hints to Young Pedestrians." Wide Awake is $3 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston. Mass.

"Life and Death," a poem by C. P. Cranch, is to be the subject of a full-page original engraving, by Elbridge Kingsley, in the June Century.

From Root & Tinker, Tribune building, New York, we have received, with compliments of R. Hoe & Co., a copy of their new engraving entitled "Representative London Journalists." The group consists of John Walter, London Times; H. Labonchere, Truth; Edmund Yates, World; W. H. Mudford, Standard; J. R. Robinson, Daily News; J. L. Latey, London Illustrated News; F. C. Barnard, Punch; Frederick Greenwood, St. James Gazette; Wm. L. Thomas, Graphic; G. A. Sala, Daily Telegraph; Edw. Lloyd, Daily Chronicle.

The Pall Mall Gazette says Gen. Wolseley will command the expedition which is to relieve Khartoum in the fall. It will march from Snakim to Berber, and thence pass up the Nile.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. [e14-1y

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidently made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh Cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper. [may22-24je5

Bishop Harris's ruling at the Wilmington Conference, that a Roman Catholic priest's ordination could not be recognized as an elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as the Church from which he came is not an "Evangelical Church" within the meaning of that term in the Discipline, was sustained without dissent by the General Conference.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $50,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to procure a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

There was less absenteeism in the last General Conference than in its predecessors.

The Texas Christian Advocate, of Galveston, has been indulging in the luxury of a dress of new type.

We learn from the American Missionary that Dr. J. C. Hartzell proposes to issue a second edition of his valnable book, "Christian Educators in Council." The book is for sale at this office.

The songs of the Lord are as attractive as those of the world, and should be freely intermingled with all religious services. Our children and congregations should be trained to sing.

The first nnmber of the Western Adavocate in charge of Dr. J. H. Baytiss, the newly elected editor, and bearing the name of the book agents, Cranston & Stowe, was issued Jnne 4th.

The catalogne of Philander Smith College, 1884-1885, was very handsomely printed, and contains a picture of the new building. Rev. Thomas Mason, President, Little Rock.

Harper's Weekly for May 31st contains pictures of Bishops Ninde, Walden, Mallalieu and Fowler. When may we see Bishop Taylo in the journal of civilization? P. S.—It may be fonnd in issue for June 7.

A great deal of independence was exhibited in the thought, expression and action of the General Conference of 1884. All sections and elements of onr membership have reason to congratnlate themselves on its work as a whole.

There are six colored congregations struggling for existence in New Haven, Connecticut. Way down in cosmopolitan New England we do not see why these colored people do not go right in with the whites, unless, as we suspect, they have learned that, after all, a limited distinction has about it some very beneficial aspects.

The church of Edward Jndson, of New York, has a church wood and coal yar, where kindlings, coal, and all kinds of ready cut wood are offered for sale, "a first-rate article and good measure." The object of this yard is to furnish employment for destitute persons out of work. Members of the Church, regular attendants on its services, or those who have children in the Sunday-school, will be furnished work for four hours a day only, it being required that the rest of the time be spent in seeking regular occupation.

Judge Sabin's First Decision.

AN APPLICATION FOR HABEAS CORPUS REFUSED.

Hon. C. B. Sabin, United States district judger, delivered his first decision from the bench. The case in itself is a highly interesting one, and both the application and the judge's ruling upon it are given as being the best means of actually presenting the case in its clear light:

Ex parte Emile Francois to the Hon. Chauncey B. Sabin, Judge of the District Court of the United States, in and for the Eastern District of Texas: This petition of Emile Francois, who is a citizen and resident of the United States and of the State of Texas, respectfully states that on the 15th day of July, 1879, he was convicted in the District Court of Travis county, Texas, of the pretended crime of marriage with one Lottie Stotts, a person of mixed blood, descended from a negro within the third generation inclusive from said negro (he being alleged to be a white man,) in violation of article 386 (Paschal's Digest) of the Texas Criminal Code, in force at the time of said conviction; that he was therenpon sentenced to five years imprisonment in the state penitentiary, at Huntsville, Texas, wherein (by virtue of said judgment, which was affirmed Jnne 2, 1880, by opinion published in 6 Tex., Ct. App. Rep., p. 144) he is now serving out said term for said pretend d crime.

Petitioner alleges that said article 386, passed February 12, 1858, in prohibiting and making penal the intermarriage of the white and colored races, and also in discriminating against the white race in the matter of pnnishment, is obnoxious to the constitution and laws of the United States, particularly to that provision of the fourteenth amendment which declares that no State shall "deny to any person within its jurisdiction the eqnal protection of the laws." Petitioner further states that a few weeks after his arrest on said charge, and about two weeks before said conviction, that is to say, on or about the 1st day of July, 1879, he applied to Hon. Thomas H. Duval, then United States district judge here, for a writ of habeas corpus to release petitioner from said custody of the Texas State authorities, alleging particularly that said article 386 was obnoxious to said federal constitution and laws. On August 4, 1879, said writ was refused by said district judge by opinion published in 3 Woods, United State Circuit Court reports, page 3607, whereupon petitioner appealed to the United States Circuit Court in accordance with the provisions of sections 763 and 765, United States Revised Statutes. Afterward, in March, 1880, said appeal case was duly submitted to said court then sitting at Austin; and on or about the — day of August, 1880, said court (Mr. Justice Bradley and the then Circuit Judge Woods concurring) rendered its decision reversing of that Judge Duval, and holding said article 386 to be obnoxious to said fourteenth amendment and directing petitioner's release, the announcement of said decision being communicated to petitioner's counsel by said circuit judge as follows:

Atlanta, February 5, 1881,—Dear Sir: I have your letter, in relation to the habeas corpus case of Emile Francois. Before the last August term of the United States Circnit Court, at Austin, which was to be held by Judge McCormick, I sent the record by mail to Mr. Hopkins, the clerk, and wrote to Judge McCormick that, in the opinion of Justice Bradley and myself, Francois ought to be discharged, and requested him to make the order when the court met. I was, therefore, greatly surprised to learn, as I did from your letter, that nothing had been done. I had supposed that Francois was at liberty, having heard nothing more of his case.

You should bring this matter up before Judge Turner, and you are authorized to say to him that after full consultation, Justice Bradley and I both came to the conclusion that the law under which Francois was convicted was obnoxious to the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States and that Francois should be discharged. Respectfully yours,

W. B. WOODS.

C. T. Garland, Esq.

That the United States Circuit Court, in session at Austin, and the judges connected therewith who have been applied to have hitherto refused to enter said Judgment, (because of the absence of the record of the case, which has been lost by some of the cleks or judges attached to or holding said court, so that petitioner's counsel has not been able to procnre it since the submission of said appeal), or to issue said writ merely upon the hereinbefore quoted announcement of said decision; all of which makes this further application to your honor necessary. That petitioner's imprisonment in said penitentiary was in violation of the order of Judge Duval, (included in said opinion published in said 3 Woods, 367), which directed that petitioner should remain in the Travis county jail until said appeal from said judge should be heard and determined; that petitioner's said conviction and imprisonment in said penitentiary were both effected pending said appeal and habeas corpus proceedings (i. e., after his application was made for said writ and before final judgment upon said appeal), and were and are therefore null and void by virtue of section 766, United States Revised Statutes; and finally, that petitioner never in any way assented to said lawless proceedings, but on the contrary, promptly made no less than two different applications in due form to judges of the federal courts having the requisite authority for the writ of habeas corpus on the ground that said proceedings nnder State authority were had pending said habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Duval, and said appeal from him (without, however, being able to elicit from said other judges any decision upon said further applications). Petitioner alleges that by reason of the aforesaid proceedings by the Texas State authorities in violation of the constitution and laws of the United States, he was and still is illegally restrained of his liberty by said authorities and particularly by his special custodian, Thomas J. Goree, residing at, and superintendent of, the State penitentiary, at Huntsville, in the Eastern district of Texas, within your honor's jurisdiction.

Wherefore petioner prays your honor to grant him the United States writ of habeas corpus, and to cause the same to be issued to his custodian (and, should occasion require, to cause said writ to issue also to such other officers of said penitentiary or of said State as may be necessary to secure the bringing of petitioner before your honor and the answering of this petition), returnable according to and within the time required by law, before and for the further action of your honor; that petitioner be discharged from any such other illegal restraint; and petitioner prays for such other and further relief as may be necessary to restore to him his long-lost liberty and citizenship. And so he will ever pray. EMILE FRANCOIS.

By C. T. Garland, attorney for said applicant.

I. C. T. Garland, who made the above and foregoing application as counsel for and in behalf of Emile Francois, make oath that the facts set forth therein are true, to my personal knowledge.

C. T. GARLAND.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 23d day of April, A. D. 1884, at Austin, Texas. Witness my hand and official seal.

[SEAL] SAM HOPKINS,
Clerk U. S. Courts, Austin.

Galveston, Texas, April 29, 1884.—Ex parte Emile Francois: Application for a writ of habeas corpus. This application not having been personally signed or verified by Emile Francois, for whose relief it is intended, is not in a condition for consideration. [Sec. 754, U. S. Rev. Stats, p. 142]. Aside from this the showing presented exhibits the fact that an adverse decision of and concerning the same person and snbject matter by United States District Judge Duval has been had, (see 3 Wood's reports. 367, referred to in the application). and that an appeal therefrom was taken by petitioner to the United States Circuit Court holding sessions at Austin, Texas, and a conclusion therenpon has been reached by said court without as yet having actually rendered a judgment therein, owing to a loss of papers, but in which jurisdiction has attached and still exists, and remains the subject of action therein of and concerning said snbject matter, and of and concerning the said Emile Francois; and hence it seems to me improper, whether sitting as an United States district judge or as an United States district court to take action in the premises or to judicially express an opinion relative to the vitality of the statnte of the State of Texas of February 12, 1858, after the adoption of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States.

The writ of habeas corpus is denied, and the papers exhibited to me are ordered to be filed and preserved among the records of the court, and that the decision be entered, and that notice thereof be given to C. T. Garland, Esq., attorney for the petitioner, at Austin, Texas.

CHAUNCEY B. SABIN.
United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Texas.

Speech of Dr. Taylor and Comment by the Daily Advocate.

The Committee on Episcopacy presented Report No. 2, as follows:

The Committee on Episcopacy beg leave to present the following report: "That an Episcopal residence be placed in India."

It was moved that the report be adopted.

M. W. Taylor, of Lexington Conference, moved to strike ont the word India, and substitute therefore the word Africa. He then said: "I want it understood what it is we ask. I may inform the Conference first by telling them what it is not. We do not ask for a colored Bishop in this motion. We ask explicitly that a Bishop live in Africa, and to prove to you the sincerity of these statements, I will say that we have all agreed in our minds upon a gentleman of stalwart proportions, splendid physique, excellent digestion, not from the Washington, bnt from the Baltimore Conference. I need not say that I refer to the Rev. Dr. John Lanaham."

Mr. President, There are three reasons why we ask this. The first is a poetic one. Your fathers brought my fathers to live in Ameica. I would get even in the matter by compelling at least one white man to live in Africa.

My next reason is a commercial one. There is a vast continent with two hnndred millions of Africans, not all of them black Africans. There are the Barbary states, Tripoli, Morocco, and Egypt, containing many Europeans. There is West Africa, and South Africa, with its Europeans and its Americans. There is the great centre of that country, teeming with millions of men and millions of women who wait for the Gospel, who wait for a general that will lead the hosts of Israel to victory. There is a country rich in minerals, abounding in precious timber, a country that if it is brought into closer commercial relations with this country, would offer profitable employment for thonsands. One hundred and fifty thousand colored men have their names now npon a petition that will come before the Congress of this nation asking it to open a maill line of steamers between this country and Africa. A Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, living in Africa, would tend, sir, in my opinion, to qnicken and foster these great commercial relations which ought to exist between these great countries.

I am in haste, because I do not wish to detain you, and I proceed to give my third reason, which is an ecclesiitical reason. We have a right to snpervise the work of God in Africa. We have ten Bishops now, and we will have 3,4 or 5 more for Africa, so far as visits are concerned. We want one of them to live in Africa, so that the people in Liberia and in King Jimmy's Land, and Dahomey, and the people in Transvaal, and the people in Booerland, that all the people in those countries may learn more of the great movements of this Church and more of the Blessed Church in this locality.

There are men waiting for orders to move in Africa. We are told that the interests in India are superabundant, and that we have 10,000 Methodists there. We have 26,000 Methodists in Africa. We have more than 1,000 Methodists in Liberia that belong to this Church. We have a Conference that is in regular motion there. We have a work in that country that no one can do so well as the Bishops of the Methodists Episcopal Church and the missionaries of that Church.

Now, we come to you in view of these facts, and ask you to strike out this word India, and put in the word Africa, your oldest missionary work, npon which yon have poured out money and men. I imagine myself standing this morning by the grave of Miss Michener. I imagine that there are gathering around me the shades of Cookman, Burns, Cox, and Roberts. I imagine that they are saying to me: "Send a Bishop, not a piece of a one, but a complete, full Bishop, to live here, to do the work of saving this dark continent for Christ."

I believe that this General Conference will not adopt this motion, but I believe that this General Conference will speak out so clear, and show such a minority in favor of it, that the years will hasten and the hour quickly come when it shall be done. I have only to add one word more. We are frequently told that labor has been lost in Africa. I will quote in conclnsion:

"Sow in the morn thy seed;
At eve hold not the hand:
To doubt and fear give thou no heed;
Broadcast it o'er the land.

Thou can'st not toil in vain;
Cold, heat, and moist and dry,
Shall foster and mature the grain,
For garners in the sky."

Dr. Curry reported from the Committee on Episcopacy, in favor of making Asia a place of Episcopal residence. The Rev. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, of Lexington Conference (of African descent, and a minister of ability and of rare gifts as a speaker,) moved to amend the report by inserting the word Africa in place of the word Asia. He gave three reasons for making Africa the home of one of our Bishops. The first reason was poetical, the second commercial, the third ecclesiastical. He nominated the Rev. John Lanahan, D.D., of Baltimore Conference, as the proper man for a Bishop to reside in Africa. The speech of Dr. Taylor was cordially received and made a decidedly pleasant impression for his cause and for himself.

Dr. M. W. Taylor withdrew his motion to substitute Africa for Asia in the report under discussion on Monday before the Rev. Mr. Swindells began his argument, and one of the first remarks made by Mr. Swindells was that the amendment offered by Dr. Taylor was withdrawn by authority of the mover.

It was resolved to elect a missionary Bishop for Africa, Dr. M. W. Taylor was nominated for that position whereupon the following took place.—Revs. E. W. S. Peck, and J. E. Wilson also withdrew.

M. W. Taylor said he rose to a question of the highest privilege. At the first meeting of the Committee on Episcopacy the question of the work of Africa came up. He must testify here, in this presence, to the largeheartedness of that Committee to bring here to this body a document written with his own finger; but he had felt from the time the matter of a Missionary Bishop was first mentioned for Africa, that it could not be himself. The first great reason of all why his name must not be used in this relation, was a physical one. He should not be able to live if he went there, and he should not be able to live here long. He was sure that there were persons much better fitted for this responsible position than he was, and, therefore, he peremptorily said that any vote given for him for that place would be lost, as he could not go.

Five States have declared war against Presinent Gonzales, on account of the revenue stamp tax. Troops are being concentracted in the interior.

William Henry Hurlburt, the late editor of the New York World has returned to London from Nice, and proposes to remain for some months in England.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

E. Collins, Roseneath: "The first quarterly conference for the Roseneath charge was held May 10 11, Elder Revels in the chair, with his usual interest in the work of the church. The leaders reports were good. Pastor's reports showed that four have been received into full membership, and four on probation. We had a very pleasant session of conference. The elder's sermon was reviving to the people."

G. Carr, Aberdeen circuit: "The second quarterly for the Aberdeen circuit was held May 10-11. Elder Williams was present; in opening he made some interesting remarks, which I think will be a benefit to all present. Reports from local preachers and class leaders showed that they had been awake this quarter. At 11 o'clock the elder preached, at Mt. Zion, a sermon that made a lasting impression on the minds of all. Raised $4.65. Pastor's report showed there had been 5 deaths and 31 members received into full membership."

W. H. Hardy, Pearl River: "I had a talk with a Baptist preacher a few days ago. He was an Alabamian and contended that God was a Baptist too. It seems strange that an elder will preach such a doctrine as that. We know Him to be a God of love to all His erring children."

TENNESSEE.

O. B. Bullington, McMinnville: "We had a good quarterly conference. W. C. Miller preached for us. Collections were made for all claims. I have five Sunday-schools with 120 scholars, but we are greatly in need of books."

J. A. C. Wade, Leeville: "Please allow me to correct a mistake. We have not paid all our assessments, but on the 6th of April at our second quarterly conference the collections were as follows: Elder, $3.60; Freedmen's Aid, 70 cents; for Missions from Sunday-school, 75 cents; Sunday-school Union, 25 cents; Education, 50 cents; Home Missions, 50 cents; for delegation, $1; total $7.30."

J. E. Land, Memphis: "Centenary Church has made progress in the last two years. The fence was fixed, walls plastered, pulpit painted and carpeted, a fine pulpit Bible was purchased, window blinds put on and there is a fine choir and a fine organ. Two years ago the congregation was 25 to 30, now there are 100 to 150. No protracted meeting this year. Last Sunday 5 joined, since district conference 25 in all. In Sunday school 75 are enrolled. We are making extensive preparation for Children's day. Collections two years ago were from $150 to $200 and now $500 to $1400. You see we needed a man to pitch the battle and take the lead. Our pastor appealed, and then led off with the first contribution himself. Bro. Field, our pastor, is doing good work. We will increase the subscription list of the church paper."

TEXAS.

W. H. Logan, Houston: "We have closed a glorious revival at Trinity Church; meeting lasted five weeks; 54 were converted, and 56 have been added to the church this year. We met considerable opposition, but are encouraged and have the victory over all so far. That brave-eyed prince in Israel, Rev. I. E. Scott, kept everything in order during his pastorate. The Sunday-school is worthy of praise and among the best in the State. Among our many visiting preachers during the revival were Revs. Morgan, Hamilton, Staines, Norris, Brown and Smith."

W. J. Mitchell, Bremond: "We are raising money for our new church. The ladies gave a fair in the early part of April which was successful. There are 38 members and the fair cleared $128."

W. J. Mitchell: "The Waco district conference convened at Anderson April 17-20, Elder Gates in the chair, and a majority of the preachers present. The elders' reports showed an increase of the membership, and that most of the charges were having revivals. Improvements were going on. The officials are growing in a knowledge of their duties. There was a great deal of rain, but the conference was well cared for by the people, and fair congregations turned out."

LOUISIANA.

W. Smith, Donaldsonville: "Our protracted meeting ran five weeks. God has blessed the labors of our hearts by the conversion of sixty souls. This revival is one that is not to be forgotton soon in this town. Mightily did God manifest Himself in spirit power to the conversion of sinners and to the building up in great faith the army of the Lord. The work of the Lord is prospering in our hands, thank God. St. Peter's has her stakes set for conference, and we think we will be close behind the foremost this centennial year. The great thing about our people is they promise and they do also. We are intending to repair the church before conference if possible."

The first quarterly conference at Scott Chapel, Plaquemine, Rev. G. W. Lacey, pastor, was reported to us at length by the pastor. Two Sunday-schools are in operation with an average attendance of 100, and in need of books; 2 have been received and 3 expelled from the church. The members are harmonious, and trustees have attempted to erect a new church. Alexander Ricord is superintendent of the Sunday-school. Class leaders report 48 out of 83 members observe family worship. Collections for the quarter and paid pastor $91-75; elder, $20; bishop $2. The high water which has overflowed two-thirds of the tilled lands is a serious disadvantage.

Three Addreeses.

BY REV. H. W. KEY OF TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

1. H. W. Key, of Tennessee, said: We are here from very small conferences. We like to have our conferences represented, and we like to be heard before these meetings. We can go with one of our members to one committee, and in six days we can go to all of the committees. There are interests in our conference that ought to be heard by all of these committees, and we would like to be heard.

1. H. W. Key, of Tennessee, said that looking through the Gospels he could see nothing prohibiting women to exhort and preach where they had gifts and graces for the work, and he believed they were as much called to preach as men, and if she was called to preach, though a woman, she ought to be allowed to go out into the Lord's vineyard, and do His work. He did not think it was the best thing for this General Conference to put a bar in the way of her work. If a Quarterly Conference, or District Conference, should think a woman was called to preach it should be allowed. He was in favor of giving every person in the Church an equal chance in the matter, without respect to whether they were men or women. Where are those woman who have brought forward this great temperance cause? Does not their success in that cause indicate their ability to work for the Master? And is there not work enough to be done? He could but regret, after the petitions and memorials which had come up from the Conferences on this subject, that there seems to be a disposition to treat the women with such disrespect.

W. S. Prentice, of Illinois, said: We have now heard the question discussed on both sides, and I move the previous question. The call was not sustained.

1. The Rev. Mr. Key, of the Central Tennessee Conference, made an earnest plea that the name of the Freedmen's Aid Society remain unchanged, and that both races in the South have equal privileges in all the schools which are under the supervision of the Society. He made a ringing speech, which was very cordially received by the Conference.

Wm. Swindells, of Philadelphia, moved, by common consent, a reconsideration of the motion to refer the resolution offered by Brother Keys, so as to enable him to speak upon the question, and said it is simply a question of fair play. His voice is weak, and before he could make himself heard, the vote was taken. The brother has the right to speak upon his motion.

The motion to reconsider prevailed.

H. W. Key, of Tennessee, then said: After the reading of the paper again, Bishop, my reason for sending this paper to the table is that we, as members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, are in the Church to stay, and to stay there, no matter what action this General Conference takes; and we are in the Church depending upon the efforts of the Freedman's Aid Society. It is really the only Society by which we expect our people to be educated. Our schools are very meagre in the South, and they are under the control of people who are not friendly to us, and to change the name of the Freedman's Society will change the very object of the Society, namely: To educate the Freedmen left in the South at the close of the war. There are some things that are very burdensome to the Freedmen down South; there are monies that are left for the Freedman's Aid Society that are not used for that Society, and are used in a way that was never intended by the donors. The Freedmen's Aid Society has a name that is historical, and to change the name is to destroy that Society. Why do we want to change it? Do the delegates of the South ask to have it changed? My Conference has not asked for any change, and but a very few if any of our people desire any change, and I do not know the reason why. We are satisfied that our last General Conference made a mistake in this matter, and it has been a mistake to disturb this question. Our schools are open to everybody, and we ask no more than this and we accept no less. We are in the Church to stay, and we are not to be driven out. We have too many white friends in the Church and we are going to stay. Again I ask, why do we want a change? Has the Society failed? Why do we want it called the Southern Education Society? We have Southern hotels, Southern courts, and Southern Ku-Klux, and we don't want any more of that Southern idea. I hope that you will pass this resolution; we are in a minority, but we are a loyal minority; you can let us retain the name, and if the school is in Chatanooga, let us go there; if it is in Little Rock, let us go there; if it is in Boston, let us go there. We wish to go to our schools just like any other people. Now Bishop, we want to be in the Church, we don't want to draw any color line. I remember that it was said at the last General Conference that if we did not get our rights that we should leave the General Conference, but we have increased, we have stood there and held our ground, and we want to stand there still. I was one of the first that went down into that work with Bishop Clark and we went to stay. We are going to own some of that Southern land, and we are going to build up the Church, and a Church that you will not be ashamed of. Do not change the old historical name of the Freedman's Aid Society.—Daily Advocate.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Students' Annual Sociable of Rust University.

As it has been the custom of the students to have an annual sociable. The young men met (more than 100) on the 23rd ult., to organize and appoint the various committees; after a little confusion they affected their purpose by appointing John F. Hodges chairman and, B. S. Humphries secretary. No pains will be spared to make it an enjoyable affair. The price is fixed at 75 cents a couple. All visitors and friends who desire to attend will do well to secure tickets at once, as there will be no tickets sold after 4 o'clock p. m., Tuesday, June 10th. No one admitted except holders of tickets. Tickets can be had of John F. Hodges, Chairman, or B. S. Humphries, Secretary.

The General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

The General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, commenced at Zion Church, at Bleecker and West Tenth streets, New York, May 7th. There were delegates from twenty-one Annual Conferences, representing a membership of over 300,000 members. Bishops S. T. Jones, J. J. Moore, J. W. Hood, J. P. Thompson, and T. H. Lomax were present. Bishop Jones congratulated Zion Church on its progress since its establishment 88 years ago. He thought it peculiarly appropriate that after so long a period they should come back to the old mother of their organization to take new counsel, catch fresh inspiration, and start with renewed devotion and energy. "We started humbly," said he, "and continued humbly. God keep us to be humble to the end."

Among the most important features of the second day, related to the course to be pursued in regard to Bishop Hillery, who was suspended some time ago for maladministration.

Rev. J. C. Price, the eloquent orator who represented this body at the Ecumenical Conference, in London, in September 1881, and afterwards lectured and preached in Great Britain for some time to raise money for educational purposes, has been appointed Fraternal Messenger to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and Rev. E. H. Curry, Fraternal Messenger to the African Methodist Episcopal General Conference in session at Baltimore.

Third day (Friday) session, Bishop J. P. Thompson, presiding. The early part of the session was devoted to hearing the Quadrennial Address of the Bishops, read by Bishop S. T. Jones, which showed the Church to be steadily advancing and extending its operations and recently to include Africa. The address was of a very encouraging character throughout.

The case of Bishop Hillery, charged with conduct unbecoming a Christian minister was called, and Bishop Hood made an able and important argument against him, to which Bishop Hillery replied in a pathetic manner, and was speaking at the time for adjournment.

Saturday's session, the 10th was occupied in the case of Bishop W. H. Hillery, who was charged with buying and using intoxicating liquors and refusing to pay for them and for some groceries. Other grave complaints were reported against him.

The matter was first investigated by the Kentucky Conference, and it was decided the charges were not sustained, but Bishop Hood, the Presiding Officer, dissented, and brought the matter to the General Conference, and it was considered by the Bishops, and they sustained Bishop Hood's ruling.

The trial of Bishop W. H. Hillery was continued on Monday and occupied part of the session. The Bishop handed in his resignation, and its reception at that late hour after two days had been spent in the trial was objected to by many of the members. By a vote the resignation was laid on the table, and a resolution was adopted by which it is sought to have the Bishop deprived of his Episcopal office, and the trial of his character referred to the Tennessee Conference. Should the Tennessee Conference report favorably to Bishop Hillery, he will become simply an Elder in the Church.

The sixth day's session, May 13, the case of Bishop W. H. Hillery was further considered, and the report of the Committee appointed to investigate the charges was presented, recommending that he be deprived of the functions of Bishop, which was adopted.

This body was still considering the case of Bishop Hillery, at the close of last week, and was taking steps to learn whether his trial has been conducted properly according to law. The consolidation of the Star of Zion Journal and the Book Concern was considered. The report on its condition showed that during the past two years there was received from subscriptions and sales, $1,628; amount expended for printing, $1,669; an excess of $41. It was suggested that the Journal hereafter be issued monthly instead of weekly. Monday's session was chiefly occupied in fixing the lines of the Episcopal Districts.

Provision was made for an assignment of a Bishop to the sixth district—Africa—where a mission is now laboring, and it was decided that a Bishop should remain in charge of a district but two years instead of four.

This body is still in session in New York, but will soon adjourn. At the Friday's session Rev. Mr. Farley was elected Business Manager; Rev. A. L. Scott, Editor of the Church paper, The Star of Zion —Daily Advocate.

The next annual Conference will be held at Claysville, N. J., on the third Wednesday in May, 1885.

The 1st General Conference of this body met Aug. 25, 1866. They have 3 Districts, 40 preachers, 2,500 members, and 3 Annual Conferences which elect their own President Annually. No Bishops.

Bro. David B. Updegraff tells of his little boy, "Benny," who felt a little venturesome in passing over some slippery places. Finding that his feet were going from under him, he reached for his father's hand. But finding still that he had enough to do to steady himself, without holding on, he suggested that his father should take hold of him. In this way he passed over safely. How proudly, in self sufficiency, we venture on slippery places. Our insecurity, however, leads us to take hold on God. But we soon discover that the safest plan is to have God take hold on us. "Clinging" is better than a dangerous indifference. But we are safest in the divine grasp, and it is easier to be held than to hold on. "Kept by the power of God."

Congratulatory.

"Dr. M. W. Taylor, D.D.: Dear Brother—While on my work in Delaware the daily came with the news of your election as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE. I congratulate you and bid you God speed to abundant success; and, may I say further, that as it appears that you were providentially thrown into our little home for a lodging, should it please you to so condescend at any future time in our life, that you would be received in our door as a new lamp. And the entertainers of this General Conference, so far as I learn, are highly delighted with their sojourners. The unition of Methodists in this city in business harmony has shown that the Methodist Episcopal Church in spirit is just what Philadelphia is in name. This Church has been remembered for what it has promised and has striven to do, but now for what she has done. It is the place for me—I was lost out of it, I was found in it, I am saved in it. Here we have earth and heaven, self and God; the last wine the best. I have made my choice. Now to you that part from us, farewell. "As you go preach."

"And let our bodies part,
To different climes repair,
Inseparably joined in heart,
The friends of Jesus are.
O, let me still proceed
In Jesus's work below,
And following our triumphant Head,
To further conquests go."

I remain your fellow helper in the truth, J. H. WHITE.

The election of Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, of the Lexington Conference, as editor of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, is a just tribute to his ability, scholarship and level-headedness. The doctor in all race questions has in the past shown himself calm, dispassionate and judicious. If he carries into the editorial chair the same good judgment he has hitherto exhibited, the Church will enjoy the benefits of a wise and safe discharge of his editorial duties.—Methodist Advocate, Chattanooga.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D.D., of the Lexington Conference, has been elected editor of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, published at New Orleans, La. This is another step in the advance, and quite an honor to the conference of which he is a member. This is not the first time in the history of Methodism that such an election has occurred, Dr. Revels, of Mississippi, was elected at a previous session but declined the place. We hope Dr. Taylor will not follow his example, but lead on to success and victory.—Christian Herald, Atlanta.

Presbyterian General Assembly.

This distinguished body was in session at Saratoga. Responsive greetings were received from the Presbyterian Assembly in session at Vicksburg, Miss., and read by Dr. Stratton, of Mississippi, representing that body.

The Report of the Committee on the Freedmen reported as follows: The Board has expended during the year $120,521, of which the Freedmen themselves have contributed $20,385. It employs 95 ministers, of whom 81 are colored, and 100 teachers, of whom 73 are colored, and has 179 churches under its care, with 12,958 communicants, of whom 1,200 have been added during the year; it has 67 schools, with 7,388 pupils, and 5 higher institutions, with 1,770 pupils.

The entire revised Book of Discipline was declared adopted by a constitutional majority vote of the Presbytery, and is now the law of the Church for conducting judicial business. A resolution of respect to Hon. Cyrus McCormick, who had given during his life to Theological Seminary a half million dollars in money and land, was adopted by a rising vote. The Special Committee report on Sabbath Observance, deprecating all forms of labor on that day was adopted unanimously.

A fraternal telegram was read from the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Philadelphia. When the report of the Committee on Foreign Missions was discussed, it was stated the work called for $750,000 for the ensuing year.

The Southern Baptists in Council.

The twenty-ninth annual session of the Southern Baptist Church met in Baltimore, on Wednesday, May 7. Delegates were present from 15 Southern States, numbering on the second day about 600. The Convention organized by the election of the following officers: President—The Rev. Patrick Hues Meli, D. D., of Georgia: Vice-Presidents—The Hon. Joseph E. Brown, the Revs. T. H. Pritchard, William Carry Crane, F. H. Kerfoot; Secretaties—The Rev. Lansing Burrows, of Georgia, and the Rev. Oliver Fuller Gregory, of North Carolina. The Corresponding Secretary's report of the Home Mission Society shows that 144 missionaries have been engaged at 338 Churches and stations. The Sunday schools number 145, teachers and pupils 5,387. The communicants added were 4,190. The money expended was about $48,000. The increase in laborers was 50 per cent.

The Chinese Mission in California was relegated to the Northern Church because it was in its jurisdiction. Work among the Indians and colored people had been successful and encouraging. Board of Foreign Missions report receipts $79,903.29; disbursements, $80,059.61. During the second day's session a cablegram was received from Dr. M. T. Yates, Missionary at Shanghai, China, dated to day, which read "Greenland's icy," referring to the well-known missionary hymn. The Convention sang the hymn, and the President responded to Dr. Yates, "The joyful sound proclaim."

Children's Day.

The near approach of the Children's Day for 1884 makes it of the highest importance that the following utterances of the General Conference be promptly read and everywhere acted upon:

I. Resolution Reported by the Committee on the Centennial.

Resolved, That we recommend that the exercises of the Sunday-schools on "Children's Day" be given the character of a children's centennial celebration, according to the programme and Manual furnished by the Board of Education.

II. Preamble and Resolutions Reported by the Committee on Education.

Whereas, In some places a disposition has been manifested to ignore the specific design proposed in our Discipline as the object of the Children's Day collection: and Whereas, The practice has, to some extent, obtained of either taking no collection, or of raising funds for only local purposes, such as decorations, Sunday-school expenses, and other incidental objects: and, Whereas, All such divergences tend to detract from the unity and complete success of this grand connectional movement in behalf of Christian education; therefore,

Resolved, 1. By the General Conference, that we request all our ministers, churches, and Sunday-schools, from this time forward, to enter heartily into the observonce of Children's Day on the plan originally proposed and distinctly defined in the Discipline of our Church.

That we further recommend that in connection with appropriate pecuniary effort in behalf of the Children's Educational Fund, the exercises of Children's Day be also planned and conducted with the higher aim of promoting the intellectual and spiritual welfare of all our children and youth.

The King of Denmark is truly a paternal monarch. Finding that during the recent severe weather the royal foot guards were suffering greatly from Colds and Coughs, this good old gentleman ordered a supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for them and now the sentries are happy.

Doing Good.

BY REV. P. STRYKER, D.D.

"As we have, therefore, opportunity let us do good unto all men."—Gal. vi. 10.

This is a very precious text, and ought to make an impression on every Christian's heart.

I. What? "Do good."

There are some people who do good, many who do that which is bad, and a few who seem hardly to do anything. There is no excuse for those who do wrong. God in his holy word condemns them, every one condemns them, they condemn themselves. But it is not enough that we should avoid doing that which is bad. We ought to do good. Every day and hour we should do good. It should be the great study as well as aim of our lives to do good. We should continually pray to God that he will show us how we can do the most good.

II. To whom? "Unto all men."

We cannot do good to all men at the same time. Some people do nothing because they cannot do a big thing. But life is made up of little things, and we must be willing to do a little good any and every moment. Then we must not think we can only show kindness to those who are our special friends, who are kind to us, whom we know, and with whom we associate pleasantly. There is not a human being but has some claim upon us. If we were in danger or trouble we would be willing to receive assistance from any one, and we should in return be ready to help any one near us who needs it.

III. When? "As we have opportunity."

Opportunities are always occurring. If we keep our eyes open, we will find that anywhere and at any time we can do good to some one.

But there are special times when we can do special good, and then we should put forth special efforts.

In illustration of this, let us repeat the story told by a Moravian missionary of a Zulu boy:

A farmer was on a journey to Verulane, and hired this lad to drive the oxen. At length they were overtaken by a heavy mist, and this turned into rain. As night came on the air became intensely cold and the boy was ready to perish. He stood still with his eyes closed. The farmer took the poor lad in his arms, laid him down in the wagon, and covered him with his own great coat. But all in vain. It looked as if the boy would die. So the kind-hearted man lay down beside him, and, taking the benumbed little fellow in his arms, pressed him closely to his own warm body. This was enough. The heart began again to beat, the eyes opened, and the body spake. Some time after he asked his benefactor what led him to take so much trouble to save him. Then the farmer, who was a Christian, told him the "old, old story of Jesus and His love." This warmed another heart. The Zulu boy was led to Christ, became an earnest Christian, and is now, on those same hills in Zululand, preaching the Gospel with great success to his fellowmen.

That good farmer had two opportunities, and he improved them both. He saved the boy from death by cold, and afterwards led him to the enjoyment of a new life in the kingdom of God. Let us follow his example, and as we have opportunity do good to all men.

"God Is Love."

BY MRS. E. J. RICHMOND.

Among all the attributes of the Infinite One, mercy, long-suffering, justice, goodness, of the crowning grace alone is said, God is love. It envelops us like the air we breathe. it shields and protects us from danger, it warms and enlightens us like the rays of the sun, for he is our Sun. Love is spoken of in connection with faith and hope, and it is written "the greatest of these is charity—love."

Although we may abound in all other graces, though we may possess the zeal of the martyr, yet if we lack love, "it profiteth us nothing."

How, then, can those who are "perfected in love" find room for bitterness and uncharitableness?

Clearly there is some mistake.

The zealous disciples brought one to Jesus who had been casting out devils in his name, whom they had forbidden because he "followed not with them."

How gentle the rebuke of the loving Jesus, "Forbid him not, for he that is not against us is for us."

Love is slowly yet surely winning its way, bringing hearts filled with God into fellowship and unity of effort for the coming of his kingdom.

Love melts and subdues the hardest hearts. The commandment, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," is most easily obeyed, for he is infinitely lovely.

"Love, and love only, is the leaven for love," the poet sings. The inspired writer says with beautiful simplicity and directness, "We love him because he first loved us."

We are attracted irresistibly toward what is lovely, though the wealth of the world could not purchase love.

"God is love," its essence, its perfection, and as we yield ourselves to its power, the calm, and rest, and sweetness of assurance fill our souls, and we know that "God is love."

Billy Dawson.

There lived near Leeds, in Yorkshire, England, a celebrated Wesleyan local preacher familiarly called Billy Dawson.

The following illustration of his power as a preacher may be interesting to our readers:—

"Mr. Dawson was delivering a discourse peculiarly suited to his genius, and which will be long remembered in many towns and villages in England, because of the effect it almost always produced. The sermon was generally known to be one of his favorite discourses—and such he preached many times over—and was called by his admirers, 'Death on the Pale Horse.' As the reader will readily suppose, it was founded upon Revelation vi. 7, 8. I have heard the sermon more than once, and know not that I ever heard one that was throughout of so startling a character. In bold striking imagery; in powerful, thrilling, irresistable appeal, it could scarcely have a parallel. When Mr. Dawson had been happy in delivery, I have seen the congregation listen with such absorbing interest that it seemed as though their very breathing was supended, and in the panses of the preacher a long and deep inspiration was resorted to as a relief.

"This discourse Mr. Dawson was delivoring at the village in question, and was induiging in that peculiarly vivid imagery which was at the basis of his popularity—'Come, and see! the sinner is in the broad road to ruin—every step takes him nearer to hell and farther from heaven. Onward, he is going—death and hell are after him—quickly, untiringly, they pursue him—with swift but noiseless hoof the pale horse and his paler rider are tracking the godless wretch. See! see! they are getting nearer to him—they are overtaking him! At this moment so perfect was the stillness of the congregation that the ticking of the clock could be distinctly heard in every part of the chapel, and upon this, with a facility peculiarly his own, he promptly seized, and without any seeming interruption, leaning over the pulpit in the attitude of attention, he fixed his eyes upon those who sat immediately beneath, and in an almost supernatural whisper continued, 'Hark! hark! here they come!—that's their untiring footstep! Hark! hark!' and then imitating, for a moment the beating of a pendulum, he exclaimed, in the highest pitch of his voice, 'Save the sinner—save him! See, the bony arm is raised— the dart is poised! O my God, save him—save him! for if Death strikes him he falls into hell, and as he falls, he shrieks, "Lost! lost! lost! Time lost! Sabbaths lost! means lost! heaven lost! all lost! LOST! LOST!'" The effect was so overpowering that two of the congregation fainted, and it required all of the preacher's tact and self-command to ride through the storm which his own brilliant fancy and vivid imagination had roused.

"Perhaps somewhat apocryphal, yet generally accounted as true, is an anecdote of his preaching at Pudsey, a village indabited by woolen-cloth weavers, some five or six miles from Leeds. As the story prevails, Mr. Dawson was preaching from the history of David slaying Goliath, and was indulging freely in the pictorial representation of which he was so perfect a master. Personating David he had struck down the boasting Philistine, and stepping back in the pulpit, he cast his eye downward, and commenced a train of irony, which had the two-fold effect of piercing every one that exalted himself against the Lord, and of adding force to the graphic picture he had already given of that strange conflict. So powerfully did the speaker depict the conqueror's emotion, and so rapidly did he heap taunt upon taunt on his prostrate foe, that the congregation seemed to forget the actual state of things in the ideal, and waited in breathless suspense for the catastrophe. Some in the gallery, in the intensity of the excitement, literally leaned forward, as though they expected to see on the floor of the pulpit the giant's form with the stripling's foot upon his breast; and one person, carried away by his excitement the sanctity of the place, exclaimed, in the broad dialect of the country, "Off with his head, Billy.'

The New Missionary Secretary.

The election of Chaplain M'Cabe as successor to Dr. Fowler as corresponding Secretary of the Missionary Society is an event of considerable significance. The Chaplain had the avantages and disadvantages of great success in his former position. His success attracted attention to him as suitable for the position in which he is now placed. Yet that very success made it seem to many inexpedient to remove him from a sphere with which he had been so long identified.

Besides, he was in a strait betwixt two. The arguments pro and con were summed up in substance as follows, and were repeated probably a thousand times: It is a shame to take the Chaplain away from the Church Extension Society; to which the answer was made, the Church Extension Society is thoroughly established; its Loan Fund is a great fact; its Secretary is a man of almost unlimited capacity for work, with a genius for system, a knowledge of men, and the ability to select and train some efficient successor to Chaplain M'Cabe. Besides, the Missionary Society has been sorely smitten within a few years by the deaths of two eloquent Secretaries—Dr. Thomas M. Eddy and Dr. Robert L. Dashiell. It has now suffered the loss of the vigorous efforts of Dr. Fowler, and needs the enthusiasm, the inspiration, the ability to travel, and the faculty of winning utterance, which made Chaplain M'Cabe easily chief in commending a good cause.

This is the way the brethren talked, and one summed the whole matter up by the statement that with John M. Reid, C. C. M'Cabe, and James N. FitzGerald to represent its interests, and the Board of Managers to superintend its affairs, the Missionary Society is as well equipped to enter upon a successful quadrennium as it has been at any time since the brilliancy of Dr. Durbin's powers began to grow dim in the twilight of old age, and the administrative powers of William L. Harris were transferred to the Episcopacy.

So the brethren talked, and when the voting ended Chaplain M'Cabe was one of the Secretaries of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It appears to have been a spontaneous movement. As such, let us believe it to be providential, and so believing, we have no doubt that the right man will be found for the Church Extension Society, who will find his work made easy rather than hard by that of his predecessor, and by the sympathy which will naturally arise with the Society in the loss of so eloquent an assistant.—New York Advocate.

Paine Institute.

The Christian Neighbor alludes to an enterprise of the M. E. Church, South as follows:

It appears that the "Paine Institute" enterprise does not meet with anything like a general endorsement of the people; nor will it receive their approval while little or no special effort is being made by the Church for the education of the masses of the poor uneducated whites who are as needy and, in the judgment of unbiassed minds, as deserving as the sons and daughters of the brothers and sisters in black. We do not wish to be understood as opposing the education of any class, provided the cost thereof is laid and paid where and by whom it ought to be. We mean no more than to demand that the poor and ignorant whites occupy a position in the matter of education no lower than that claimed for the negroes.

The tax for "free education" the people are accepting for the present. To press the claims (?) of special additional effort on behalf of the colored race may possibly diminish respect for future recommendations from the source whence it is claimed the idea of a Paine Institute originated. As occasions may call for recommendations in the future they will doubtless be made, but when made it is hoped the grounds of such recommendations will be such as to command the sympathy and support of the people.

Gresham and M'Pherson.

Gen. Gresham, the Postmaster-General, was subordinate in command to General McPherson, whom he greatly loved. When Gresham was before Atlanta, just a day or two prior to its fall, he was wounded badly, a shell carrying away the fleshy part of his leg above the knee. He sent word to McPherson that he was disabled and had been ordered to the rear. McPherson sent back a sympathetic message and an escort, and Gresham was carried by a roundabout course to a point where he received medical attention. When he could be further moved, he was put into a baggage car on a stretcher, and alongside a coffin which had been put in the car before he reached it. He heard some of the men about him talking sadly, and caught the remark that "It is too bad the General is gone." "What General?" asked Gresham. The men expressed their surprise that he did not know whose dead body was so close by his side, and shocked him by telling him that it was that of McPherson, who had been killed and had overtaken him on his way to the rear. Gresham reveres McPherson's memory, and a New-York Congressman, who found him sitting in McPherson-square, near the Arlington, a day or two ago, looking at the statue of the brave man, tells us that Gresham frequently stops as he goes that way, and looks upon it as he recalls the story of his life and death.—Washington Letter to the Rochester Union.

The decision of Judge Sabin in the Francois case, which is republished from the Galveston News, will be read with interest. Did the Judge overlook section 722 U. S. Revised Statutes, which extend the liberal provisions of State laws, so that any friend or attorney of a poor and destitute prisioner (who is hustled from one convict camp to another where he cannot see counsel or make oath before an officer) can sign, swear to and present an application for the writ of habeas corpus in his behalf and stead? We are informed that Texas Revised Civil Statutes, title 2, article 1, and Code of Criminal Procedure, title 3, chapter 8, articles 133, 134, 143, 147, so provide. Another application may be pressed shortly, and it will be disgraceful if the slave-born State law continues to make a crime of marriage between the two races in the United States, in defiance of national laws relative to civil rights, and every principle of justice and equity. There is no moral question involved in the caste distinction which Texas has legalized; it is merely the exercise of brute force over a race which it finds powerless for the moment to resent. Francois is now a victim to barbarism, and has violated no law human or divine, worthy the respect or obedience of freemen.

Inglorious Distinction.

Of the Methodist Episcopacy as what approximates very nearly to it, the superintendency of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church has been the first to furnish an example of alleged unfaithfulness in this high and honorable office. The distinction of being the first to produce a practical reversal of the solemn charge "Be a shepherd not a wolf," may not largely affect the colored race, but to the extent that it does so the effect is inglorious. The Scriptures prescribe many excellent qualities for a bishop, and a man should by no means be elevated to this exalted office until he is proven to be in possession of them. All ministers should be sober, grave, and temperate, of sound judgment, gentle and apt to teach, neither brawlers or strickers. Bishops should be more especially so. The Zion Church made a mistake when it failed to consecrate that staunch and exemplary Christian Elijah H. Curry to the Episcopacy. "Lay hands suddenly on no man."

Moody, the evangelist, announced last evening at his revival services in London, that the health of his colleague, Mr. Sankey, had greatly improved, and that he would soon sail for the United States Saturday.

The Centennial General Conference.

The Centennial General Conference has come and gone. It stands one hundred years apart from the first one, minus seven months. The first contained twenty-one members, elected two and consecrated one Bishop, adopted a Discipline, Liturgy, and outlined a plan for temperance work. It provided a plan for preaching to the black people and for emancipating the slaves. It recognized the supremacy of the colonial government and the independence of the United States. It adopted all the special features of the English system, and set forth on its career of a hundred years with 14,988 members, 2 bishops, 12 elders and 1 deacon.

The Twenty-fourth General Conference, when compared with the first or any succeeding one, must be called great. Great in the number of members—there being four hundred and sixteen delegates—great in the versatility and variety of intellectual force; great in liberality and ability to meet all demands which the age and the place it occupies in the evangelistic movements thereof laid upon it. Great in its ability to unify and harmonize that which appeared to be diverse and incongruous. Great in its personnel, its morale, and for its abiding influence in the community where it was held, and on the Church abroad. It numbers its ministry by the thousand and its membership by the million. It was remarkable for its conservative yet progressive features. There was no fear to lay hands on old traditionary and ancient land-marks if such procedure was regarded as needful, but never simply and only only for the sake of experiment. Speeches were plenty at the beginning, some of them gems of hetorioa beauty, often overflowing with wit and pungently logical. Sometimes they were muddy, insipid and sepulchral; they ranged in time from fifteen to two minutes; when they grew the least bit tedious or prolix the previous question was promptly ordered, and the chairman proceeded to unravel the meshy network of parliamentary fetters which often entwined themselves about the main queston. It did nothing revolutionary, but at one time seemed to reach the critical verge of it. The general itinerant superintendancy, the pastoral term and the status of women with respect to the ministry remain unchanged, though it is evident that the friends of the change have simply retreated to rest, reload and return again to the conflict.

India and Europe will ask for an episcopal residence in 1888 and get it. In such an event J. M. Thoburn will probably occupy that in India, and Dr. Krebiel, Liebhart, Lieber, or some other German in Europe. There was no change in the basis of representation, but the initial step was taken in that direction, and it will come at an early date. The present quadrenium will return nearly, or if certain contemplated new conferences are admitted, and the old ones increase at the same rate as in the past quadrenium, quite five hundred delegates. Essnetial changes were made in the Discipline and, we think, much to its improvement. We shall notice them particularly in the future.

The position of the Church on the subject of "caste" was clearly and consistently defined, and the administration in the South indorsed. The recognition given the colored members was equal to their highest hope, and extended with a cordial generosity which demands great sobriety, discretion, magnanimity and circumspection on their part. When the great Napoleon would inspire his legion to deeds of valor he once said to them, "Comrades, the eyes of France are upon you." So may it now be said, "Afro-Americans, the eyes of Methodism, of the world, are upon you. Quit you like men; be strong." It is good to have the strength of a giant, but not to use it like a giant. With every door thrown wide open let us enter those where it is most congenial and beneficial to us. Thus shall we secure increased respect and confidence by modestly using and not abusing those opportunities we have.

Sights and Insights in and About Philadelphia.

Bang! bang! bang! went the gong as we rolled out of the Fourteenth and Main street depot in Louisville, over the Ohio and Mississippi road via the B. & O. and Pennsylvania railroads, for the city of Brotherly Love, 5:30 a. m., April 29. We are whirling over the bridge, and through Parkersburg, now we rush down the valley and then around on a shelf of the mountain, clinging closely to it in our flight. Now we are creeping slowly up, up, until we reach the summit and rest on the back-bone of the country. What terrible convulsions these mountains must have witnessed; what a pressure it must have required to squeeze these vast piles of stone into all shapes and forms for hundreds of feet above the surface. From terra alto to terra firma it is a terrible rush. Now we have crossed the heights, and have once more reached the lowlands on their eastern base. Our watch is an hour slow, but we were exactly on time at Louisville. What is the matter? Nothing, only we have come one hour nearer to the sun. There was a world on the Western side of these Alleghanies, but there is another and a greater one on the Eastern side. Things may be right from a certain point of observation, and altogether different as viewed from another. We must climb the mountains and look both ways to make correct estimates and form impartial judgments. There is also difference in the Christian's time as he climbs the heights and nears the Sun of Righteousness.

There the Rapahanock rushes into the arms of the Potoman. How the murmur of the waters, and the bracing breeze exhilarates us both by sound and touch. The outlines of Harper's Ferry appear in the distance; the old arsenal, Captain Brown and his noble band of heroes struggling against destiny, rise in mind. The blood of these devoted men seems to have sanctified this very ground to freedoms purposes. In sight of the place where they were slain the stately outline of a college devoted to the education of Negro children may be seen. Onward we whirl until we reach Washington, the great talking town of the nation. Here a number leeve us; they are going to call on the President. We rush on to Baltimore, the city of monuments and game fish. Boiled shad, fried porgy and baked fresh water mackeral meet you at all sides here. Porgy is familiarly denominated Conference Turkey—they come around about the time the Bishops are coming up from the South to hold their spring conferences in the North. Hence they are one of the items sure to enter into the menu of ministerial entertainment any where near this region. The Delaware, Susquehannah and Schuylkill are noble rivers; we sweep over one or the other of them every few minutes until we reach Philadelphia. "This way for hansoms cabs and all sorts of coaches." Here, take this check, get my trunk and drive me to 1773 Alder street." "All right; $1 for you and your trunk." This colloquy will post the stranger somewhat as to our first glimpse of this extensive city. More anon.

After a drive that seemed as if it would last all night our cabman cried out "This is the place." What, this three-story brick, with marble steps, etc. Well don't marvel, there is nothing special about it; all the delegates are entertained in this style. Jing! a-ling! a-ling! goes the door bell, and Miss Mollie, the accomplished neice, soon followed by Mrs. Martha, the graceful better half of Rev. Isaac H. White, presiding elder of the Philadelphia district, whose guest we are by his own request to be, appears. We present our card with introduction from those princely entertainers represented by Dr. Longacre and Bro. Swindells. "All right, come in, Dr. Taylor. Please consider yourself at home." So we did as much as we could with the partner of our youth and the son of our strength a thousand miles away. After bath, supper and a good rest in the third story, where the heavy saline breezes from the ocean could have free course and tone up our eating qualities as it did. We arose and after supper repaired to the parlor for service. The service was simply this, a psalm is read and commented on in brief, then prayer. This is repeated night and morning, except on Sunday. We add a lesson in the Church Catechism, all answering in turns. After breakfast we were out to meet delegates, see the sights and look into the churches. There are 92 of these, 4 of which belong to the Delaware Conference, they are Zoar, John Wesley, Germantown and Frankford, all of them good brick edifices, and the two first quite handsome, with situations in the midst of the city in good localities. Old Saint George's church is the nucleus from which has sprung the whole of Philadelphia Methodism in the past 100 years. Underneath it lie most of the heroes buried who were the builders of our system in Pennsylvania—four bishops, Asbury, Whatcoat, George and Scott have been its pastors. The tomb of Ezekiel Cooper is at the front entrance and that of John Dickins near it. They were the committee of arrangements for the visit and address of Bishops Coke and Asbury to President Washington, and John Dickins was the founder of our great Publishing House. Arch Street is probably the finest church in the city, if not in the connection, except the Metropolitan in Washington. Rev. W. H. Thomas, a young man of fine qualities and a hopeful future is the pastor of Zoar. The Rev. Dr. Stevenson, late of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, is at Wesley. The colored people here have things separate, as we do South. Since it is not from necessity it must be from choice, and this will be more and more the rule as the masses become learned and patriotic. They have a fine cemetery, a home for aged and infirm colored people, a public hall, and many places of business carrying large stock and well patronized. Upon inquiry we gleaned from each of them that their patronage came mainly from white people. We have often tried to find out the reason of this generally prevalent fact that colored people will not help one another in business. They will aid an Irishman until he becomes rich and refuses to serve them, or, if a landlord, to rent them his houses, but will not generally help each other. Until there is a change for the better in this particular as well as some others, the best outcome for us as a people will be indefinitely postponed. Among the business men of color of the city Wm. Still stands first. He is a coal merchant on a large scale, and also a publisher; he owns three or four business blocks besides Liberty Hall, a large, four-story brick structure; his check is good for a hundred thousand dollars, and he ought to be worth a million, if long-continued, faithful service to his race adds anything to his claims. He is the leaving spirit in all public matters among the colored people, is a liberal giver and a good liver at home. He and his whole family are dark complected, finely cultured, and of graceful manners. With him are two boys of the Vey tribe, from Africa, going to school at Lincoln University, whence they will, with five others now in that school, return to Africa. There were ten of them but three have died. Mr. Still keeps an open door for such as they are. We regard him as the leading colored man in the country. His strongest part is his disposition to cling more closely and work more earnestly for his race as his wealth and influence increases, and makes social recognition an easy possibility in other directions. So far as our knowledge extends among men of color who have attained such eminence and wealth as his, he stands almost alone in this regard. He well deserves to be, as he is enthusiastically called, THE colored patriot. He regards the meeting of our General Conference in Philadelphia as an event which will do great good in the future, and is favorably impressed with our delegates of color and the positions they occupy both as churchmen and citizens. It is only a question of time till all the great and good colored men will see as he does. We could speak of others that do so now. Upon his efforts and liberality depended the success of that overwhelming reception given the delegates by the citizens of color in Philadelphia. The Navy, Mint, Independence Hall, Fairmount Park and the Zoological Garden are all points of interest, but Watamaker's great variety store and the new county buildings are marvels in their line. Mrs. Gilbert keeps a colored hotel in good style, and a few doors away on Pine street is the book store, printing office and editorial rooms of the Christian Recorder, the official paper of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. On entering you meet either Bro. Gould, junior, senior or the sweet face of Miss Tanner, daughter of the genial Doctor. Bro. Gould leaves the publishing house, and Bro. Embry comes in; both are excellent gentlemen, but these frequent changes must be injurious to the business. Dr. Tanner was among the first gentlemen we met after our arrival; his face was as sunny and his manner as open and free as of yore. He goes out, I wish I could say up either to the Bishopric or some official place of power; as it is he is given the chance to make another successful periodical for his church. Dr. Lee, the late President of Wilberforce, is in every sense a gentleman and a scholar. He will take the editorship of the Recorder. By no means least of the objects of interest, to me of veneration, is "Old Bethel." On this ground Richard Allen lived, labored and is buried; standing before his tomb, we instinctively raise our hat and wipe away the tears which start unbidden to our eyes. Our Methodism has splendid quarters on Arch street. Bishop Simpson is pleasantly located in a brown stone mansion on the same street near the church. We were made to feel much at ease in his magnificent home. The Bishop himself is an object of deepest interest to all Methodists, and that was evidenced in the rounds of applause which announcey his daily arrival in the hall of Conference. Dr. Kynett is a fixture in this city, and Bro. Neely's parliamentary law keeps things straight. We had a most agreeable evening with D. B. Bowser and family: he has grown gray in the service of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows. Mrs. Bowser is an excellent manager of business affairs, and largely controls the manufacturing establishment of which Mr. Bowser is proprietor.

Bishop Turner.

Bishop H. M. Turner, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, is what may be described as exceedingly high church, not to say prelatical, in many of his ecclesiastical views. He is thought to favor an arch-episcopacy for his church, with robes, mitre and all ceremonial paraphernalia that belongs to this theory. The question of confirmation has, we believe, been mooted in the late Baltimore Conference, and is known to have at least a few strong advocates. These things tend to induce the inquiry whether the tend of the African Methodist Episcopal Church is not quietly, it may be slowly but surely, toward that of the Protestant, or at least the Reformed Episcopal Church. It may be that there is a hereditary touch of third order ism running through its organic constitution by reason of its original contact with Bishop White. Bishop Turner is a man of strong convictions and courage. He will write his views in the magazine of his church in the future, and we shall read them with interest and perhaps review them.

What Was Done By and For the Afro-American Delegates.

WHAT THEY DID.

They behaved with dignity, and arrayed themselves genteelly. They were always on hand at the Conference sessions and committee meetings. They went about and took in the sights around the city, when at leisure. They seemed to be temperate, and otherwise of good moral character. They were faithful to what they believed to be the best interest and wishes of their constituents.

M. W. Taylor, Joseph Courtey, and T. R. Fletcher, of Lexington; J. C. Hartzell and A. E. P. Albert, of Louisiana; G. W. Sams, of Lit-Rock; W. J. Parker, of Delaware; J. M. Shumpert, of Mississippi; Mack Henson, of Texas; H. W. Key, of Tennessee; J. E. Wilson, C. C. Bomar and A. Webster, of South Carolina; W. F. Steel, of North Carolina, presented memorials or resolutions, or both, and others may have done so, but if so they they have escaped us.

We give three addresses of the Rev. H. W. Key; there is another, possibly three more speeches, made by him, which we shall give if we can find them.

Bros. Shumpert and Bomar also made speeches which, being in a great rush to reach a train, we may have overlooked. Most of the ministers delivered acceptable sermons, and the laymen addresses in the various churches and denominations of the city.

WHAT WAS DONE FOR THEM.

They were twice called upon to assist in or wholly conduct the religious exercises. Rev. J. E. Wilson and the writer was called upon in this way. Rev. Dennis Osborn, a Eurasian and the editor, an Afro-American, by the request of Bishop Taylor, assisted in his consecration to the Bishopric of Africa.

S. G. Griffin and E. W. S. Peck were appointed tellers; one or the other of them aiding in the count of every ballot cast.

Prof. W. H. Crogman, of the Savannah Conference, was appointed Assistant Secretary, and performed the services assigned him with ability.

The Louisiana delegation had the chairmanship of the Freedmen's Aid, and the secretaryship of the Committee on the State of the Church, in Dr. Hartzell and A. E. P. Albert.

To this conference is given also the Assistant Secretaryship of the Freedmen's Aid Society; Texas received the Secretaryship of the Freedmen's Aid Committee, Wm. Wesley being elected. Each of the Committees—Episcopacy, Itineracy, Boundaries, Revisals, State of the Church, Book Concern, Missions, Education, Church Extension, Sunday-school and Tracts, and Freedmen's Aid, had a representative of each colored conference on it. The special committees appointed by the various chairmen all contained one or more colored representatives. The 6th and 10th districts have colored members of the book committee. The representatives are E. W. S. Peck and A. E. P. Albert, of Washington and Louisiana Conferences. Joseph Courtney and James M. Shumpert, of Lexington and Mississippi Conferences, were placed on the Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Wesley J. Parker is on the General Committee of Church Extension; he is an honored member of the Delawate Conference.

Our Southern white work was equally well remembered and represented. Among those appointed none have placed this office under more lasting obligations than Rev. T. B. Ford, member of the Missionary Committee from Arkansas Conference. There were enough votes to elect two delegates of color from the 10th district, but it was the general feeling that Bro. Ford deserved this recognition of his faithful work as a minister and representative man. Besides this the Liberia Conference got a Bishop and the Lexington Conference an editor. There is, therefore, no longer any question about rights, recognition, or equality before the law. Bnt these high functions bring increased responsibilities. Let the result be such as will cause no real friend of the Negro to blush.

Give Us a Righteous Ruler.

What the Nation needs is a righteons ruler. The colored citizens of the United States do not ask or expect special provisions made for them, bnt they would like to be sure that the man who is to go into authority has the fear of God and the rights of all the citizens of our great country before his eyes. "When the righteous are in authority the people rejoice, but when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn." The whipping of Julius Patterson and the killing of his brother, Hammel, onght to be thoroughly investigated and punished according to law. And there ought to be law abiding people enough in Missouri, where the crimes were committed, to see that it is done. It there is not, then there ought to be a pressnre brought to bear on this and every other community where lawlessness occurs, by the chief executive, and by all in power from him downward. When colored votes are used to develop and bring into nse such a pressure they will begin to conserve a purpose of great value. Thinking of these things we become more deeply concerned about the character than the name of the next President.

The More Excellent Way.

Gen. T. M. Chester is the President of a railroad in process of construction by the colored people of North Carolina. The road is to be operated between Wilmington and Onslow.

Now, we hail this as a real step toward Negro elevation. If the Negroes of North Carolina can build a road which will be valuable for connectional purposes, and successfully operate it after it is bnilt, they will secure a degree of business recognition which will be both of valne and permanent importance to the race. Nothing will so rapidly develop the best qnalities of a people as the prosecution of artistic and indnstrial pursuits. Bnt these depend on combinations, and combinations derive their utility and power from confidence. When the Negro learns to confide in his race, and combine with it for the investment of capital; then the battle of of race respect will be half won. This can only be attained as the result of individnal self-respect.

More Favorable.

There is an expression of sentiment much more respeetful, favorable and brotherly than heretofore found in the colored press of the country toward the colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of that church itself respecting them. We have ever known, and patiently waited for this reaction, as it was perfectly evident that reflection, and a proper estimate of the work progressing through many years of toil and bitter opposition to a most beneficial conclusion, superinduced partly and chiefly by the Spirit of Christ, and partly by the retention of our membership in the Church would bring it. Foremost among those who recognize, and with Christian kindness refer to these matters is the New York Globe, a paper edited with uncommon common sense. Its editor must be a patriot, and for that reason is not infrequently excoriated by choice individuals who are not famous for the least tendency to Phlegmatism.

In the Cleveland Roling Mills in tapping a vast caldron of molten iron, holding fifty tons, too large an orifice was made, and the seething fluid speedily covered the casting room floor. All the employes escaped save two, who were compelled to wade through the hissing mass, which an explosion sent flying in all directions, stripping the men of their clothing, and literally cooking their flesh. Their injuries are fatal.

The colored people of Des Moines, Iowa, are to have a paper of their own called the Rising Sun.

They have not forgotten his two daughters, one, Kate, a sweet young girl, who died and was buried in our cemetery, the other, Clara, for the past few years a missionary in China. Mr. Cushman has been in Louisiana for the past few years. He will be warmly welcomed by all who knew him.—Courier and Advertier, Rochester, N. H., May 30.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

Mary B. Mayberry, Clifton: "I am a teacher in the Sunday-school at this place. Our school is in very good condition, though it is not as large as it might be. I trust that through the labor of our pastor, J. B. Bradford, and others, that the school will rapidly increase. During the winter he showed his interest by being with us on all occasions. The first Sunday in May he taught the Bible class in the morning, and then went to his appointment 4½ miles from this place, through rain and mud, returning for night services at this place. Last Sabbath 8 probationers were admitted to full connection."

National Republican Convention.

The National Convention of the Republican party assembled at Chicago Tuesday, June 3. Hon. John R. Lynch, of Mississippi (colored) was elected temporary chairman, receiving 44 majority over Hon. Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, who had been designated by the National Executive Committee. On Thursday the Committee on Credentials submitted its report, and the Committee on Resolutions reported.

Nominations were then declared in order, and the following names presented with eloqnent speeches: Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut; Gen. John A. Logan, of Illinois; Hon. James G. Blaine, of Maine; Chester A. Arthur, of New York; Hon. John Sherman, of Ohio; and Hon. Geo. F. Edmunds, of Vermont.

On Friday the first ballot was taken, and resulted as follows: Arthur 278, Blaine 334½, Edmunds 93, Logan 63½, Sherman 30, Hawley 13, Lincoln 1, Gen. Sherman 5.

Second Ballot—Arthur 276, Blaine 349, Edmunds 85, Logan 61, Sherman 28, Hawley 13, Lincoln 4, Gen. Sherman 2.

Third Ballot—Arthur 274, Blaine 375, Edmunds 69, Logan 53, Sherman 25, Hawley 13, Lincoln 8, Gen. Sherman 2.

Fourth Ballot—Arthur 207, Blaine 544, Edmunds 41, Logan 7, Hawley 15, Lincoln 2.

Amid tremendous cheering Mr. Blaine was declared nominated. A telegram from President Arthur was read, addressed to Mr. Blaine, which announced that he would give him his earnest and cordial support.

At evening session Gen. John A. Logan was nominated for Vice-President by acclamation.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

James Gillespie Blaine was born Jan. 31, 1830, at the Indian Hill Farm, in Washington county, Pa. His father was one of the heaviest landed propritors in the State, and the son spent several years in early youth at school in Lancaster, Ohio, living in the family of the Hon. Thomas Ewing, Secretary of the Treasury, and whose decendants have been prominent in Ohio politics. He enterd Washington College and graduated at the age of seventeen, and for a time taught school. He was an occasional contributor to the magazines and a writer for the newspapers during his leisure hours. He accepted, in 1853, a call from Maine and assumed charge of the Kennebec Journal which, in conjunction with the Portland Advertiser, he edited for some time. He was elected to the Maine Legislature in 1858, and served four years At the beginning of his last term of two years, he was chosen Speaker, and performed the duties of that office satisfactorily. In 1862 he was sent to the Thirty-eighth Congress, serving on the committee on postoffices and post roads. He devoted himself to a careful study of the rules of the House, and it was not long before he began to be regarded as one of the best parliamentarians. He was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth Congress and repeatedly thereafter, and in 1869 was made Speaker of the House. His rulings were always prompt and accurate.

His position and skill as a parliamentarian brought him conspicuously before the public, and when temporarily displaced by the advent of a Democratic House and the election of a Democratic Speaker he led his party with great brilliancy on the floor.

When the Republican Convention was held in 1876, Mr. Blaine was a popular leader in the party. But the friends of Gen. Grant defeated him. He received 351 votes in the final vote as against 379 for the Hayes' combination engineered by Roscoe Conkling.

Blaine, after his defeat, entered the campaign for the Republican candidate, and worked night and day for his election. It is said, however, that after the Southern policy of the administration had been ennnciated, he never went to the White House, feeling that President Hayes had not done his duty by the party which had elected him. As a Senator he voted against the electoral cammission bill on the ground that it was unconstitutional. In 1880 he was once more a candidate for the presidential nomination, and succeeded in so using the influence which he had as to defeat the third term scheme and the nomination of Gen. Grant. He did as much as any other one to elect President Garfield. The history of his connection with the President during his brief administration, and after the fatal bullet had done its work, is too fresh in the public mind to need repetition. Shortly after Arthur succeeded to the Presidency Mr. Blaine retired from the Cabinet, and has since devoted himself to the preparation of his political memoirs, many chapters of which have already been published.

JOHN ALEXANDER LOGAN.

John Alexander Logan, the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency, was born in Jackson county, in that portion of Southern Illinois known as "Egypt." Logan's father was one of the pioneers of the State, and moved to Illinois, when it contained only a few thousand inhabitants. John Logan was born in Feb. 19, 1826, and is therefore fifty-eight years of age. He received a common school education, and subsequently graduated from the University of Louisville. Soon after he graduated the Mexican war broke out. Young Logan at once tendered his services, entering a regiment of Illinois volunteers as a private. He served throughout the war, rising to the position of lieutenant and subsequently of quartermaster. After his return from Mexico he began the practice of law, but soon gave it up for politics. In 1849, when only twenty three, he was elected clerk of court of Jackson county. In 1852, 1853, 1856 and 1857 he was elected to the Illinois Legislature; from 1853 to 1857 he was prosecuting attorney of the county, and in 1856 he was a presidential elector and voted for Buchanan. During all this time he was a Democrat, and a vigorous one, the section he lived in being strongly Democratic and Southern in its sympathies. He was elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress in 1858, and again to the Thirty-seventh in 1860. He left Congress to enter the army, serving first as a private in a Michigan regiment. He was present with that regiment at Bull Run in July, 1861, but returned to Illinois after that fight and began raising a regiment. His regiment served with the Western army. Col. Logan was wounded at Fort Donelson in February, 1862. In the following month he was made a brigadier general, and in April he was promoted to a major generalship, and commanded a division in the Vicksburg and Atlanta campaign (1863-1864). In 1865, Logan was appointed minister to Mexico, but declined. He was elected to Congress in 1867, and again in 1869, and succeeded Richard Yates as Senator in March, 1871. In 1877, at the end of his term as Senator, he returned to the practice of the law in Chicago; but was again elected to succeed Oglesby as Senator, and took his seat in 1879. His term of service will expire in 1885. Logan is one of the readiest and most fluent speakers in the Senate, particularly strong in invective. He was an earnest supporter of Grant in 1880, and has had the Grant influence in his present campaign. He is undoubtedly popular with the soldiers and was the favorite candidate of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The stomach of Sabin Trowbridge, Postmaster at Lee Center, Ill., who died last February, has been sent to a Chicago chemist for analysis, it being charged that his young wife poisoned him. Letters found secreted in an old lounge recently sold, gave the clew to the crime. The whereabouts of Mrs. Trowbridge are unknown.

Methodist Protestant General Conference.

This body convened in Baltimore on the 15th ult. A communication was received from Rev. E. K. Sqnier, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, expressing his inability to be present, and sending greetings of Christian fellowship. It suggests the appointment of a committee for each denomination looking to a union of the two Churches. Referred to the Committee on Fraternal Relations.

At Monday's session reports were presented on the condition of the Western Maryland College and from the Board of Missions.

An invitation from the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant, to join in the centennial celebration of Methodism in 1884, was presented and referred to the Committee on Fraternal Relations.

Rev. A. H. Bassett, formerly editor of the Western Protestant, now Methodist Recorder, one of the oldest members of the Church, was introduced. Also, Rev. Dr. Augustus Webster, of Maryland, was also introduced and spoke of the first Methodist Protestant Conference he ever attended, at Georgetown, D. C., in 1832. Only two of that body now survive.

After a long debate the report of a committee which declared the Conference to be in General Convention was adopted, thirty one Annual Conferences having clothed representatives with conventional powers. After the vote was declared, large numbers of proposed amendments to the Constitution and Discipline were immediately handed in and referred to the committees on Revision, Boundaries, Statistics and on Temperance.

The telegraphic reports of Tuesday's session, from Baltimore, were defective, and we give a fuller and more correct account, as follows: The Committee in its report, regarded the decision of the required number of Annual Conferences voting was to the effect that there is a Convention of the Methodist Protestant Church, with limited powers to provide future alterations of the Constitution; by means of actions, submitted by the General Conference; to allow each Annual Conference to determine its restrictive rule, or the length of time that a minister might have charge of any church, and to make verbal alterations in the Constitution. The report was adopted, settling the question that various delegates from annual conferences constitute a conference, and the conference was declared to be a General Convention. Immediately thereafter various memorials, etc., were reported and referred to the Committee on Revisals.

The convention refused to strike from the Discipline the clause permitting the choice by the candidate of the mode of baptism. It also refused to make any change in the prescribed marriage ceremony. The word "church" was substituted in many instances in place of the words "class," "society" and "circuit."

Who Will Aid?

Dr. R. S. Rust says; "The schools sustained by the Freedmen's Aid Society are closing for the year. Nearly one hundred of our teachers need the balance due on their salary, for only a few have been paid in full for this year, and the treasury is empty. We need ten thousand dollars to meet all the obligations for the year, and the friends of this cause must aid us in securing it or we shall be compelled to borrow it, for the teachers must have the balance of their small salaries. Will our friends as soon as possible come to the assistance of the teachers, by forwarding donations, and will the preachers present the claims of this enterprise to their people, take liberal collections in its behalf, and forward them to the treasurer or corresponding secretary, at the Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati?"

SUBSEQUENT EVENTS.

The Vast Evils that Follow Great Disasters—A Minister's Manner of Meeting Them.

(Cincinnati Correspondence.)

Cincinnati may not deserve the reputation of being a "Festive City," but it certainly controls a monopoly of Festivals. First it was the Opera Festival, next the Dramatic and more latterly it has been the Flood and Riot Festivals. These latter Carnivals may not possess the attractive features that the two former were supposed to have, but they are none the less likely to prove powerful and more lasting in their results. I had a very interesting conversation bearing upon this subject, with the Rev. J. Pike Powers, the well-known Divine, who has charge of the Baptist Church at Owenton, Ky., a few days since. I found that the Reverend Doctor was very well versed in matters pertaining to the welfare of the World, as well as the Church. In the course of our conversation he said.

"The effects of both the riots and the floods are such as to naturally cause keen regret. The former show, in a distressing degree, the extremes to which human nature can go when in its frenzied state, whether justifiable or unjustifiable. It takes a long while for a community to become reconciled to the quiet of every day life, after such a furore as we have had."

"But do you think that such an uprising is more to be regretted than the floods?"

"That is hard to say. They are very many things that follow as the result of a freshet that are greatly to be deplored. Principally among these may be mentioned the damp and unhealthy condition in which the country is left, by reason of the overflow of water. The drying up of the water by the sun causes miasma of a dreadful nature to be generated which sows the seeds of disease and death in the community. Indeed, this is true of the Springtime in all regions, whether they are visited by freshets or not. There are millions of people in this country who are at this moment drawing in rank poison with every breath they take, and the wonder to me is that sickness is not more common than it is."

"Do you think disease is contracted by breathing air impregnated with fungus."

"More certainly than in any other manner. I am positive most diseases are contracted in this way. The rank air poisons the blood and the mind becomes dulll, the digestion poor, the muscles ache, the head throbs, the tongue grows white, the appetite departs and general debility sets in which is certain to result in death if not checked. I believe it is the part of the highest wisdom to fortify the system against the inroads of such insidious evils."

"But that is a difficult thing to is it not Doctor?"

"I once thought so but have changed my mind since the experience I have had with my own family. I have found that by the use of what is certainly a most valuable preparation the whole body is so toned up and invigorated that it can repel these malarial enemies of health. That preparation is Warner's Tippecanoe, and I believe in it most implicitly, for I have seen what wonderful things it could accomplish."

"Have you tried it thoroughly?"

"Yes. One of my sons had suffered severely from dyspepsia and mal assimilation of food coupled with headache and dizziness. We tried various preparations without avail, and it was not until Tippecanoe was given that he began to improve. He was greatly reduced in flesh, had a hump in the stomach apparently as hard as a brickbat; his appetite was poor and he looked very badly. We were distressed about him. This remedy has, however, restored his appetite, corrected his stomach, relieved his headache, and now he is growing fat and can eat almost anything without distress. Mrs. Powers is enthusiastic upon this subject and so am I. You see, many so-called stomach preparations are composed so largely of alcohol that they create an appetite for strong drink and encourage vice. This preparation I have named is an exception, and I think it should be universally known."

And that is why the above interview is published.

Adjutant General Finley disbanded the Fourth Regiment of Infantry Ohio National Guard for inefficiency at the Cincinnati riots, and partially recoginized it as the Seventh Regiment, under the command of officers who reported for duty at the riots.

The Housekeeper.

PARISIAN GATEAU DE POISSON.—Boil a peice of fish—fresh cod, mackerel, halibut, any fish you like—then crush it and mix it up with bread crumbs soaked in milk; knead up the paste with butter, beat up the whites of four or six eggs, add them as well as the yolks to your cake, which you will have peppered and salted according to taste; put the whole in a buttered dish and cook on a brisk fire. Serve with melted buttered and oysters.

PRIMROSE OR COWSLIP VINEGAR.—To every three quarts of water put one pound of raw sugar and a good quantity of the flowers fresh, picked. Boil it half an hour, skimming if necessary; set it to cool in an earthen vessel; when just out of the chill, not more than lukewarm, throw in a slice of bread with yeast strewn thickly over it on both sides. Let it ferment two days, then pour it into a small barrel previously rinsed out with vinegar. Paste a piece of brown paper over the bunghole, perforate this with a fork so as to leave little air holes and place the barrel in a dry and warm position.

JAM ROLL.—Take two eggs and their weight in flour, sifted sugar and butter; First cream the butter and sugar, stir in the two yolks, slightly beaten, then the two whites beaten to a stiff froth, and last of all the flour, strewn lightly in; mix thoroughly, and add a little lemon juice. Grease a Yorkshire pudding dish and pour in the mixture about half an inch in depth. Bake in a hot oven for not more than seven minutes, as otherwise it would become too crisp to roll. Strew a piece of paper with sugar, and turn it out on this, and immediately spread with jam, and quickly roll it; if not done while very hot, it will break in the rolling. The top can be ornamented with bars of pink sugar icing, silver comfits and preserved fruit.

DAISY FRINGE.—The mode in making this is to fold a skein of wool into six ply, fill a tatting shuttle with the same wool, and tie round near the end of the folded wool; then with the material in the shuttle tie the folded wool round twice tightly about half an inch from the beginning, and continue to tie it at the same interval the whole length. Break off the wool in the shuttle, cut the folded wool only in the centre of the space between the ties, leaving a series of tufts, and the fringe can be sewn in loops the required depth. Another easy fringe is made as follows:—Cast on 12 stiches; make 1, knit 2 together, taking them from the back; make 1, knit 2 together as before, repeat to end of row. When a sufficient length has been knitted, cast off 12 stitches, unravel the rest. If the wool is liked best crimped, hold it over steam, and let it dry before unraveling.—Tricotrin.

DUMPLINGS.—Make a crust of wheat meal, water, and grated cocoanut, thoroughly kneaded; roll out quickly a small piece of dough, a little thicker than for pie crust; press it into a tea cup with the hand; fill with sliced tart apples, peaches, whortleberries, or other fruit, press together; bake in a moderate oven one hour, and serve with sauce. Dates and raisins may be employed to sweeten when apples or other tart fruits are used.

Carbolic soap will take bad odors from old linen. There is a coarser kind than that used for the toilet.

[illegible] SAUCE.—Ten ripe tomatoes, eight green peppers, six onions, one table spoonful of salt, a [illegible] cupful of sugar, one quart of vinegar, chop onions, peppers, and [illegible] very fine, and boil all [illegible] for two hours. If a larger [illegible] is needed double the [illegible].

Coffee by itself, as its odor [illegible] other articles.

[illegible] and cake should be kept in a tin box or a stone jar.

Orange and lemons keep best wrapped close in soft paper and laid in a drawer.

Soft soap should be kept in a dry place in a cellar, and should not be washed, but wiped with a towel to preserve the juices and quality.

An ointment made by mixing carbolic acid, or coal oil and lard, is sure death to vermin on poultry.

GOD KNOWETH BEST.

If we could push ajar the gates of life
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this donbt and strife,
And for each mystery conld find a key!

But not to day. Then be content, poor heart!
God's plans like lilies pure and white unfold,
We must not tear the olose-shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.

And if through patient toil, we reach the land,
Where tired feet, with sandals loosed may rest,
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we will say 'God knows the best."

Senator Kellogg's vindication by the Washington court is not worth much. It saves him from the penitentiary, it is true, and regularly establishes his innocence, but that is all. It is not likely to raise him very much in the opinion of his countrymen, chiefly because of the manner in which it was obtained. When Kellogg was first accused of complicity in the star route theiving, he howled vociferously and unceasingly for an investigation. He has continually proclaimed with great and unnecessary emphasis that all he wanted was a scathing examination and the showing up of the truth. His trial has been delayed for a long time, chiefly because of the absence of the chief witness Walsh, but Kellogg has cheerfully asserted that whenever the uncertain Wabash might appear, he was ready to prove his innocence. He has been so earnest and has so well played his part of injured innocence, that there was a general relief when Walsh appeared and the trial began. It seems, however, that Kellogg was not really as anxious for an investigation as he appeared. For the first thing he did was to move, by his attorneys, to strike out the testimony of the prosecuting witness for for a reason afforded by the statutes of limitation.—Omaha Bee.

We do not blame Bismarck for his dislike of the American hog, we share to a large extent, in the same weakness. The American hog, when he goes on a railroad train, takes two seats and wants four. He piles his impedimenta on one seat and his hogship in the other. Then as ladies and gentlemen come in he looks down his snuot with the dreamy far away look of a well-traveled pig. When asked to give up one of his stolen seats he eagerly lies abont it. We are willing to go any lengths to snppress and extinguish the American hog. We did not qnarrel with him and never do, but would be pleased to see him kicked into his appropriate pen. We simply put down our satchel and stood up patiently until an American lady courteously invited us to take a part of her seat. We are infavor of American ladies, but opposed to hogs. So we sail on.—California Advocate.

Without a Parallel in Medical History.

The remarkable results which have attended the administration of the Vitalising Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, for chronic and so-called "incurable diseases," are without a parallel in medical history. As all persons of this new Treatment, they have after thirteen years of earnest, untiring and costly effort to introduce it to those who need its vitalizing and health restoring influences, succeeded in resting its claims on the basis of facts and results of so wide and universal a character—facts and results on record, and open to the closest investigations—that no room for a question remains as to its marvelous action in restoring the diseased to health. If you are a sufferer from any disease which your physician has failed to arrest or cure, write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, and they will send you documents and reports of cases from which you will be able to decide for yourself as to your chances for relief under their new Treatment.

How Children Are Sometimes Hardened.

Of all the disastrous policies which thoughtless parents adopt for the government and training of children scarcely one is more prolific of evil than that of harping perpetually upon a child's shortcomings or defects. Sometimes it is a physical peculiarity—red hair, a squint eye, a pug nose, some uncommon development of feature or form—that receives comment. This as it is geuerally only a jocular, good-natured badgering, is not extremely serious, though evil sometimes results, as a morbid self consciousness is likely to be developed, both painful and injurious to the child. Frequently the fruit is excessive shyness or awakwardness, difficult to overcome even after the primary cause may have been ou grown.

But when it is some mental trait that is made the never ending topic of remark, with gloomy or sarcastic prognostications of the future, most evil results accrue. If it is true, as a noted novelist has told us, that "we are apt to believe what the world believes abont us," it is still more a truth as regards children, who are scarcely able of deciding for themselves any knotty point, whose thoughts are more or less confused at the best, who naturally turn to parents or guardians rather than to the voice of conscience for the right or wroug of any thing, and whose most intimate associates stand to them for the world. A policy of this kind cannot but prove dulling to the sensibilities and hardening to the heart. Many a parent who has harped upon his child's shortcomings till he has hammered his his child's heart to a stone wonders that his child persists in the even tenor of his way, paying no more attention to remonstrances than to the voice of the wind. It would be a thing to wonder at more if it did otherwise.

The harping and hammering go on day after day, in season and out of season, till the child comes to look upon home as a place of torment rather then refuge, and upon the parent as an avenging Nemesis rather than a being to reverence and love. There is oftentimes something exceedingly pathetic about these much berated little ones. Listless and dispirited, too often sullen as well as sad, all childish sparkle and spontaneity lost, they go about with drooping heads and downcast eyes, as if in gloomy meditation on the ever-expected storm.

Gentle, steady firmness may, indeed, take more patience, energy and time than a stream of reproofs, but let the parent be assured that if the former does not cure the latter never will.

If the parent feels an uncertainty about the ill effects of "living under a cloud," let him try the experiment for himself. Let him offend the prejudices of the community, or let some enemy instill suspicion or distill into the minds of his associates; let him for a few months meet with shoulder shrugginys where he is accustomed to hand shakings, with indifferent nods where he expects greetings, and then let him declare whether his experience has served either to sweeten his temper or harden his heart—Country Gentleman.

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Speech of Rev. J. M. Shumpert in Support of His Resolution Before the General Confereoce.

SPEECH.

He said: My reasons for presenting this paper are that in my opinion it is of vital importance to the whole Church, and more especially so in the South. Hundreds and thousands of members and friends who are in the Church are listening to what shall be done in this matter. They preach the doctrine that God from one blood made all mankind, and under this teaching, for several years, peace and harmony seemed to prevail, until the General Conference of 1876, when there was a provision made to provide the Annual Conferences on the color line. That action gave pain to many of us, and if allowed to continue, will prove, in my opinion, very detrimental to the interests of the Church. The action that I refer to was this, that in our part of the country, it has been published, and sent out broadcast that the Churches had been erected exclusively for white people, and colored people would not be expected to attend, and, later, it has been published that schools and colleges weich are to be erected by the Freedman's Aid Society in that very territory and, in some instances, in the very same cities, no one of African descent is expected to attend.

The Freedman's Aid Society have established more than a score of institutions since the war, and the colored and white have attended the schools together, and have been instructed in the better way of love. But we are told that there are others to be erected, with great steeples, to tell to the generations that are to follow that the negro has no rights which a white man is bound to respect. This, Mr. President, I do not believe is the sentiment of the Methodist Episcopal Church. I do not believe that she is ready to settle down on a system of caste. Heaven forbid it! With this I hope the resolution will be adopted.

All in Christ.

We have our temperance societies, and I presume they are needed. We have our societies for the suppression of vice, and I suppose they are needed. And we have societies for the better observance of the Sabbath, and I suppose they are needed. We, for the present distress, divide up the whole of goodness into sections and fight the battle of evil in "pieces," so to speak. But when God comes to deal with us he takes purity and goodness and holiness as a whole and by putting the inspiration of childhood to God and the hope of eternal life into our lives, he sets us to purify ourselves even as Christ is pure. That includes everything. When you are intent on being as Christ was you will be temperate, you will be manly. You will love God and hate evil and suppress it, first of all in yourself. You will be pure in life because pure in heart, and pure in heart because you expect to see God.—Dr. John Hall.

A father may save a few dollars by refusing to make the home inviting for his children; but he may spend ten times—yes, a hundred times—in getting them out of troubles which they have brought on by roaming in the streets.—National Baptist.

The use of light wines is advocated widely as the true cure for intemperance, and the countries of southern Europe have always been appealed to as evidence of its efficacy; but recent developments in the history of at least one nation held up as a proof of such logic has proven a veritable and disastrous boomerang. A few years ago, says the National Temperance Advocate, "the Chicago Tribune was very zealously advocating the use of light wines and beer as a remedy for intemperance. Total abstainers objected then as now, to the use of these lighter beverages as tending to develop an appetite for the stronger alcoholics. Switzerland is a wine producing country with the very best opportunity to test the efficacy of light wines as a safeguard against intemperance. But now comes the Chicago Tribune with a wail that Switzerland has become the most drunken country in Europe."

It would probably surprise many to be told that the sun is a thousand times as bright as the moon, as the unaided eye gives us little idea of the real difference in the brightness of the two bodies. According to very careful determinations by Zollner the sun's light is 519,000 times as great as that of the full moon. The heat receeived from the two is not in the same ratio, that emitted by the sun being only 82,600 times as much as that of the full moon, as found by Lord Rosse and Mons Marie Davy.

Whatever may be the outcome of this year's presidential contest let us be thankful that the scenes of Andrew Jackson's inauguration cannot be repeated at this day and age of the world. Then the drunken carousal at the executive mansion was so disgraceful that it was necessary to have the furniture upholstered anew and the carpets changed.—Union Signal.

A Dangerous Case.

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!

"The Doctors tried in vain to relieve me. But to no purpose.

"Morphine and other opiates

"Had no effect!

"After two months I was given up to die!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work, as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I pooched at him but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and many children, well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. Berk, Ex-Supervisor.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jel4-1y

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON XI. June 15. THE BLESSEDNESS OF BELIEVERS. (Romans iii, 28-39.)

We are taught in the first verse of this lesson, which is also the Golden Text, that in God's great school-house of the world all things are busy under the control of the great Master to help those who are his loving and obedient pupils. Sometimes when our dear friends die, or we are sick, or some one is unkind to us, we cannot see how it can turn out for our good, but because the Bible says so we are sure that it is true, and sometimes we can see it ourselves after awhile. We must be sure that we love God, then he has promised to be for us, and that is better than if all the world were on our side and God was against us. He only is able to keep our souls safely through all dangers. The soul is the most precious part of every human being whether a poor little child or a great rich man. If our souls were so precious in God's sight that he gave his Son Jesus to die to save them, we can easily believe that he will give us all other things that we need. There is often a great difference between what we want and what we need. It is only what we need that we can claim as God's children. We have no trouble to know whom Paul means when he speaks of "Him who loved us," we know he means Jesus. By his help we can live Christian here and live in heaven hereafter in spite of all the bad people and bad spirits and our own depraved hearts. So we are conquerors, for that is what they call people who show themselves stronger than those that oppose them. Let us keep our hearts so that we can sing Paul's glorious song of triumph every day.—Western.

The publisher of the Beaver Falls, Pa., Courier, Mr. John F. Porter, some time ago contracted a severe cold. He says: "I tried half a dozen remedies ineffectually and upon recommendation of physicians I gave Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup a fair, square trial. It relieved me immediately and cured my cold and catarrh entirely. It is a remedy that should be used in every household."

The mother of the Siamese Prince Ambassador, now in New York is a Princess of Pequ, whose name, being translated, is Hidden Perfume, which from published accounts of her character seems very appropriate. She has long been a faithful student of the English langnage, and has made many translations of English works into Siamese, among them "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In 1867 she took the first steps toward emancipation in Siam, now an accomplished fact, by liberating all her slaves and retaining them in her service as paid servants.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independance.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to procure a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

What the General Conference Did for Our Work in the South.

Resolution Passed By The General Conference, May 12, 1884:

O. O. Fisher, of Savannah, presented the following, signed by himself and twenty others, and, on motion, it was adopted:

Whereas, The great work of God being accomplished by the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South should not be hindered or imperiled by social questions: therefore,

Resolved, That the General Conference hereby confirms and reaffirms the opinion previously expressed that "color is no bar to any right or privilege of office or membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church," but we recognize the propriety of such administration as will hereafter, as heretofore, secure the largest concession to individual preferences on all questions involving merely the social relations of its members.

Committee on Freedman's Aid and Work in the South.—Report No. 3. Adopted May 28, 1884, as follows:

Your Committee on Freedmen's Aid and Work in the South have carefully considered the several memorials referred to us, involving the question of separate or mixed schools for the accommodation of our colored and white members in the South, and as the result of our deliberations present the following:

It is an historical fact, highly honorable to the Methodist Episcopal Church, that she has been the constant friend of the common people, and especially of the colored race.

The Freedmen's Aid Society, organized for the purpose of aiding in the education and elevation of the freedmen, is the unanswerable proof of our friendship to them in the hour of their need. Twenty-four institutions of learning—academies, seminaries, colleges, and theological schools, established and maintained among them at a cost of more than $1,250,000 for the benefit of the colored people, constitute a magnificent demonstration of our devotion, which requires no elaboration, and admits of no denial.

The management of this portion of our educational work in the South, we believe, in the main, has been wise, efficient, and successful. Our efforts in this direction should not be relaxed, but increased.

The establishment of schools for the benefit of our white membership in the South we believe to have been a wise and necessary measure. Their success has been gratifying. The beneficial results have not been confined to those immediately interested, but their liberalizing effects upon public sentiment have greatly redounded to the advantage of our colored people. We regret that for so great and important a work so little has been done by the Church, and we desire most emphatically to give expression to our conviction that the time has come when this portion of our educational work should be strengthened and placed upon a strong and permanent basis, as its great importance certainly demands. To the question of mixed schools we have given our most serious and prayerful attention. It is a subject beset with peculiar difficulties. That the colored man has a just and equal right, not only to life and liberty, but also to the means of grace and facilities for education, we not only admit, but most positively affirm.

We are in duty bound to provide for and to secure to every class of our membership, as far as possible, a fair and equal opportunity in Church and school accommodations. And in so far as this is done our duty is performed, and the equal rights justly demanded of us thus fairly and fully conceded.

Mixed congregations and mixed schools may, in many places, be most desirable and best for all concerned. In other places, one class or the other, or both, may prefer separate congregations and separate schools.

Equal rights to the best faculties for intellectual and spiritual culture; equal rights in the eligibility to every position of honor and trust, and equal rights in the exercise of a free and unconstrained choice in all social relations, is a principle at once American, Methodistic, and Scriptural. Therefore,

Resolved, 1. That we most sincerely rejoice in the progress made in the work of education among our colored people in the South, and pledge ourselves to stand by and assist them in the further prosecution of this work, to the extent of our ability, and so far as possible, to the extent of their need in this direction.

2. That we heartily sympathize with our white membership in the South in their efforts to provide adequate educational facilities among themselves, and assure them of such co-operation and assistance as we may be able to render.

3. That the question of separate or mixed schools we consider one of expediency and right, which is to be left to the choice and administration of those on the ground and more immediately concerned; provided, there shall be no interference with the rights set forth in this preamble and these resolutions.

4. That the entire educational work in the Southern States should be under the direction of one society.

5. That, in view of the great success of the Freedmen's Aid Society during the past four years in carrying forward the educational work in the South, this Society ought to have the full charge of this work in that section.

6. That the pastors, in presenting the claims of this Society in making appeals for funds, should state plainly that the work is among both races, and that all contributors should be allowed, whenever they may desire to do so, to designate where their gifts shall go.

J. C. HARTZELL, Chm'n

J. G. EVANS, Sec'y.

Committee on Freedmen's Aid and Work in the South.—Report No, 6) Adopted May 24, 1884.

Your Committee recommend the following changes in the Discipline:

1. That in paragraph 308 the word "Christian," before the word people, be stricken out, and after the word "America," there be added, "for help in the work of Christian education," so that the part of said paragraph preceding section 1 shall read:

"For the mental and moral elevation of Freedmen and others in the South who have special claims upon the people of America for help in the work of Christian education."

2. The correction of a typographical error in paragraph 308, section 2, by substituting "teachers" for "preachers" after the words "to become."

3. In paragraph 310 strike out the words, "and the wants of the freedmen," after the word "society," and add to the paragraph the following: "In presenting the claims of this Society, the preacher in charge shall state plainly that the educational work of the Society is among both white and colored people," so that the whole paragraph shall read:

"It shall be the duty of each preacher in charge to present this subject to his congregation or cause it to be presented once each year in a sermon or address; to aid in the diffusion of intelligence in regard to the work of the Society, and to use due diligence to collect the amount apportioned to his charge. He shall report to the Annual Conference the sum collected and the collections shall be published in a column in the General Minutes and in the Minutes of the Annual Conferences. In presenting the claims of this Society the preacher in charge shall state plainly that the educational work of the Society is among both white and colored people."

Committee on the State of the Church.—Report No, 4. Adopted May 28, 1884.

Your Committee beg leave to submit the following for your adoption; namely,

Resolved, That this General Conference declares the policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be, that no member of any society within the Church shall be excluded from public worship in any and every edifice of the denomination, and no student shall be excluded from instruction in any and every school under the supervision of the Church because of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Committee on Freedmen's Aid and Southern Work.—Report No. 7. Adopted May 28, 1884.

The following statement of facts and conclusions respecting the work of our Church in the South is respectfully submitted by the Committee on Freedmen's Aid and Work in the South:

The growth of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States since the close of the late war is one of the marvels of modern Church history. Nineteen years ago—1864—the Church had within the border States of Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri, 332 effective preachers, 71,037 white communicants, and 18,770 colored members. Now, in the sixteen former slave States and the District of Columbia, she has twelve conferences among the whites, with 663 effective preachers and 170,710 communicants; thirteen conferences among the colored people, with 678 effective preachers and 186,326 members. To these must be added three mixed conferences—two in Missouri and one in Florida—with 218 effective preachers and 41,054 members, most of whom are white persons. These altogether make 28 annual conferences, with 1,589 effective preachers and 398,090 communicants.

This vast membership represents a following throughout the South of not less than 2,000,000 of people. Taking the South as a whole, this membership and following are divided about equally between the white and colored races—about 203,000 white members and about 195,000 colored members. In the border States our strength is more largely among the white people; in our new Southern work, in the eleven States where the Church had nothing at the close of the war, our development has been larger among the colored people—but in these eleven States a white membership of 51,961 has been gathered. Over 3,500 new church buildings have been erected on what was slave territory in 1860. The increase in Church parsonage property has been $6,282,723, and of membership, 308,183. This is an average of over 20,000 members and $350,000 annually.

Nearly one-fourth of the entire membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church is now on what was slave territory, were, but a few years ago, the Church had no existence except in a few localities.

Not less remarkable has been the educational development of our Church in the South. Since the late war, 48 colleges and seminaries have been established, and in these there are 194 instructors and over 6,000 young men and women. Of these schools, 24 are among the colored people and 24 are among the white people. These latter have been established almost entirely by our white members themselves. These 48 institution of learning are nearly one-third in number of all the institutions of learning of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and have in them 25 per cent of all persons being taught by our Church.

The difficulties attending the development of this vast work only serve to indicate how remarkable has been it success. It is not necessary to recall these difficulties growing out of the disturbed condition of the South, immediately after the war, and the clashing of sectional and race differences. The day of prosperity for the South is at hand, and the great questions affecting its civilization are being rapidly settled, and the spirit of fraternity and mutual helpfulness among all moral and educational forces at the South is rapidly prevailing. The presence and success of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South have tended largely to these beneficent results; therefore,

1 Resolved, That as a General Conference we render thanks to God for the success that has attended the work of our Church in the Southern States, by which it has come to be permanently planted in every State in that section, so that we are now in no sense a sectional Church, but in the truest and broadest sense a Church national in its organization and work.

2. Resolved, That we extend cordial greetings and benedictions to all our people, our teachers and pastors in the Southern States, and rejoice with them in their success and sympathize with them in their labors; and we pledge to them in behalf of the whole Church the largest possible co-operation and help in every good word and work.

CLARK UNIVERSITY.

Dr. Rust made us a running visit June 5th, in advance of the commencement, and called the Board of Trustees together. He opened the Board meeting by announcing a new departure in the work of managing the Board interests, to the effect that, as an organization, this corporation should hereafter be regarded more as a fact than as a myth. This declaration came from him without being drawn out by any complaint made on the part of the trustees, who have stood loyally by their institution from its foundation. It was a grateful announcement, as several said at the time. I said nothing then, but will at some future time return to the manner in which the M. E. Church disposes of its seniors when they grow old in the work and have given life, labor and substance to creating a magnificent organization on the platform of which but few can stand. The time has come to be careful, for we have just entered the breakers, where the entire offensive heirarchies must be overthrown. It is well enough for us to lean to the Presbyterian side of Methodism in all things, and to begin, the good Doctor thought it well to dismiss forever the one man power from the Board of Trustees. But will he follow it up by a like act at Cincinnati? I have believed in Dr. Rust as an autocrat, when autocracy was necessary in the years gone. I now believe in Dr. Rust as a reformer in the years to come.

The Board elected the new Bishop as President and Dr. Rust as the Vice-President. President Thayer made a fine report of the state of the school, dwelling justly on the fact that most of the students were religious. Professor W. P. Thirkield, Dean of the Theological Department, Bishop Haven's son-in-law, gave a delightful entertainment in Gammon Hall, a separate building, devoted to that department. There were thirty invited guests present, mostly students in theology; and in the case of the married students their wives were with them. Mrs. Thirkield did herself great credit by the style and abundance of the rich provision made. By the way, if any of your ministers wish to escape to the mountains, let me recommend Clark Theological department. On the close of the supper came the speeches. Dr. Rust lead off in his usual taking style, in behalf of the society he represents so well. Prof. Thayer spoke for the University. Rev. J. B. L. Williams, for the students, being one of these though a married man, and presiding elder of the Atlanta district of the Savannah Conference, or was last year. Mr. J. M. Cox spoke for the graduating class; he being the first and only one this year—for Clark has been slow in rendering degrees. Then your correspondent spoke a few words for the trustees.

On the close of the commencement exercises I will write you again.

SALUTATORY.

We raise our hat and, bowing to them, respectfully salute the patrons, likewise those who should be though they are not now patrons of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We have mounted the editorial tripod in simple obedience to the command of two-thirds of the delegates of our whole Church throughout the world, lately convened in Philadelphia for General Conference. It is a great honor to be thus elected, by a body of men not excelled in any good quality by any ecclesiastical convention ever brought together on this continent. This honor has come to us without original solicitation on our part. We are profoundly impressed with a deep sense of the numerous and difficult responsibilities involved in this position. It calls forth our gratitude, not only because it is an acknowledgement of our past faithfulness in the service of the Church, but also an attestation of her confidence in our fitness for the important trust conferred upon us.

Naturally of a diffident and retiring disposition, a modest and unassuming habit, loving retirement and quietness more than publicity and conspicuosity, we instinctively shrink from, and, if left free to follow the inclinations of our own will in the matter, we should promptly decline this call to duties which present to us no special attraction whatever. But in such a case, and as expressed, to us the voice of the church is the voice of God. "Ecclesiæ, vox Dei." It must therefore be obeyed. Therefore trusting in God, and with unfaltering confidence in the people, especially of our own race, that we shall be sustained by their patronage and support in every way we accept this new post of duty, with its high and multiform concerns, after much prayerful consideration.

1st. Because we dare not disobey the will of the Church when so clearly made known as it has been in this case.

2d. Because the selection of a colored man for this position was designed to illustrate the theory and practic sympathize the doctrine already declared in the law of the Church that color is not a bar to office.

3d. Because we regard it as the duty of the Church to the official request of her colored for General Conference by the assignment to position of some one of their

Since our selection possesses this positive element, we do not to interpose our personal to reject nor decline it. The God, the Church, our race, more than of self, constrains us to undertake this difficult work, with its manifold and delicate duties.

With our work before us as Bhaart, the Hindoo Myth—represented with three faces, one looking toward their supposed creator, another toward their preserver, and the other toward their destroyer—so shall we look to God, reverence the beneficent hands that have hitherto aided us, and also carefully chronicle the movements of the destroyer in whatever guise or disguise he may appear. Like Janus, the Latin deity, we shall face two ways—toward our allies in right-eousness we shall look with approval, but confront its opponents with words of no uncertain sound. We hope to do all with such evidence of sincerity and singleness of purpose as to strangle in its very birth the least apprehension of duplicity. We shall remember them that are in bonds as bound with them, and them which suffer adversity, as being ourself also in the body. We are induced to speak thus freely here because we are mindful that men of our race who have seemed to be in position to render us important service have not always been found to do so. We now throw open the Temple of Janus, so to speak, and shall not again close it while the common foe of God and Godliness stands in battle array before us. We shall contend for purity first, and afterwards peace. "The fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace." We wish and "hope to see the last barrier to the social and moral elevation of the NEGRO removed." "We regard social equality as a condition of society, and shall therefore allow and wait for it to make itself." Since no legislation can aid in its development, we shall expect and ask for none, and as much as in us is, we shall resist any statutory prohibitions to it, where it would be otherwise desirable. "Permanent success depends upon intrinsic worth." "The best way to have a public character is to have a private one." The great struggle for our elevation is now with ourselves." "We must imitate the best examples set us by the cultivated whites, and by so doing we will teach them that they can claim no superiority on account of race." We shall contribute everything we can to the accomplishment of this purpose. But we shall insist upon determining what is the most appropriate method of procedure. It is good Methodist doctrine that the mode of doing anything is not essential to the thing done. We shall yield to no man in our zeal for this. It will be unnecessary for us to pursue any new line of action in the execution of this design, as the work of our whole life has tended to it.

We do not address you as a stranger in the South. We were born, and wrought and suffered on this soil. Here the ashes of our parents, brethren, sisters, children, relatives and associates lie mingling with the dust. Here, when the work of life is finally done, we hope that ourself be laid, away to rest.

We send out to the people of the South, and of the nation, our most cordial, Christian and fraternal greetings. We hail the preachers as fellow-workmen, and brethren beloved in the Lord. We have received many warm assurances of sympathy and all needful co-operation from you, for which we are sincerely grateful. It is our intention to merit the retention of these kindly sentiments by a manly devotion to the task assigned us.

We esteem this paper as in the highest sense in organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in a more limited sense it is the official paper of the South. Its editor is without restrictions, and ranks on the editorial plane of all the editors of the Church. Wherever we can get subscribers in the patronage of every, and we call upon the colored members of our Church, in the name of their own manhood pride, and of their race pride as well as of their Christian duty, to secure for it a subscription list equal to any other periodical of its class in the Church. We have now enrolled 9,000 subscribers, but we have more than 200,000 members. We can, and surely will, more than double this list at once. We appeal to our white members and friends to aid us by subscriptions—let us place this paper on a sound self supporting basis.

We shall support all educational, industrial, civil and political interests of the Church, our members, and the country, with a national rather than a sectional view and feeling. We shall strive, by all honorable and Christian endeavors to secure and maintain the utmost friendliness, confidence, and such relations as shall be mutually most beneficial to the white and colored populations of the South, of the nation, and especially of our own Church. We shall esteem a failure on this line preferable to success on any other. We shall demand fair wages for our work, and the legal recognition of the rights of all citizens. We shall condemn all forms of vice, and honor every type of true virtue. We shall contribute by precept and example to the creation and maintenance of pure personal and home life. We shall encourage and call for legal protection of chastity in women, and the prohibition of lewdness. We shall expect the firm support of all good people, especially ministers, more especially ministers of our own church in doing this. We shall at any and all convenient seasons be glad to aid the pastors with their work, and to form personal acquaintance with them and their families. We shall strictly maintain, and defend the doctrine, polity and status of our colored membership if occasion requires. We have no new departure to announce for this paper, and no hobby to unveil or vindicate. Our policy is to be wise according to what is written in the Discipline until it is changed, and to follow God's word wherever it leads. We entertain sentiments of Christian regard for our respected predecessors in this office, Dr. J. C. Hartzell and Bro. L. P. Cushman, also for Bro. A. E. P. Albert the former assistant editor.

We desire contributions from all persons who may have a thought to express; we intend to express ours vigorously and freely. We shall be conservatively progressive, and loyally free. We trust there is room upon this broad platform for us all to stand upon and work together for the advancement of all connectional interests without the sacrifice or compromise of a single correct principle. "With charity for all and malice toward none, with a firmness in the right as God shall give us to see the right," the editor assumes his labor for God and humanity.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

MISSISSIPPI.

Wm. Peter, Carrollton: "We are having a good time in Mt. Zion Church. Protracted meeting opened May 11, and we have 6 converts and 13 on probation. Repairs on parsonage, costing $35, have been paid, and we are doing our best for the Sunday-school. The pastor is hard at work for us."

A. J. Ford, Clinton Street Church New Orleans: "We are anxious for you and the public to know something about what we are doing in this portion of the Master's vineyard, and that we are not quite asleep if we are in the habit of dosing occasionally. Our Sunday-school is becoming alive, and the 8th of June (Children's day) we had a nice time, and quite a large number of children, parents and visitors out. The church was nicely decorated with flowers of almost every color. The majority of the scholars had and delivered very nice speeches and essays. While the birds were singing the children and congregation on the inside were singing beautiful chants and hymns to God. The following persons made appropriate addresses: Pastor, C. Hall superintendent, C. C. Wilson, assistant superintendent, A. Campbell, secretary, and Hon. T. B. Stamps. The collection during the service was $14.40. Pray for us that we may continue to increase."

TEXAS.

George Davis: "I have a very large work, requiring steady labor, but I am encouraged."

C. H. McCowens, Jefferson: "We have had a very good time in our protracted meeting of six weeks; about 40 were added to the church and 1 reclaimed. Bro. Jackson is making rapid strides to get the church out of debt; a committee was formed to meet it, and the sisters on it raised $27 in two days."

J. Morton, Gibson: "I am doing all I can for the church paper, and have obtained a good list of subscribers."

G. Pleasant, Austin: "The work is reviving. Brethren fixed my salary at $170, and promised to raise every cent, and more if they can. Bro. M. Lott preached for me and gladdened our hearts. I have rented some land and have it nearly all planted in cotton."

MISSISSIPPI.

John H. Cook, Crystal Springs: "Second quarterly conference reports showed some improvements. Stewards paid the elder's quarterage, and paid pastor $59.45; collections $25.65. There are 94 communicants; Sunday-school reports are good. The day school is closed; Mr. R. T. Sims, the principal, gave general satisfaction; his assistants, Mr. M. W. White and Miss Hattie Robinson, have done well. The school will not be conducted in the church hereafter, as the new building will be erected near the courthouse to be known as School and Benevolent Hall; the second story will be used for societies, public meetings, festivals, etc."

ALABAMA.

T. P. Phillips, Ashland: "We have organized a church in Choccoloco Valley near a station on the Georgia Pacific railroad. There were 15 members at the first meeting; the agents gave us a lot in town, not very far from the depot. We are going ahead working on the church. The people want a Methodist church; some of them are fifty years old and never heard a Methodist preacher before. The lumber is to be put on the ground at once. We shall ask for a Church Extension loan. Presiding Elder O. Nelson is full of the Holy Ghost. Pray for us."

W. M. Coleman, Collinsville and Whitney Circuit: "Quarterly meeting was held by Presiding Elder O. Nelson. The elder reviewed the work of the church for the year, and the reports from the General Conference in a very interesting manner. He is practical in his dealings with the preachers and spends all his time in the pulpit and visiting among the people. Collection $9.75. He preached on Sunday at 11 a. m; at 3 p. m. Rev. H. C. Winston; at night Rev. J. H. Brown."

Status of Colored Work in the M. E. Church.

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

I am bitterly opposed to class legislation in State or church. I am not afflicted, I hope, with the colorphobia that causes men to accept a man as a leader simply because he is colored, when he is known to be deficient morally or spiritually; that thrusts him into prominent and lucrative positions and then seeks to cover all his defects with all manner of frail excuses, and accepts and applauds praise from those who say he will for he is a colored man." Nor do I write this because our last General Conference unmistakably settled the natural question of caste prejudice by proclaiming the scriptural doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Now, I believe nothing was done at our General Conference that the Church will be ashamed of here or hereafter, that should in the least disturb the white or colored members of our church here in the South, for many reasons. I simply mention the fact that no colored congregation, on the strength of the action of the last General Conference will, likely, disband and demand admittance to white congregations. Self respect is guaranty for this. No preacher in a conference now composed exclusively of whites will likely ask a transfer to an exclusively colored conference to get a good appointment. Previous relations will probably prevent this. No colored family will likely take their children from the college they have been attending, and are socially comfortable, and send them to an institution where association will be unpleasant. Commonsense will guard this point. We understand that angels can enact no law that will, or can, bring about personal social equality. An old man who was born in, and never had any desire to go out of, the city of London was found guilty of a misdemeanor and sentenced to confinement within the city limits for the rest of his life, found himself sinking under the penalty, not because he ever did or ever should desire to go out, but loved freedom. This is a fac simile of our case. No, the great ocean of Methodism will glide majestically onward as before, without a ripple, we hope.

Not to call attention to the above so much as to give our standing in the church, as this is the centenary of American Methodism, and speeches are to be prepared for it in some cases, by those who have no such statistics as are here given, at hand. And, beside this, to let the world know we are not ashamed of our record. It is true our figures are far below some other organizations who seem proud of figures, but if we do not equal others in figures we shall try and equal them in consistency and Christianity. We have now: Preachers, 3,758; members, 200,000; Sunday-schools, 2,566; officers and teachers, 12,394; scholars, 117,776; churches, 2,139, valued at $2,114,538; parsonages, 349, valued at $53,450; schools and colleges, 30, valued at $350,000; teachers, 100; scholars, 3,500; medical colleges, 1, the Meharry, at this place, that has graduated with degree of Medical Doctor, 44 persons. As to being represented, we had Prof. W. H. Crogman, of Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., one of the secretaries of the last General Conference, Revs. E. W. S. Peck and A. E. P. Albert members of the General Book Committee, and Rev. M. W. Taylor, D.D., elected editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE at New Orleans, one of our church papers. And, in the regular election for Bishops, some of our numbers were far in advance, for Bishop, of some whom the Church hold in high esteem.

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

Woman's Work.

Where is it? This has been the question of much discussion. Much thought has been expended upon it, books written upon the subject. There are those who would tell woman just where her sphere is, but the question is still not solved to the complete satisfaction of every one.

As we look over the world, we see that there is much to be done. The whole world is one co-operative organization, and woman has her share in the great work.

Now-a-days there is much searching the Bible for the solution of difficult questions. We there, learn that man has had superior responsibility, and authority given him, and woman was created his helpmeet—a co-worker with him. The directions with regard to specific work, are simply to do the will of God, and it is promised that sufficient light shall be given.

In countries where they have not the word of God, women is in great subjection. She is not in ignorance and is a slave to superstition and foolish customs, but where the light of the Gospel is, woman's chains are loosed, and she may go free, to find her proper sphere, guided by His spirit in proportion as the love of God reigns in her heart will she find her work.

Of course, every Christian woman will see the extensive fields of usefulness that are before her in her own home, and among her children. The obligation to train them up in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord," she will cheerfully recognize and she will do it faithfully. One little duty done, will open a way for another, and then another will come, and so on, away down to old age, and the grave. The most and the best of God's work is in the little duties, such as every woman sees all aronnd, and though often her work may seem insignificant, yet she is making lasting impressions and building structures that will endure forever. In her own home she may "cast bread upon the waters" with full assurance of finding it in blessings upon herself and others.

Although home work is almost boundless, yet a Christian mother's heart properly reaches out beyond as she has opportunity. To care for one's own entirely, will produce selfishness and narrowness, such as may unfit one for usefulness anywhere. Charity may begin at home but that it must remain there, is untrue to the teaching of our loving Father. Perhaps the mother's pleasant home, and her loved ones have been given her, to expand her heart with love and gratitude, and make it fit for more extended usefulness. One of God's ways of compensating His laborers, is to give work and strength to do it. The more one works for God, the larger the heart grows, and broader the views.

A woman interested in the working of the Church, and in doing good generally, elevates herself above the fashion of the world, and senseless gossip, elaborate cooking and extravagant house decorations. She fills her mind with what satisfies her heart and makes her a better mother and a truer friend.

O, how full the world is of wickedness and sorrow! Whose work is it, to stem the dreadful current of evil! What wonder, that womanly natures, are stirred to their depths, and that the commission "Go work to-day in my vineyard," means to them, go anywhere. Their own children may be tenderly fondled, but many other mother's homes are desolate and their children going to destruction. There is a great call for those who can comfort burdened hearts, teach the ignorant ones, and lead them to a better life. Does not equal responsibility rest upon woman as upon man to do all the good she can? Does not the same law govern her, and is she not under the same obligation to God? What if she should feel that because she has home work to do and children to care for she is excused from other work? May not man, with an understanding feel that because he has a family to support other families may take care of themselves? Where then would be the monuments to the benevolence of man, of which there are so many in the world. If he had been restricted by narrow and selfish views?

We often hear of man's work and woman's work, as being distinct. Where can the line be drawn? May it not be her privilege to give finishing touches of grace and tenderness to his, and make it more complete.

The ministers of our General Conference paid high tribute to woman. Their action in refusing to give her license to preach the Gospel, of course, was not because they feared woman's supremacy, or of any desire to put obstructions in the way of her usefulness. They saw the importance of her home work, and were unwilling to add to her burdens. They thought they could see uncared for homes, and neglected children, perhaps too, they feared buttonless shirts and unmended clothing, and poor cooking. A Christian woman will not neglect home duties. If there are women who do, and who become harsh, and unfeminine, they are of the track, and have ruined their own influence for good.

That because the world has always opposed public work for woman, is no good argument against it. The fathers and mothers knew a great deal. They thought they lived in the noontide of enlightenment, but in many things we pity them for their ignorance, as in turn, future generations will pity us.

Innovations have been made, and have been fought, and have lived to bless the world. Not far back in the past, woman worked in a narrow circle. Few fields, outside of her own home, were open to her, but now, there are woman clerks, telegraph operators, newspaper editors, lawyers and physicians and when God wills it, woman will hear and obey the call. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." It need not necessari be in harangues to crowds, but in God's own way, she will find blessed work in ministering to those who need her ministrations, humble it may be, seemingly, but if it is done for Him, He will approve and reward.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter From Columbus.

Traveling among the people for the past five months has made me more conversant with their needs, I find that our people need to read more and have more general information, which they receive through the SOUTHWESTERN, especially about the Methodist Episcopal Church. I do say that, in connection with the Church paper every family ought to take the paper edited in the county they live in but take their Church paper first. I find where the church takes the paper, they are easier preached to, and the preachers have less trouble in raising their benevolent collections. Though I found some of the preachers on my district afraid to solicit subscriptions because they will have it to pay themselves if the people fail to pay them. This happens I think only where the preacher fails to take the right steps. I have said what I have said about the paper in order to get at benevolent collections. We may not believe it, but it is true our people need to be informed as to these collections and this duty is enjoined by the Discipline on the pastors. Now I tell you, we may talk about having a bishop of color, and of being members of the Book Concerns, and having titles of honor, and everything of this kind, but in my opinion a nation cannot receive honors until it has made a history, and has made itself sufficiently felt, and I am certain we cannot be felt unless we do something. It is the same in the church as in the State. I am glad though, that we are making a history, and as I am now living and interested in it, I want it be a grand one. I think the first and best thing for us to do is to learn to appreciate the efforts of others to help us, next to become moral and accumulate wealth, and become more refined in our habits and manners. This can only be had through proper instructors; and the pastors ought to be the main agents for such work. The pastor should teach; we complain of this difficulty and the other, but the greatest difficulties are the want of the missionary spirit, or at least they fail to understand the Christian idea, that a man born of God, is not born of God for himself, but for others and that all he has is for others, he has strength or anything else it is [illegible] himself and [illegible] the [illegible] fool who has the [illegible] that God Almighty has [illegible] or grace [illegible] He is a [illegible] and [illegible] than the [illegible] The Apostle [illegible] has been [illegible] the [illegible] glorious [illegible] ness of what God gives [illegible] gives a correct [illegible] is a [illegible] that idea among [illegible] people. Brother [illegible] does [illegible] to me and to know that [illegible] charity is inclusive of all [illegible] the Gospel means [illegible] raiment and shelter, and also civilization. It means salvation to soul and body, and consequently when we administer this highest charity, we are administering all charities, and as you know these things, so teach the people. I hope we will not fail to do as we have promised, for we will only be asked for what we do, and [illegible] the people will be just what we make them. I must say now that we need the men with the proficiency to instruct the people. The people are calling for a higher ministry. Ministers will have to study to be able to lead their congregations out on topics of the day, and into broader fields of [illegible] Now to make yourself a [illegible] pastor in lifting your [illegible] collections you will [illegible] the people, not drive them. Hold missionary prayer [illegible] of [illegible] preachers are [illegible] for your [illegible] possible to [illegible] 50 cents from each person. The assessments for all purposes on the Columbus district is a little less than 45 cents per member to make the $250 asked for, from that district, and certainly brethren we can raise it. Go to work in good earnest; it will not hinder you from getting your salary. I am also in hopes that each preacher will bring plainly before his congregation the subject of Children's Day, and make a grand rally for that fund. Don't neglect to forward the same to the proper place and secure a receipt for it, so credit can be given to the school so contributing. Now may the Lord help and bless our work all over these broad lands, and may we still hear the shouts of Methodism marching on to victory.

Yours in the work.

P. M. CARMICHAEL.

Deserved Recognition.

Yesterday afternoon a very handsome compliment was paid to Mr. Robert Park Thompson, the occasion being the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the Methodist Book Concern of this city. Assembled in the Preachers' Room were the entire corps of employes, to the amount of 200, both ladies and gentlemen, including heads of bereaus, editors, correspondents and salesmen; while seated near the platform were the following clergymen: Revs. Hoyt, Hight, Rust, Nash, A. J. Nast, Krehbiel, Joyce, Lee, Leibhart, Baylis, Beall, Hartzell, Brown, Archibald, Prof. Williams, Mr. Chas. Rust, Mr. Ellis, Miss Crapsey, Miss Custan and others.

Upon the platform were visible two large easy chairs, splendidly upholstered in crimson plush, and on a table near an elegant silver tea service was placed, consisting of a heavy salver, water pitcher and cup, coffee-urn, coffee and tea-pot, sugar-dish, cream pitcher and bowl, the salver bearing the inscription: "Presented, April 25, to R. P. Thompson, by his associates of the Western Methodist Book Concern, on the fiftieth anniversary of his active service in the house."

All things being in readiness, the throng settled into the stillness of happy expectancy, as Mr. David Thompson, son of Mr. R. P. Thompson, accompanied by his excellent mother and niece, advanced to the front, and at the instant appeared Rev. Dr. Walden, followed by the surprised but self possessed hero of the hour, who was at once escorted to the seat of honor and sank down amid a round of applause in the soft cushions of velvet and plush, surveying the scene like one waking from a pleasant dream. Dr. Walden, pointing to the beautiful silver said: "Brother Thompson, by this time you understand this gathering and something of its import. We have been sent to call you the father of us all and the father of the faithful, for your long tried and useful connection with this establishment. I have now the great pleasure in behalf of your associates, including the employes in the manufacturing departments, to present you with this testimonial of their high appreciation of your long and faithful service, and of your kindness as a friend and adviser, and in behalf of the Book Concern you will accept the chair which you occupy, not to place it in a parlor as an ornament, but that you may find in its continuous use comfort and ease for your declining years." Dr. Walden further stated that fifty years ago Mr. E. Sargent was associated with Mr. Thompson in the class meeting, and referred with increasing emphasis to the fact that the recipient had been a faithful member of the Church of God and a consistent Christian. Then taking Mrs. Thompson by the hand, whom he placed in the elegant chair by the side of her husband, he paid a beautiful tribute to her as a faithful wife and mother, and to her service in the Christian Church. He said that Mrs. Thompson had many long years since labored side by side with her husband in an honorable calling of honest toil. [Applause]. Together they had walked through the years true to each other and true to the Church, and together they looked forward to a blessed immortality and to their reward. Following Dr. Walden's exceedingly graceful presentation, the entire company broke into singing:

Oh, that with yonder sacred throng,
We at His feet may fall!
We'll join the everlasting song,
And crown Him Lord of all.

And the venerable Dr. Nast offered a strain of thanksgiving, praising God for the years of Christian fellowship and for His sustaining and abiding presence through all, and thanking God that He rewards His faithful servants in this life and that which is to come.

Mr. Thompson, with a full heart and with the extreme modesty which has ever marked his life, in a few well chosen words acknowledged his surprise and pleasure at being remembered by those most dear to him, extending unfeigned thanks for the beautiful gifts and for the spirit that had prompted them.

Mrs. Thompson, brushing away the gathering tears, begged the privilege of a word. Dr. Walden replied: "It is purely Methodistic for women to speak in meeting." The lady in tremulous tones then said: "On my part this is unmerited, and I thank you all, but cannot express in words the real emotions stirred by such a scene." Both received the most approving and hearty applause.

Short speeches followed from those connected with the Book Concern. Rev. Dr. Rust led off by declaring that he would like to be so fortunate as to remain fifty years with the same recognition and reward. [Laughter and applause].

Dr. Hoyt referred to the excellent work done in all departments, believing it to be the very best West of the Allegheny Mountains, exalting Mr. Thompson's labors, which had been an honor to himself, to the establishment and to the Church.

Dr. Leibhart said this was a rare occasion. We don't often find in history men who have labored in one house for fifty years. In the old country they are more steady than young America, but even there the instances of so long a business connection are rare.

He said that Brother Thompson could print good German, and hoped he would keep on printing it forever. Dr. Rust observed that it would be unnecessary, as we all expect to speak English in Heaven. [Laughter].

Mr. Whitson next spoke, paying a high tribute to Mr. Thompson's management and his conduct toward those under him, as that of kind respect and deference.

Mr. Jones followed, stating that he enjoyed the most pleasant connection with Mr. Thompson for over thirty years, and had ever found him a Christian gentleman. They were old fogies, in that they loved the old-fashioned Methodism. He trusted that they would all live together forever.

Professor Williams said that his acquaintance with the Book Concern began when he was 6 years old. He bought two slate pencils for a cent, and soon after he, with other boys, persuaded Mr. Thompson to print for them a little newspaper 7-10 inches in size, and afterwards, when a teacher, he had his catalogues printed in the same way, and he always got excellent work at Mr. Thompson's hands. The speakers were greatly applauded, and all present entered into the most cordial sympathy with the deeply interesting and well deserved recognition. After a cheerful handshaking, the company dispersed, with singing:

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love.

The Republicans Platform.

The Republicans of the United States, in National Convention assembled, renew their allegiance to the principles upon which they have triumphed in six successive presidential elections, and congratulate the American people on the attainment of so many results in legislation and administration by which the Republican party has, after saving the Union, done so much to render its institutions just, equal and beneficient, the safeguard of liberty, and the embodiment of the best thought and highest purposes of our citizens.

The Republican party has gained its strength by a quick and faithful response to the demands of the people for the freedom and the equality of all men, for a united nation, assuring the rights of all citizens, for the elevation of labor, for an honest currency, for purity in legislation, and for integrity and accountability in all department of the government, and it accepts anew the duty of leading in the work of progress and reform.

We lament the death of President Garfield, whose sound statesmanship, long conspicuous in Congress, gave promise of a strong and successful administration, a promise fully realized during the short period of his office as President of the United States. His distinguished success in war and peace have endeared him to the hearts of the American people. In the Administration of President Arthur we recognize a wise, conservative and patriotic policy, under which the country has been blessed with remarkable prosperity, and we believe his eminent services are entitled to and will receive the hearty approval of every citizen.

It is the first duty of a good government to protect the rights and promote the interests of its own people. The largest diversity of industry is most productive of general prosperity and of the comfort and independence of the people. We, therefore, demand that the imposition of duties on foreign imports shall be made not "for revenue only," but that in raising the revenues for the government such duties shall be so adjusted as to afford security to our diversified industry and protection to the right hand of laborers, to the end that active and intelligent labor, as well as capital, may have its just award, and the laboring man his full share in the nation's prosperity.

Against the so-called economy system of the Democratic party which would degrade our labor to the foreign standard, we enter our earnest protest. The Democratic party has failed completely to relieve the people of the burden of unnecessary taxation by a wise reduction of the surplus. The Republican party pledges itself to correct the irregularities of the tariff, and to reduce the surplus, not by indiscriminate process, but by such methods as will relieve the taxpayer without injuring the laborer or the great productive interest of the country. We recognize the importance of the sheep husbandry of the United States; the sources of the depression which it is now experiencing and the danger threatening its future prosperity, and we, therefore, respect the demands of the representatives of this important agricultural interest for a readjustment of the duty on foreign wool, in order that such industry shall have full and adequate protection.

We have always recommended the best money known to the civilized world, and we urge that efforts should be made to unite all commercial unions in the establishment of an international currency which shall fix for all time the relative value of gold and silver coinage.

The regulation of commerce with foreign nations and between States is one of the most important prerogatives of the general government, and the Republican party distinctly announces its purpose to support such legislation as will fully and efficiently carry out the constitutional power of Congress over interstate commerce. The principle of the public regulation of railway corporations is a wise and salutary one for the protection of all classes of people, and we favor legislation that shall prevent unjust discrimination for transportation and that shall secure to the people and the railways alike the fair and equal protection of the laws. We favor the establishment of a National Bureau of Labor, the enforcement of the eight-hour law, a wise and judicious system of general education, by adequate appropriation from the national revenues whenever the same is needed. We believe that everywhere the protection to citizens of American birth and by adoption must be secured, and we favor the settlement of national differences by international arbitration.

The Republican party had its birth in a hatred of slave labor, and a desire that all men may be truly free and equal; is unalterably opposed to placing our workingmen in competion with any form of servile labor, whether at home or abroad; in this spirit we denounce the importation of contract labor, whether from Europe or Asia, as an offense against the spirit of American institutions, and we pledge ourselves to sustain the present law restricting Chinese emigration, and to provide such further legislation as is necessary to carry out its purposes.

The reform of the civil service, auspiciously begun under the Republican administration, should be completed by the further extension of the reformed system already established by law to all the grades of the service to which it is applicable. The spirit and purpose of the reform should be observed in all executive appointments, and all laws at variance with the objects of existing reformed legislation should be repealed, to the end that the dangers to free institutions which lurk in the power of official patronage may be wisely and effectively avoided. The public lands are a heritage of the people of the United States and should be reserved as far as possible for actual holdings by actual settlers. We are opposed to the acquisition of large tracts of these lands by corporations or individuls, especially where such holdings are in the hands of non residents, aliens; and we will endeavor to obtain such legislation as will tend to correct this evil.

We demand of Congress the speedy forfeiture of all land grants which have lapsed by reason of non-compliance with acts of incorporation, in all cases where there has been no attempt in good faith to perform the conditions of such grants.

The grateful thanks of the American people are due to the Union sailors and saliors of the late war, and the Republican party stands pledged to suitable pensions for all who were disabled and for the widows and orphans of those who died in the war. The Republican party also pledges itself to the repeal of the limitation contained in the arrears acts of 1879, so that all invalid soldiers shall share alike, and their pensions begin with the date of disability or discharge, and not with the date of the application.

The Republican party favors a policy which shall keep us from entangling alliances with foreign nations, and which gives us the right to expect that foreign nations shall refrain from meddling in American affairs. The policy which seeks peace can trade with all powers, but especially with those of the Western hemisphere. We demand the restoration of our navy to its old-time strength and efficiency, that it may in any sea protect the rights of American citizens and the interests of American commerce, and we call upon Congress to remove the burdens under which American shipping has been depressed, so that may again be true that we have a commerce which leaves no sea unexplored, and a navy which takes no law from superior force.

Resolved, That appointments by the President to offices in the Territories should be made from actual bona fide citizens and residents of the Territories wherein they are to serve.

Resolved, That it is the duty of Congress to enact such laws as shall promptly and effectually suppress the system of polygamy wherever in our territory, and divorce the political from the ecclesiastical power of the so-called Mormon Church, and that the law so enacted should be rigidly enforced by the civil authorities if possible, and by the military if need be.

The people of the United States in their organized capacity constitute a nation and not a mere confederacy of States. The national government is supreme within the sphere of its national duty, but the States have reserved rights which should be faithfully maintained, and which should be guarded with jealous care, so that the harmony of our system of government may be preserved and the union kept inviolate.

The perpetuity of our institutions rests upon the maintenance of a free ballot, an honest count and correct return. We denounce the fraud and violence practiced by the Democracy in Southern States by which the will of the voter is defeated, as dangerous to the preservation of free institutions, and we arraign the Democratic party as being the guilty recipient of the fruits of such fraud and violence.

We extend to the Republicans of the South, regardless of their former party affiliations, our cordial sympathy, and pledge to them our most earnest efforts to promote the passage of such legislation as will secure to every citizen of whatever race and color, the full and complete recognition, possession and exercise of all civil and political rights.

The Memorial of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union to the National Political Conventions of 1884.

We, members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the States herein represented, by the signatures of our officials, believe that while the poison habits of the Nation can be largely restrained by an appeal to the intellect through argument, to the heart through sympathy, and to the conscience through the motives of religion, the traffic in those poisons will be best controled by prohibitory law. We believe the teachings of science, experience, and the golden rule combine to testify against the traffic in alcoholic liquors as a drink, and that these homes of America, which are the citadels of patriotism, purity and happiness, have no enemy so remorseless as the American saloon.

Therefore, we, as citizens of the United States, irrespective of sex or section, but having deeply at heart the protection of our homes, we do hereby respectfully and earnestly petition you to advocate and adopt such measures as are requisite, to the end that prohibition, of the importation, exportation, manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages may become an integral part of the National Constitution, and that your party candidates shall be, by character and public pledge, committed to a national constitutional prohibitory amendment.

A patient in Mississippi gives this account of a "marvellous change" wrought in her condition;

"Last December I received your Compound Oxygen. I was in a very weak condition, sinking from nervous prostration. I commenced its use immediately, leaving off everything else. And what a marvellous change it wrought in a few weeks! So rapidly did I improve that neighbors and friends who had been familiar with my complaints for several years are still full of wonder at my recovery.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1884.

TO OUR AGENTS.

DEAR BRETHREN: — Begin at once the dollar convass for subscriptions for the remainder of 1884. Get all or part of the money with each name, or better still whenever possible adhere to the strictly cash plan. This is the general newspaper rule, and your Church paper needs the money. A short talk with the people, explaining the use, power, and civilizing Christian influence of a religious newspaper; and the record, the purpose and the potency of the SOUTHWESTERN especially, cannot fail to induce a few in each and every congregation to enroll themselves for its support. If this is done in all the congragations our circulation will be increased by thousands.

Your accounts at this office require attention immediately. Statements are being sent ont as rapidly as possible; examine them carefully, report all corrections desired, and trasmit at once every dollar you have in hand belonging to the paper, or that yon can spare in payment of overdue accounts. The action of the last General Conference has brongut the paper one step nearer to self support than ever before. If our agents and friends will heed this appeal, and make remittances to this office now, promptly and often, the increased burden thrown upon us can be successfully borne, and a bright future for the paper assured; otherwise the labor and hopes of years will be shorn of its crowning fruition. After reading this go to the post office, or the express office and forward to us all the money you can. Address. PHILLIPS & HUNT. 30 Natchez street, New Orleans La.

The Political Situation.

While yet the leaves are green, and the fragrant odors of flowers spread by loyal, loving hands upon patriot's graves still linger in the air, the chosen representatives of a great political party are assembling to select a man who shall be worthy to succeed Lincoln, Grant and Garfield as President of the United States. The situation is a grave one. The chances of success or failure will be increased or diminished as they shall utter or fail to utter expressions on public questions which are in harmony with the growing element of our popular thought, which look with abhorrence and disgust upon those monster evils, municipal corruption, corrupt use of political patronage, lawlessness and disfranchisement of legal voters by either by violence or fraud. Victory must ultimately settle upon the head of that party which stands for equal rights to all who claim protection and protection under this great government; colored people, Chinese, Indians, and the oppressed of every clime. Protection for home industry, civil service reform, the suppression of polygamy and the liquor traffic must prevail in the end. Either of the great parties which are to ask the suffrages of American citizens to invest their candidates with the administeation of the government will fully realize our ideal, or reach the elevated standard most desirable. A third party can only defeat the best of the principal contestants; hence the gravity of the situation. When the absolutely desirable is unavailable, and choice must be made, the duty is to give decision in favor of the least objectionable. With the Democratic party in power very little of a reformatory character is possible. Should so pure and independent a man as Hon. R. E. Lee soon become their candidate, his election would only be secured by violence or fraud, or both, as it would require the electoral vote of every Southern State to elect him, and these can be had for the Democratic party by no fair and legal means. If in any way the election of a Democrat takes place, it would be a signal for sweeping changes to the prejudice of the civil service. Then, too, the liquor trade would be an important element in this success, and its claims could not be overlooked. Utah, if admitted as a state nnder its administration, could aid in perpetuating its power undisturbed in the iniquitous system which otherwise renders its desirable acquisition therefore a most deplorable possibility. In the present condition of affairs, the colored voters occupy an important situation. Let them take counsel and act: 1st. In harmony; 2d. With reference to the best interests of the race; 3rd. Looking more to a full enforcement of just laws than the securement of some trivial position in the State or national service; 4th. Let them persistently abstain from the acceptance of personal remuneration for performing the highest duty which belongs to every citizen; 5. Let them equally persist in abstinence from boisterous or riotous proceedings during the campaign, and from intoxicating drinks, which are sure to lead to and produce such disorder. To get an office is a good thing, but not the chief thing. The chief thing is to secure just legal recognition, and the enforcement of adequate law throughout the land. This, if secured at all, most likely will come from the Republican party. There is certainly no indication of its coming from the Democratic party.

Commencement Season.

The commencement season has again come around, and all is preparation, examination, anticipation and desire. Presidents, deans, professors, preceptors, preceptresses, and matrons are getting ready to rest and prepare to renew the battle with increased vigor the coming term. The students are thinking of advancement, graduation, honor, professional life, salary, comfort, home, future usefulness and future happiness. The freshman hopes to become a sophomore, the sophomore looks anxiously into the junior ranks and wishes to be there. The junior pants for seniority; and the senior contemplates with imperturable serenity the approach of his graduating moment.

Some will realize their ideals, some will not. Such is human life. Some have homes to which they can return, others only places where they stay. Carry into all the moral life and intellectual light of the school, and they will take on the intellectual character. Some can take the vacation for recreation and pleasure, others will be compelled to seek for employment, perhaps of very laborious and grinding nature in order to earn the means of support in school the coming term. Before some the path of life will be brilliantly illuminated by hope, while to others little light or hope will shine along the way. Some with light hearts and free will sing as they go rolling homeward, but others, with hearts neither so light or so free, will linger near the old institution toiling out the live long, heated days of vacation, often thinking of shades that once in reality made their dwelling place a home to them. Janitors and servants look forward to a period of labor, just as teachers and students expect a season of rest in vacation. Such is life: hope and fear, faith and doubt, rest and labor, success and failure. Such is not the life which is to come, however. There is reality, stability, tranquility and certainty in that life. Let faculties, alumni and students go forth, then, for rest or toil as their lot may be, but let them all and each so live here that he may live the life of real and unfading joy hereafter.

The Republican Candidates.

The Chicago convention of the Republican party has named Hon. James G. Blaine, of Maine, as the candidate of the party for President of the United States, and Hon. Jno. A. Logan, of Illinois, for Vice-President. At present the appearance is that the selection is to be challenged by the Independent Republicans, and that the campaign, from the present outlook is to be somewhat inharmonious, notwithstanding the unbounded enthusiasm which attended all the progress up to and at the point of decision. Enthusiasm in a convention does not always mean the same thing as an election by the people, but is a consideration favorable to it. With time and a calmer view the opposition may subside, and the progress of this campaign, as that of 1880, grow harmonious and popular as it approaches the final hour. Not only will the ticket be somewhat unpopular with the civil service reformers, but Mr. Blaine will drag heavily with the colored Republicans of the country, if his alleged opposition to the enforcement act, as represented, be correct. However, at this point, as with the stalwart element of the party, the ticket will be greatly strengthened by the candidate for Vice-President. The gallantry of John A. Logan in war, and his faithfulness in Congress to the needs of the late slaves in peace, has given him a place in their confidence akin to that which they feel for Grant and Conkling. The scattering vote represented by the Anti-monopolists, Greenbackers and Independent Republicans could, not even were they united on any one candidate, have the least hope of his election. Its only result would be the possible, even probable, defeat of the Republican candidates at the polls. The colored vote would scarcely recognize any such ticket by voting for it. In view of the present status of their relation in the South, they should not do so. In the event that the Democratic party should nominate ex Gov. Butler, of Massachusetts, the temptation would be strong upon a great number of colored voters to cast their ballots for Butler and Logan.

The colored voters, by their representatives will meet in Richmond, Va., on July 8th, prox., and the result of their deliberations will be that, with more or less unanimity, they will support the regular ticket. Just before an election is, perhaps, a most inopportune time, and will prove in practice a difficult one for the colored people to outline a policy differing from the one expressed in the platform of the party of which they form a part.

The Chicago platform is comprehensive, broad, and touching matters of peculiar interest to the colored race, and meets the demand of the hour. Therefore, since we war with measures, (not men) and contend for the survival of the fittest principles, it would seem to be the duty of the colored citizens to support the regular ticket with even JAMES G. BLAINE at its head.

What They Say.

The following resolutions touching the "SOUTHWESTERN" by the Washington Conference Preacher's Meeting, in Baltimore, Maryland, June 5, 1884.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, We have listened with pleasure to the able and interesting address of Rev. Dr. M. W. Taylor, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE concerning the paper he represents; therefore,

Resolved, That we highly appreciate the action of the General Conference in his election to the honorable and responsible position of editor.

Resolved, That the Baltimore Preacher's Meeting of Washington conference do highly pledge him a hearty support and co-operation in his important work.

The Delaware Conference at its session June 11, 1884, spoke as follows, after which each member subscribed and paid his subscription to the SOUTHWESTERN:

The Deleware Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church now in session and on the first day of the session:

Resolved, That we hail with joy the election of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and we have been electrified and encouraged by the learned and eloqnent address delivered by him before the Conference to-day.

Resolved, That each member of the Conference will subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, and will labor assiduously to place the paper in the homes of the members of our several charges.

Resolved, That we will give our earnest co operation and support in every way we can to advance the SOUTHWESTERN, that it may become a greater power for good in the Church, and especially among our people.

The Danville Riot.

The committee of the Senate has considered and made their report. We know now, what we knew equally well before: that in Mississippi, Print Matthews had been slain in the act of discharging, in a legal way, his sovereign right as a citizen, and that in Danville, Va., just before an election, inoffensive men were slain in the streets like wild beasts in the jungles, while others, wounded, sought some place among brutes less savage than men, where they might bleed to death in peace. But what of it? Congress can do nothing. The President can do nothing. The people are tired hearing of blood, riot and murder. Where is relief? These things will come to an end as sure as there is a God. Politicians may court and use them for capital. Oppressors may gloat in the triumphs thus obtained, but the joy which springs from evil doing will prove as deceptive as its cause is wicked. There is a government higher than the government at Washington. It is the government of governments the Government of God.

Who Organized the Anti-Slavery Movement?

Heretofore it has been common with colored orators to extoll the great anti-slavery leaders, especially those of them who were anti-church as well as anti-slavery, seldom referring to the great churches and church leaders who stood for human liberty. Of whom Methodism in England, and America produced many such. The Methodist Episcopal Church began a war with slavery as soon as it was organized, which ended only with the emancipation of the slaves. Though she faltered, she never failed in her purpose. Hon. Fred Douglass has seen fit to lay a wealth of laurels at the feet of the greatest leaders in the cause of human rights of modern times. We quote below his tribute to Wesley and Clarke:

DOUGLASS' SPEECH 1883.

"The question is sometimes asked, when, where and by whom the Negro was first suspected of having any rights at all? In answer to this inquiry it has been asserted that William Lloyd Garrison originated the Anti-slavery movement, that until his voice was raised against the American slave system, the whole world was silent. With all respect to those who make this claim I am compelled to dissent from it. I love and venerate the memory of William Lloyd Garrison. I knew him long and well. He was a grand man, a moral hero, a man whose acquaintance and friendship it was a great privilege to enjoy. While liberty has a friend on earth, and slavery an earnest enemy, his name and his works will be held in profound and grateful memory. To him it was given to formulate and thunder against oppression and slavery the testimonies of the ages. He revived, but did not originate.

It is no disparagement to him to affirm that he was preceded by many other good men whom it would be a pleasure to remember on occasions like this. Benjamin Lundy, an humble Quaker, though not the originator of the Anti-slavery movement, was in advance of Mr. Garrision. Walker, a colored man, whose appeal against slavery startled the land like a trump of coming judgment, was before either Mr. Garrison or Mr. Lundy.

Emancipation, without delay, was preached by Dr. Hopkins, of Rhode Island, long before the voice of either Garrison, Lundy or Walker was heard in the land. John Wesley, a hundred years before, had denounced slavery as the sum of all villainies. Adam Clark had done the same.

Our Work In The South.

We publish on the first page of this issue, so much of the action of the General Conference as touches, in a specially important way, the relations of the races to each other in our work in the Southern States. We print extracts from various reports, grouping them together in such a way that our readers can see at a glance the entire action of the conference upon the subject.

We assume that there is nothing contradictory in these reports, for if they are not in harmony with each other the conference which adopted them was deficient either in intelligence or consistency. But it is agreed on all hands that the late General Conference was quite as able as any General Conference that ever assembled. Nor can it be charged with inconsistency on the ground that these several actions were hastily taken. These reports were considered in committees for many days, and were discussed at length and very earnestly on the conference floor. The conference knew what it was doing.

We therefore infer that these reports, as they were understood by the conference, are entirely harmonious. One of them is the declaration of a broad principle of Church policy. The Methodist Episcopal Church does not believe in oppression, but regards the rights of all men. She will do all in her power to bless, enlighten, and save all men, irrespective of race or color. And is there a Church of Christ anywhere which dares to avow an opposite policy?

It is too late in the development of Christian thought, and in the history of the United States, to legislate against any class of people, as a class, simply because they have been, or still are unfortunate. Our mission is not to trample upon the fallen, but to pity them and raise them up. This is the settled policy of the Church, and upon this principle we have been doing missionary work in foreign lands, and in all parts of our own country. We do not stop to ask whether the people whom we try to bless award us gratitude or criticism for our service, but in the spirit of Christ and his apostles we carry our great work forward. This is the principle stated in one of these reports.

The other report is a formal approval of the specific work done by the Freedmen's Aid Society in the Southern States. It has aimed to bless people of different races, because it finds people of different races in need of help, and the policy of the Church is declared to be to aid all who are in need. It has established schools and colleges for colored people and white people, and has carried on its work successfully, and the General Conference formally approves what it has done, and its methods also, and encourages it to go on, adapting its local administration to the exigencies which arise. We do not yet realize our ideal, but we aim to reach it, and for the present we adopt such methods as promise the best results, that we "might by all means save some."

We do not believe the General Conference had any thought of inaugurating a new departure in the administration of the Freedman's Aid Society, and the work will go on as heretofore. Schools and colleges will multiply. Where it is found impossible to educate the races together, we will educate them nevertheless, all the while praying that the senseless and cruel prejudices which have grown up during centuries of oppression and wrong, will die away, and that education and religion will help to destroy them.

We believe that our people all through the South, and, indeed, the Church at large, will acquiesce in this view of the case, and that hearty co-operation will lead to results larger and more glorious than have ever been achieved.

There is no part of our work upon which God has more clearly and auspiciously smiled than upon that which has been done in the South. The General Conference speaks soberly and truthfully when it says that "the growth of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States since the close of the late war, is one of the marvels of modern Church history." It is doubtless correct also in its cheerful prophecy that "the day of prosperity for the South is at hand," and in its assertion that "the spirit of fraternity and mutual helpfulness among all moral and educational forces at the South is rapidly prevailing."

We are convinced that the action of the General Conference will help the good work, and that our cause in the South will move forward more rapidly and successfully than it has ever done.—Western.

More Equality.

The Republican convention has followed in close order, the good example set for it by our General Conference. It departed from its past traditions by nominating and electing another than the gentleman named by the National committee. Hon. John R. Lynch of Mississippi, was chosen and we presume it will give him no offense for us to remark that he is a colored man. Time, character, talent and money is solving the Negro problem.—ED.

After nearly three hours of time consumed in the roll-call the result was announced at 3.20—Lynch 432, Clayton 387.

On motion of Colonel Clayton, Lynch's election was made unanimous.

Clayton, Lodge and Taft were appointed a committee to escort Lynch (who was in the dining hall) to the chair. As the procession moved down the aisle—Clayton in front, Lynch next, and Lodge and Taft bringing up the rear—the audience again went into hysterics, and when, with a courtly bow, Clayton presented the "man and brother" to Senator Sabin, hats went into the air, the ladies waved parasols and handkerchiefs, and pandemonium reigned supreme.

SPEECH OF JOHN R. LYNCH,

accepting the tempory chairmanship of the convention:

He allowed it to come to him unsought, and accepted it rather as a duty than a coveted prize, but acquitted himself as was to be expected of him. He realized the importance of the situation.

Lynch was cool collected, and to all appearances the most unconcerned man in the room. He advanced to the front of the stage, and when quiet had been restored began an address which, for fluency and general excellence of delivery, had not been equaled by any of the speakers who had proceeded him. He said: "I feel that I ought not to say that I thank you for the distinguished honor which you have conferred upon me, for I do not. Nevertheless, from the standpoint that no patriot should fail to respond to his country's call and that no loyal member of his party should fail to comply with the demands of his party, I yield with reluctance to your decision and assume the duties of the position to which you have assigned me. [Cheers]. Every members of the convention who has approached me upon this subject within the last few hours knows that this position was neither expected nor desired by me. If, therefore, there is any such thing as a man having honors thrust upon him, you have exemplification of it in this instance. [Cheers]. I wish to say, gentlemen, that I came to this convention, not so much for the purpose of securing the defeat of any man as for the purpose of contributing, to the extent of my vote and influence, to make Republican success in November next an assured fact. I hope and believe that the assembled wisdom of the Republican party of this nation, through its chosen representatives in this hall, will so shape our policy and will present such candidates before the American people as will make that victory beyond a shadow of doubt. I wish to say, so far as the different candidates for the Presidential nomination are concerned, that I do not wish any gentleman to feel that my election by your votes is indicative of anything relative to preference of one candidate over another. I am prepared, and I hope every member of this convention is prepared to return to his home with an unmistakable determination to give the candidates of this convention a legal and hearty support, whoever he may be. [Applause]. Gentlemen of the convention, I am satisfied in my own mind that when we go before the people of this country our action will be ratified, because the great heart of the American people will never consent for any political party to gain the ascendency in this government, whose chief reliance in that support is a fraudulent ballot and violence at the polls. [Applause]. I am satisfied the people of this country are too loyal ever to allow a man to be inaugurated President of the United States whose title to that position may be brought forth in fraud and whose garments may be saturated with the innocent blood of his countrymen. I am satisfied that the American people will ratify our action, because they will never consent to a revenue system in the government otherwise than that which will not only raise the necessary revenue for its support, but will also be sufficient to protect every American citizen everywhere. [Applause and cheers]. Gentlemen, not for myself, but in obedience to custom, I thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me." [Applause].

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Wiley will soon sail for Japan and China, and will be absent for some time.

—The Bible used in the General Conference was once the property of John Wesley.

—Bishop Walden will reside in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bishop Mallalieu in New Orleans, La.

—The wives of the new bishops are highly praised for rare excellence of character and unpretentious manners.

—Dr. Dean, president of New Orleans University, may be addressed at Mystic, Conn., during the summer.

—The address of Rev. L. P. Cushman is 108 Milan street, New Orleans, to which all correspondence for him should be directed.

—Rev. Pierre Landry made a good impression and was spoken of in complimentary terms for Bishop of Africa, for which place he was put in nomination by Graham Bell, Esq., of New Orleans.

—Rev. T. N. Boyle, pastor Woodsrun Church, Alleghaney City, declined to surrender that church to her creditors when authorized to do so by the trustees, and has become personally responsible for a debt of $5,000.

—Henry C. Work, the noted song writer and composer, died in Hartford, Conn., last Sunday. "Marching Through Georgia," "Grandfather's C[illegible]," "Dear Father, Come H[illegible] Now," were written by [illegible].

—C. C. Bowman, of Spartanburg, S. C., is a prosperous merchant, and carries $10,000 in stocks and buildings. He believes with Peter Cooper, "Stick to one thing until it is made a success." His chief discouragement is the lack of patronage by his own color.

—There were few large men in the General Conference; the largest was Bishop Harris. The tallest was from Kansas, the next from Italy; C. C. McCabe the best singer, and B. I. Ives the best spasmodic financier.

—Rev. J. T. Marshall, preacher in charge, Alexandria; Rev. M. Dyer preacher in charge Sixth Street, New Orleans, and Rev. Pierre Landry, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district, all of Louisiana, spent a part of May in Philadelphia, seeing the sights and taking a part in the General Conference.

An indignant man wrote to the editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate ordering his paper stopped, because the paper had been taken in the family a long time, and it had refused to publish an obituary notice. The editor looked the matter up and found the notice had been printed a month previous to the complaint. There are some good people down this way who get caught in the same manner. Always read the paper.

—Rev. L. P. Cushman, presiding elder in the Louisiana Conference, and late editor of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE, has been making a short visit among his old friends at the East. He returns full of faith and courage to his work on the shores of the Gulf. His two sons will probably enter Boston University next fall. Miss Clara M., his daughter, who for nearly six years has been a very successful missionary teacher in Pekin, China, under the direction of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Board, is about returning home for a visit. She will meet with a warm welcome from many friends.—Zion's Herald.

—Dr. J. M. Buckley was the master logician in the Conference, Bishop Andrews the best governor, Dr. Lanahan the best parliamentary tactician, with Dr. T. B. Neely a close second. The most conversant in church law seemed to be M. D. C. Crawford; in general law, Judge Reynolds; the most frequent speaker was Dr. Queal; the strongest voice either Dr. Kynett or Dr. Munroe, it is a close shave between them in favor of the latter. Bishop Simpson was the idol, and Dr. Parsons the mentor of the Conference. Chaplain McCabe was the best singer; O. Hoyt the most dignified layman; Amos Shinkle the most favored; P. G. Gillett the most happy; Bishop Foster the most mystic in appearance and manner. Dr. Belt was the most gigantic; Bishop Harris the most jolly; Bishop Bowman the most gentle; Bishop Simpson the most venerable; Bishop Foss the whitest; Bishop Hurst the most reticent; Bishop Wiley the most humorous; Bishop Warren the most reserved. Of the new Bishops, Mallalieu and Taylor never shave; Ninde shaves his upper lip and the upper edges of his beard; Fowler ditto; Walden shaves clean. E. W. S. Peck or W. J. Parker was the best looking colored delegate; R. A. Fletcher and W. H. Bomar the brightest; Daniel Ware the dullest; E. C. Rose the most attractive; H. W. Key the proudest; C. O. Fisher the most fatherly; T. N. Boyle the most striking face; A. B. Leonard the most intense speaker, and Wm. Runyan the most intense thinker; Dr. Vincent the most even; J. W. Hamilton the most undefinable theologian. Among the honored men of the Conference none was more so than Dr. John Lanahan. He has the esteem, favor and confidence of the Washington Conference.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Hudson, Mt. Zion Sunday-school: "Children's Day was observed June 8th at Mt. Zion M. E. Church, corner Jackson and Magazine streets. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens by Miss Lizzie Taylor and the Sabbath-school children. At 11 a. m. Rev. James W. Hudson, the pastor, delivered an address, subject "The Forward March of the Gospel." Miss Nellie Chapman presided at the organ with great skill and acceptability. The average attendance of the school is about one hundred. Miss Lizzie Taylor is the superintendent, under whose management the school is very prosperous. Miss Taylor had drilled the children so thoroughly in singing and speaking that all the children acquitted themselves to the satisfaction of parents and teachers, and to the delight of the large audience which filled the church to its utmost capacity. At 3 o'clock p. m., the church was again crowded with interested spectators. Miss Julia Chapman presided gracefully at the organ, and led the congregation in singing the hymn as found in the centenary programme. At this service more than 150 Sunday-school scholars were present and joined in singing "A Hundred Years Ago." Mr. Ansel Bunton delivered an eloquent address, subject "Loyalty to the M. E. Church," at the close of which the pastor dismissed the audience. The collection amounted to $9."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. R. Jordan, Yazoo City: "My first quarterly conference convened May 6, Elder Revels in the chair. There was a good attendance at conference, and at night a large congregation. Pastor's salary was estimated at $180, presiding elder $25. We raised for all purposes during the quarter $98.30; paid for building $44.50; paid pastor $20.75; traveling expenses $9.15. We have had a grand revival, 9 conversions. Sunday-schools have 135 children enrolled. The circuit is in good condition."

TEXAS.

A. Adair, Montgomery: "Our presiding elder is a worthy man, and has to bear some hardships. All things are working well for the church in Montgomery. The local preachers are faithful. Have taken up two new appointments; one we can purchase for $125, and it is well worth $300. We have had 20 conversions there. A little church at Corinne has 18 members, and adds something to my support.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Our Church Papers Are to Be Sustained.

Unquestionably the duty of the hour which most deeply concerns our preachers in the Southern work is, the thorough canvassing of the whole territory in the interest of our church papers. The people need and must have the information supplied through these agencies. Our preachers must tell them so. The Methodist Episcopal Church is not a depository where numbers are to be stored for the purpose of swelling statistics. The souls gathered into its pale are expected to have other than a statistical value. It is required that they learn of the church through the medium of the papers it publishes every week, so as to be qualified for doing efficient service in the noble cause of saving men and blessing the world. More than ever before, the fact must be emphasized, that our people must be a knowing people, must know what the plans and purposes of the church are, as well as its struggles and achievements. This knowledge, as we well understand, can be obtained only by the constant reading of the church papers. Of course our brethren will not overlook the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN which has ever been a power for good in the wide region of its circulation. Under its new editorial management we have the promise of a wide-awake, religious journal, which will be, in the future as in the past, a co-worker with the pulpit in leading on the hosts of the Lord to glorious triumph. Let us stand to the SOUTHWESTERN.

Houston Seminary.

The Commencement exercises of this institution were somewhat interfered with by rain. Sunday May 25, Elder Lee of Navasota, preached a centennial sermon at Trinity Church, from Psalm 92-12. He showed the growth of the church in the past hundred years, and urged the duties and opportunity of the present year.

On Monday our educational meeting was rained out. The examination of classes on Tuesday and Wednesday showed great progress in the past year; the examinations were thorough. At the class-meeting on Tuesday eight testified that they had found the Savior during the year, and were trying to live Christians. Bro. Scott, of Galveston, preached on Wednesday night an able sermon we have no doubt, but circumstaces kept us away so we did not have the pleasure of listening to it. The literary entertainment was held Thursday night in Trinity Hall. About $34 were taken in from the sale of tickets. The hall was packed, refreshments were served by Bro. Vance, who understands how to make the best ice-cream in the city. The exercises continued nearly four hours, yet very few if any left before the close. Mr. T. J. Douglass, of Double Bayou, delivered an appropriate oration. Essays were read by Mary Lewis of Hempstead; J. S. Sanders, of Houston; O. A. Curry, of Bedias; Miss Smith, of Huntsville; and Miss Lee, of Houston. All these exercises showed thought and were well delivered. In fact there was not a slip of memory during the whole performance, and most all was spoken so as to be heard in the farthest corner of the room. The music was conducted by Misses Hooper, Brain and and Wood. The entertainment was a decided success in every way, and the prevailing opinion now is that hereafter the people of Houston need not patronize other schools as the one at home is equal to the best of those at a distance. One very pleasant little event took place on Thursday that was not down on the programme and the teachers had received no intimation of it in advance. This was the presentation to the principal of a gold headed cane to support his tottering steps in the future, and to Mrs. Campbell of several pieces of valuable and beautiful glass ware, toilet set, tureen, etc. We are told that not a student failed to contribute to the purchase of these. May Heaven's choicest blessings rest upon the donors! We appreciate them for their value, but mostly for the loving hearts that prompted and carried out the deed. They shall live in our memories as long as life shall last. The year that has passed has been one of pleasant associations for both teachers and students, though it has also been one of hard work for all. Since we last reported we have received for the seminary from Bro. Pullan, presiding elder, Navasota district, $3; from Rev. Thos. Cole, of Franklin circuit, $3; Rev. F. D. Rockman, Iola circuit, $2; Rev. L. Felder, Bryan circuit, $1.75; Rev. George Davis, of Richmond $2.35; as follows: Jennie Thompson and Clara Smith, 50 cents each; Lizzie Wilson, Polly Breed, Willie Mathews, Mitchell Ewing, Gabe Hunter, 25 cents each. Thanks for the donations, the amounts will also be published in catalogue. Send on collections as fast as taken.

Hot Springs District Little Rock Conference.

I have just completed the first round of quarterly conferences on this district, having met every appointment and traveled fifteen hundred miles in district work. I can not now speak of the work in detail on each charge. I suppose the brethren are doing as well as usual; some are succeeding and some are failing. There are some preachers who will succeed any where they go. The people are always satisfied, in fact glad to get such preachers and will take care of them. The successful preacher attends strictly to his own business and lets other people's alone. He neither boasts of his own superior greatness, nor talks disparagingly of his brethren; he will practice the Gospel he preaches, and do unto others as he would have them do unto him. Some preachers will fail where success is easier than failure. The preacher who decries his predecessor, and complains of everything but his own administration will fail. The chronic grumbling is a chronic failure. Some preachers fail from no fault of their own; a few dark insinuations from the retiring pastor concerning the newly appointed pastor may cause his failure or cripple his usefulness during his entire pastorate at that place. "The official board," can cause the pastor to fail without locking the church door against him. I have since conference received several letters from an official member of one of the charges in this district, concerning the new pastor. He complains that the pastor is not educated, and does not understand his business and is not posted in the duties of a pastor. Now, the brother who makes this complaint does not own a Discipline or a hymn book, he does not take a paper of any kind and I do not know that he owns a Bible, and yet he complains that the pastor "is not posted," and does not understand business, and spells it "Bissness." I am not able to say how many conversions and accessions we have had this quarter, but according to the reports I have received, we have had about fifty conversions and and about one hundred accessions. Before closing I wish to say that the good people of Pine Bluff circuit paid their presiding elder last year $16 instead of $4 as shown in the statistics.

Children's Day at Houma, La.

Children's day was observed here yesterday with pleasurable results. The exercises occupied the hours of 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., services. The programme was compiled from the one furnished by the Board of Education, and select pieces from the annual report of said Board, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. The singing was lead by W. S. Hawthorn, who who is a school teacher here and a true friend to the church—he also read select pieces which bore strongly upon the importance of the occasion. I had the full and earnest co-operation of the superintendent, Miss Addie Sims, through the whole exercise. She is a very young lady of small stature, but a type of Christianity. She spoke on the "Next Century," which remarks were delivered with such power that the audience seemed charmed, and many could not restrain the flow of tears. May God bless the young woman. Mother Charlotte Williams and her daughter, Louisiana Lang, also Bro. Charles Lang made hearts glad by excellent remarks. Good assistance was rendered by several young men of the school, among them were R. D. and T. S. Jackson, H. H. Ford, D. G. Griffin, and several young ladies, among them were Misses M. J. Sloan, Emma Goodwin. A small prize of ten, and fifteen cents was offered by the writer for the scholar under 10 years of age who was most efficient in delivering his piece; the result was little Sarah Wilson received the 10 cents, and master Johnny Lang, a little fellow of less than five years received the 15 cents—he is a son of Bro. Edward and Sister Louisiana Lang. The exercises throughout the day were most cheerfully enjoyed, and all dispersed greatly pleased, after giving us $7.35.

The Housekeeper.

CLEANING COAT COLLARS.—The best material for cleaning coat collars and grease spots of all kinds is pure benzine. The article is sold at the principal drug stores in the cities. That used by painters is not pure enough, and has a very unpleasant odor, which the pure article has not, and the little which it has soon disappears. If this cannot be obtained strong alcohol (ninety-five per centum) will clean collars very well. A mixture of equal parts of strong alcohol and water of ammonia is also used. The trouble with these liquids is that not enough is used; a small quantity and repeated, to not only dissolve the foreign matter but to wash it out.

2. Two ounces of Rock Ammonia, two ounces of alcohol, one ounce each spirits camphor and transparent soap. Put all together in a large bottle, cover with one quart of soft water, and when well mixed and dissolved it is ready for use. Spread the coat on a clean table, take an old nail brush, or one of the small scrubbing brushes sold as toys, dip it in the mixture and rub the dirt parts thoroughly. Apply plenty of this, then take clean warm water and go over it again. Hang it out until partly dry and press with a heavy iron on the wrong side.

GOOSEBERRY TOAST.—Gooseberry toast will be found very nice. Pick and clean a pint or green gooseberries, toast as many slices of bread as will fill a deep dish, butter brown, soak each piece in milk or custard, sprinkle one side of each with fine white sugar; have the gooseberries ready stewed for the children, not sufficiently to burst them; then place the first layer of toast at the bottom of the dish, cover it with the fruit, add another layer of toast, then of fruit, until the dish is full. Place a large lump of butter on the top; put in a moderate oven for a quarter of an hour, and send to the table hot.

DELICIOUS ALMOND CAKE.—Take one pound of sugar and half a pint of butter, beat to a cream, add the yolks of eight eggs, beaten light, one pint of sweet milk, three cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar, one of soda, one pound of almonds, blanched and pounded fine, sprinkle a little flour over them, and stir in the last thing. Bake in a moderate oven. The skin will slip off readily. Ice with white icing, and lay on buttered plates to cool.

ALMONDS.—Make the almonds as little fine as the other day. "I know that your teacher whipped you, Fritz," he replied. "If you'd been there you would have seen it."

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Dr. [illegible] Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: I have used it with success in cases of nervous debility, and of the brain, from abuse of alcohol."

a little rosewater to keep it from oiling and one cup of powdered sugar; beat all together in a cool place until very light indeed. Make a few incisions in the top paste before putting on. It will rise up very high. It must therefore be made in a dish deep enough to allow it to rise.

CHEESE CLOTH FOR COMFORTS.—Cheese cloth, or, as it is sometimes called, cotton bunting, in scarlet, blue, or cream color, is good material for lounge quilts and comforts for the guest chamber. The cloth is light, but very firm, and wears well; it is also much used for lining lace spreads, lambrequins, etc.—Cincinnati Times.

PICKLED LAMBS' TONGUES.—Boil until tender, put them in cold water and take off the skins. Scald enough vinegar to cover them, seasoning them with whole cloves and cinnamon; put the tongues in a jar, pour over them the vinegar, and keep them well covered. If the tongues have not been corned, they will need salt.—Zion's Advocate.

PRAYER.

"If when I kneel to pray,
With eager lips I say,
'Lord, give me all the things that I desire,
Health, wealth, fame, friends, brave heart, religious fire,
The power to sway my fellow men at will,
And strength for mighty works to banish ill,'
In such a prayer as this
The blessing I must miss.

"Or if I only dare
To raise this faltering prayer:
'Thou seest, Lord, that I am poor and weak,
And cannot tell what things I ought to seek;
I therefore do not ask at all, but still
I trust thy bounty all my wants to fill,'
My lips shall thus grow dumb,
The blessings shall not come.

"But if I lowly fall,
And thus in faith I call,
'Through Christ, O Lord, I pray Thee give to me
Not what I would, but what seems best to Thee,
Of life, of health, of service, and of strength,
Until to Thy full joy I come at length,'
My prayer shall then avail,
The blessing shall not fail."

The Spare-Minute Course.

The attention of the Methodist public is called to the following letter from the Rev. H. N. Ogden, pastor of the Goodland Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. He represents the plan for studying the Home Culture Series of tracts, which plan was adopted a few weeks before the publication of the Spare-Minute Course.

We selected topics, using the C. S. as our topics, taking them in the regular order as numbered. One member is appointed to read a paper on the topic. This may be original or merely a collection gathering from sources outside the tract as much as possible.

After the reading of the paper we spend a few minutes in a free conversation on the topic.

One or two select readings. If the topic is biography, we select from that author.

Music, solos, etc.

Reports of special critic, followed by criticism from any member.

We meet in the homes of the members, and have an attendance of about 20. Our meetings are becoming intensely interesting, and the H. C. Series will furnish the topics for two years.

We contemplate holding a public meeting occasionally, selecting the most interesting essays that have been read for the occasion. The expense to each member is merely the cost of the tracts by the hundred.

Everything is as informal as is consistent with order and proper use of time, the only officers being a chairman, Secretary and Literary Committee of two.

Fraternally yours,

H. N. OGDEN.

Goodland, Ind.

"Why, Sammy," said a father to his little son the other day, "I don't know that your teacher whipped you, Fritz." "If you'd been there you would have seen it."

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my two sons. The last time I saw them was in Gainesville, Hall county, Ga.; their names are Jim Johnson and Henry Holada; they were small when I left them. Their mother's name at that time was Caroline Coventon, but is now Caroline Bonner; their sister, Malissa Johnson; father, Amos Adams; grand-mother's name was Chaney Coventon, two aunts Hannah Liza and Charity. Preachers will please read this to their congregations. I heard that Jim was in Washington during the war. Address me at Tullahoma, Tenn.

CAROLINE BONNER.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to find the whereabouts of one Martha Batts. Some time since (about 4 or 5 years) she lived 8 miles east of Athens, Ala., but told her sister she was going to move on Elk River. Her husband was named Dave Batts; her sister Caroline left her 11 years ago in Giles county, Tennessee. When children they belonged to Betsy Phillips, Giles county, Tenn., but Caroline was given to a grandchild of Mrs. Phillips, named Tilda Osborne. Her mother and father were named respectively Anna and Jeffry Phillips. The latter died in this city. The mother was sold when Martha and Caroline were babies. Address Rev. L. M. Hagood, Nashville, Tenn.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to find my kindred, sister Louisa Reddix and grandmother, Rhoda Day. I left them in Starkville, Va., when I was quite young. Father's name was Mose Reddix; he was a shoemaker. Our owner's name was John B. Jones. When mother came over to this country she brought four children with her, sisters Betsy and Hannah Reddix, and brothers Dennis and Willis Reddix. Address me, Mrs. Hannah Bolds, at Ashland, Ascension parish, New River postoffice, La., care Rev. F. D. Bowers.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister Evaline. My brother was taken from here to Montgomery. She belonged to a man named Will Lipscomb, but when last heard from she was living with a Mr. Brasfield, who married our young Miss Jones. Myself and our brother Thomas belonged to Mr. William Eddings, with whom we came to Texas. When I last heard from sister Evaline she was the mother of [illegible] children, by Lipscomb or Brasfield, I know not which, and they belonged to Mr. Brasfield. They all moved to some part of Mississippi. Our mother was named Charlotte Thomas. We were four children of us: Sophie, Thomas, Evaline and Stephen. We have relatives in Greene county, Alabama, named Pinkder, named Jupiter, Easter and Dick, belonging to McMaster, but I think Easter went to Mr. Thomas Cunard. My dear Editor if you can find them for me I do believe the M. E. Church would spread her wings still wider over the long lost friends of the South. My name in slave times was Sophie Eddings. Address me, Sophie Johnson, in care of Rev. T. J. Smith, Giddings, Lee county, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my father, whom I left in South Carolina when a child. His name was Dan Kirkland, though he was called Mack for a short name. His sisters were Nellie and Mollie, mother Ned Kirkland. My mother was Harriet Nettler, belonging to Ben Nettler, in Fairfield district, near Camden. Address me at Bryan, Texas. EMMA SUMTER.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for a sister of mine who in slave times belonged to Izer Wells. He carried her away from here about 1854, supposed to have taken her to Louisiana, and I heard that since the war living in New Orleans. [illegible] was Julian McDaniel then but it is changed to Juliau Jones. We have one more sister, Nancy, and a brother William; our mother's name was Maria. Address Julian Jones, in care of W. D. Fulton, Paris, Texas.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people. Father, mother, brother Ardrick and sister Elvira, we left in Thomasville, Ga. I was quite small, and can not remember all the children. We were brought to Texas by M. C. Clindor and Dr. Bailey. I can not tell how long since I left them with the widow Todd. Father was Simon, mother Fannie Todd. When I came to Texas I was Dick Bailey, but now I am Dick Bartlett. Address me at Marlin, Falls county, Texas.

Which Will It Be?

There are preachers by myriads and majorities, and deeply pious ones, too, that never once in all their lives distinctly concentrated their purposes to the single point of converting men. Their efforts are to finish an elegant sermon, to develop theological or biblical truths, to thrill æsthetically an audience, to pour forth general religious emotion, to spread a popular fame, to gather crowds, to build a large church, &c. Verily, these have often their reward, namely, success in their objects, but here is a lonesome preacher who does not object to all these; but with or without them, by study, by closet, by pulpit, by pastoral work, some or all, he means to convert souls, and just so many as he can. When this is attained, all the other success is well enough. When this is not attained, all the other success does not comfort him a penny; he goes off crestfallen and disappointed, indignant at the devil and himself. He will not stay there when Satan has beaten him; but he will go where, please God, he can yet save souls.—Dr. Whedon.

What a comment upon the Christianizing influence of American commerce and American statesmanship is the arrival at this port, of six ambassadors, headed by Prince Krom Mun Nares Warrit, half brother of the King of Siam; the object of their visit being to demand a modification of the treaty with that country which now permits Americans the unrestricted right to sell liquors to the natives.—Reformer.

A Dangerous Case.

ROCHESTER, June 1, 1882. "Ten Years ago I was attacked with the most Intense and deathly pains in back and Kidneys, extending to the end of my toes and to my brain!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain!

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work, as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend, and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I pooched at him but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years, and has kept her and many children well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. Berk, Ex-Superintendent of Dansbiels

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time—the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

Bound in cloth, gilt, 272 pages, and portrait. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of price, 60 cents.

HALL'S

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe.

Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause; the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Buckingham's Dye

Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this [illegible] and all are carried through [illegible] City in first class cars on [illegible] trains. Round trip, Land Excursion tickets on sale at low rates. A WOMAN'S WOES.

A Tale of Suffering, with a Sequel of Happiness—Some Domestic Experiences.

The following letter to the Kansas City Times describing the striking, almost dramatic experience of an American lady is so interesting and pictures so clearly the feelings and emotions of others that we reproduce it entire. It will be found very readable and instructive:

Messrs. Editors:

Did I not know that this land is filled with women who are unhappy and cannot tell the reason; are miserable when they have every reason to be joyous, I should not venture to address you this letter. I believe, however, I can offer some suggestions that will be valuable to all women and invaluable to many. When I was fifteen years old I presume I was happier and healthier then most girls in America to-day. I hardly knew what pain was except by hearsay. But the situation changed suddenly and severely. I became aware that something was undermining my life. I felt strange sensations that would come and go and then return with greater power than before. My side pained me at times and again I would feel a dull aching between the shoulders. I had darting pains through my temples and a pressure on top of my head. I lost sleep, appetite and flesh, and my friends feared I was going into a decline. I know not the feelings I then had are not an uncommon occurence among women, both young and old, but I did not realize what it meant at that time, and so was careless—with what results will appear. From then until within the past two years I have seen but few comfortable days, and I am now only five years old.

A few years after the events above stated my heart began to trouble me. At times I would feel acute darting pains and a gurgling as if water was forming. My entire right side enlarged and I felt sharp cutting pangs through my loins and around my shoulder blades. I could only breathe in catches or gasps and then with the greatest effort. I was without appetite one day and the next very hungry, but always constipated. During all those years I did not know what these troubles meant nor did I realize how terribly they must end. Of course I tried to overcome them; consulted doctors and used remedies, but it was of no avail. My troubles increased with the years. I had a severe pain in the small of the back; my teeth became loosened; my tongue swelled to twice its natural size, my gums were like sponges, bleeding freely at times, and my lungs and nose both bleed on different occasions. At that time I felt cold chills running up my back and I constantly expectorated a brown mucous substance that was very offensive. The fluids I passed were frequently like bloody milk and then again almost solid corruption. For thirty years I did not know what it was to be free from headache. Occasionally I would have a feeling of suffocation followed by hot flashes and a profuse perspiration. God only knows what I suffered for I cannot describe it. I only know that I existed and that my tired life was ebbing away with nothing to arrest decay.

I was in this condition a little over two years ago and neither myself nor my friends expected or hoped for anything but death. Picture, if you can nearly forty years of agony and you can understand why we felt in that way. But a brighter day came. I began a new manner of treatment and I saw new results. My pain became less intense. The most severe symptoms decreased. My hope revived and I seemed awakening to another life. I continued to improve until my health and strength returned thus enabling me to carry out a desire which I consider a duty in writing you this letter and saying that my life, health and hope for coming years are due wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, which has done wonders for me, and also restored many of my friends.

Many who may read these lines will possibly think I am over enthusiastic. Is it possible to be over-enthusiastic after being delivered from a life of misery and brought into a world of comfort and happiness? Was the blind man mentioned in the Bible, whose sight was restored, too enthusiastic? The fact is I am only doing what I believe to be my duty in making my experience public, for I know there are myriads of women who are going into the same dark path unless they are warned in time and saved as I have been. This is a most serious matter and one which concerns the welfare of the nation as well as the happiness of the people. If the mothers of this land are unhealthy America will become a nation of invalids, and any means which can so safely and surely avert this danger as that which I have described, should be gladly welcomed by all true men and women.

MRS. W. MASON.

Topeka, Kansas, 271 Quincy street.

A Correction.

Dear Bro. McDonald—I see several erroneous statements in the papers in regard to the Missionary Bishop. One is, that he was elected for four years only, whereas he was elected the same as the others—for life.

Another, that he is not a Bishop of equal standing with the others. A Bishop in the M. E. Church is a Bishop—no more, no less; the difference being that the General Conference gives to one a definite and limited episcopal jurisdiction, whereas, the other Bishops once a year fix the sphere and limits of their respective fields. Under that arrangement I would be subject to the Board of Bishops. As it is, I answer only to the General Conference quadrennially, which suits me exactly for all my varied work. The other would embarrass me.

A short, spirited review of the lesson, every Sunday, by the Superintendent, will induce thoroughness and faithfulness on the part of the teacher, will test the knowledge of the pupils, and will impress upon the hearts of all the truths they have learned. No part of a Sunday-school service is more important than the five or ten minutes devoted to going over the lesson. Whatever else you omit do not neglect the review.

There is a counterfeit olive-tree in Palestine. It is called the wild olive, or the oleaster. It grows in spots like the genuine tree, except that it yields no fruit. Alas! how many wild olives are there in the church! When I see a man putting up a large space in Christ's spiritual orchard, and absorbing a vast deal of sunlight and soil, and yielding no real fruit, I say, Ah! there is an oleaster!—Bowes.

An attorney at law, who wished to show his smartness by quizzing an old farmer, began by asking him if there were many deaf in his neighborhood. "Yes," said the old man, "there's a dreadful sight of 'em—so many that there ain't half enough respectable husbands for 'em all, and so some of 'em are beginning to take up with lawyers." The attorney didn't follow up the subject."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON XII. June 22. —OBEDIENCE TO LAW. (Romans xiii, 1 10)

Some Christians at Rome were not sure that it was their duty to pay tribute to a heathen government. The money was used to support wicked men, and some of it to keep up the worship of idols. The Jews at Rome, not Christians, hated their heathen rulers, and would have been glad to have made trouble, by persuading the Christian Jews to refuse to pay their taxes. Paul writes to explain to them, that it was God's plan to have governors and officers to see that the laws are obeyed. The Christians had nothing to fear, because while they were obeying God's law, they would not break the law of man. The Lord's law is a much stricter one than man's laws. We must give to others what is their due, of money, service, honor and attention, whether they do their part or not. It is your duty to be obedient and respectful, even if you consider that the demands made upon you are unreasonable. When we fail to do this, we are in debt. One of the strongest things in the character of Christ is the way in which he submitted to the will of God, and felt that it was his duty to suffer with it. But there is one fact that it gives us constant joy to pay, although we know we can never get through. This is our debt of love to God and man. If we love everybody, we shall not only pay our debt in full, and thus obey God's law of love to our fellow-creatures. Thus we are kind to our brothers and sisters because we feel like it, not because we are afraid of punishment. Even if we are afraid of punishment, it is not a very high motive. The proper way is to do right because it is right, and because it is law. It is those who want to do wrong who complain of the laws.

Do you love Christ? Then do not neglect the means of grace. Christ in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper as much as Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup for Coughs and Colds. Your druggist has the latter.

DEATHS.

Mary Hester Winfield died May 12, in the faith. GEORGE DAVIS.

were discharged with honor. William died in this city July 1867; Nelson settled at Pearlington Mississippi, where he lived until June 8th, 1884, when he died leaving a wife and 4 daughters to mourn his loss. Nelson Gayden was brother to Rev. Z. T. Gayden, pastor of Thomson Chapel, New Orleans.

Rev. Wm. Burley, one of the veterans of the Texas conference, died in the triumphs of living faith May 14, 1884. He joined the Texas conference in 1866, was ordained elder by Bishop Jones at Austin, during the session which met Dec. 7th, 1871 He had been gradually sinking until he spoke in a whisper. He was very cheerful and hopeful. His remains were accompanied to their last resting place by a large number of people, which showed the respect in which he was held at Harrisburg, where he lived so long. We bow in submission to the Divine will which removed him from the church militant to the church triumphant. The heartfelt sympathy of all the members of the church where he was connected is extended to his bereaved family. O. WATROUS.

We have room merely to announce the death of that prominent Baptist clergyman, Robert H. Steptoe, which occurred last week. A native of Lynchburg, Va., he served the Master 70 years, and was a leader of his church in Louisiana. He was a subscriber to the SOUTHWESTERN, and frequently called to give us words of approval and encouragement.

The Japanese store, 547 Fourth Avenue, Louisville, Kentucky, tenders the ladies of this denomination a complimentary offer. They write to us that they will send to all our churches who contemplate holding a Japanese Tea Party, Fair, or Entertainment of any kind, an enlarged assortment of real Japanese novelties, including pretty cups and saucers, and Real Pure Tea, that can be sold by them for 25 cents cup, saucer, tea and all. You need not pay for any of these goods until the Fair is over. Any thing not sold can be returned. Ladies who are anxious to do good for the benefit of their church should avail themselves of this generous offer which will be very profitable to them. One church in Louisville sold over one hundred dollars worth of these salable novelties in one evening, why can't they do the same or proportionately so. Write to them at once for particulars or send them an order for an assortment to open a bazaar.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

New England Letter.

BY REV. THOS. H. JOHNSON, OF NEW YORK EAST CONFERENCE.

Dwight Chapel, Bethel Church, New Haven, came out from the A. M. E. Church last Fall, about Nov. 24th, intending to organize an independent church. I received a [illegible] to the pastorate of said church. I accepted the call, and on the 12th of December took charge. On the 25th of the same month Bishop Brown, in whose diocese the church was, appointed Rev. John B. Stansberry to take charge. On being informed that the congregation had a pastor he forcibly entered the pulpit and was, without ceremony, hustled out, after which he brought seven lawsuits against the church without avail. Then the 27th of December, the last April 7, 1882. This course of action caused the creditors to foreclose, thereby embarrassing the church so as to necessitate immediate action; consequently some of our friends bought it in, and since this they have unanimously concluded to join Methodist Episcopal church, which they did May 26, 1884.

In New Haven there are about four thousand colored people, and the number is being constantly augmented by emigration from the South. There are five churches [illegible] this increasing population namely: Zion A. M. E. Church, A. M. E. Church, Congregational Church, St. Luke's Episcopalian, and the A. M. E. Church, which is now under the pastoral care of the writer, who is a member of the New York East Conference. The building when completed will be a five story brick, with a seating capacity of seven hundred, with a lot 54x100 feet, situated on the West side of Spengler street near Whalley avenue, worth $2,000; the church, when finished, will cost $22,000. The lecture room is ready for use. The property is worth $17,000 as it stands. Paid on the property $5,600; present indebtedness $11,400.

Many medicines now on the market owe their virtue to the presence of powerful and poisonous drugs. HUNT'S KIDNEY AND LIVER REMEDY is purely vegetable and will not injure the feeblest and most delicate person.

NOTICE.

I have received notice from the Book Committee of a special meeting of the new Book Committee, and that four Bishops having been elected at the last General Conference, causes the apportionment to be increased 15 per cent. On request of the above-named committee, that each pastor is to increase the claims of Bishops, I suggest that the apportionment be doubled, as it is very small any way. Now, brethren of the Gulf District, collect all that you can for Bishops by the third round. I shall expect something from every charge as I pass around on my third quarter.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper.. $1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF
The Pedestal Fund
—OF THE—
Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 feet in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be erected on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committees to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to procure a magnificent Standard steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Sheltering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

Editorial Notes.

"Love is stronger than weapons of war."

Houston Seminary Catalogne is at hand.

If you forced to debate, keep to the Bible for help and your opponent will soon get out of argument.

Clark University Catalogue 1883-84 contains engravings of the buildings used by that institution.

In 1797 the Methodist Society of South Britain consisted of three members and their place of meeting was an underground kitchen.

Methodist Episcopal preachers of all colors and races, like Daniel and Jonathan, should have their hearts knit and bound together in peace and love.

Hon. S. J. Randall, of Pennsylvania, favored us with a copy of his speech in Congress on the Morrison bill. It proved to be very effective, and may still be read with profit.

Bishop Asbury once held meeting at a certain place with the blacks in the kitchen while the white people received the communion from other preachers up stairs. He could have been up stairs also but his preference was to be below. When the whole purpose of man is his will upon. Indeed he does not to do good he is not very choice about either the subjects of locality of his labors.

Loose laws rendering the securement of divorces easily attainable, and loose lives rendering them desirable, are equal abominations to pure morals, and destructive to the true interest of good government in the sacred precincts of the family and the broad domain of the Nation. The position of the Methodist Episcopal Church upon this as all other questions is square, and unequivocably in favor of uncorruptable laws and lives.

"You Methodists hold to falling from grace don't you?" No we hold to keeping grace and keeping it. "But you know that people can fall from grace." That is another thing. Angels fell, Adam fell, and St. Paul said: "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." "Do you believe in falling?" I believe in degrees of falling, that we may fall partly, but [illegible]. "Have you ever [illegible]?" Yes. "Have you any [illegible]?" To be sure I have, as I [illegible] it." "Now to be honest, [illegible] you get angry?" Yes, I do. [illegible] drink?" Yes, I do. "You are fallen from grace."

A Southern white is kind to animals. He will treat his Negro just as good as he will his dog, but want each to stay in his own kennel.

Speaker Carlisle has the true gallantry about him and displayed it the other day by finding a seat for a colored lady in a Washington city street car.

Thamas J. Smith, a local preacher of Bedford, Ky., thinks he is called to preach, but wants to raise one more crop of tobacco first.

Bishop Fowler took his first lesson in Episcopal business as president of the Delaware Conference, All were highly pleased with him, and the impressions he is making are very complimentary to him.

We wanted to name a son for Dr. now Bishop Walden and therefore inquired what the "M" in his name stood for. He said it did not mean anything. His name is John Morgan and it will be popular in the South.

Rev. J. W. Hughes is Secretary of the Methodist Preachers Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Association of the United States. It is growing rapidly and will succeed. They had one death and promptly paid the mortnary claim of the widow Mrs. Hagan of Chaplin, Nelson Co., Ky.

The Revs. H. A. Munroe and Hooper Jolly of the Delaware Conference, have been appointed delegates to the Centennial celebration of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore, Maryland Dec. 15-17 17, 1884. These are meritorious appointments. Bro. Munroe is the editor of their conference paper, The Delaware Conference Standard. Both are capable gentlemen.

Bishop Miles, of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America is in vigorous health. We met him the other day in a book store buying five cents worth of "the best and strongest legal paper" he could find to make seem to be in any immediate cause of dying soon from natural causes. They say he is making money rapidly by his Bishopric.

Dr. W. M. Prettinger, President of Centenary Biblical Institute, Baltimore, is bending every effort to raise an endowment of $50,000 for that institution. This object must commend itself favorably to the cooperation of all our colored as well as white people in the patronizing limits and to people of means everywhere. The Institute is doing a noble work, and greatly needs money to make it still more efficient in its lines of work.

The African and other colored Methodist churches are striving to prove the ability of their race to maintain themselves in separate organizations alongside the Anglo Saxon race. The colored people who belong to churches which are composed of members of both the Negro and White races, aim to establish the capability of the African Race to associate with the Saxon Race in mixed organization, and at the same time retain their race peculiarity and power. What right can one of the parties alluded to have that the other does not have to follow, out his ideas on either of these lines in harmony with his conscientious convictions of duty?

Commencement at Rust University Holly Springs Mississippi.

The fifteenth Commencement of the Rust University which occurred June 10 was an occasion long to be remembered by the faculty, students and friends of the institution. Too often commencement exercies consist of special preparation made for the entertainment of visitors, and this does not give opportunity to those from abroad to see any of the practical working of the school. No such an attempt was made on this occasion. The examinations were conducted very much as an ordinary review recitation, and there was no attempt to merely make a display. The thoroughness displayed in these examinations was highly gratifying to all who witnessed them. On Wednesday evening June the 4th, the Preparatory Department held its anniversary. The exercises consisting of declamations, dialogues and essays, were enjoyed by a large audience. This department has been under the direction of Mrs. Fannie L. Weir for the past year. The literary society gave an interesting programme on Friday evening June 6th. It was an enjoyable affair in which many of the students exhibited rare ability in oratory. The exercises on Sabbath June 8th, began with the annual love-feast conducted by President Hooper, who said: "This is the eleventh time I have attended the annual love-feast of this institution. During all these years, the Lord has been with us. We have special reasons to be thankful to God for the blessings of this year. The proficeney in study has been very encouraging. The religions interest of the school has been unusually good. With a single exception death has not invaded our school; and in this exception our loss is her gain. Julia Brandon after two weeks of intense suffering died in the hope of a better life. Personally I have been trusting in Him who has said: "Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him; and He shall bring it to pass." Forty of the students gave clear ringing Christian testimonies. Often three or four were standing and waiting for an opportunity to speak. Many of them converted since they came to the university. All of them rejoiced that they had been blest with an opportunity of attending a school affording such good religious examples, and associations. Following the love-feast was the Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. R. S. Rust D.D., The text was taken from I. John IV chapter and 8 verse. The sermon gave signs of careful preparation, and abounded in fine thoughts and eloquent passages. The Dr. though having been a long time in the work as Secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society, has not lost his zeal for the cause. The success of our institutions in the South is largely due to the untiring efforts of Dr. Rust. At 3 o'clock on Sunday a meeting was held in the interest of the Ladies' Home Missionary Society. Mrs. Dr. Rust was expected to preside at this meeting and there was a general disappointment when it was announced that she would not be present. Dr. Rust said the reason why he had not brought Mrs. Rust with him, was, that she could deliver more eloquent addresses than he, and he found it to his advantage to leave her at home. The real cause however was illness. The friends of Rust University will not be satisfied until they receive a visit from Mrs. Rust. She has endeared herself to the University by her liberal donations and her efforts to establish an industrial department for young ladies. This is a step in the right direction. Grounds adjoining the college campus have been secured with houses that will answer the purpose for the present. It is expected that there will be a commodious building erected for this purpose. On Sunday evening Rev. H. R. Revels, D.D. preached the annual sermon which was listened to with great interest, by a large and appreciative congregation. On Monday morning after the examinations were finished, the students were assembled in the chapel and were addressed by President W. W. Hooper, Rev. Dr. Miller, superintendent of public schools for Marshall county, Dr. H. R. Revels, and several other visiting friends. These addresses were highly appreciated by the students. Tuesday June 10th was graduating day. Before the hour fixed for the exercises the college chapel was filled to its utmost capacity and many were unable the find even standing room in the chapel. The following named gentlemen composed the class of graduates, H. M. Blackwell, William Brudley, S. A. Cowan, G. W. Perkins, Thomas Tisdell and N. H. Williams. The orations delivered by these gentlemen, were of such a character as to reflect credit upon the institution and themselves. The hearty applause from the audience told how thoroughly the exercises were enjoyed. Prof. Clifford, then presented the class to Rev. J. C. Eckles, presiding elder of Holly Spring district, who after a short address presented them with their diplomas. As these gentlemen filed off the platform one could not fail to be favorably impressed with their appearance; each one was a fine specimen of manhood, combining good bodies with good minds, and best of all they all are possessed of good morals. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees, Prof. W. W. Hooper offered his resignation as president of the University. It was a painful surprise to every one. The friends of the college can scarcely become reconciled to the idea of his severing his connection with the school. The Professor frankly stated his reasons for pursuing such a course. For eight years he has served in the capacity of president. During these years the business affairs of the school have required so much of his attention, that he has been unable to devote any time to study. If he remains in the work as teacher is is his object to make thorough preparation for the special department of Natural Science. We know from personal observations, that after having done the work of an ordinary teacher, he has been compelled to perform the labor of an ordinary business man. The most pleasant relations have existed between the Prof. and all those identified with interests of the University, as will be shown by the following resolution presented and adopted by the Board of Trustees:

Resolved, That the Board of Trustees hereby recommend the employment of the same crops of teachers for the coming year, that have been employed the past year, and be it further

Resolved, That it is with much regret that we receive notice of the retirement of Prof. Hooper from the presidency of the institution, and would respectfully urge the Board of Directors of the Freedman's Aid Society to use all means necessary to retain his services as a teacher if not as president. Be it also

Resolved, That having heard the report of the President concerning the progress of the institution during the past year, and of its present condition, we do hereby tender our thanks to Prof. Hooper for the wisdom shown in the management of the affairs, and do express our confidence in his ability, and do earnestly hope that his services as President may be retained.

The above resolutions express the sentiment of the other members of the faculty, the students of the University and the citizens of Holly Springs.

One of the pleasing features of the commencement exercises, which I must not fail to mention, was the "Oratrrio of Queen Esther," given by Prof. and Mrs. Clifford, assisted by nearly fifty students. The general verdict was, "It is grand." It was given three times. Many who had attended every evening desired it repeated again, that they might have the privilege of hearing it the fourth time. It was a great undertaking for teachers already overworked, and the success it attained was beyond all reasonable expectation. For ability to organize, and to execute commend me to Prof. and Mrs. Clifford.

Upon the whole this commencement finds Rust University in advance of what it has ever been. Each member of the faculty deserves special mention but space forbids. Few schools are blest with so faithful and competent corps of teachers as is found in Rust University.

J. C. ECKLES.

A Word of Cheer.

Since my return home from the North, I have made frequent calls to the office of the SOUTHWESTERN and have been gratified with the indications of real prosperity. Dr. Taylor is still in the North, visiting conferences and making a vigorous and successful canvass; up to Friday of last week he had secured and sent to the office one hundred and fifty cash subscribers. This week over 4,300 copies of the SOUTHWESTERN, are sent out to actual subscribers. Would that all of our ministers were active and faithful agents for the SOUTHWESTERN. Push the canvass; brethren, make collections, and do not forget to send the money to Phillips & Hunt 32 Natchez street, New Orleans. Nothing in our ministry has any meaning except it helps us in our efforts to lift up the people and draw them more closely to God. What better agent can we have in this work than a good religious news paper? L. P. CUSHMAN.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

LOUISIANA.

As a rule that minister succeeds who devotes his time and energy to the one work the Church gives him to do. The great need of the times is consecrated men who have the power of concentration. The man who has two faces, one for business and one for piety, one for society and one for religion, one for the Church and one for the world; who, like the chameleon, takes on the color of whatever he may come in contact with, will surely fail. At Union Chapel Bro. Priestley is having a year of harmony and religious growth. The reports for the second quarter showed a good degree of prosperity. The class collections were as follows: No. 1, $16.40; No. 2, $27.40; No. 3, $15.40; No. 4, $8.40; No. 5, $24; No. 6, $41.50; No. 7, $68; No. 8, $22.05; No. 9, $20.25; No. 10, $15.75; No. 11, $18.75; No. 12, $34.75; No. 13, $4.15. The amount collected by the class during the quarter was $312.85. In these reports we see the results of earnest, consecrated labor; when men who have the power of godliness to sustain them can do as class leaders. The visits made by some of these men were the best evidence that if they could prevail it no babe in Christ should be allowed to wander from his Father's house, and go unsuspectingly among the thorns and briars. The reports of the stewards showed that there had been collected and expended for all purposes during the quarter $786.75. The trustees have placed a nice banquette in front of the church, costing $250, and all bills paid. Union Chapel is located in that part of New Orleans where many thoughtless, heedless and reckless people seem to have congregated, and moral suicides are frequent. But the Church is there doing a good work for the Master, her doors are open and she is offering protection to those who have wandered among the thorns and have wounded and crippled themselves for life. To every weeping, exhausted, bleeding and ruined soul she says, "Come to Christ, He will heal your wounds and you shall live." L. P. C.

C. D. C. Bryan: "On entering my work at Springfield I found about 10 or 11 members who were waiting patiently to receive their new pastor. I was comfortably received and cared for. I found the church in a ruinous and ruined condition, the sills and pillars and sides of the church rotten. I found the members in a cheerful state. Their ex-pastor, Rev. Frank Bowers, had been working faithfully among them trying to learn them the rules of the M. E. Church, which have taken effect. I can see from the members that Methodism prevails. We have put the little church on new pillars and placed sills underneath it. We will have the church fenced in in a few weeks and a new bell bought for it. Though the membership of the church is small, she tries to help her pastor. We had a basket meeting, and took up $11 and some cents. They paid the pastor $10 out of that, the balance went for the building of a new fence. Pray for our success."

TENNESSEE.

J. J. Barr, Spain: "At the second quarterly conference we had a good time. Rev. J. W. Hall, of Bell's Circuit, was with us and made a good impression on the Sunday work. Rev. J. L. Massey, of Martin, preached at two of our churches with power. We paid pastor $12, elder $5, and something on other claims."

GEORGIA.

L. W. Coats, Forsyth circuit: "There are about 160 members here. When I arrived class meetings and prayer meetings had almost become a dead letter. In April Elder R. T. Adams preached to our great delight and comfort; at the quarterly meeting 4 joined the church on prebation. He is bent on building up the work in Macon district. Six have since joined on probation, and a protracted meeting is going on now. We have had one convert and 25 mourners at the altar."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

C. Crockett, Grand Cane: "Our protracted meeting closed with many mourners at the bench. In our new Church in town there is a fine Sabbath-school with 65 scholars enrolled, and we propose to supply it with books. The church membership has increased from two to ten, and debt is reduced from $75 to $57. We are struggling to meet payments due. Jackson Randolph teaches both the day and Sunday-school, and is of great assistance to us."

A. Powell, Musson: "There are six in Sunday-school, and new scholars are coming. Young people take an active part in helping it on. A revival is going on and backsliders are returning; 10 converts. The people are prospering. We have no church but are going to build one. Our pastor, H. T. Abbott, is pushing his work."

Children's Day, at the M. E. Church, last Sabbath was a great day. After the hearing of recitations, etc., and some good singing, several addresses, one by the writer, were made to the little folks. Elder Hilton is a hard worker and he is reaping his reward, as the above exercises showed.—St. Mary Herald, 14*th*.

MISSISSIPPI.

T. Hayes, Shubuta: "Our presiding elder could not be with us the second quarter, and Rev. P. Tarpie occupied the chair. Our two churches, with a Sunday-school which are doing well. Eleven have been received in full membership."

J. Cawthorn, Greenwood: "Dr. Lewis held our quarterly conference. We had a pleasant time; reports were good. The Dr. spoke to the conference on Temperance, and was earnest in his appeals to the children. He was followed by Rev. J. W. Dunn. We raised $12.50, and had a love feast at night. Pray for our success on the Yazoo. We have 14 subscribers for this quarter."

TENNESSEE.

J. W. Mathews, Capleville: "Our people are careless, loiter about saloons, drink whiskey, and let their children run the streets, and need to be brought into church and Sunday-school."

W. W. House, Shelbyville: "I closed a protracted meeting with 5 conversions, and 6 additions. The Sunday-school is improving, and the future of the church, we know, greatly depends upon it. In church and winter attendance was irregular with the spring mothers commenced coming and bringing their children. I was compelled to work at my trade five months for support. Now I am able to visit from house to house, and pray and exhort with the people."

J. F. B. W. Summerhill, Springfield: "Elder J. P. Price was with us and held our second quarterly conference. He revived the church very much; several came forward for prayer; baptized 3 children. Our collection $4; pastor's $19.61; steward received $17 more this quarter than the first quarter. We are trying to bring up all of our benevolences. The prospects are good. I held a two days meeting on the 17th and 18th inst., at Mansfield, which resulted in 9 accessions and 1 probationer; 40 communed at the Lord's table; 4 baptized. Pray for our success on the Yazoo. We have 14 subscribers for this quarter."

TEXAS.

J. E. Cornes, Waco: "We are trying to move forward. At an entertainment given by Sisters Rhoda Washington, Amanda Graves, Mary Courtney, Fanny Moss, Matilda Neville and Maria Smith we made $70 clear of expenses. I am doing what I can to break down the habit that our people have of giving entertainments on Saturday nights, and sometimes it is twelve o'clock p. m. before they break up. Some of my brethren told me when I first came to this work that it was a matter of impossibility to have an entertainment any night except Saturday night and I told them they I would try it once. As a matter of experience. So I tried it and the above is the result. See how the Lord works whenever we trust Him. We commenced this entertainment on Thursday night; on that night we made $23.45; on Friday night we made nothing, as we had a tremendous heavy rain, so we made nothing on Saturday, and Saturday night we made $87.30. Now we can say our lots are paid for, costing the sum of $635 including interest."

W. H. Moseby, LaGrange: "Elder Madison held our second quarterly conference. He talked to the Sunday-school and preached to a crowded house. There were 57 at communion. The temporal and spiritual condition of the church is good. Collected for elder $8.20."

R. K. Whiting, Crockett: "The quarterly conference held by Elder Smith made happy hearts. The elder takes hold with intellectual power. Received in full 6, on probation 4. Collected for elder $9.40. We have erected a good ordinary church 7 miles South of Crockett; also we have lumber on ground for our city church. The elder said he would introduce Crockett to his family assuredly. So you see we are surely alive yet."

A. Alexander, Plantersville: "The second quarterly conference at Bethlehem church, by J.C. Shackleford. He delivered a grand lecture and we had a nice time; sacrament was administered to 78; 4 added to the church; collection $9.50; 6 children baptized. We are preparing to ceil our church; the one in Plantersville is ceiled and will seat 280 people. May the blessings of God rest on the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE."

Louis Hardeman, Luling: "On May 4 George Smith, jr., delivered an interesting lecture on temperance, and I think it has caused many to abandon sinful habits. If many young men would come forward to take an active part there would be a great advancement of the people."

Methodist Women's Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society.

DEAR EDITOR:—Please allow me space in your columns to seek information for a large number of Methodists in this part of the country. Methodist Women's Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society is agitating many thinking minds, and some think it cannot long exist under its present constitution for the following reasons, namely: This organization promises to pay to its members $1,000 in the following manner, $500 is to be paid to each sister when she shall have been a member ten years, which sum is to be raised by assessments from each member, of 40 cents each, then at the death of a sister her family or legatees are to receive $500, which amount is to be raised in the same manner (by an assessment of 40 cents from each member). This $1,000 is an inducement to catch many poor hard working mothers who are striving to elevate their families and throw around them a strong financial protection; but the all important question to be solved is, can this society furnish these means? I think not. Suppose that ten agents be employed to fill a division, and each agent by hard labor be able to average 60 members per month, then in five months these ten agents have succeeded in filling a division of 30,000 members. Suppose that 300 of this division die before the ten years expire then those who survive must pay within ten years $120 each. We have just reached the dark and most difficult point, behold! here are 2,700 women who are to receive $500 each, and this entire sum of $1,350,000 is to be paid in five months, and each member is to pay $2.16 per month to meet this demand. How many of our poor Methodist women will be able to meet such assessments for the five successive months? This is what we consider the dark point in the constitution, and kindly ask the foundees of this organization, to give us some light.

A METHODIST.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF CLARK UNIVERSITY.

I will commence this letter with an extract from the Atlanta Constitution giving an account of "the colored colleges winding up the year's work," for we have no less than three of them in this city one Congregational, with full university course, the Atlanta, and one Baptist with an academic department for girls, and a theological for boys or rather young men. The academic department of this school had four hundred girls this year so that Atlanta is fast becoming the Athens of the colored race.

At Clark university Sunday morning the students held their annual love-feast with religious services. The services were rendered especially interesing from the fact that every student in the university had been converted, thirty of them during the year and the others of the 223 previously.

In the afternoon Sunday Professor Walker, of Paine institute, of Augusta, preached the baccalaureate sermon. His general subject was "The True Idea of Life." He spoke of life as a mystery that could only be solved by the Bible, and that the only true life was a life of faith; that every man to succeed in life must have faith in the object he was seeking, and faith in the means that he used and faith in himself. The sermon was preached in the chapel of the college.

At night Rev. W. P. Thirkield preached, taking for his topic "The Claims of the Gospel." He dwelt upon its superiority over other systems of religious training, basing its claims upon the Word itself; that the most distinguished men of the world have all declared it to be above all other books in literary power, and at the same time it gives to man a religion such as as no other book ever did give.

The commencement exercises proper will occur to-morrow.

The morning of Wednesday was rainy but the attendance was good, the chapel of the institution was full, and the following programme consumed the forenoon. It is so well condensed that I ask the publication of the whole, that our friends at a distance may see what we are doing in Atlanta.

Benediction.

The graduates of 1884 were few out of the many in attendance, as the trustees have resolved that the diploma of Clark University shall mean all that it purports to be, a true certificate of the standing and ability of the student. James M. Cox graduated in the college course. Thomas T. Kilgo and Scott H. O'Neal in college preparatory, and Luther J Price and T. W. Haigler in the business course.

Rev. Mr. Dunton, of Claflin University, shared in the exercise, being a visitor.

The Board of Trustees held its adjourned meeting in the afternoon, and passed a resolution expressing its gratitude to the Faculty for the success of the year, and the good work done for the Church and the race. They likewise resolved to raise a thank offering throughout the Savannah Conference, in this centenary year, to be devoted to the construction of a memorial building to be called Haven Hall. We hope the friends of the departed Bishop will aid us in this. We have been taught to expect the erection of a medical department; we trust that no change will be made in that plan. There has been too much said in form of pledges and moral contract to retire from that. Whilst not impatient for the fulfillment, nor at all anxious to see the foundation laid in the midst of a national financial depression, there should be no diversion of our friends or the money already pledged to any other point. We respectfully call the attention of the officers of the Freedmen's Aid Society to this earnest protest, if such a thought is entertained. It may be asked what good will it do to plant such a department in Clark? Great good every way. We hope Clark University will retain its spiritual character, and that it will become, like Iona of old, a school for Culdees for Africa, and what that classic isle was to Europe, from the fifth to the tenth century, a school for teachers and missionaries, known as "the northwestern star of the Christian world," we want Clark to become; to give ministers and teachers to Alexandria, and the field where stood Carthage, to Cairo and Memphis restored, to the vallies of the Nile, Congo and other mighty rivers of that land of mystery. To qualify teachers for such a field a course in medicine will be a wise addition to their studies. As to feeders for such a school, there will be Atlanta University and the Baptist College in this city, Paine Institute in Augusta, Claflin in South Carolina, and, indeed, all the colored schools South of this. We therefore respectfully ask our friends who have the management of this thing to think twice before they emasculate this foundation now laid.

May I not say in this connection, that the policy of placing the educational means of the Church in a sieve, and riddling them out in such profusion as to let a so-called University fall at every man's kitchen door, is not the highest display of wisdom? What the Church needs in her home missions, and in the foreign as well, is parish schools and seminaries for the million, with a full endowment of the few universities founded.

Macon High School.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to say a few words about the Macon High School, of which Prof. John H. Brooks, A. B., of Rust University, graduate of the class of 1883, is principal. Prof. Brooks is a man of high standing among the people both white and colored; they all love him and acknowledge him a learned young man. But when we hear him spoken of as such a nice Christian, it only reminds us of the school of which he is a gradnate. The teachers of Rust are all good Christians, and always try to set good Christian examples before their students, and of course this has a great deal to do with young men and young women.

The examination, Monday May 19, was very good; Tuesday, May 20, a little better; Wednesday, May 21, as good as any college; Thursday, May 22, could not be beat anywhere by any school of the same grade. The scholars were very thorough in all of their examinations; some studying Algebra and Latin, which is a new thing in this part of the country. They seem to understand Algebra and Latin very well as far as they have gone. Wednesday night the exhibition began, and, I assure you, we had a real good time, and were greatly pleased with our trip. Thursday night the house crowded, impossible to get seats. The exercises began on time, and every piece was better and better. No one failed. The singing was delightful; all new songs prepared for the occasion. Friday it was raining, and there was a theater given in town, so we thought times would be a little dull, but not so; the white people almost came in crowds; the house was more crowded than on the previous nights. I was really astonished to see them attend under the circumstances; but Prof. Brooks had gained a place in their hearts, and they showed it by their attendance through the rain. The exercise Friday night was a drama or cantata of the finest. I never witnessed anything to beat it in all my life; it was the best we ever had in this part of the country. I wish that everybody had been there to see for themselves, because I am unable to express and explain the many beautiful scenes and songs presented before the large audience. After the exercises were all over, Rev. W. H H. Gallion, pastor of Macon M. E. Church, spoke a few warm and cheering words of the faithfulness of Prof. Brooks as a teacher and Christian gentleman. Everybody were highly pleased. We feel safe in saying Prof. Brooks is the best principal Macon ever had. He stands high among the whites and colored; the white people speak in the highest terms of him; and say they never saw it beat in their town. I am really glad to say that Rust is able to send out such boys as Mr. Brooks, and would say to all the world, whenever they want the best teachers, always get a teacher from Rust University, because they never fail anywhere to do good.

An eye witness, I. B.

Is a Collegiate Education a Necessary Qualification for the Pulpit?—No. 1.

BY PROF. T. B. SNOWDEN, OF THE CENTENARY BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

We shall endeavor to answer this question both negatively and affirmatively.

First.—If the questioner meant to ask "Is a collegiate education a necessary qualification for the pulpit in every case," we answer, emphatically, No. All times, places, surroundings, and men, do not require this. In some cases, no doubt, such a course would be a waste of time and money.

The late Father Taylor, of Boston, was a good man and a great preacher. When he felt that the Lord had called him to preach the Gospel, he, having nothing at at all, started to school to obtain an education; but, after earnest efforts to learn the lessons assigned him, failing to succeed, he left school in disgust, and never returned. He continued to try to preach, and was successful on that line. He was called to take charge of "Sailors' Bethel," on North Square, and having been a sailor himself, was the right man in the right place. He continued in that field as long as he lived, and met with the greatest success. Starting as late in life as he did to get an education, there is no doubt that he could not have gone through had he tried for twenty years. Yet, with his limited book knowledge, he did a work equalled by a very few men—if any at all—in the New England Conference; "and by it he, being dead, yet speaketh."

Mr. Moody has refused license to pteach by the Church of his choice because he was not a graduate from some institution of learning. Yet Mr. Moody, no doubt, has done more good than all those put together who would not authorize him to proclaim the glad tidings of salvation. A Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Massachusetts, could not pass the examination for local deacon's orders, and it was asserted by the committee that he had studied the books, but it was utterly impossible for him to pass the examination, let him study ever so hard, he lacking mental ability. But Mr. Johnson is a power in the pulpit. I heard Dr. Daniel Steele say, on the Conference floor, that he had achieved some fame as an author, as a scholar and critic, and had the title of doctor of divinity conferred upon him, but he would freely give all these for the power which Mr. Johnson possessed in winning souls for the Saviour. There has been, and will continue to be, men in the pulpit possessed of great power who had not taken a collegiate course.

There are some men who might be useful in the pulpit with a common school education, but a collegiate course would unfit them for the work of the ministry. He who sits on a house and will not come down is of no service to the man lying in a gutter. But there is just where some ministers would sit, if they were college graduates, and the poor, helpless one who needed them most would be sadly neglected or wholly unnoticed by those dignitaries of college fame. If you want to help a man out of the gutter you must go down to him, take him by the hand, and lift him out, then prop him up until he gets strong again. When Jesus attempted to save the poor and degraded ones he went down among them, where he could reach them and bestow such help as was needed.

The Pharisees reviled the Master for eating with publicans and sinners. The Pharisees composed the learned classes of the Jews, and from that fact considered themselves better than other men; but they had not learned the great lesson, that "whosoever will be great among you shall be your minister, and whosoever of you will be chiefest shall be servant of all."

Festus, the Roman governor of Judea, said that much learning made Paul mad, but he was mistaken. Had he made the same charge upon the Pharisees, with this addition, that it made them bad and incompetent leaders of the people, the statement would have been true.

We have some Pharisees among us, and a collegiate education would unfit them for the pulpit and as leaders of the people. A little learning is bad in some cases, but a great deal might prove far worse in others. We do not agree with those who think that an ignorant minister could do more for an ignorant people than a scholar could. Our opinion is that the lower the people are the wiser should their leader be if he is to render them the best service. But we will leave this point to be considered hereafter.

In the second place, we answer, Yes. "A collegiate education is a necessary qualification for the pulpit."

1 He who would compete with skeptics and infidels who infest the land must be a great scholar, and then he will have his hands full. We must not forget that some of the best scholars ever known have been skeptics and infidels. Such as Thomas Paine, Hume, Strauss, Renan, Hobbs, Voltaire and Darwin are acknowledged as having been scholars of the first order. At times the Church has been taxed to its utmost in order to answer their master-minds that have been set going in the wrong direction. If it had not been for the scholars in the Church, all down through the ages, who wrote learned treatises and logical arguments in reply to those learned infidels, and thus spiked their guns, the Church might have been driven to the wall long ago. An army that uses big guns and sharp-shooters cannot be met and conquered with popguns and spoonhandles. The contending army must be equipped with equally as good war-implements, soldiers as well skilled in the military art, and then have the vantage-ground if it would come off victorious.

The opponents of the Church have produced some of the most logical and subtile arguments that could be put forth by any class of men on the same side; and he who grapples with them, with any chance of success, must be an equal in the fullest sense of the term.

In the days of the apostles there were learned men who opposed the Church with no little success. The apostles were chosen by the Saviour to plant the Church deep and strong, and to meet, fight, and overcome its opponents. The apostles were not ignorant men, as some supposed them to have been. They were in college more than three years, under the best teacher the world ever knew, and were better prepared to receive the degree of A. B. than any other class that ever left college after a full course of four years. The day they graduated they could not only read the different languages then spoken, but could speak them so that every man could hear in his own tongue." Who will dare say that the apostles were not college graduates? The apostolic college was the first and best college since the Incarnation, and its scholars speak for themselves. Those men, chosen by the Master while on earth, were to preach to the Jews. The more-learned Gentiles had not yet been provided for. For that purpose Paul, the most masterly mind the world ever knew, was raised up. He met the Greek sceptic and the Roman infidel on the battle-field, and put them to flight by his unanswerable arguments. Any thing less than a thorough scholar in Paul's time and place would have been silenced in a day.—From The Educator.

Bible Work in Texas for The Year Ending Mar., 31, 1884.

During the year, through the divine blessing, we are able to report progress in this district. At the same time a sense of discouragement dampens our ardor when we look at the little accomplished compared with the growth of the population and the vastness of the territory.

Number of Auxiliaries now in this State, 122; reports received from them, sixty-four; anniversaries held, fifty-two; engaged in canvassing their fields, five, viz., Austin, Corpus Christi, El Paso, and the county societies of Walker and Houston. There is an increase in the number of reports and anniversaries this year. It has been our aim to make them efficient organizations, but they are slow to learn that it is their duty to carry on their work without largely depending upon the District Superintendent. It is hoped that they will soon become, in truth, auxiliaries to the Parent Society.

New Auxiliaries were formed this year in eight counties. These additions widen the area of our work more than 100 miles to the northwest, and southwest into the valley of the Rio Grande. Now, there are Bible societies and depositories on the Rio Grande at Laredo, Eagle Pass, and El Paso, the three gateways from the United States to Mexico.

Distribution by Pastors.—The more complete organization of the colportage system does away, to some extent, the necessity of this department. However, reports, although imperfect, from sixteen pastors on missionary fields, show good results.

The Colportage Work, at the expense of the Parent Society, is attracting the attention it deserves and has been prosecuted more or less in seventy-two counties. Twenty-nine colporteurs have been employed by the Parent Society, and nearly 35,000 copies of Scriptures have been sent to them the past year for sale and gratuitous distribution.

Grants of Scriptures were also made to seamen, soldiers, prisoners, to needy Sunday-schools, and pulpit Bibles to a large number of new churches on mission fields; also 264 copies to four different railroads.

The Field of this State contains 225 counties, 168 organized and fifty-seven unorganized, not having the population required. Some of them are as large as common-sized States. Bible societies are in only ninety counties. The population is now estimated at 2,000,000, with a strange mixture of races, speaking sixteen different languages. It has a border of 900 miles on Mexico. 400 miles on the Gulf, and as much more on the Indian Territory.

Progress of the Fourth Re-Supply.—Since it began in September, 1883, fifty-one counties have been canvassed entirely, and twenty-two in part.

The Work yet to be done is in ninety-five of the organized counties and the fifty-seven unorganized. The sparseness of population in many of them and the variety of races, render the task a difficult one. The work will largely depend upon the liberality of the Parent Society, as very few of the auxiliaries give any hope of assistance.

The field widens every year, and it is earnestly hoped that during the coming year, every church and every person in the State who loves and prizes the Bible, will help, as the Lord has prospered them, that the supply of the Holy Scriptures in this interesting field may be completed speedily. "The fields are white already to harvest."

The action of the nineteen ecclesiastical bodies visited was favorable to the American Bible Society and its work.

My sincere thanks are due to the press, to railroad officials, to hotel-keepers, to officers of auxiliaries, to pastors and churches, and many others, for courtesies and kindness to me while engaged in my work.

Books sent to Texas, 43,463; of these, 35,003 were consignments to colporteurs or donations.

WILLIAM B. RANKIN,

Bible Distribution in Texas.

The following is the Bible distribution in May, 1884, by 17 colporteurs of the American Bible Society: Days of service, 355; miles travelled 4,653; families visited by them, 3,367; families found without a Bible, 467; families supplied by gift or sale, 345; destitute individuals supplied in adition, 186; number of books sold 1954; value $700.62; number of books distributed by gift 405, value $83.44; contributions received from churches and individuals, $22.54; returns were received from 4 auxiliary Societies. 2 grants were made to mission fields. A. Benner, Agent of Galveston Auxiliary, reports 263 families visited, of whom 19 were without a copy of the Bible. The fourth general supply is being vigorously carried on. Help is greatly needed. Contributions may be sent to A. L. Taylor, Assistant Treasurer, Bible House, New York; or to W. B. Rankin, District Superintendent, Austin, Texas. It is hoped that the Bible cause will not be forgotten and neglected this centenary year. What would there have been this year without the Bible?

Prof. William H. Crogman.

This scholarly colored layman, selected by Dr. Monroe as one of his Assistants, (the first Secretary of the General Conference that has been honored of his race) was born at Phillipsburgh, on the Island of St. Martin, West Indies, May 5, 1841, and was converted in his early manhood. He was educated at Pierce Academy, Middleboro, Mass., and Atlanta University. Graduated from the latter institution, and from from the College course in 1876. Four years after graduation the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him.

Prof. Crogman was connected with Claflin University, in South Carolina, three years. He is now Professor of Greek and Latin languages and Literature, in Clark University, Atlanta, Ga., and has been connected with this institution for eight years. The merc statement of his important professional duties, attests the high record he enjoys for proficiency in the position.

He has written frequently for the press, and is the author of two addresses, in pamphlet from, delivered in the Church of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, on Sunday, October 14, 1883. He was a member of the General Conference of 1880 and ably represented the Savannah Conference.

Prof. Crogman went South in 1870, highly recommended by the Boston Preachers' Meeting, to the Educational work in South Carolina, and has remained ever since in the South, wholly engaged in educational work. He was at the organization of the Board of Trustees of Clark University eight years ago, and was elected Secretary, and has filled that office ever since. He has enjoyed fine advantages by foreign travel, having been to Europe many times, to India, South America, both the Eastern and Western Coast; and also to Australia.

Our Colored Work in the Delaware Conference.

The larger portion of this work lays on the Eastern shore of Maryland, and Virginia and the State of Delaware. In Accomack county Va., whose population is over and above 9,000, we hold a full membership of 600, and 470 Sabbath-school scholars. Eight churches with a probable value of $6,300. The remainder of this population are connected with the A. M. E. and Baptist Churches.

Eastern Shore of Maryland, with a population (colored) of 59,600, has 142 churches, with a full membership of 9,461; 137 Sabbath-schools, with Sabbath-school scholars of all ages, 6,608; probable valne of Church property, $138,571.

Delaware, with a population of 26,448; churches, 32; probable value $66,550; membership, 2,397; Sabbath school scholars, 2,000. With few exceptions our churches in Delaware are just what they ought to be.

Odessa has more debt than any other of our churches.

With the assistance of Divine Providence we hope to bridge the chasm, and walk upon the highway which leads to freedom. As a race we are poor, yet honesty with us is not a policy. It is right; therefore we strive, amid untold difficulties, to pay our indebtedness.

Philadelphia, Camden and Chester, embracing eight churches. Probable valne of Church property $52,200; membership, 800; Sunday-school scholars, 783. Population, 31,808.

Our indebtedness in Philadelphia and Camden is about $18,000. This imperils the work and causes much embarrassment. The most of the people in our Church are from the South, having come within the last twenty years.

Just out from the influences of a long existing institution—slavery—having nothing—it is strange to say that through their hands has been accumulated three-fourths of the wealth in this our own land.

Out of the millions they have been instrumental in accumulating they had nothing only as they work daily at the insignificant compensation of $3 or $10 per week. Of all the railroads, manufactories and legitimate businesses in the land, where laborers are employed with sufficient compensation to furnish comfortable homes, they are debarred from the privilege of receiving the benefits which such labor, honest and legitimate, manhood is heir to. By virtue of the love of a universal brotherhood they are made to look upon themselves as unworthy of more than is necessary for their existence.

The fact is that there is not more than one colored man employed to a thousand of other races; and despite of this they live, pay rent, and are buying homes; and what is more than all to their credit, they have given eight per cent. of their gross earnings to the upbuilding of the Church. Is not this of itself a sufficient argument for better churches and schools?

SHALL WE HAVE THEM?

We can provide from our hard earned pittance $8,000 this year out of the $18,000 of our indebtness; but where, to whom, shall we look for the remaining $10,000? "Echo answers, "where?" Let Philadelphia respond and then shall we be free. It can be done; it onget to be done; we are not able; we suffer spiritually and temporally, because our tasks are hard; we have no straw with which to make the 10,000 bricks, and the law demands that the bricks be made and the indebtedness paid. Shall it be said, and this the Centennial Year os Methodism in the United States of Amerioa, that the walls of the city shall tumble about the ears of her embassadors, and they not aid in rebuilding them. Then let us arise in our might, as Methodists, believe in a universal brotherhood, and loose the bond that they may go free.

Friends, lovers, and philantoropists hear us; hearken unto our cry; attend us in our distress.

In New Jersey we have begun a a good work; with a population of 39,096, and the present membership of 500; 13 churches, value $14,800; 13 Sunday-schools, 600 scholars; we hope to extend the work.

Appetite and Digestion.

With few exceptions, the fiart effects of the new Vitalizing Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, is an improvement in appetite and digestion. A change in the whole personal appearance soon follows. The skin grows clearer, the eyes brighter, the movements more elastic. There is a sense of lightness and comfort. The chest begins to expand and the weight to increase. All the depressed or sluggish functions of the body take on a better action, and there is a gradual return to a more healthy condition. If the Treatment is continued, and the laws of health carefully observed, restoration, unless the physical system is too far broken down, will follow in nearly every case. All desired information in regard to this remarkable Treatment will be furnished by Drs. Starkey & Palen. Write to them and your communication will get a prompt response.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D., Editor.

THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1884.

TO OUR AGENTS.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Begin at once the dollar convass for subscriptions for the remainder of 1884. Get all or part of the money with each name, or better still whenever possible adhere to the strictly cash plan. This is the general newspaper rule, and your church paper needs the money. A short talk with the people, explaining the use, power, and civilizing influence of a Christian, religious newspaper; and the record, the purpose and the potency of the SOUTHWESTERN especially, cannot fail to induce a few in each and every congregation to enroll themselves for its support. If this is done in all the congregations our circulation will be increased by thousands.

Your accounts at this office require attention immediately. Statements are being sent out as rapidly as possible; examine them carefully, report all corrections desired, and trasmit at once every dollar you have in hand belonging to the paper, or that you can spare in payment of overdue accounts. The action of the last General Conference has brought the paper one step nearer to self support than ever before. If our agents and friends will heed this appeal, and make remittances to this office now, regularly and often, the increased burden thrown upon us can be successfully borne, and a bright future for the paper assured; otherwise the labor and hopes of years will be shorn of its crowning fruition. After reading this go to the post office, or the express office and forward to us all the money you can. Address, PHILLIPS & HUNT.

Natchez street, New Orleans La.

The commencement exercises of Memphis Conference Female Institute, Jackson, Tennessee, were held June 9-10-11. We acknowledge receipt of an invitation.

We have before us copies of the Asbury Conference Standard, Rev. W. A. Monroe, editor, and the Central Methodist of Lexington district, of the Lexington conference, Rev. Daniel Jones editor. Both of these papers are filled with matters of much importance in their local fields and they are doubtless doing good service. The gentlemen who edit them are fit to stand in front when none but the first of gentlemen form the company.

Dr. J. C. Hartzell has been elected by the Board of Management of the Freedmen's Aid Society, assistant corresponding secretary for the quadreneum. Dr. Hartzell's work in connection with the society has been crowned with success. His addresses throughout the nation have been of great service in bringing more fully and permanently before the whole church our Southern work. As chairman of the Freedmen's Aid Committee at the General Conference, the Doctor did most important and valuable service. The whole church and especially the South will rejoice that he is to continue in this important department of church work.

"Methodism is union all over, union in exchange of preachers, union in exchange of sentiments, union in exchange of interests. We must draw resources from the centre to the circumference." The above extract is from a letter of Bishop Asbury to Jesse Lee, written from New Rochelle, New York, September 12th, 1797. The conference was to convene at Wilbraham September 19th and being unable in person to attend it the Bishop appointed Jesse Lee in his stead. How broad, catholic spirit of the man we quote shows how Mr. Asbury interpreted the Methodist economy. It is as good for a definite rule of our present status as for the days of Mr. Asbury's times. We commend it to the attention of the strict expounders of our law.

Death of Bishop Simpson.

Bishop Matthew Simpson was born in Cadiz, Harrison county, Ohio, Tuesday, June 21, 1811. He began the study of German at eight years of age, and at nine years of age he had read through the German Bible. He was baptized in infancy by Bishop Asbury. He graduated at Alleghany College, at Meadville, Pennsylvania, in 1832. He was converted in 1829. In 1833 he was licensed to preach, and took the medical degree from his Alma Mater. He joined the Pittsburg Conference in the same year, and was subseqnently transferred to the Indiana and the North Indiana Conferences. In 1835 he married Miss Ellen H. Verner, and was the same year ordained a deacon by Bishop Roberts, at Pittsburg. In 1837 he was professor of natural sciences in Alleghany College. In 1839 he was ordained elder by Bishop Roberts, at Steubenville, Ohio.

He has filled the following pastoral appointments: St. Clairsville Circuit, 1833 4; Pittsburg, 1834-6; Monongahela, 1836-7. In 1839 he became President of Indiana Asbury University at Greencastle, Indiana, which position he retained until 1848. He went to the General Conference of that year and was chosen as editor of the Western Christian Advocate. He remained editor of the Advocate until elected Bishop by the next General Conference in 1852. He was second in order in a class of four as follows: Levi Scott, Matthew Simpson, Edward R. Ames and Osmon C. Baker. He was the sixteenth of an illustrious line of men who were previously elected to the same high and holy station as himself, namely: Thos. Coke, Francis Asbury, Richard Whatcoat, William McKendree, Enoch George, Robt. R. Roberts, Joshua Soule, Elijah Hedding, James O. Andrew, John Emory, Beverly Waugh, Thomas A. Morris, Leonidas L. Hamline, Edmund S. Janes, Levi Scott and Matthew Simpson. In 1863-4 Bishop Simpson made an extended Episcopal tour of our mission fields in Syria, Enropean Turkey, Switzerland, Germany and Scandinavia, and in 1875, Mexico. He thus prepared his mind by observation, and by studying the wants of the church as displayed in the status of these missions, for a correct use of that almost unbounded influence he afterwards gained in the church. Bishop Heddings having died, and Bishop Hamline resigned, the Board was strengthened by the additions above named, the last of whom is the subject of this sketch. During the civil war in the United States he was employed on important commissions, and delivered many addresses in support of the Union. By his zeal and eloqnence he contributed much to encourage the government in that fearful crisis. The deep interest which he took in the national cause during the war secured him the intimate personal friendship of President Lincoln. It is at least unwritten history that his counsel nerved the great emancipator up to the duty of signing and sending forth that immortal proclamation which transformed 4,000,000 of chattels into freemen. He has been epecially active in our missionary and educational enterprises. He was doubtless the most eloquent preacher of his time, notwithstanding some of the most gifted men of any age have been cotemporaneons with him; such as Punshon, Arthur, Spurgeon and Beecher.

As the mountains tower above the little hills so, for simplicity, beauty, strength and purity does the oratory of Simpson tower above theirs. There are no printed volumes of his sermons; it has been suggested that he ought to print them, but his sense of propriety was such that he did not deem it his duty to do so. His discourse at the opening of the Ecumenical Conference in London will live forever. His publications have been few; "A Hundred Years of Methodism," and a supervising relation to an "Encyclopedia of Methodism" which is known by his name is all that we at present recall. Bishop Simpson was not noisy in professions of good will and deep concern for the amelioration of the condition of the freedmen, free colored men and whites of the South, yet few men felt more keenly or worked more earnestly and effectively for the betterment of their condition than he, and to him in a very high degree are all these calsses indebted for much that has been accomplished in their behalf. It was our fortune to have his presence in Lexington Conference in 1873 and 1880 as president, and we have reason to know that his interest in the moral and manly development of the race was subordinate to no other of the great interests committed to him. His great solicitude for the work in Africa was beautiful to consider. We spent an evening with him while in Philadelphia attending the late General Conference, and this subject was the theme which then seemed to occupy his attention. His heart was so fully fixed on our going to that field that it was painful for us when we were compelled to say that both our circumstances and physical condition rendered it necessary for us to remain in this country.

Bishop Simpson was appointed to visit the missions in China and Japan in 1880, and, with his family, had gone as far as San Francisco on his way, when sickness prevented any further procedure. Since then he has been in declining health, but until recently it was hoped by all, and thought by many that he would, by reason of his very vigorous constitution and rest recover his health. This feeling became more prevalent as he was permitted to visit the General Conference with no seeming reaction or disadvantage. He believed in his recovery as fully as any one, and said to the writer upon inquiry after his condition, that "he was very much better, and had a good hope to be fully restored in a little time." We did not share his opinion We believed that his heroic will was sustaining him, and that with the close of the General Conference his will power and his nervous power would rapidly sink together, and that the end would soom come. This has been proven to be the case, and the "Nestor" of the Bishops is no more. His death, as his life, was that of a Christian man, conscious of his integrity and of the salvableness of his faith. He ceased to live on earth June 18, 1884.

His family have in their great bereavement the support of the whole Church and the comfort of that some Holy Spirit which led him all his journey through. His Church will still be the child of Providence, and in the guidance of that Providence will find another to take his bishopric as he shall take his crown. Truly it may be said "There is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel." "The cold hand of death shall unlock for him the portals of eternal life; while his body lies on its bed of earth, his soul reclines on the bosom of God."

"Life, we've been long together,
Through pleasant and cloudy weather;
'Tis hard to part, when friends are dear,
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time, ——
Say not good night; but in some right clime
Bid me good morning."

Editorial Perambulations.

Looking backward to the work of the General Conference evidences appear that its labor will tell upon our whole membership in the most useful way, and be of increasing benefit to our general cause. We shall feel its good effects no less abroad than at home, it will also improve us touching our interdenominational relations. Persons without our church there may, and doubtless will be, to find or make where they do not find an occasion for officious interference with matters which concern us alone. Others within the Church, who have a penchant for mending where there is nothing broken, may also find local and isolated cases which they can bring into public and hurtful note. But, taken all and all the fruit of this General Conference's planting will be seen and gathered after many days. Substantially the above opinion was expressed to us by Wm. Still, Esq., in an after-dinner talk at his residence in Philadelphia. Such is the view of other and also representative and leading colored men with whom we have conversed in New York, Baltimore, New Haven and Washington on the subject. Our Church is getting well settled in the principal cities here in the East, and shall yet increase more and more on this soil.

After getting our business wound to a close in the city of Philadelphia we looked in upon Camden, just over the Delaware River. Here we aided Bro. Holly in the dedicatory services of an elegant new church just completed. One of the most notable persons with whom we came in contact there was George W. Custis, who is at least in one way a scion of the honored Custis family of Virginia. He nursed Gov. Wise in his childhood. Apropos of this we hear that the Governor and others who were connected closely with the execution of John Brown, were exceedingly anxious to have him escape from prison, and that opportunity was given him to do so. The grand old liberator refused to live when by dying he could aid in the destruction of slavery. He believed, as it turned out, that his death would arouse and inflame the friends of freedom as nothing else would, and hence he was dying that others might live and enjoy life. There are numbers of colored people here but they have come in from the South since the war. This is true of all the cities, and much of the country in these parts. Not one in ten of the large congregation gathered here were born in New Jersey. From Camden we came to Newark. St. John's M. E. Church, a fine property, is here, and a large influential membership worship in it. The pastor, Rev. W. H. Coffey, has been a success for three years, and goes now—echo answers where. If he was anything else than a Methodist preacher we could say he is going where the people call him. As he is a true blue son of Methodism, we suppose it must be said that he is going where God, through the Bishop and the presiding elders send him. The element of human instrumentality has always entered into God's plan of saving men. Christ was born of a woman, and hence could be touched with the feeling of our infimity. We have also a church in Orange, New Jersey, but our face is set toward New Haven, Connecticut. Here we shall spend Sabbath. It is a delighful ride up the East river, and back overland; the country is a continuous park, and the towns hum with life and business. Our home is with John Norcome and wife, whom we are permitted, with his wife and fifty-seven others, to receive into the membership of ours from the African Methodist Church, and also a list of 25 subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. The church property is a substantial brick structure completed to the first story, worth, when finished, $20,000. This is the seat of Yale College, of which the Peabody museum is a part. In this museum is the most unique and wonderful collection of fossils in the world. Among others those from Colorado and the Bad lands about which much of Darwin and Huxley's evolutionary notions cluster. The life of the student here has as wide a latitude as the theology they are taught. Here poor Jennie Cramer came to a mysterious death, and here the Malleys still live and do business. Drs. Goodsell and Peck have charges here. We spent a pleasant hour in the elegant home of the former, and must be permitted to say that his princely courtesy abroad is surpassed by his genuine hospitality at home. We did not leave without a promise of which this will remind him, that he was to favor our patrons with an occasional note from from New England, the home of Dr. Cushman and many other good men and good things "except religion." The finest church building in this city is one began and completed by Dr. Goodsell last year. There are six others here be like it, one of which is the Spiny Street Colored Congregation, organized last S-bbath. Rev. T. H. Johnson, pastor of the latter, is the only colored member of the New York East Conference. He is an intelligent, earnest gentleman, with whom it is a real pleasure to be acquainted. He and his brother were the first colored members of the Philadelphia police force. Yale College has one colored student, Rev. Mr. Miller, of South Carolina. He is pastor of the Colored Congregational Church here. They do have colored congregations here, after all. There are six of them in this city, with a population of 6000 colored people. There is one of them even in Boston, on Revere street, in the home of those grand men Mallalieu and Hamilton. It is not their fault; they cannot help it. It takes time for some things in the "Hub," and everywhere else. Perhaps there is an advanced type of things in the East, but they are not ready for harvest yet—even there. So it is, and probably should, at least so it will be for a while. The wealthiest colored man here runs a pool room, the two next in wealth are members of our Church.

Leaving the city of elms, with its silver river, shaded walks, pleasant greens, quaint, antique customs and historic reminiscences, not the least of which is the entrance and work of Jesse Lee under its ancient elms, and the ceremony of bowing to the president by the senior to the exclusion of all other classes in Yale; we roll out over the Boston, New Haven & New York railway to Gotham, and soon find ourself in Dr. Buckley's chair, and upon inquiry for the Doctor a lad looks up in our face and naively replied, "Oh there ain't no tell n' where he is, or when he'll be in." We thought of the fact that courts are erratic, and that great bodies move slowly, and passed on. We got a look upon Bishop Fowler after two weeks of Episcopal life, but it doesn't seem to hurt him much. He now buttons his Prince Albert in Episcopal regulation style. Bishops Andrews, Foster and Harris were also here. They look well, despite their month of hard labor. Bro. Phillips was faithfully toiling at his desk, yet ready for a pleasant salutation or a matter of business with one and another of a constant stream of comers and goers who ever throng him. He, with his associate, Dr. Hunt, were deservedly honored in the very complimentary vote given them by the late Conference. The most striking thing to us was the total absence of the almost omnipresent Afro-American from that great concern. We are so accustomed to find him wherever a janitor, a fireman, a messenger or manual laborer of any kind is wanted, that we marvelled when we beheld that his place was not there, but that the daughters of Erin were in his stead. At every step we see the sign "No smoking allowed in this building." If no smoking, no spitoons, and hence no colored employees are there. Next from the monumental city.

Homeward bound we board one of the Pennsylvania company's splen the coaches at Union Station Baltimore and are soon sweeping on to (not) "Richmond" but Washington. We make the run through that lovely stretch of country which lies between the monumental city and the city of magnificent distances in one hour. Twenty minutes in the Sixth street depot serves us to take a view of the place where infamous Gniteau did his savage work, and the spot where poor President Garfield fell. "All aboard," we comply, and in a moment more are sweeping along the Chesapeake and Ohio, via. the Virginia Midland Ry. across the Potomac bridge. To the right and rear is the towering shaft of the unfinished shaft of Washington monument, on the left is the Navy yard, and just ahead is Alexandria. As we run up a narrow street to the depot, we notice for a mile or more to the main part of the town the shanties on both sides occupied by colored people; and oh, my! there are so many children. One thing is certain and that is the Negro is not going to die out here. Next we come to Manassas; here slavery struck earnest blows for the mastery of the nation, and proved itself capable in disposition if not power to slay every white man in the North for the perpetration of its own existence in the South. We had a little talk with Senators Beck and Williams, of Kentucky and Gen. Singleton, of Mississippi. These gents consider the Republican Presidential ticket rather formidable but think that the Democrats could beat it with Bayard and McDonald. The trial will prove the fallacionsness of their opinion. Ben Butler might do it, no other Democrat can. Even in that event Logan would be elected. Butler and Logan would not be so bad after all.

By the way, the colored troops are wheeling into line. They held a great ratification meeting in Baltimore on the evening of the 9th ult. Hon. J. M. Langston represented the bread and butter element and Prof. Greener the colored people. Rev. J. H. Riddick, of the Washington Conference, was prominently connected with the origina movement for the meeting. He is a politician of no mean type. They say Mr. Blaine, if elected, will advance the interest of the colored "race," among a number of other good things. "Advance the interest of the colored race;" that is a very deceptive phrase; hitherto it has merely meant that a few men who had as little as possible, and seemed to desire to have less than that to do with the race, should get some sort of office. Perhaps it is hence forth to mean about the same thing. It is to be expected that a man like R. T. Greener will stand by his race, and call for such recognition as will secure to them the blessing of freedom all over this country. We shall see. Along the Midland and down the Kanawha Valley we are rolling at a rapid rate, vernal beauty and fragrance is on every side, while the Blue Ridge mountains, like a faithful sentinel on guard, tower and pierce the gathering clouds above us. These lofty hills are loaded with coal and iron; it is a great mining region, and what especially comforts me is that the work is largely done by colored employes. The Kanawha river, a beautiful silver stream, creeps along, bathing the feet of the mountains in its way to the Ohio, while hung upon the broad shoulders of hills is a most pleasant mantle of green. The valley is fertile and much of the hillside land can be utilized for the culture of tobacco; a large number of people can make a living here and the colored people are finding it out. One thing is certain, they must leave the cities, and also the country where they are so numerous as to make the labor supply greater than the demand. Those who can prosper in the cities should remain but the standard of prosperity should be no doubtful one. They are properly prosperous only where they can earn enough to lay up some money each week after living comfortably and where they can get what they earn; where these two things cannot be done the standard is too low and they should either move it or move themselves.

We are having a great many kind things said to us just now about our election. Two features connected with this outburst of joy are very pleasing. They are:

First. That the writers acknowledge the great work done for the colored race by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Second. The disposition to prove ourselves worthy of help by helping ourselves. This appears in the long list of new subscribers we are receiving constantly. Let the good work go on; we want 20,000 new subscribers at once $1 00 from now, to December 31st., 50 cents for three months. Ministers half price. Send in a cash list at once, congratulate us in this way and well shout too.

"Ye Cannot Serve God and Mamon."

The letter from Rev. Ernest Lyon, in our number of June 5th, should be read with care. We can, of course, not make up judgment with reference to the particular instances of ministerial intermeddling with political leadership, or those of Sabbath desecration to which he has so properly called attention. We need to hear what can be said on both sides first. But this we can say, a minister ought to be a Christian, and a Christian is a citizen. As a citizen he is charged with the performance of certain duties belonging to the State, but the proper duties of citizenship cannot be inconsistent with the duties of Christianity. A man who becomes a desecrator of the Sabbath, and such a partisan political leader as Bro. Lyon refers to, has already abandoned Christianity in fact, and could not perform the functions of a minister in any properly governed Christian denomination. We once knew a minister who was both a pastor and government store-keeper at the same time. But he was probably not a Christian. To this government let the appeal of the oppressed be directed. It will prevail, because it did prevail. Our fathers ordered their cause before the Lord, and gained their case. They closed their eyes as the day of physical freedom dawned. Let their sons be true and faithful in all things, and this God will be their God forever and forever. Prayer, piety, the ballot and right in our favor make a host too mighty for final overthrow. We who stand for God and humanity, doing right and demanding only what is right will gain it in the end. There is relief for there is a God. Something can be done. We can pray. The course to God is as clear from your place as it is from the dark, damp place where Jacob lay. Mount the ladder of hope, climb the heights of faith, linger in the realms of charity, and by and by the abode of misery will become none other than the house of the Lord, and the very gate of heaven.

Good News for Louisiana.

Dr. Hartzell sends us good news for Louisiana. Not only are the plans of the new University building for this city nearly complete, but the Doctor has received from R. B. Munger, Esq., of Ohio, a gift of $5,000 toward the building. The same philanthropic gentleman promises to do more. Let this good news encourage the Louisiana Conference to push on in raising its $10,000, of which $3000 are already in the treasury.

Another item of good news is that the Freedmen's Aid Society has made our Seminary on the Teche one of its schools, and given it the name of Gilbert Seminary, in honor of Mr. Wm. L. Gilbert, of Connecticut, who contributes $5000 for the erection of a second building. Other friends have contributed $1000. The Orphan's Home Board has deeded the old building and a campus of thirteen acres to the Society. The above $6000 are the net proceeds of soliciting done by Rev. W. R. Webster, of New York East Conference. Dr. Godman heartily joins in the good work of having LaTeche Seminary merged into the new institution. The old building is to be completed and a second one erected at once. Gilbert Seminary will be a preparatory school to the New Orleans University.

So the good work goes on. Let our people rejoice, and do more and more to help themselves.

"Have the people of the South any right to belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church?" The question now being discussed, is no longer a living one. The people of the South have the same right to select for themselves their denominational affiliations that the people of any other section of the globe have, and they will hereafter as heretofore assert that right by doing so. The need of our church in the South will be apparent to all, if its distinctive features are emphasized in the words and deeds of its communicants.

Mixed Schools.

The final action of the General Conference has disappointed our expectations. The committee on the "State of the Church" reported in favor of most radical action—that no person should be excluded from any of our schools or churches on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. Having adopted the Freedmen's Aid Report, sustaining our white schools in the South, we did not suppose that any action would be taken which would be inconsistent therewith.

In the committee on the "State of the Church" the vote stood 25 to 25; Gov. Pattison, chairman, and he a Democrat, giving his vote in the affirmative, which carried it. What the effect will be remains to be seen.—Methodist Advocate.

This action was no disappointment to us, the Methodist Episcopal Church was bound by the sacred traditions and expressions of a hundred years to say just what it has said. The Christian world expected her when put upon her conscience to say no less and it has not been disappointed. When the kind of Democracy Gov. Pattison's vote represents becomes prevalent in his party, then the colored people will fail to see reason for further solidy supporting the Republican party as heretofore. Don't fear the results you could not find a colored member of our church who would under present circumstances be willing to enter the school at Chattanooga. When they are ready for a university course there is Yale, De Pauw, Boston, Harvard and many other great institutions awaiting their reception. Be calm my friend, be calm.

The Rev. W. C. Dickerson, Delaware Conference, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Easton Maryland, is an orator of no mean pretensions; his speech of welcome to the Conference was most felicitous and appropriate.

Kind Words.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Rev. H. J. Wright, Natchitoches:

Rev. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, Editor SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, New Orleans, La.: My Dear Sir and Bro.—Having sold a good many of your books, "The Plantation Melodies," I am quite acquainted with some of your musical production, yet not you. I congratulate you upon your new era, and feel that you are well qualified for the place to which you have been elected—Editor of our ADVOCATE. I have a special love for her, as I think we all ought to have; I mean our people. Since the SOUTHWESTERN raised her sails she has never shrank back from her mark of duty, and has remained true as steel. When other journals received our money and out esteem they faltered and died. It is true all must be tried with the iron wheel of time. I entertain the highest regards for my Bros. who stood at the helm, your predecessors. It is true my fidelity leaned toward what we sometimes use for a familiar name "our boy"—Bro. A. E. P. Albert. That is if a change had or was to be made, but I never thought there was. However, I am not antagonistic, but submissive, and now I will work for the ADVOCATE with as much vigor as ever. You will pardon me for being so explicit, but I think it best. I pray a special blessing on you in your work, and I think it you can so arrange your business as to meet some of the different quarterly meetings, and especially the district conferences, and there present your paper, or our paper (as the editor has a great weight) you would add many to your list. I will write you later a proposition to get a dozen or so of your "Plantation Melodies." Wishing you God speed, I am yours truly in Christ. H. J. WRIGHT.

TEXAS.

Prayers, Subscriptions and Amen.

Rev. Willis H. Jackson, Texas Conference:

Brenham, Tex., June 10, '84.

Dr. Taylor—Please allow me to express my gratitude for your election as Editor of a paper that has made its way to my home for six years. Doctor, my heart is with you upon your editorialship. Like Bro. W. W. Heston, from your own locale, the shouts and prayers have reached the throne of Heaven in favor of you and Bishop Taylor, and especially because the church called two so worthy Christian gentlemen as you are. Emily (my wife) sent a good petition up to the Savoir for Drs. Taylors, and especially since Bishop Taylor is on equal footing with the other bishops; believe that the M. E. Church is three-fold stronger in this part of the country than it was before. God bless the presiding bishops and delegates of the late General Conference. May the next quadrennial, when they meet, tell that the labor of the last General Conference is capturing the world. Believe me, I am at work anew. I have sent 18 subscribers and will soon send the cash balance. Yours fraternally,

WILLIS H. JACKSON.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Rev. I. B. Scott, Texas Conference, Galveston, Texas.

Dr. M. W. Taylor—Although I am not personally acqnainted with you, I hail with delight your election as Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN. We need you, our whole Southern work needs you, so don't hesitate. I trust that you will see to it that the General Conference put the paper in a good healthy condition, financially speaking. God bless you, Bro. Taylor, and endow you with special power to continue the work so nobly begun by your predecessors. Yours, in Christ,

J. B. SCOTT.

Rosedale, La., June 5, '84.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, 32 Natchez street—We were certain of your promotion this quadrennium. Of course we had our eye on the Bishopric. Your election to the editorial tripod of the SOUTHWESTERN by the brain of our great apostolic and unprejudiced Methodism, practically elevates the race; promotion without restriction; the peer of any General Conference officer. This act demonstrates her true position as relating to the Negro in the organic law. This act we regard more eloquent than all the "gush" on 'caste' and prejudice. We congratulate you, and welcome you to our beloved State. Yours

GEO. W. WELLS.

Nashville, Tenn., June 5, '84.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D.D.—Though a little late in offering you my congratulations on your election to the editorship of one of our Church papers, the SOUTHWESTERN, it is not less earnest and warm. I believe, sir, the action of the last General Conference marks a new and more hopeful era in the history of the grand old Church. The gainsaying world stands aghast; the false accuser of the brethren is confounded and completely routed. When I read its proceedings I said indeed the darkest hour of the night is just before the day. I pray that you may make full proof of your ministry in the editorial chair, and that in your efforts to build up the waste places may have the aid of men and God. Respectfully,

L. M. HAGOOD.

Baldwin P. O., La., June 5, '84

My Dear Dr. Taylor—This line is to welcome you to your editorial chair. May we be permitted also to welcome you here soon. Believing the wisdom of God was given to the General Conference, and that the mantle of Hartzell and Cushman will fall upon you, I am, your brother in Christ,

W. D. GODMAN.

Dunlap, Kansas, June 3, '84.

Dear Dr. Taylor—I am glad that the General Conference has done us the favor of electing you to the editorial chair of the SOUTHWESTERN. I hope you may have an abundance of moral and financial support of both white and colored people. Please send me a few copies to further the circulation with; several here had taken the paper before they left the South.

W. O. LYNCH.

Nashville, Tenn., June 5, '84.

Bro. Taylor—I wish to express my congratulations to you for the great work that the Lord has given you; no doubt as a compensation for past effective work in His vineyard. You know he pays His workmen by giving work and strength to do it. May He strengthen and ever guide you. We loved Dr. Cushman and feel regret at his departure, but we feel sure that the paper will be in good hands.

Yours, respectfully,

MRS. L. C. BRADEN.

Central Tennessee College—Rev. John Braden, D.D.:

Dear Dr. Taylor—It is not altogether unexpected to me that the Church has called you to fill a new and hitherto untried field of labor. I have never been an editor, nor do I have any ambition in that direction, but I do know some of the perplexities and annoyances of the office, and I have a sort of sympathy for you when, in the future, your correspondents will scold you for not putting in all their long drawn out, rambling letters or articles, just as they wrote, when you have not room for many of the articles already on hand; when you are blamed for the mistakes of the printer or proof-reader, and for not having a better article of paper to print on; and lots of other faults of which, if you believe yourself guilty, you must feel that you are one of the tallest sinners in New Orleans. The action of the General Conference in your case will meet the approbation of the Church. Our conference, the Tennessee, has stood by the SOUTHWESTERN for several years; it will stand by it still, and I trust the brethren will largely increase its circulation among our people. As you suggest, the subscriptions can be increased very greatly, if not doubled, by the beginning of the next volume, if the preachers but do their duty in this matter. I congratulate you on your entrance into this work, with its perplexities, its difficulties, its trials, its responsibilities, its opportunities of usefulness, and its honors. We shall welcome your weekly visits in your editorials, and we expect and pray that your success may be such that your race, the Church and our Heavenly Father may say well done! Yours, in the bonds of brotherhood,

J. BRADEN.

Parsonage of Canal Street M. E. Church, A. N. Jackson pastor, Houma, La., June 5:

Rev. M. W. Taylor, Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN — Dear Bro. —I heartily rejoiced on learning that you did accept the position to which the General Conference elected you. I read of your election with pleasure, but then fears were entertained that you would decline. Now that you have assumed the responsibility of the editorial chair, I congratulate you and extend to you my hand, assuring you my untiring aid as far as my strength lies. May success crown your labors. I am, yours truly, A. N. JACKSON.

Rev. J. Christopher, Lexington Conference writes: "Glad to hear of your promotion; know your attainments are ample, and look for success. Let the Lord alone lead you. I don't see how we are to get along here without you."

Mrs. Eliza Harris, Aberdeen, Ohio: "I wish to congratulate you upon the great honor our Church has conferred upon you. Your friends everywhere rejoice in the fresh evidence of confidence both in your ability and devotion to Christian principles."

From Martha Jones, Mt. Pleasant, Ohio:

Dr. Marshall M. Taylor—My Dear Brother—I haste to congratulate you in your new field of labor. I have watched closely to see what your mission would be, for I was very anxious to learn. I am well pleased, and hope the blessings of Almighty God may ever attend you and yours. I am proud of your record. I am also proud of the relation you hold to our Church, and your standing as a brother.

Belgium is about to renew diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

PERSONAL.

—Notes from General Conference: Handsome men were numerous; but J. D. Hammond was the beau-ideal of the body. Young Dr. Thompson possesses many excellent traits of character and seems destined to follow in the footsteps of his father, the Bishop. There were 84 bald heads; 40 who combed their hair across the bald scalp; 14 supposed to be bald because they wore small black caps; 17 wore burnsides; 26 were clean shaven; 45 wore mustaches; Mallalieu is the only bishop with mustache and he will probably shave now; 9 were counted with gotees; but a large majority wore full beard. The average weight was 65, and aggregate probably 27,105. The beauties were few, blonds in a large majority. J. E. Wilson, L. C., is a good preacher and uses manuscript. The sermons and speeches of A. E. P. Albert, were well received in Philadelphia. Brothers Snowden, Westbroks, Lewis, Steel, Frysinger, Warren, Ridgaway, Butts, Martin, Payne, Fletcher, Crogman and other prominent educators were present as delegates and visitors. Dr. Cushman had a hearty reception; was at times pleasantly seated with the New England delegation. Gov. Pattison is a fine looking brunette; his appearance in the hall was usually announced by applause from the galleries. Dr. Rust was happy to find himself backed by a solid South, with East, North and West no less solid in his support. Dr. J. C. Hartzell made a very appropriate speech to the purpose of nominating Dr. Rust. His own services were recognized by a vote quite complimentary to him. His earnest and faithful labors in the conference, and in his office have given him a very prominent place in the Church. The speech of Rev. Mack Henson in nominating Dr. Hartzell was a very happy one. W. H. Crogman has a strong voice and is a good public speaker. Drs. Andrews and Right are prodiplomat, so is Dr. Fitzgerald. ducts of the Freedman's Aid Society. Dr. Goodsal is a Christian Drs. Derring and Nast were the most venerable Germans, Liebhart and Krebiel the most fluent, Biehl and Lieber the best looking. There were three white delegates who could have easily passed for colored. The Holston delegation were abundant in labors and deserve the compliments of their constituents. Dr. Spence delivered a strong and manly speech upon the legal status of our work in the South. Bro. Louis, alt., cast the first vote for this editor. It was a pleasure to meet Rev. A. S. Lakin after many years of separation. W. H. Spears is a successful business man and caterer. Rev. T. C. Carter was happy when he secured an Episcopal residence at Chatanooga. Dr. Manker was a quiet unassuming gentleman with fine ability. Col. Bryant is a shrewn leader. Rev. C. A. Ford seemed to be a general favorite among the colored delegates. Graham Bull is highly spoken of and is, it seems, the leading layman among the colored delegates. This is his third General Conference, and his great familiarity with the business in consequence of it was of great valne to his constituents. He makes few speeches, but is an earnest and influential worker. Bro. Tullim, of Texas, was noted for his quiet dignity. Bro. Campbell, of Mississippi, Brown, Ky., and Pickett of Tennessee, Courtney of Lexington, Holmes and Griffin of Washington, were noted as good preachers. Bros. Bumpass, Cole, Brown and Allman were distinguished for their strong features, denoting unusual force of character.

—Mrs. Mamie Shelton Brown will take up her residence in New Orleans.

—Rev. A. E. P. Albert, desires that his correspondents should address him at 1956 St. Charles street, this city.

—Rev. A. E. P. Albert writes from Alexandria, that he will urge the claims of the SOUTHWESTERN on his district, and he appreciates the wisdom of a good rally to its support.

—Rev. E. Williams, presiding elder of Lafourche district, left Saturday morning to resume his labors after a short visit home.

—The degree of D. D. has been conferred on Rev. Jacob Krehbiel, the assistant editor of the Christian Apologist, by the Central Wesleyan College, Warrenton, Mo.

—The health of Bishop Pierce, the senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is so far re-established that he is now able to preach twice on nearly every Sabbath.

—Rev. L. M. Dunton, vice-president of Claflin University, has been elected president, and Mrs. Dunton preceptess. Prof Thomas M. Dart has been elected to the chair of Greek and Latin.

—The commencement of Gaine's High School, Cincinnati, Ohio, will take place in Robinson's Opera House in that city June 25th. Among the graduates will be Miss Hattie G. Taylor, who was for sometime our amanuensis.

—When Dr. J. H. Vincent appeared in the International Sunday-school convention at Louisville, Ky., he was received with cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs. Dr. Randolph introducing him said, "Here is a man they could not make a Bishop because God has made him a King."

Topic: WARNINGS AGAINST WINE.
Lesson Text. Prov. xxix, 29-35.

GOLDEN TEXT: Prov. xx, 1. Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

1. To the scholar. Read the lesson carefully once each day of the week. Study the meaning of every word. Commit to memory the first four verses, also the Golden Text and outline. These are the bones on which the lesson is to grow. Read daily the "Home Readings," and notice what each says that bears on the lesson. Look out the marginal references. Study the lesson by the help of the questions. Find an answer to every one. Read, think, pray; and every dark place will become light, and every difficulty be vanquished.

2. To the teacher. This leaf is designed as a help, both in study and in teaching. It is intended to be suggestive, not exhaustive. It is Biblical in its matter. It aims to find out the teaching of God's Word. It cannot be effectively used without the Bible. All its readings and references are so many side-lights on the central truth. Focus them on the lesson. Follow the outline; it will aid the memory. The questions are hints in method, as well as to fact. They may be used in the class or not as one pleases. Their best use may be to provoke better questions. Do not be tied to them. They are guides, not shackles; counsels, not commandments.

Study faithfully, pray earnestly, teach fervently. The truth is God's, and he will give it success.—Prepared by Rev. J. C. W. Coxe, D. D., for N. W. C. T. Union.

RULES FOR RIGHT LIVING—1. Keep the body clean. The countless pores of the skin are so many little drain tiles for the refuse of the system. If they become clogged and so deadened in their action we must expect to become the prey of ill heath in some of its countless forms. Let us not be afraid of a wet sponge and five minutes' brisk exercise with a crash towel every night or morning.

2. Devote eight hours out of the twenty-four to sleep. If a mother is robbed of sleep by a wakeful baby, she must take a nap sometime during the day. Even ten minutes of repose strengthens and refreshes, and does good "like a little medicine." Children should be allowed to sleep until they awake of their own free will.

3. Never go out to work in early morning in any locality subject to damps, fogs, and miasms with an empty stomach. If there is not time to wait for a cup of coffee, pour two-thirds of a cup of cream or a beaten egg, season it with salt and pepper, and drink it while hot before going out. This will stimulate and comfort the stomach, and aid the system in resisting a poisonous or debilitating atmosphere.

4. Avoid over eating. To rise from the table able to eat a little more is a proverbially good rule for every one. There is nothing more idiotic than forcing down a few mouthfuls, because they happen to remain on one's plate, after hunger is satisfied, and because they may be "wasted" if left! It is the most serious waste to overtax the stomach with even half an ounce more than it can take care of.

5. Avoid foods and drinks that plainly "disagree" with the system. Vigorous out door workers should beware of heavy indigestible suppers. Supper should always consist of light, easily digested foods—eating, in the country, so soon followed by sleep, and the stomach being as much entitled as the head to profound rest. The moral pluck and fitness to take such food and no other for this last meal of the day can be easily acquired, and the reward of such virtue is sound sleep, a clear head, a strong hand, and a capital appetite for breakfast.

6. Never wear at night the undergarments that are worn through the day.

7. Cultivate sunlight and fresh air. Farmer's wives "fade" sooner than city women, not alone because they work harder and take no care of themselves, but because they stay so close indoors, and have no walk or recreation that takes them out in the open sunlight. It is a singular fact that women in crowded cities generally get more sunshine and pure air than their hived-up country sisters.

8. Have something for the mind to feed upon, something to look forward to and live for, besides the round of daily labor, or the counting of profit and loss. If we have not any talent for writing splendid books on political economy or social science, or the genius for creating a good story or a fine poem, the next best thing—and, in fact, almost as good a thing—is to possess an appreciation of these things. Have good books and good newspapers, and read them—if only in patches—and talk about them at dinner time or by the evening lamp. Cultivate choice flowers and vines, and help some poor neighbor to seeds and cuttings or take an interest in bees, or fine poultry, fruit culture, study always farm and household science, and take advantage of the new and hopeful ideas that are every little while coming to light.

9. Live in peace! Fretting, worrying, borrowing trouble, giving way to temper, and holding long, cruel grudges; all these affect the blood, poison the blood, enlarge the liver, carve ugly lines on the face and spoil life! Try to be half as wise as that little creature, the bee, who takes all the honey she can find, and leaves the poisons to others.—Mrs. E. H. Leland in Agriculturist.

The Methodist Episcopal Bishop for Africa.

Bros. Gracey, Albert, Ware and Taylor gave to the selection of a Bishop for Africa their earnest attention. The result has fully realized their desire, whether considered from the poetic or practical side. A great man has been elected, a great field lies before him, a great church is behind to support him, and God is above to bless and crown his work. Three races joined in his consecration. As we there hailed but one in a trinity of races, so let us now behold and magnify the Lord personally three, and substantially one who is to be our God forever and forever.

ON THE CONSECRATION OF WM. TAYLOR, MISSIONARY BISHOP FOR AFRICA.

Sons of Wesley come from far,
Veterans in the holy war;
Lands of ancient high renown,
Empires of the setting sun.
Varying shades from wide-spread zones,
Accents strange from many tongues;
Heroes all, courageous, true,
Gathered are for grand review.

Angels of the Church are there,
Bishops crowned with silver hair;
Some are strong and full of cheer,
Some with broken lance and spear.
Some who long the army led,
Now are unnumbered with the dead;
Shining stars of earthly lands,
Held in Christ's Almighty hands.

Kingdom of the Christ prevails,
Climbs the mountains, fills the vales;
Voices call from many shores,
Multiplied are opening doors,
Joshua's new must lead the host,
Jordan's new must still be crossed;
Bring your chosen to their place,
Pour on them anointing grace.

Towering high among them came,
One whose soul is living flame;
Flame of zeal of living faith—
Flame of love that conquers death.
Angel flying o'er the earth,
Telling of the Savior's birth;
Telling nations, far and near,
Christ is risen, Christ is here.

Next him stood on either hand,
Children of the far-off lands;
Mingled blood within their veins,
Europe's mountains, Asia's plains.
Tinge of Afric's heated strands,
Joined with frosts of Northern lands;
Bring offering there to be,
Bound and laid on Africa.

Son of Man to thee we pray,
Bear in mind the awful day;
When through Jew and Roman's scorn,
Smiting hand and piercing thorn,
Bloody sweat and bursting groan,
Treading wine-press all alone;
Fainting 'neath the accursed tree,
Helper came from Africa.

Son of God, to thee, we pray,
Guide thy servant all his way;
Bear him safely o'er the deep,
Health and strength in vigor keep.
Open up the pathless lands,
Fire his heart and fill his hands;
Long may he apostle be,
Toiling for dark Africa.

Latest called of nations come,
Greet the western rising sun;
Stretch thy hands to God once more,
Beacons blaze along thy shore.
Messengers from distant lands,
Water now the sterile sands;
Many crowns the Christ array,
And the crown of Africa.

BISHOP TAYLOR'S MISSIONARY WORK.

In response to a request from the editor of the Daily, Bishop Taylor has kindly placed the following in our hands:

A sudden whirl in the wheel of Providence has turned me up a Missionary Bishop for Africa. The nomination, election and ordination all inside of 24 hours! A thing by me entirely unsought, undesired, unexpected! I receive it from the Lord. The honor conferred is in proportion to the self-sacrifice and peril involved, and the stupendous work contemplated, with the immeasurable obstructions to be encountered in the prosecution of it.

The Wesleyan Missions in South Africa have had from their commencement great advantages over the West Coast. First, a healthy, salubrious climate; second, the backing of powerful English colonies, securing for the Missionaries by treaty with the Kaffir kings, a grant of land for Missionary purposes, recognition and protection of life and of mission property, Yet with all these advantages forty years of faithful toil were spent in grading and track laying to prepare the way of the Lord, before the glory of the Lord in the salvation of large numbers could be revealed. The Republic of Liberia cannot secure for our new Missions any such concession from the kings of the interior, nor any such guarantee for the protection of our missionaries; and the climatic conditions of the Liberrian Coast are all against us. "We have God on our side" truly, and the Wesleyans have had Him on their side all the way through. We don't expect to confine our work to Liberia, but in any other part of the dark continent where we may open fields of labor, we shall have to "prepare the way of the Lord," just as really, and as laboriously, as any railroad company before their through trains can operate. That means time, faith, patience, hard work, and a great deal of money. Money, not to pay salaries of the workers, but to provide them with work shops and tools essential to their purposes as self-supporting workers. Without the slighest interference with the grand operations of the Missionary Societies, the specialty of my mission from God for years past and for all the future of my life, is to establish self-supporting work for God, viz: The support of all our preachers and school teachers from indigenous resources in the fields in which they labor; but as from the beginning of my work on this line the traveling expenses of the workers may be paid by their friends at home; and to initiate their work expeditiously and put it on a good basis for successful development we should have an adequate building fund. If my friends mean business for God in the rapid spread of His Gospel in connection with my agency, let them furnish the funds. This plan indicates the short-cut to universal empire for Christ among the nations. For illustration, if we had to pay even the small salary of $600 per year to each of our ten heroic workers in Santiago, that would in ten years amount to $60,000. That amount of money, added to an equal amount from the people they serve, would provide a free hold, with college buildings and church property in perpetuity through the ages to come, without an additional dollar from home; but instead would open a stream of beneficence to help our building fund to extend such work to the ends of the earth. The Lord is manifestly moving on this line of work.

The house Bro. Latham built in Aspinwall was a most timely investment, and essential to our great work in that needy field. The college building I have just put up in Coquimbo is prophetic of God's good will to plant all our institutions in foreign fields on a freehold footing as quickly as possible.

Dear old Bro. John Baldwin, by an investment of $6,000, has established for the centuries to come, Baldwin Schools in Bangalore, India, and has the happiness of knowing that hundreds are being educated there, and that a blessed revival of God's work is progressing among them.

Dear Sister Inskip is still calling for help to complete our girls' school in Calcutta.

A banyan will thus be planted to extend its lateral limbs and multiply itself all over the land.

The unsolicited free will offerings of our friends have been flowing into our "transit fund" for six years. Two years ago I proposed that it be called "the transit and building fund." Our College property in Coquimbo, unencumbered with debt and worth $19,000 in the market, drew but about twelve hundred dollars from this fund. I have no further amendment of the plan to offer. If the Lord will, through his wise stewards, adequately replenish this fund, they will witness right along the marvelous utility of this method of planting the institutions of the Gospel in foreign fields. Our self supporting work in India and in South America is so well organized that, without interfering with the personal attention I must give to Africa, absorbing most of the remaining years of my life, we can proceed to carry this forward to grand success in those countries. Violets—Memorial Day

Gather the sweet wild violets
That grow by the silvery stream;
Gather them while the dew-drops wet
Glisten like tears upon the green
Of the heart shaped leaves, fold on fold,
That nearly hide the modest face
Of violets blue, white and gold,
Fashioned with exquisite grace.

Their tinted calyx—filled with sweet,
Fresh odors from the fragrant earth,
And cool damp mosses at their feet,
That almost hide their place of birth;
Flow'rs face, so like human mould,
Dearest of all the flow'rs of May,
With violets blue, white, and gold,
Cover the graves where heroes lay.

Wet their petals with tears of thine,
E'en though your dead sleep far away,
Trusting God, in his own good time,
To plant the violets where they lay.
And may the rootlets pierce the mould,
And gather strength from lasting wells
To keep the blue, and white and gold,
And give them lives of immortelles.

Sweet bird choirs sing o'er unknown graves,
While angel wings are hov'ring near;
And breezes soft, in rippling waves,
Bring perfume on the atmosphere.
Perchance, the angels' tears do fall,
And gleam like crystals where they lay
On nameless graves; God marks them all
And cares for them—"Memorial Day."

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister, Amanda Jackson. Francis Henry Hill sold her to a Negro trader, Mr. Sidney Thomas, about 1848 or 1849. We all formerly belonged to the Murchestney estate, but fell to Nancy Murchestney when she married Francis Henry Hill. We lived between Madison and Culpepper Courthouse, on the Powel Hills farm, Madison county, Va. Our mother was named Eveline, and father Paul Jackson. Mother had six children when Amanda was sold, to-wit: Violet, the oldest; Amanda, Lucinda, Martha, Kate and Ellen. Address me at Brenham, Texas, care of Alex Hackett, my husband, or Rev. W. Hartely Jackson, P. C.

MRS. LUCINDA HACKETT.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to seek my daughter who was separated from me in slave times. Her name was Nancy Tempelton. John Tempelton sold her to a Negro trader. Her name was Raudale Cannon. Her mother, when she was sold, was Sislie Alexander. My husband, when Nancy was sold, was Thornton Alexander, now Thornton Hackett. I had five children: Nancy, the oldest, John, Betsy, Jane and Alex. Jane was the baby. The last I heard of her was that the trader had carried her to Richmond, Va., about the year 1840 or 1850. We were living one mile from Fairfield, Va., but since then have moved to Texas. Address me at Brenham, Texas, in care of my son, Alex. Hackett, or Rev. W. Hartely Jackson.

MRS. SISLIE HACKETT.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my people. I have not seen them since 1850. At that time I was living in South Carolina, Sumpter district. I belonged to Mr. Gable Plouden. My husband was was Ely Hoog. My father was Carliner Plouden. My mother had five girls and two boys. My eldest sister, Mary Plouden, married Deary Hoog. Other sisters were Milly Hoog, Rachel Plouden, Giuia and Sally. My brother were Hampton Wadus and Wm. Elerson. My name then was Tenner Hoog. Mr. Gabriel Plouden sold me to a Mr. James Pack. I had one child named Rufus Hoog. Mr. James Pack sold me to Mr. Ed. Glover, and he brought me to Texas. I heard from them once since. Address me at Patterson Station, Waller county, Texas, care P. H. Every life is a new life; every day is a new day, like nothing that ever went before, or can ever follow after. No books, no systems, no forecast set of rules, can provide for all cases; every case is a new case. And just as in any earthly enterprise, the conduct of a campaign, or the building of a bridge, unforeseen difficulties and unexpected disaster must be met by that inexhaustable fertility of invention which belongs to those who do not live to God second-hand. We must live to God first hand.—F. W. Robertson.

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krekhiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE

TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

Rev. Charles J. Howes.

Rev. Mr. Howes was born at Paintsville, Ky., March 26, 1847, and in his twentieth year he was converted. He received an education at his native place that qualified him for the work of the ministry, and in the year 1874, he was received on trial into the Kentucky Conference.

Among the chief appointments after he had served three years on a circuit, were Wesley Chapel, Louisville; Shinkle Chapel, Covington; and Main St., Covington, all in Kentucky. He is now the Presiding Elder of the Covington District, Kentucky Conference, a very important and responsible place as a representative of our Church in that State.

Previous to his entering the itinerant ministry, after his conversion, he was Clerk of the County and Circuit Courts of Johnson County, Ky., for a number of years, and was admitted to the Bar in 1873, but Providence had other work for him to do For the last two sessions he has been Secretary of the Kentucky Conference, and this experience, coupled with his early work in civil life, has admirably qualified him to be one of Dr. Monroe's trained assistants.

One night last week the Rev Mr. Brooks, of Leadville, heard a burglar operating at his door. He went to the door in his night clothes and, silently turning the key in the lock, turned the knob easily and suddenly, opened the door wide, and stood face to face with the would-be burglar. "Good morning' Sir," said the reverend gentleman; "walk right in, walk right in, and make yourself at home." For a moment the robber stood speechless, gazing at the apparition. Then his hair began to rise, and giving a frightened screech, he leaped a fence and disappeared.—Denver News.

Rev. L. Clayton, of our church at Shuqualak, reports that his pulpit was recently occupied by brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in attendance upon district conference, and the people enjoyed the preaching of Revs. A. It is said of Benjamin Bosworth Smith, D. D., the senior bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, who died recently at the age of ninety, that "his great age may be attributed in part, at least, to the simplicity and regularity of his habits of life. He made no use of alcohol or tobacco. He was gentle and easy to be entreated, of affectionate disposition, with a heart open to charity. In theological opinions he belonged to the Low-Church, and was exceedingly evangelical."

The end is not yet. It is too soon to form an opinion as to the course the two parties will pursue, but it is not too much to say that the fabric which Keshub Chunder Sen erected before his death has received a blow which has well-nigh laid it in ruins. Mr. Mazoomdar may drift back to the ranks of conservative Brahmos, or he may become the founder of a new sect; but in any case he will cease to be reckoned among the followers of Keshub Chunder Sen.—*J. There is a very vigorous movement in the Dominion Province of Quebec to secure an act of the legislature legalizing lotteries, after the fashion of Louisiana and Kentucky, but the resistance of the best elements of society is determined, and it is to be hoped our neighbors will not permit the legalization of a curse which blights at least two of the States of this Union. The worst feature of a legalized lottery system is its debauching effect upon the poorer classes, the wage earners.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF The Pedestal Fund
—OF THE—
Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee of the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of Art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to procure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St. Andrew's	38x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

Bishop Simpson's Funeral Obsequies.

Bishop Simpson's obsequies were celebrated yesterday, Tuesday, June 24th, at the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal Church, southeast corner of Broad-street, in the presence of an immense congregation. The hour appointed for the services was three P. M., but soon after two the crowds began to collect in front of the church and at the side entrance on Broad street, and there might have been some confusion but for the excellent arrangements made and superintended by Rev. Drs. Longacre and McCullough and Captain J. W. Emory of the police.

The auditorium was divided into sections, the galleries being left free for the general public; the five upper pews to the right of the main block being reserved for the family, relatives and immediate friends of the deceased bishop, and the remainder of the church assigned to the various delegations from New York, Boston, Washington, Baltimore, New Jersey and elsewhere, the city clergy of all denominations, and the various organizations, such as the Bible and Church Extension Societies.

WITHIN THE CHURCH.

The galleries, chancel, Gothic window spaces and pews set apart for the family were draped in rich black cloth. The first line of pews from the main block had been removed, together with the chancel railing, their places being filled by a dais, on which stood a pedestal, also draped in black. The pulpit reading desk and chancel furniture were a mass of black drapery, and high up on the rear wall of the chancel was a lifelike portrait of the deceased bishop, over which was a magnificent floral crown, while beneath it was an open Bible also in flowers, long black festoons drooping mournfully away on either side. The white pages of the floral Bible were divided into double columns by a row of red roses.

On the left of the pulpit was an unfinished column, and on the right a magnificent cross. Further to the right was a superb wreath of white roses resting on a ground of green and a large white pillow similarly relieved by verdure, while the extreme left was occupied by an urn of great size and beauty. All the designs were in white flowers, roses, rosebuds, carnations and lilies merely relieved here and and there by touches of color, or of trailing or solid green in smilax or foliage.

When the doors were thrown open the crowd at once poured into the church and filled the galleries to overflowing. The Methodist clergy had assembled at No. 1018 Arch street, and the members of the Church Extension Society and Bible Society at their rooms, marching thence in procession to the church. Shortly before three o'clock the clergy began to pour into the church at the Broad street entrance and into the auditorium through the south doors, quickly filling the pews.

Many prominent clergymen and laymen were present, all denominations being largely represented. Among the Philadelphians principally remarked were Rev. Dr. W. F. Paddock, rector of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church; Rev. Stephen W. Dana, pastor of Walnut Street Presbyterian Church; Rev. Dr. Charles D. Cooper, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles; Rev. Dr. Addison Henry, of Princeton Presbyterian Church; Rev. Dr. J. B. Dales, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church; Mr. B. G. Godfrey, Mr. John Wanamaker, Mr. George H. Stuart, Mr. John Field, Mr. A. M. Burton, president of the Law and Order Society; Mr. Colson Heiskell, Mr. R. J. Grigg, Mr. Thos. T. Tasker, Mr. John Alexander.

Among the New York clergymen present the more prominent were: Rev. O. H. Tiffany, Asbury Lowry, D. P. Kidder, D. D., J. M. Reid, D. D., Sanford Hunt, D. D., J. N. Fitzgerald, W. L. Phillips, D. W. Conch, T. H. Birch, A. D. Vail, L. R. Dunn. J. W. Chadwick, R. Van Horn, R. Wheatley, J. E. Cookman, and I Simmons, James H. Taft, Esq., J. M. Phillips, Stephen Baker.

From Boston came—Revs. John W. Hamilton, David Sherman, D. D., O. A. Brown, D. D., W. I. Haven.

Before the imposing exercises at the church, there was a brief service at the handsome mansion which Bishop Simpson had occupied as a residence, on Arch street, just below Broad, and only a few steps from the church. Only the family and a few friends were present. Rev. W. C. Robinson, D. D., pastor of the Western M. E. Church, Twentieth street, below Walnut officiated. The procession was then formed at the house, headed, in double file, by Bishops Bowman (now senior bishop), Harris, Ninde, Fowler, Foster, Andrews, Mallalieu and Taylor, who were followed by Rev. Dr. Longacre, pastor of the Arch Street Church, Rev. Dr. C. Trumbull, Rev. Drs. Kelly and Robinson; Dr. Foster, of Clifton Springs; and Revs. J. S. J. McConnell, Jas. Neill and S. W. Thomas.

The pall bearers were Revs. Jno. M. Reed, D. D., and A. J. Kynett, D. D., Revs. D. P. Kidder, D. D., and A. S. Hunt, D. D., Revs. J. H. Vincent, D. D., and Geo. Crooks, D. D., Rev. John Lanahan, of Baltimore, and J. B. Graw, D. D., of New Jersey; Gov. Pattison, Gov. Evans, ex-Secretary Harlan, and others already named. They were followed by Mrs. Simpson and her son, Mr. Vernor Simpson; Misses Ida and Libbie Simpson; Rev. Charles W. Bnoy and wife Ella, daughter of the late bishop; Mr. James Vernor, brother of Mrs. Simpson, and Mrs. V. Simpson; two children of Charles Simpson, the deceased son of the late bishop; Mr. S. McCullough, nephew and wife; David Simpson, consin and wife; James Vernor, Jr., and Mrs. Skaif; Drs. D. Hayes Agnew and Louis D. Harrowe, intimate friends of the family.

As the head of the procession reached the church the vast assembly rose simultaneonsly, moved by a common impulse. Then in the profonnd stillness the voice of Bishop Bowman fell low and monrnfully npon the ear as he advanced at the head of the funeral cortege, reciting the solemn sentences of the burial service. A profonnd sensation thrilled the multitude as the black covered casket appeared, borne by the pall bearers named above, covered with a snperb floral cross, the last tribnte of the bereaved wife, in white roses, with the word "husband" in immortelles, and followed by the ladies of the family and their nearest relatives, each leaning on the arm of a friend or kinsman, their black robes trailing and their bowed faces and fignres thickly veiled.

As the funeral train passed forward to the pews reserved for them the chant from the Messiah, "Cast thy bnrden on the Lord," was begun by a specially selected choir, led by Prof. W. G. Fischer, and consisting of Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Somers and Miss Fischer, sopranos; Miss Africa and Miss Bisbee, altos; Mr. H. L. Gilmore and Mr. Perry, tenors, and Messrs. Ivans, North and Roberts, bassos, with Mr. Alfred Sprissler as organist.

OPENING SERVICES.

The first lesson, consisting of selections from the Psalms, was read by Bishop Andrews, and the second, St. Paul's Doctrine of the Resurrection, I Corinthians, xv, by Bishop Ninde, followed by a prayer offered by Bishop Harris, who besought the Divine mercy for the sorrowing multitnde, bowed beneath the weight of an extraordinary dispensation and having nowhere to flee in their extremity bnt to the mercy of their Heavenly Father throngh Christ, and especially for the family of the deceased bishop, and returned thanks for the Christian example of the departed as a Christian, a Christian minister and a bishop.

Rev. Dr. Longacre then annonnced the 10th hymn, after which Bishop Foster preached the sermon, which he opened with a reference to the sorrow felt in distant places, by Christians of every name, who monrned in the fellowship of a common loss:

In India, he said, and Switzerland, in Mexico and Japan, in Norway and South America, indeed, in three Continents, the loss sustained in Bishop Simpson's death was felt. Many in those far off fields, he continned, knew and loved him, not simply as a revered bishop, but as the counselor by whom they were first bronght into the Christian life. Many knew him as the friend to whom they habitually tnrned for guidance. The whole Methodist Church is represented here to-day. The sorrow that snrges throngh this congregation is felt in half a million homes. Bishop Simpson, as a Philadelphian, was in some sense especially your own—yonr pride and joy.

On all days of importance yon counted on his presence; in all great movements on his influence. All denominations loved him. When yon mentioned the names of your distinguished citizens his name was among the first upon your lips; you rejoiced in his transcendent gifts, and yon had no honor to bestow which we in other cities did not also delight to lavish. When he came to ns he nttered those wondrous sermons which can never be forgotten. You were glad to welcome him home. How we all loved him—how we shall cherish his memory. But he has gone away, never to come back. Your Koh-i-noor has been reclaimed by the Proprietor's hand. His voice, once so eloqnent, is hushed now, that it may be raised in new strains in the General Assembly and church of the first born, whose names are written in the Book of Life.

There in that shrine before yon reposes his earthly tabernacle, bnt the occnpant has gone, never to return to the weary pilgrimage of earth. A few weeks ago during the closing hours of the General Conference held in yonr city he came in among us to pronounce the words of farewell. We were frightened then at his pallor and at the tremnlousness of his voice and at his emaciated form, bnt we little thought of the shadows even then gathering abont yonder mansion. We cherished the hope that after a rest of a few weeks he might still linger long to bless ns with the benediction of his benignant face. We little thonght that the whole church would soon be plunged into mourning. Looking back to that time now it seems to me that the bishop was even then loosening the tendrils which had so closely bound him to the church for these many years. Even then he was saying "my work is done," and surveying the situation serenely, calmly, with dignified repose; "I have fonght the fight," he seemed to say, and the field mnst now be left to others.

Bishop Foster next reviewed the life of Bishop Simpson, and said that three of its features had specially impressed him. It seemed to be the bishop's mission greatly to enlarge the enterprises of the church, to promote the influence of the laity in its councils, and to render throngh his mighty influence the most important services to his conntry in the hour of her greatest peril.

Bishop Foster then referred to the closing honrs of his deceased senior in the episcopate, quoting some of his last words of faith, trust and hope; expressions in which the dying bishop acknowledged himself a sinner and saved by Christ; dwelt npon the wonderful possibilities of the future, and manifested a sense of the nearness of Christ, which ranks his last moments with those triumphant deaths of Christians that believers remember with gratitnde and awe.

REMARKS OF BISHOP BOWMAN.

Bishop Bowman followed in a brief address, in which he referred beautifully to the personal affection for the deceased bishop and to the great comfort which he derived from his kind words on one occasion when called to succeed him on a position in Indiana. Aware of the work he had done there, and fully appreciating his great abilities, the bishop said, I was looking forward to sucееeding to that position with serions misgiving, when, at a conference at which we met, he called me to him and told me that he had heard of my acceptance and believed me fully qualified for the work and destined to be happy in it. Remarking that Bishop Simpson had not, as he believed, an enemy in the world, Bishop Bowman closed by reminding his hearers that he for whom they monrned was nearer the Throne than he was a month ago, and all the more likely to prevail in prayers in which the church he loved on earth would never be forgotten.

BISHOP FOWLER'S ADDRESS

Bishop Fowler said that he aspired only to cast a few flowers on the tomb of the friend whose loss they had met to mourn. Bishop Simpson, he said, seems to me a Divine messenger, sent ont for a specified purpose; every great truth needs to stand on a living heart. When God introduced salvation He incarnated it in the Virgin's son. To give a tnth force God pnts it into a living heart, as in Moses He revealed law, in Paul the aggressive power of love, and in Luther faith. He then went on to speak of Bishop Simpson's mission to present the Gospel in its strongest and most liberal aspect. Spoke of his power as a preacher; of his gentleness in criticism; his wide charity. Power, he said, made him gentle, and wisdom tender. Bishop Fowler described with much graphic force a sermon preached before a congregation of thousands on "The victory that overcometh the world," in which the Bishop, after appealing to worldy sources of interest, and showing their nnsatisfactory nature, turned to the Gospel, demonstrated its snfficiency, and then pictured its development of man's destiny till, to the hearers, it seemed as if they were transported bodily to the city of the Great King, and as the climax was reached the entire assemblage sprang to their feet in one uncontrollable ontbnrst of praise. After noticing some of the late Bishop's prevailing trains of thought, Bishop Fowler said that he was pre-eminently a leader, spoke of his pleading for emancipation, and always standing forth as the friend of the oppressed, and closed with a beautifnl illnstration, in which he compared him to the wonnded chief of the Highland Legend, who, gaining a rock, called to his clansmen, "I am watching yon. Go forward!" Such, he said, would be the words, which looking down from his place in the church triumphant, the Bishop would utter to the church militant, "Go forward."

Rev. Dr. Trumbull then announced the 979th hymn:

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep."

A telegram was read by Rev. Dr. Longacre from the Canadian church, expressing sorrow for the death of Bishop Simpson, and pronouncing him the greatest of American pulpit orators.

The closing prayer was made by Rev. Dr. W. V. Kelly, and the benediction was pronounced by Bishop Mallalieu. After the services the entire congregation filed past the open casket, over which the canopy was then placed, and hundreds who had been waiting without the church were then admitted to look their last upon the calm face of their beloved Bishop. The remains will be interred to-day in the South Laurel Hill Cemetery, several of the Bishops conducting the services, which will be private and attended only by the family and their nearest friends.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

Resolutions were adopted yesterday at a meeting of the managers of the Bible Society, after the reading of a letter from Bishop Stevens, paying a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Bishop Simpson as president of the society since 1871. Bishop Stevens' letter is as follows:

Philadelphia, June 19, 1884.

Dear Dr. Torrence: I regret to learn from you that the funeral of the late Bishop Simpson is to be on Tuesday afternoon next, as engagements made some time since will prevent my being present on that solemn occasion.

It would have been a satisfaction to me, as the senior vice president of the Pennsylvania Bible Society, to have met the Board of managers at that time as mourners together over the loss of our venerable president, and to have been their spokesman in expressing our appreciation of his many and great virtues.

Thrown together as the Bishop Simpson and I have been on many occasions of public interest, and in philanthropic societies, I found that we worked together with great harmony, and in his wise and broad plans he had my most hearty co-operation.

Committed, as each of ns was on deep personal conviction, to distinct lines of ecclesiastical policy, on the higher plane of Christianity we met as brothers in the one family of our common Father, "of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named."

The conspicuous position which he held as president of our Pennsylvania Bible Society was justly due to one who made the Word of God not only his rule of faith bnt the food of his soul. His long and nsefnl lite was moulded on the principles of the Bible, and hence he became great because he prepared his ways before the Lord.

I hope that the Board of Managers will pnt on record, in some dne form, their sense of the great loss which they have snstained by the death of Bishop Simpson, and their appreciation of the varied excellencies and exalted virtues which not only ennobled his life, bnt which have conferred blessings on our commnnity and land, and which deserve onr gratefnl remembrance.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Hilton, Franklin: "A committee of twelve gave a basket meeting May 25 and raised $27.20."

Mrs. L. J. Shallowhorne, corresponding secretary: "We have organized a Woman's Home Missionary Society with 43 members, and a Look-up Legion with 42 members. Missionary work is much needed in this part of the country."

A. Spears, Scott circuit: "Ever since I came rain and high water has kept me from one of my appointments across the Red chute. This church is trying to build anew. At Kingston Mount Zion was blown down by a storm, and the people are ready to build at the ferry fronting Shreveport. About 15 families of my membership are under water yet, and for the second time this year. For six Sundays I have been prevented from preaching to the people."

T. G. Montgomery, First street, New Orleans: "Children's day was observed with pleasure. As our superintendent had been sick, the children were not prepared with pieces. There was a good congregation present, and the collection was $11.50."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. W. Longstreet, Wm. McMorris and E. C. Lucas, of Macon, write that early in the Spring Rev. W. H. Gallion, their pastor, opened a protracted meeting. It continued three weeks, and resulted in 31 conversions; all save one were added to the church. The church has been in good spiritual and financial condition all the year. By envelope system the people raised, first call, $111.05; second, $38.10; last $218.10 has been paid pastor.

D. Jordan, Pachuta: "On the fourth Sunday in May Rev. M. White preached to a large congregation. He defined many parts of the Discipline, and aroused the people. He catechised the children, and baptized 4."

L. J. S. Bell, Philadelphia: "A grand day for the Master and Methodism was witnessed at this place May 18th, at 9 a. m. Our Sunday-school, with a large number of teachers and pupils in attendance, convened. At 11, preaching, when many souls gave God thanks. At 2 p. m. four joined the church. The Holy Spirit was felt without measure. A good old class-meeting made us all think of the many years of Methodism as it illuminated our prospects of a "better land." 7 p. m. found us again at the house of the Lord, with a large audience before us. During which time 2 converts and 3 backsliders were reclaimed and added to the church. Baptism for the day, to-wit: adults, 4; children, 15. Thus witnessed a glorious and refreshing time for the Lord. On the 24th we assembled in quarterly conference. In the absence of the presiding elder, Rev. J. Saunders occupied the chair, acting with power and satisfaction. Sabbath, the 25th, a powerful sermon, from John 1st chapter 29th verse, was preached to a crowded house. Collection for the presiding elder, $5. Pray for the furthering of the Lord's kingdom at this point."

C. W. Ivy, Nashnlaville: "The work is prospering finely, with 6 Sunday-schools; 48 received in full connection; 2 converts joined the church at Center Ridge. Pray for us."

D. W. Calvert, Okolona: "Elder D. A. Williams held our second quarter. The reports showed marked progress. We had a good time; 23 were received into full membership during the quarter. Collections $144.25. We are preparing to build a parsonage, and have on hand $110. Our Sunday-school is good and numbers about 100 scholars."

TEXAS.

W. Medlock, Mexia: "W. J. Mitchell held my quarterly conference, and preached an excellent sermon; four joined on probation; 7 partook of communion."

D. Edmonds, Pleasanton: "Sunday schools are good; there are four on my charge. I am doing the best I can with church work, and when I can not go ahead I try to hold my own. My points are 20 and 30 miles apart, but I visit each every month, and go on foot every time."

E. Coggswell, Alleyton: "We are building up the work. Elder Carmichael held first quarter, and in spite of the rain we had a crowded house each night. He brings us good news to cheer us on each quarter, and at the second conference he delivered several powerful sermons. A. F. Kinison, Sunday school superintendent, is doing finely. A leap year supper brought us $65.96 to pay on the parsonage. Corn is doing well and there is plenty of fruit, but other crops are poor."

Geo. Davis, Richmond: "We have had a great meeting here and 39 converts are on the list."

S. Coleman, Waelder: "In Sunday-school 54 scholars are enrolled. Men and women are at work, and Wesley Chapel is moving on. Heavy rains have fallen for about ten weeks."

Hints on the Work.—No. 1.

The demand for a fuller declaration by the Church of its policy as it relates to the treatment of the much agitated race issue, having been fairly met, it seems proper that we should now retire from the field of controversy and address ourselves to the work before us. There are souls to be saved, churches and Sunday-schools to be organized, houses of worship and school buildings to be erected and improved, young people to be educated and trained for Christian usefulness, money to be raised to send the Gospel to the heathen, homes to build up after the scriptural pattern, and a nobler charity to be cultivated among all classes of men. I do not want to be understood as intimating that these objects have hitherto been neglected on our part. I am well aware that at no time has our interest been so absorbed in discussion as to call us aside from our great mission, and yet all will agree with me in affirming that it is possible for us to do much more and better work than heretofore. But how shall we go about its accomplishment? How shall we plan so as to find the way to the hearts of the people and lead them to the forefront of holy endeavor? For an answer to the question we would do well to wait upon our knees. Divine wisdom alone is capable of guiding aright in a matter of such vital importance. One hint from the Lord is worth more than a thousand from man, but we are not to despise the little aid which may be derived from the latter. With this view I undertake the task of presenting some thoughts as indicated by the caption which heads this paper, hoping, at the same time, that by so doing I may in a small measure, at least, aid the brethren who are my co-workers in the Lord's vineyard. I suppose it may be taken for granted that all persons, white and colored, now members of the Methodist Episcopal Church have an indisputable right to be in the Church, so long as it is their choice to remain in it, provided no crime has been committed which would justify their being expelled. On this basis we can afford to draw close enough to each other to take counsel and devise ways and means for carrying forward the common cause to certain victory. There is no doubt as to our being able to advance all along the line if we would part with strife and, instead of trying to keep up the folly of making the separation wider, seek a more harmonious relation, such as would enable us to show an unbroken front to the host of opposers who contend against us night and day. Why need the colored brother be ashamed of his white brother, or why need the white brother be ashamed of his colored brother? Are they not soldiers of the cause fighting for the conquest of the world for Christ? As such, can they withhold the word of good cheer, while walking the sentinel beat with only a step between them? This has to do only with the amenities of our Christian life. It is not even distantly related to that bugbear of parlor and bed-chamber social equality which has of late haunted the sanctum of a Southern Methodist editor in Nashville, Tennessee. There is a broad distinction, which the dullest penetration might discover, between my obligation to show a spirit of good will toward a brother and to treat him with Christian courtesy in all my dealings with him, and my obligation to welcome one as a guest to my parlor and bed-chamber. They rest upon entirely different grounds. I am bound to show charity to all, and at all times, but the hospitality of my bed and board, however humble it may be, none may enjoy except such as I may elect. To others I am free to grant the liberty I claim for myself. I submit if it would not be wiser, since our policy has been determined, for all the workers in the South to meet on a broad, Christian platform and concentrate their undivided forces upon the work that shall stand as an enduring monument of our unfaltering devotion to Christ, to humanity and to Methodism. It is idle to talk of expediency after a sort, of sailing with furled colors and of marching with our drums muffled. We have nothing to do with encouraging stratagem; leave that to unbelievers. We are in favor of making our cause respectable by proving that it is manly and Christ-like. I leave off for the present by saying that, if at the close of the present quadrennium, it is found that there exists clamor and dissatisfaction, growing out of the arrangement which the Church has deemed just and proper to make, I hope none will be able to charge it to our colored brethren. We have no quarrel with any one. We would be on the most friendly terms with all. If our proposal is met with coldness and our presence shunned as if we were moral lepers, the blame shall rest right where it belongs. Be that as it may, we have still a work, a grand work to do, upon which I shall offer some reflection in my next.

Closing Exercises of the Morristown Seminary and Normal Institute, May 15, 1884.

This institution was established in the fall of 1881, and as a school of higher grade for the freedmen in East Tennessee and sections adjacent. It is under the auspicies of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The present value of the property is $7000. The dormitory, built last year, cost $3500, will accommodate 60 students. It contains 22 rooms well furnished. More room is needed to accommodate the students. We hope by fall to have ample room for all who may wish to attend. We need a dwelling for the principal and teachers, and the school house needs repairing and to be refurnished by fall. Students have been in attendance from six States this year; 29 have been converted this spring. The school has been successfully managed, and will continue in the charge of the present teachers. The closing exercises were good. The Morristown Weekly Gazette, a Democratic paper, and the Weekly Pilot, a Republican paper, spoke favorably of the school and its success.

There are thirteen members of the Board of Trustees, viz: W. C. Graves, chairman; Bishop H. W. Warren, Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust, J. S. Hill, B. H. Johnson, S. J. Harris, E. Provine, O. Hypshire, Hon. J. Brown, Hon. A. H. Gregg, H. Walker, Esq., M. Fulton, Esq., R. Thomas, Esq. At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Seminary a series of resolutions was adopted as follows:

Whereas, Such is the increase in the attendance of students in this Seminary that the buildings are greatly insufficient to accommodate all who desire to attend; therefore,

Resolved, That it is essential to the prosperity of the school that a dormitory for the use of young men, and a dwelling for the principal and teachers be erected during the coming vacation.

Resolved, That the Freedmen's Aid Society be requested to make a special effort to aid in the erection of these buildings, and that a special plea be made to the Church at large for aid in our efforts to meet the demands of this important and growing school.

Resolved, That the principal, Rev. J. S. Hill, be requested to visit the North in the interest of our school, and make public and personal solicitations for aid.

Resolved, That the East Tennessee annual conference be urged to make a strong effort to raise $5000 as a centennial offering, as an educational fund to be used either as an endowment or in the erection of a building to be called the Centenary building of the E. T. Conference.

Whereas, The Morristown Seminary is located at a central point in East Tennessee in the midst of a great number of our people who are entirely dependent on our Seminary for an education; and,

Whereas, Our nearest school is 230 miles distant, so that it is impossible for many to attend them. One of the great needs of our section is a school of domestic economy, where the girls can be taught household economy; therefore,

Resolved, That we earnestly plead with the ladies of the Home Missionary Society to establish such a school in connection with our Seminary at as early a date as possible.

Whereas, We are highly gratified at the rapid progress made by the students in the various departments of study; and,

Whereas, We deem it a God-send to have engaged the services of so able a corps of Christian teachers as Rev. J. S. Hill and wife, Mrs. A. H. Stearns and Miss N. McGinley; therefore,

Resolved, That we approve of the present management of the school as being practical and wise.

Bishop Simpson.

The death of the senior and well beloved Bishop Matthew Simpson has sent a thrill of anguish to the remotest bound of Methodism, and throughout the length and breadth of the land men and women yesterday hastened to blend their grief and to do him honor in the most impressive memorial services. In Cincinnati the usual services in the Methodist churches were dispensed with, and pastors and people joined in union memorial services at St. Paul Methodist Church. The place was heavily draped in its chancel, organ and pulpit, while conspicuous was placed an excellent portrait of the Bishop in his younger years.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Starr announced the opening hymn:

"It is not death to die,
To leave this weary road.
And 'mid the brotherhood on high
To be at home with God"

Rev. Dr. Bayliss followed in fervent and appropriate prayer.

Rev. F. G. Mitchell read the 90th Psalm for a Scripture lesson.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust announced the second hymn, after which Rev. John J. Reed read a letter from Rev. Dr. Joyce, regretting his inability to be present, and expressing deepest sympathy in all the services.

Rev. Dr. Bayliss then announced the fact that Cincinnati Methodism would be represented at the funeral of Bishop Simpson, which will take place to-morrow in Philadelphia, by a splendid floral tribute, and in response Dr. Bayliss had received the following telegram:

"To W. F. Thorne, Edward Sargent, Wm. Glenn and Dr. Bayliss:

"Mrs. Simpson accepts Cincinnati's tribute with mournful gratitude, and your request to obtain it in this city is under competent advice, and will write you.

W. A. RICHARDS."

Bishop Bowman, of St. Louis, then addressed the audience, and after expressing his profound esteem and personal affection for Bishop Simpson, he declared that in the brief space allowed it was simply impossible to do justice to the high character and life of the Bishop. He was a great character and had accomplished an immense work. He was born in Cadiz, Ohio, and was seventy-three years of old. When 33 years of age he commenced the profession of a physician, but soon became convinced of the necessity of preaching the Gospel; but being the sole support of his mother he dreaded to tell her of his changed purpose, but when he had done so she at once thanked God for calling her precious son into the ministry. In 1839 the Bishop was called to the Presidency of Asbury, now DePauw College, Indiana, which relation he grandly filled, as he has has every other station in his life; and it is considered that the present reputation of the institution is mainly owing to this magnificent man's work. When thirty-seven years of age he became editor of the Western Christian Advocate, in this city, and at forty-one years of age he was elected Bishop.

Bishop Bowman greatly exalted his intellectual and spiritual power and his immense influence over his audiences, both in this country and England, where he created the most profound sentiment as a conscientious Christian man. He added: "In the midst of his usefulness and activities God has called him up higher. His name may pass from lips, but his life and memory can never pass out of hearts. This influence and power will reside in the American Church forever. Glory be to God for the precious hope in the death of His children."

Bishop Wiley said: "I am not here as a mourner; I feel the tenderest sympathy for the family of Bishop Simpson. It is a desolate home to-night. It was a beautiful, almost a model home, and this is the first great shadow that has ever fallen upon it. Bishop Simpson stands at the head of the great church—in all the line of Methodist history. His eloquence was wonderful, his power remarkable. Dr. Durbin was more classical, reaching the intellect, but never reached the climax of power that Bishop Simpson long since attained. Twenty years ago a reunion of the Cincinnati and Ohio Conference took place in Chillicothe. It was in the war. We reached there in the morning, and wondered what should be the programme for the afternoon; and it was decided to invite Bishop Simpson to deliver a lecture on "Our Country." Every eye was fixed on the man, and every heart touched and melted. A flag was near; the Bishop touched it accidentally, and he caught it as it fell, and, holding it up, he made one of the grandest apostrophes I ever heard in my life, and the people who thronged the house became a seething mass of humanity, weeping, yelling, roaring, and carried beyond all control of feeling. I afterward asked him the secret of this power, and he told me that he could not explain it; that it was always a surprise to himself; but I believe it was his profound genius, inspired by the Holy Ghost. He was pure, simple, honest, true, and a holy man of God, and while devoted to his own Church, possessed a broad catholicity for other denominations. The Methodist Church is stronger for his life and for his death. He has touched the the highest point of existence.

Bishop Walden added many interesting facts and incidents that had been the result of personal friendship and observation. He said it was doubtful if ever Bishop Simpson served the Church or Methodism with as much acceptance and power as during the nine years connected with Asbury College. He was a man of marvelous intellectual and spiritual strength and power. At one time in Lawrenceburg he preached a sermon, and so was his audience wrought upon that many exclamations were forced from the lips of his audience, some of whom left the house in an ecstacy of highly wrought feelings. Rev. Dr. Bayliss, having been at much pains to gain an account of the last sickness and sayings of the Bishop, had given the same into Bishop Walden's hands, who communicated to the waiting audience that which most of all was full of interest, and a profound silence fell upon the people as it was stated that the family of the Bishop Simpson were busy in preparation to spend the summer at Clinton Springs, when the husband and father was at once cut down, and in eight days was unconscious and passed away. The change came swift and sharp. He said to his to his friends, "I am a sinner saved by grace—Jesus-Oh, to be like Him." "To you, who believe He is precious, precious, more than precious." This sounded as a refrain after his psalm of life. He would frequently exclaim, "My Savior." His wife repeated Chas. Wesley's hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," when the Bishop caught up the last line; "Oh, receive my soul at last," His very last utterance was, "Glory be to Jesus," one that should be embalmed in every Methodist heart.

Dr. Comegys, who was requested to speak, was at one time the family physician to the Bishop, and said that though no public speaker yet he could never forget that thirty-eight years ago how the Bishop encouraged him as a young physician, and invited him, until his practice was established, to render assistance on the Advocate, of which he was then editor. Dr. Comegys added that he came to weep, not to speak. He knew the Bishop's interior life. He felt that a mouruful lamentation was coming up from the whole land. He believed the strength of the man resulted from the great peace of God which filled his soul, of which he he was early possessed. It was that that upheld and sustained him in every responsible station, as Prasident, editor and Bishop. It was a pure soul, flowing through his intellect. When Bishop Simpson entered a church he filled it, and the people filled him, and the magnetic but silent response of the audience inspired him. The man had no selfishness in him. He labored for his church. It was a great happiness to know the Bishops of our church—Hamline, Clark, Simpson. A gladator once said: "My brethren, I am about to die, and I salute you," so said the Bishop; "I am to die, and I salute you." Glory be to Jesus.

Rev. J. J. Reed then introduced Father Glenn, as old a man as the present century. Father Glenn said in 1840 he took his oldest son to Asbury where Bishop Simpson was President, and this led to his first acquaintance. I took three days to get there in a buggy. The Bishop was a tall, spare young man, but possessed of most wonderful power. He gave character to the noble institution, and to-day the college is indebted more to him for its present reputation than to any other officer. He was the most perfect and manly character, and has stamped his life on every section of the country.

Rev. Dr. Krehbiel then announced the closing hymn, commencing as follows:

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last!"

The very solemn and thrilling impressive service was closed with the benediction by Bishop Bowman, now senior Bishop of the Methodist Church.

The following ministers, among others, were present: Rev. J. J. Reed, Dr. Bayliss, Dr. Stowe, Dr. Krehbiel, Dr. Rust, Bishop Walden, J. A. Storey, B. Lane, T. J. Harris, A. Hamilton, F. G. Mitchell, J. B. Cook, of France; H. Liebhart, Dr. Brown, F. A. Archibald, T. C. T. Crum.—Commercial Gazette.

Last Hours of Bishop Simpson.

For the Western Rev. James Morrow, of Philadelphia, furnished the following account of the closing scenes in the life of our great bishop. It will be read with profound and tearful interest. Bishop Simpson died as he lived—A CONQUEROR.

It is well known that at the close of the General Conference, hopes were rife that the great bishop might linger among us many years. So marked was his improvement that arrangements were made for him to summer with his family at Clifton Spring, N. Y. Trunks were packed and business matters settled, and all hearts, in the now desolate home, beat high with expectation. Sudden and sharp came the disappointment. On Saturday, June 6th, the gastric trouble, from which he had suffered, returned with increased venom. His collapse was immediate and beyond remedy. The greatest names in the medical skill of America—Dr. Agnew, well known as one of President Garfield's physicians, and Dr. DeCosta, of Jefferson College, were swiftly summoned to the aid of Dr. Harlow, the family physician. It is a satisfaction to the friends as well as to the stricken family that everything that love could inspire and skill effect, was attempted for our beloved bishop. But all in vain. The shafts that before had fallen pointless at his feet now pierced his heart. After eight days of suffering and great weakness he became unconscious, and lingering thus for two more days "he fell on sleep."

There is naturally a great desire to know Bishop Simpson's last words. Were they absent, it would not affect our judgment of the man, nor our convictions as to his destiny. His life is his best testimony. Yet happily many of his last sayings are preserved. They linger in our hearts, they console the bereaved, and they will be embalmed in the recollection of those who knew him well and loved him. They are certain to strengthen the bonds of holy trust and love that link us to our ever living and ever loving Lord.

Bishop Simpson was usually reticent as to his religious experience. When, eagle-like, he swept into the loftiest reaches of human thought, into that rarified atmosphere where sanctified imaginings tremble into religious ecstasy, we all knew that he did not preach an unknown or untried Gospel. But in private life he talked more of Christ's love to us than of his love to Christ.

It was but natural that those nearest and dearest should seek to have some parting testimonies as to the keeping power of the Lord Jesus. The following utterances are to be understood as answers to questions, and were given most gladly and distinctly. They were spoken at intervals from Wednesday, the 11th inst., until Sunday, the 15th.

When asked by a member of his family as to his hope, he answered "I am a sinner saved by grace," and added, "Jesus!—O, to be like him!" At another time he said, "To you that believe he is precious." Then with stronger voice he broke forth into holy rapture, and exclaimed, "Precious, precious, more than precious!" The writer of this notice, highly honored with the friendship of the family, saw Mrs. Simpson a few minutes after the good bishop had spoken these jubilant words. While her heart was breaking, she murmured amid her sobs, "Precious, precious, more than precious." She might well say, "No one knew him as we did at home. He was so good and kind. We thought he would be spared to us a little longer." Then she turned again to his comforting words about his Lord: "Precious, precious, more than precious." They sound as a refrain after his "Psalm of life."

There were occasions when, without being questioned, his fervent exclamations indicated that his thoughts and his love were with his Lord. "My Savior! my Savior!" again and again repeated, indicated that the words welled up from a great fount of feeling and delight. When the familiar verse was quoted—

"O would He more of Heaven bestow,
And let the vessels break,
And let our ransomed spirits go
To grasp the God we seek!
In rapturous awe on him to gaze,
Who bought the sight for me,
And shout and wonder at his grace
Through all eternity"—

he repeated the last line "Through all eternity," and his fine eye kindled with "the light that never was on sea or shore." It seemed to thrill and fill him with anticipations of the beatific vision of God and the holy employments before the eternal throne.

On the last morning—that memorable Sabbath morning—about 3 a. m., Mrs. Simpson quoted that grand stanza, by Charles Wesley.

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly;
While the nearer waters roll,
While the tempest still is high,
Hide me, O my savior, hide,
Till the storm of life is past,
Safe into the haven guide,
O receive my soul at last;"

Once more he repeated the last line:

"O receive my soul at last."

No one will misunderstand the glimpse given into the beautiful home life, and the tenderest relation between husband and wife, in this moment of supreme interest and of holiest love. Here, as in the life of our Master himself, the most human is the most divine. In these closing hours the great bishop embraced and kissed his beloved companion and said, again and again, "My dearest, my dearest," and thus tried to comfort her, and prepare her for the inevitable parting. Then, after a brief interval, he returned to the thought, of all others the most consolatory to a dying saint, and repeated once more:

"Oh, receive my soul at last!"

Shortly after this his last conscious words were spoken:

"YES! YES! GLORY BE TO JESUS!"

Bishop Simpson's last words! They deserve to be embalmed with his memory, in the hearts of all Methodists, and in the hearts of all that love their Lord. They will be quoted a thousand times during the coming days, as a fitting testimony to the saving power of the Lord Jesus, and they will become familiar in our mouths as household words, for they are the last words of him we loved so well.

Immediately after these notable words were spoken, his son-in-law, who is a son in love as well, the Rev. C. W. Bnoy, began to read the 113th Psalm. This was the Bishop's favorite Psalm. Its familiar words were probably the last he heard. During the reading he fell into a comatose state, and although he lingered until Wednesday morning, he spoke no more, nor gave any sign of recognition.

"Thus passed the strong, heroic soul away."

None but his family were present at the final moment. Nor can any one regret that he who belonged so much to the Church, and did so much for his fellow man, died within the inner circle of his beloved family. From many hearts in many lands the still voice of prayer will go up that the stricken widowed heart may be comforted by the assurance of the Divine nearness and sheltered within the Everlasting Arms. Nor will they fail to commend to the brotherhood of God the children that in the touch of the dark hour feel that they are bereaved indeed.

Rev. Dr. Kynett and James Long Esq., intimate friends of the departed, entered the room a few moments after the good Bishop had breathed his last. Together they closed his eyes. Arrangements are being made for the funeral. It promises to call forth the widest expression of the universal sorrow in this city of Brotherly Love over his death. It is regarded as a calamity for the whole city.

Eloquent and earnest in the pulpit and on the platform, large of brain and tender of heart, trusty champion of the right and sturdy foe to all wrong, ripe scholar, unequaled orator, far seeing statesman, and great ecclesiastic—all men of all the Churches feel and say, We shall not soon look upon his like again.

BY PROF. T. B. SNOWDEN, OF THE CENTENARY BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

But broad scholarship is just as needful to-day as ever. In France and Germany scepticism is just as rife as it was in Greece and Italy in Paul's time, and the leaders in the sceptical field are among the brightest stars in the literary skies. The same is true in our own country, especially in New England, the seat of learning, where the glare-eyed, "seven-headed and ten-horned beast" walks about in broad daylight. And it is well for us to remember that the beast is not scared away by shaking a red rag. He can be conquered only by giving him harder blows than he can give, well-timed and skillfully directed.

2. A collegiate education is a necessary qualification for the pulpit, because of the nature of the minister's work. When we have particular work to be done, whether it be architectural, medical, legal or scholastic, we select the very best workmen we can find, and we are accounted wise for so doing. If your wife, son, or daughter were dangerously sick you would not be content with one who simply bore the name of doctor to take charge of the case; you would want the best physician you could get. The life of a loved one is too precious for you to be satisfied with anything less. The human soul cannot be estimated unless we can value the price paid for it, the life of the Son of God. Thus the minister has to deal with priceless objects, and should be the wisest of the wise.

If he who deals with the body should be wise and skilled in the art of healing, surely he who has to do with the soul should not be less skillful in the divine art. One slight mistake of a physician might result in the loss of the patient's life, which would be sad indeed. The life of the body must end, and death resulting a doctor's mistake might be looked upon as a natural consequence. But a mistake on the part of a minister might terminate in the loss of many priceless souls, which otherwise might have been avoided.

When we look this question squarely in the face we need not wonder why the Master kept the apostles in college till they completed their course, and then would not suffer them to go to work till after Commencement-day. "But tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high" was the instruction of the great teacher. Their Commencement took place ten days after their final examination: and such a Commencement has never been witnessed before nor since. Brethren, do you believe that the apostles went out from that upper room unlearned men? He who thinks so must either be ignorant himself or ignorant of the fact that the apostles were in college more than three years, and graduated with the highest honors on the Day of Pentecost, and could "talk with every man in his own tongue."

The minister of the nineteenth century should have a college education in order that he may be properly fitted for the great work of saving souls. We select the best scholars as teachers in our schools, because we believe the development of the mind is of so much importance that the best scholars should do the work, and our belief is sound. But when it comes to teachers of Holy Writ, some think that a man can go from plow, workshop, or farm into the pulpit, without any previous preparation and preach. He may go there and make a noise, but making a noise is not preaching; or he may take another man's sermon and deliver it as his own, but it is hard to find the shoes of another that will fit us. Wear your own shoes, even if the soles are thin and run down at the heels.

When you find a young man who says that the Lord has called him to preach, and he has not an education, ask him if he is willing to spend six, eight or ten years in school at hard work. If he will undergo such a test, and comes out a bright and shining light, you can rest assured that the Lord has called him to the sacred office. But, on the other hand, if he thinks he knows enough, and will not make the needed preparation, we believe it would be right to let him stay right where he is—call or no call. It is often the case that a call to the ministry comes from man only. We had several calls from men long before the Lord called us, but did not accept.

Christ said, "Go ye into all the world; teach all nations;" but how can a man teach others if he does not know as much as they? If there is but one college graduate in the community, that one should be the minister. Sometimes ignorant men and crafty ones ask the minister very foolish and unlearned questions. All such questions should be passed by unnoticed. But honest persons will ask the minister questions that are weighty and far-reaching in their import. To overlook such questions would be unwise, and to answer them unintelligently would be still worse. To know how to answer these inquiries intelligently requires broad scholarship, joined with experience, prudence and deep piety. An unwise answer in such a case might result in the loss of a soul that otherwise might have been saved.

3. Let us now consider the point mentioned under the first answer, namely, that "Unlearned ministers will do to preach to ignorant people." Is that true? Is it true that the greater the darkness the less light is needed to dispel it? When do we need the most light, on a moonlight night or on a dark one? The darker the night the more light is necessary is a well-known fact, and needs no argument to prove it. The same is true with regard to ignorance, which is darkness of the mind. Darkness is simply the absence of light.

The unlearned should have the best scholars the church can afford, and they must have them if they are to be brought out of the ignorances, vices, superstitions, and undue excitement in their worship which have so completely covered them up for long years. As darkness cannot drive away darkness, neither can ignorance displace illiteracy. But some one may say, that a man may know a great deal without going through college. That is true; but if he had gone through college he would have known a great deal more, and the brighter the light the more darkness it will dispel.

The sicker the man, the more skillful should the physician be; the poorer the man the more help he needs; the weaker he is, the stronger should the supporting one be; if blind, he needs the seeing eyes of another. Hence it follows that the ignorant masses need the intelligent man of God more than the learned. They do not get college graduates; but we seldom get what we need most. Yet we should not stop contending for the right, though we get it not. It is sometimes said that such a man does not know much, but he will do for such a place, because the people there do not know much. Such a view is false and ruinous, and should "not be once named among you as becometh saints."

If an ignorant and unskillful doctor were sent to attend the ignorant upon the ground that they, being ignorant, did not need a learned one, all would cry out against the fraud thus practiced. Then, in the name of heaven, I ask, why should any people, on account of their illiteracy, be imposed upon by an unlearned physician of souls? Justice demands a halt on this line; reason calls out for a change of base and to start out on a new line. If men desire to be teachers of the divine art, they should first receive the best education possible, in order that they may be competent to teach others.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, JUNE 26, 1884.

Important to Agents.

DEAR BRETHREN: At the close of the first six months, and the second quarter of 1884, we find it necessary to call the attention of many of our agents to the following facts:

1. It is understood that you are not to become indebted to this office for papers.

2. We requested agents to receive small payments from subscribers, and forward some money to his office on account each quarter.

3. The responsibility of an agent means that where assumed, the agent is to pay this office every dollar due on the list sent in by him, at a time not later than his annual conference. Any postponement or delay is rightly considered by us as an act of bad faith.

4. The subscription money collected for the church paper can not properly be diverted to other purposes, either as an individual or a church loan, with the expectation of making it good at conference. The money collected for the paper belongs to the paper, and should be promptly forwarded to us as rapidly as collected. Small amounts are always acceptable, and we allow a commission to pastors for the reason that it costs something to forward the money.

We do not desire lists on account with agents who are unwilling to comply with these terms in any particular. We cannot wait until the end of the year for all of the money each agent owes, we must have some during the year to pay the expense of publishing. Again we urge you to proceed at once with the payment of accounts.

PHILIPS & HUNT.
32 Natchez St., New Orleans, La.

The Elevator is a bright, newsy little sheet, published by the students of Clark University. It comes to us filled with good things.

The Lexington conference proposes to raise $2,000 for the endowment fund of Central Tennessee College.

Dr. Smart's Lamp of Life will shine from Detroit in a new dress of type, becoming its spirit of pure Methodistic Christianity.

J. C. Eckles, presiding elder Holly Springs district, Mississippi, "We welcome you heartily as editor of our organ."

Camp meetings are now in full blast. Let them bring souls into salvation, and honor upon the Christian name, and thus let them proceed.

They are going to build, small cheap cottages on the Clark University grounds for use by married students. The rental of which will be applied to college purposes.

Mr. [illegible] Henderson a colored graduate from Vermont University will spend two years studying in Germany and afterwards devote himself to educational work in the South.

The first conference of the year, the Louisville district, Lexington, will assemble at Frankfort, Kentucky, June 25th. The successor of Dr. Taylor as presiding elder, will possibly be announced at the close of the session.

It is now summer, it will soon be winter again. The wise will make hay while the sun shines. There will be winter fuel, clothes, the pastor, the church, and the benevolent causes to be provided for; let us look on these things.

How can a Lodge of Masons or Odd Fellows or any other order expect to retain Christian members on their roll, if meetings for lectures, degrees or initiation are held on the Sabbath? Is this practice not directly at variance with the pledge required by all societies? That no other duty be required of a member which is in conflict with his domestic, social or religious duties?

The Negro and His Relation to the White Race.

We have before us the first volume, thirty-eighth number of the Waller County Courier. It was printed in Hempstead, Texas, May 31, 1884. There is in it an article without the authors name attached, and also an extract from McMillan's Magazine. The first treating on the colored race as a whole, and the second refering to the present status of that race, especially the women: The article refered to does not exhibit the least partiality for the Negro race. The Courier seems to incline somewhat to the view of "Senex" its correspondent. The inspiration of this outflow of passion must have been the killing of a colored man in Hempstead by white men, and of a white man in Austin, Texas, by a colored man. "Senex" has gathered up about all the hard things that he ever heard said of the Negro, and put the worst of them into his article. Of course a paper of that kind ought not to appear here. And hence we do not give it place. We should be glad always to insert a calm discussion of the worst side of Negro life and character. We know the Negro has faults and plenty of them. And we believe that Senex is stating what he thinks is true, and we, for this reason, would like to place within his reach and within the reach of McMillan's Magazine and the Courier, a few points which are at least of a character suitable for presentation to their readers if they desire to consider the other side of the subject. As to the Negro women, "Dr. Crummel's great document" on that question well nigh exhausts the subject. She has her faults; she makes too much of her freedom, and truly has too little stimulation and protection for her virtue. But, such articles as these we refer to, do not reflect the deliberate judgment of any considerable number of Southern white people. They know the Negro craves to be on friendly terms with them. They often trust him as they do not trust each other. The home of the true Negro has many a time furnished an asylum for the unfortunate of the white race. In times of danger to themselves white men with readiness confide secrets of vital personal importance to Negroes, even without previous acquaintance with them. We regret the taking of life, we wish that it could in all cases be prevented, and would so rigidly enforce the law as to deter men of murderous intent. We believe there can be peace between the races if each will try to regard the other as worthy of justice, fair-play, and encouragement in all moral enterprises. The Negro's society has been the worst in every community. He cannot learn morals by contact with the purest and best of people, he must therefore pull up with all the corrupting influences of enforced evil association clinging to him. Do you wonder that the growth is really slow? Though comparatively his progress is the most rapid. Indeed what is said of the Negroes of Hempstead were it true, would afford a striking contrast to, and reverse the truth in the most of other places. There must be local conditions which conduce to the development of such Negro abnormalities in Hempstead if they exist there. Do they exist there?

The relation of the Negro to the white race is growing more cordial and brotherly every hour. We probably claim more for the Negro than the Courier is prepared to admit at present. We nevertheless hope to see the day when the distance between our view of this matter shall be obliterated. The Negro is free and he is a citizen; whether this was right or wrong need not be considered, as it never will be changed. The question before us is as to his fitness for freedom, is the Negro able to survive and prove useful in a state of freedom? We say yes, and appeal to the facts in his favor for proof.

Editorial Perambulations.

Baltimore is not only a monumental but a Methodist city as well. Besides the white, there are eight churches of the Washington conference here. There is about thirty colored churches in the city to accommodate an Afro-American population of 60,000 more or less. This population probably rent 10,000 houses at an average rental of $10 each; paying hence an aggregate annual rent of $100,000, and according to the the population this will by proportionately true of other large cities.

The Methodist preachers in the city belonging to the Baltimore and Washington Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, meet weekly in Ministerial Conferences, but they do not meet at the same time nor place. There are two other Baltimore Conferences of the African and Methodist Episcopal Church South, both of which hold separate meetings. The number would probably be too large for one meeting, even if there was a disposition to have it so. Rev. D. H. Carroll, D.D., represents the Baltimore M. E. Conference's publishing interest. They occupy a large four-story building with a brown front on Baltimore street, the most popular business street in the city. They keep constantly on hand a large and well assorted stock of Methodist literature.

The Episcopalians have two colored churches here. One of them a very handsome stone building; with a fashionable congregation and a white rector. The Presbyterians are also represented here. The Baptists and African Methodists have several churches and are fairly prosperous. Our own church, however, excels all other denominations for the number of its churches, the size and fineness of its buildings as well as for the numerical strength of its membership among the colored people. Sharp Street Church is the oldest building, but Centennial the oldest congregation. The Metropolitan is perhaps the finest; John Wesley the next. Children's Day was observed in all our churches here, and with great credit to the several schools participating. The John Hopkins College is located in this city. It is not specially devoted to the education of any particular race, but so far public sentiment has been a law unto itself, and no colored student has ventured to enter it. The Centenary Biblical Institute is also located here. It is a monument of John H. Goucher's liberality, and its patronizing Conferences are the Baltimore, Washington, Delaware, and Wilmington of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The patronage is about equally divided between them. The Washington and Delaware Conferences furnish the students; the Baltimore and Wilmington Conferences furnish the money. The faculty is also divided between the races. Rev. Dr. Frysinger, Professors J. Emory, Round and Mrs. Goddin are white, and Prof. Snowden and Miss Dennis are colored. They are fully competent for the work assigned them, and are assidiously engaged in doing it. Their commencement season is now on. They make very few graduates in consequence of the high standard of the Institution and the difficulty of keeping students through the term. The future prospects of this Institution are exceedingly bright. Prof. Snowden is a graduate of Boston University. He is a most genial and companionable gentleman. A number of the advanced students have gone from this Institution to Lincoln University and one to Howard. We do not see the necessity for such a course, or even the propriety of it, with such facilites as the Methodist Episcopal Church has to offer all her men and women—to secure a liberal education. Congregational and Presbyterian schools do not, and should not make good Methodist scholars. Patterson and David Hill Parks are splendid summer resorts, and are usually filled on Sundays. Street cars offer special inducements for this kind of Sabbath desecration by reducing the fare on clear Sundays.

Rev. W. T. Harris, our host, is a most companionable gentleman. Various pastors gave us cordial reception in the city. We were permitted to renew some old, and form some new acquaintances. The aggregate value of the Washington Conference Church property in this city is about $209,500; the aggregate indebtedness $35,000, leaving unincumbered $174,500 worth of property which they expect to remove this year as a Centennial offering. There are three colored public halls in the city, two of which belong to Sharp Street and Metropolitan churches. Young colored men of the city have an elegant club room. The ministers are wrestling with the problem of how to make a combination camp-meeting succeed better this year than last. The laymen seem disposed to take control of the matter. Hon. John M. Langston addressed a large Blaine and Logan ratification meeting here last Monday evening. Frank Langston, who was indicted for killing a man in Washington, has been acquitted of the charge first alleged, and is held on the charge of intent to kill. Our churches in Washington City are all ably pastored and succeeding fairly. We preached at Asbury on Sunday night, took a run through the President's House and Public Buildings and visited Congress on Monday. We met our old friend Dr. Nailor at Foundry Church and attended Preacher's Meeting there. The first view on arriving, and the last view on leaving Washington, D. C., is the tower of the great Metropolitan Church; which might be called Chaplain McCabe's MONUMENT.

Colored Leadership.

A correspondent of the Cleveland Gazette speaks of the Rev. C. Smith as "the coming leader of the Negroes, and as the "successor" of "Hon. Frederick Douglass." To all of which we beg permission to remark, that in our opinion it is entirely too soon to select Mr. Douglass' "successor," as a leader of the American Negroes; we hope that he will be his own successor for several years yet. To our thought, when in his representative character he realized his ideal of freedom and equality, by inter marrying with another than his own race, he did the colored race a positive wrong thereby. By common usage of the word Negro, all persons of more than one-eighth African blood are identified for all race purposes with the Negro. Hence the assertion of intermediation to that race as a measure of defense is simply to evade the issue, and at the same time, to admit that if a Negro it would be improper for him to do as he did. With his representative character out of the question we should be content to think in silence of that, as we have of many similar cases. But in spite of all denials, a so representative act, it is one which is calculated to cast a reflection upon the fitness, and depress the ambition in the Negro woman to fit herself for companionship to the best Negro gentlemen. If she concludes that she cannot marry the best men of her own race, what place in society is it that the Negro woman will then take?

We cannot afford to be misunderstood as to our sentiments at this point. Any Negro leadership which leaves the Negro woman out is misleading. It is a cheap way to show our esteem for her by saying hard things of white men because "they do not respect her." We must teach them to respect the women of our race, by the manly and gallant respect we ourselves show in all our conduct toward them.

We dare not fail to say that Mr. Douglass married a lady eminent for her principles, character, and attainments, his own equal in all these respects. Neither dare we fail to say that colored ladies were to be found equally endowed and qualified for the duties of wife to him, and that it is our deliberate judgment that under the circumstances he ought to have found one of them. Mr. Douglass is the Negro King, and the marriage of a King must be adpated to the circumstances of his kingdom as well as the sentiments of his heart.

His marriage was a grief to his race, and a humiliation to the women thereof.

But it is done, and we must make the best of it and pass on. He is still, in an important sense the leading Negro in the country, and will be so while he lives. As to Mr. Smith, he is not qualified for leadership except as a gifted speaker. He lacks fixity, stability, and solidity of character. He is too hasty, ambitious and radical for a leader of the Negroes at this time or any such time.

For our success zeal must be "according to knowledge." Radical leadership is dangerous and destructive to our pending interests. It may be right, but it certainly is imprudent to have our words in the potential and imperative and our deeds in the subjunctive. Our hope of permanent prosperity as a race, demands the most cordial interrace relations both political, industrial, and ecclessiastical with all other races in this country. We must draw from them recruits in wealth, culture and numbers because they have and we have not there yet in any adequate degree. It is self evident that the leadership which shall accomplish for us these not only desirable but absolutely essential results must be a conciliatory one. There are elements of fitness in Mr. Fortune of the New York Globe, if he does not lessen them by over much denominational rigidness. Mr. William Still has all the needful qualities he is a Christian of broad, and liberal but loyal views. If he would consent to come before and cultivate the acquaintance of the people by personal contact, they would like him. We suggest to the authorities that it would be a wise use of power to send Mr. Still into a few of the Southwestern States this fall.

He represents all the qualities which affect successful Negro leadership under such conditions as those with which we are battling. Mr. Still is probably out of the question because his inclinations run in a different direction. We think we have studied this question closely, and being without political ambition can decide fairly. Our conclusion is that when Frederick Douglass ceases then Richard T. Greener will begin to lead, if he shall be found possessing Christianity without fanaticism, and scholarship without bigotry. Our coming leader must be a father and a guide for the Negro. He must not pe a driver or a dupe. There is no vacancy at present, however the old "Nestor" is still there.

The Delaware Conference.

The Delaware Conference was organized in 1864; it then had 4,871 members, it now contains about 15,000 members. The increase in churches and schools have been equal to or greater than that in members. Hon Joseph M. Bennett, of Philadelphia, bought and donated to this Conference the handsome building on Melvin street, Philadelphia, in which the congregation of Zoor now worship. The past year has been marked by a spirit of revival in most of the churches. Rev. Isaac H. White is presiding elder of the Philadelphia District, he has travelled 8,400 miles by railroad, held 92 quarterly meetings and preached 91 sermons in the past year. This is an average year's work for the presiding elders in that Conference. They have churches in all parts of Pennsylvania not included in the Washington Conference, and an actual or nominal jurisdiction over churches throughout New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. They have a church at Cape May and this must be an object of especial desirability for this season of the year. Our members going from the South to the East would do well to secure letters to one of the churches in either the Washington or the Deleware Conferences. If they go Westward the Lexington, Missouri, St. Louis, South Kansas Conferences have numerous colored congregations, and where this is not the case they will find a cordial reception if their life exemplifies their relationship to the church. This is of course the first qualification for a cordial reception into any Christian church.

Practical Polygamy Outside of Utah.

More wives or women than one at the same time is practical polygamy.

Where there is no marriage granting the even semblance of legality to the women in and protection to the issue of such polygamous relations, it is worse than Mormon polygamy itself.

Call it social evil, or by other names rendered familliar and in certain sections popular among the colored people, if you will.

Yet it is the same open ulcer upon the moral constitution, vitiating, and poisoning the public heart and conscience. It is no less than legalized polpgamy or unblushting adultery, and it must be supressed by the strong hand of righteous laws, firmly administered, and by unyielding Christian example.

Ministers no less than magistrates are charged with the responsible duty of uprooting this dangerous, pernicious and widely prevalent form of vice, and expelling it from the land especially the church.

How can the Grand Lodge of Free Masons in the State of Ohio enter and exercise Masonic authority in the State of Kentucky when in that State there is a regular constituted Grand Lodge of Masons in working order? Is there not some infringement upon the ancient land marks of the Craft in this? Does it tend to perpetuate harmony and good order throughout this ancient and honorable Institution to do so?

Kind Words.

Dear Dr. Taylor—I was delighted with your salutatory. I raise my hat and bow to the SOUTHWESTERN. May it be a blessing to all people in that great Southwestern section of our beloved country. God give you health and long life in blessed service for his Church.

Dear Dr. Taylor—The enclosed letter came in a package to me, and without noticing the address I tore it open. A glance told me that it was not for me, nor yet for Wm. Taylor, and so I send it to you. I join the brother in the words of congratulation he sends, and hope that the coming four years may be years of wonderful success and blessing to you and all with whom you have to do. As a young man, I wish you abundant success, in your new field of labor; and that in all things your life may be strewn with God's choicest blessings.

Very sincerely yours,

J. F. RANSOM.

Rev. H. W. White, presiding elder Lexington District, Lexington Conference, writes: "I am not surprised at your election. Send the paper till the end of the year.

From Paris, Ky., Rev. D. Jones writes:

Dear Dr. Taylor—I assure you that my congratulations, now tendered on your election to the editorial chair of the SOUTHWESTERN, are sincere and heartfelt. I feel fully assured the interests of our vast Church, as well as those of your brethren of the Lexington Annual Conference, will suffer no detriment at your hands. The white man you put through for Africa is the right man, religiously, intellectually and climatically. Rev. Dr. Wm. Taylor is the providentially appointed man. I met him years ago in California, and in later years in Indiana, and for zeal for God, love of humanity and tireless energy, few men equal and none excel him. So far as my weak influence is concerned, I will do all possible to help you on in the battle.

Bowling Green, Ky.

Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D.:

Dear Sir and Bro.—Allow me to congratulate you upon your success as a man and minister.

PERSONAL.

—Rev. W. E. Wilson, of Lexington conference, late of Springfield, Illinois, is now settled in the parsonage with his family at Bowling Green, Kentucky. He was most cordially received.

—Mrs. Rev. R. A. Read, Washington, D. C., has been quite sick for the past few weeks; she now rapidly convalescing, to the great joy of a large circle of deeply interested friends.

—Bishop Taylor delivered the Baccalaurate sermon to the graduating class of Centenary Biblical Institute, in the Metropolitian Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, June 8, 11 a. m.

—D. H. Carroll & Co., are actively circulating their choice collection of Methodist literature among our people in their region. There should be a largely increased distribution of this class of literature throughout the entire church.

—Rev. W. L. Muir with the congregation of Jackson street Methodist Episcopal Church, Lexington conference, Louisville, Kentucky, tendered Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, a reception upon his arrival home. He is to meet a reception at an early date in Cincinnati also.

—Local conference papers are intended to aid in circulating the official papers of the church. The proceeds of which go to the conference equally for the support of worn out preachers, their widows and orphans. As a matter of fact such papers can, and do not meet the end intended as above stated.

—Rev. W. H. Evans, P. C. of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Lexington, Kentucky, Lexington conference, will lay the corner stone of New Asbury Chapel July 4th. The editor of the SOUTHWESTERN with a number of distinguished brethren will assist. An injunction was issued against this Church to prevent the erection of a Negro Church in so prominent a locality, but the trutees gave bond and proceeded with their work. Public setiment is now rapidly turning in their favor.

—The second round of quarterly visits of Rev. Joseph Courtney, the presiding elder of the Ohio district, Lexington conference will be found in the proper department of this paper. Bro. Courtney has been pleased to not only promptly himself subscribe for the SOUTHWESTERN, but has placed it squarely before his quarterly conference and members, asking them personally to subscribe and to solicit subscriptions for us. This is right, and it is no more than with our knowledge of him for several years, we expected of Bro. Courtney.

—Col John A. Stevenson died on Claiborne plantation, Iberville parish, last Friday night, and his remains were interred in Metaire Ridge cemetery, this city, on Sunday. Death was caused from congestion of the brain following exposure to the heat. Col. Stevenson was born in Kentucky in 1818, began a steamboat life in 1832. He built the Confederate ram Manassass and escaped when Gen. Butler passed the forts. In 1866 he became a planter, and at his death he owned several plantations in different parishes. He was a member of the constitutional convention of 1879, and the Republican candidate for Governor at the last election. He was a gentleman of sterling qualities and his death will be sincerely mourned by thousands who knew him.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

KENTUCKY.

The first semi-annual session of the Bowling Green District, Lexington Conference convened in Bowling Greene Methodist Episcopal Church, June 3d, and adjourned on the evening of Sabbath, June 8th, 1884. The attendance was unusually large, the papers read were of a much higher order of merit than formerly. The spiritual and benevolent work was in a progressive state. The Conference by formal resolution congratulated the church at large, the SOUTHWESTERN and the editor thereof on his election, and also resolved ta push a vigorous canvass for subscribers. Bev. Abraham Broker, the prisiding elder is constantly growing in favor and usefulness. He is paid up subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. Go thou and do likewise.

ARKANSAS.

Rev. W. O. Emory, pastor St. James M. E. Church, Pine Bluff: "I feel very gratefnl to God and the old church for your election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN. It is a source of great strength to our work. It should be the ambition of every colored man to give the SOUTHWESTERN a subscription second to none in the church. God bless you in your new field."

LOUISIANA.

A. F. Lane, Linden: "Elder Price held our second quarter. We organized the Sunday-school into a missionary society. Elder delivered a loving discourse. We raised a liberal collection. The late pastor, G. C. Hayden, preached two sermons. The elder's sermon Sunday evening brought up 32 for prayers, I professed Christ, and I joined. On Monday Rev. B. Rousse, of the A. M. E. Church, invited us to preach in his church. We have no church in the town of Linden but we will begin to build."

Letter From Houma.

MR. EDITOR—Please space give for a word or two from Houma.

Sunday evening, May 17th, the hearts of all present were made glad by the presentation of three prizes: one nice cake to Mrs. Nettie O'Hare; a pair of ear-rings, to Mrs. Lucinda Williams, and another pair to Miss Mary J. Sloan.

About two weeks previous, a social gathering was held, in which Mrs. O'Hare and others took part in a pedestrial contest for a cake, the judge having decided that Mrs. O'Hare walked the most graceful, the cake was accordingly awarded to her. Mrs. Lucinda Williams and Miss Sloan, having sold the most admission tickets, the prizes above mentioned, were given to them. Two gentlemen were appointed to deliver suitable addresses. The writer to make the the presentation address, and Mr. D. S. Jackson, a late student of our New Orleans University, to made the reception address. The remarks of Mr. D. S. Jackson were concise and appropriate, and were listened to with the utmost attention. The recipients and the Church were well pleased, three nice prizes having been given to the former, and a handsome purse realized in favor of the latter. Connected with this pedestrial contest there was what is termed, A Neck-tie drawing, from which an additional sum was realized for the church, and no one was impoverished to any great extent. This monetary acquisition is attributed to the assiduity and ingenuity of our pastor, A. N. Jackson.

Children's Day will be observed; the literatne for which has been sent to us, and regular rehearsals are being held, so that none need be bashful.

The parsonage is being repaired and an additional room is being attached thereto. When completed it will be a comfortable and commodious home for any minister whom conference may send to Houma. Were it not useless, I would say that the money which was made at the pedestrial contest commenced the work on the parsonage. WM. S. HAWTHORNE.

Since writing the above, the following was received, and by special request it is hereto subjoined: Houma, May 25, 1884. Rev. A. N. Jackson, pastor, Methodist Episcopal Church—We return thanks for your kindness, as you did as you promised. You promised to give one set of jewelry to the one selling the most admission tickets, but you gave two sets of jewelry, which act, no other minister of our Church at Houma, has ever done. Thanks also for the nice pound cake, the angel food cake which was toothsome, and rest assured that these your acts of kindness shall not be forgotten by us. Hoping that you will excuse us, and that the Lord's blessings will attend you and your family through the labyrinths of life, and ultimately receive you in heaven.

We are respectfully yours,

MARY J. SLOAN,
LUCINDA WILLIAMS,
H. C. WILLIAMS.
MRS. NETTIE O'HARE.

Letter From Washington.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN—"With charity to all and malice towards none" this opportunity is accepted by one, not of your race, to congratulate you on your salutatory. It breathes the proper, the true catholic spirit of "moderation to all," and as long as you teach your people to "imitate the best examples set them by cultivated men and women of every class" you will meet most cordial Christian and fraternal greetings on every hand. It is a great mistake to suppose that the Southern people are opposed to the advancement of the race formerly held in bondage. On the contrary, is a fact that many former owners of slaves are now foremost in every good work tending to their higher education and training, not only in useful but also in ornamental works. But as a matter, of course, these philanthropic persons deem it best that all such endeavors should be controlled by the more intelligent men and women of the same race. Hence, the names and persons of many of these sympathizing friends are unknown except to those who, acting under their advice, take the initiative in all such good works, as, for instance, those appended below. "The Colored Industrial Institute." The "Kindergarten," however, is under the control of the "Associated Charities," but it might well be imitated in other Southern cities and towns by educated colored teachers.

The class of good, dear old "mammy's" is fast dying out, but there is no reason why their virtues shall not be taught to the rising generation. The old things have passed away forever, but as long as we live the condition of "mistress" and "maid" will continue to exist; and to be thorough in one's work, whether it be the art of drawing and painting a lovely flower, concocting a palateable dish, or setting a room to rights, the obligation to do each and all in the very best style possible is ones' duty under God's will. To do our whole duty in whatever path of life it has pleased heaven to place one is the true Christian view of life, and the one it is believed that you, Mr. Editor, take of it.

The colored Industrial Institute, of Washington, D. C., for colored children, has the following list of officers: Mrs. B. K. Bruce, president; Mrs. S. A. Martin, vice president; Mrs. I. F. Cook, treasurer; Mrs. M. B. Briggs, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. M. F. Otey, recording secretary. By the consent of the public school trustees the Institute has the use of certain hours of the day of the Miner and Banneker school buildings. The children at present are only taught sewing, but it is intended when a suitable building can be procured to instruct them in housekeeping and other domestic features. The school is sustained entirely by volunteer subscriptions, and the entertainment last night proved to be a gratifying pecuniary success. The hall was handsomely decorated with flags, and refreshments were served to the large number of visitors present. At a meeting of the lady managers after the social, resolutions were passed thanking Capt. Fleetwood and the officers and the men of Washington Cadet corps for giving the use of the armory for the entertainment, and to the donors of refreshments and to the gentlemen composing the committe of arrangements.—Republican, June 21.

New Building for the Houston Seminary.

PRINCIPAL C. W. CAMPBELL.

I hope that the brethren of the Houston, Navasota and Huntsville districts, will make a strong effort this year to raise 25 cents per member for the Seminary. There is scarcely a member who does not spend this amount every time he goes to town or to market, for what he could have done without. So you see my request is very small, so small indeed, that I fancy the officers of the Freedman's Aid Society when they read it will think it entirely below what they have a right to expect. The amount, then, being so small, let us ask that it be collected and sent in by the first of September, so that it can be used for enlarging the work next session. As some of our charges are at a disadvantage on account of overflow, somebody will find it more convenient to pay double this sum than others will to pay 25 cents. So let those who feel that God has in any way prospered them this year, contribute according to that prosperity, but let none fall below the small amount named. Now if these three districts will come up to this amount in their collections, I think I can safely say that the society will undertake to erect the needed building and the school can more than double its sphere of usefulness. Only by the most intense economy of room and the means at our disposal have we been able to do what has been done during the past two years. We have no room to enlarge the school, it has been full from the very start. We must have another building, and this centennial year is the time to get it. Now who will be the first to [illegible] this amount either by [illegible] or through the SOUTHWESTERN [illegible] who will be the first to [illegible] Remember, if it is to be done by the first of September it needs to be begun now.

Ambition.

BY MISS MARY BAKER.

The most successful point in life comes from the ambition that a person has. It requires ambition to be successful in whatever we undertake to do that is beneficial to us. Many people are deprived of many privileges which would be of an advantage to them, because they have not the ambition to go forward desiring to accomplish their aim. Ambition in its good sense is an eager desire of power for a beneficial purpose. It often raises man to a higher office of influence and happiness; it causes other people all over the world to have a good opinion of him, and to put their confidence in him. All prominent men that now hold prominent positions, and men who have good occupations were in a degree ambitious. Ambition to gain positions, and do any work of usefulness and goodness is a virtue which ought to be cultivated.

Wiley University.

This institution closed its 12th session on the 12th inst. The commencement exercises passed off pleasantly. We had this year two graduates, Rev. Wm. Wesley from the scientific course, and Rev. P. W. Wyrick, from the literary course. Rev. T. Mason, President of Philander Smith College, Little Rock, was present Tuesday and Wednesday of commencement week delivering the annual lecture Wednesday night. We were glad to hear from him words of good cheer from our college at Little Rock, and listen to his able address on the Book of Esther. We think the outlook for Wiley University is very encouraging for the coming year. A larger number of advanced students were in attendance than in any previous year. We trust the friends of the work of education will push forward this work to still greater success and usefulness.

Her Secret Troubles.

The Unknown Trials Which a Woman Endured Without Complaint—Why They Vanished.

Near the close of one of the most trying of the few hot days of the present year a pale, care-worn woman might have been seen at the window of her dwelling apparently in a condition of complete exhaustion. Her efforts to meet the accumulated duties of her household had been great but unsuccesful, while the care of a sick child, whose wails could even then be heard, was added to her otherwise overwhelming troubles. Nature had done much for her and in her youthful days she had been not only beautiful but the possessor of health such as is seldom seen. But home and family duties and the depressing cares which too often accompany them had proven greater than her splendid strength and she felt at that moment not only that life was a burden but that death would be a grand relief. This is no unusual experience. It is, in fact, a most common everyday occurrence, and a great prayer is constantly ascending from thousands of homes for deliverance from the deadly power which is enslaving so many wives, mothers and daughters. And yet these duties of life must be met. No woman can afford to turn aside from the proper care of her home and the ones who are committed to her care, although in doing these duties she may sacrifice her health and possibly life itself. The experience of one who successfully overcame such trials and yet retained health and all the blessings it brings is thus told by Rev. William Watson, Presiding Elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, residing at Watertown, N. Y. He said: "My wife became completely run down through overwork and care of a sick member of our household, and I entertained serious apprehensions as to her future. She [illegible] pale, utterly [illegible] without appetite, and in a complete state of physical decline. And yet she did not, could not neglect her duties. I have seen her about the house, trying courageously to care for the ones she loved when I could tell, from the lines upon her face how much she was suffering. At times she would rally for a day or two and then fall back into the state of nervous exhaustion she felt before. Her head pained her frequently, her body was becoming bowed by pain and all hope or enjoyment in life seemed departed. What to do we could not tell. I resolved, however, to bring back her life and vitality if possible and to this end began to treat her myself. To my great relief her system has been toned up, her strength restored, her health completely recovered and wholly by the use of Warner's Tippecanoe, which I regard as the greatest tonic, invigorator and stomach remedy that has ever been discovered. I was led to use it the more readily as I had tested the health-restoring properties of Warner's Safe Cure in my own person and I therefore knew that any remedy Mr. Warner might produce would be a valuable one. I have since recommended both Warner's Tippecanoe and Warner's Safe Cure to many of my friends, and I know several Doctors of Divinity as well as numerous laymen who are using both with great benefit."

If all overworked and duty driven women of America could know of the experience above described, and act upon the same, there can be little doubt that much of the pain, and most of the depressing influence of life might be avoided. Such truths are too valuable to remain unknown.

The Housekeeper.

Small Housekeepers.

A double row of shiny black and brown infant faces, revealing rows of ivory white teeth, as the little ones laughed gaily, was the scene presented to a Reporter of the National Republican yesterday afternoon. He had just entered the free kindergarten and kindergarten school of the third division, Associated Charities, situated on the first floor of house No. [illegible] Pennsylvania avenue. The little scholars, twenty in number, were as happy as larks. They are given practical lessons in cooking, washing, and house cleaning, interspersed during the day by recreative games.

As the reporter entered the children had just finished their lesson on "table setting," and formed a circle with their teacher, Mrs. [illegible] C. Ford, as prompter.

"Let's play pussy and the mouse," said a wee bow legged and very black boy, attired in a calico smock, his eyes twinkling with childish excitement.

The others clapped their hands and agreed to the little fellow's proposition, and the teacher cheerfully gave her consent. The game began, all of the little black folks scrambled behind the long tables and took positions facing their small arm chairs. At a command they were instantly seated and as still as mice. The silence was only broken by the clatter of dishes as the teacher began to instruct the class in "how to keep your dining-room tidy," having first issued to each scholar a set of toy dishes, knives, forks, and spoons.

The adjoining room is fitted up as a sewing school, and is in charge of Miss Maria Mann. In this apartment several colored girls, ranging in age from 4 to 7 years, were busily with needle and thread making aprons and other simple garments. If they make the garments nicely Miss Mann presents the [illegible] to them.

There are fifty colored girl scholars in the sewing school and they meet twice each week.

"Our scholars are very irregular in attendance," said Miss Mann, "and careless in their habits. These facts alone are an argument in favor of continuing the schools, that hundreds of colored children should be taught to be regular and tidy."

The sight was very entertaining, a number of poor colored children being cared for by kind-hearted ladies who cook, and keep house tidy. Many of these children will go to "cookery," said Mrs. Ford. "We introduce system and method in their own households."

The reporter stepped from the room, and little voices were heard singing—

"Follow, follow, follow,
I lead."

They had learned their lesson on [illegible], and were varying the monotony by playing another game.—Washington

CHILDREN SHOULD EAT.—Thousands and tens of thousands of children are dying all over the land, who, because their every [illegible] nature demands sweets, and eagerly demolish the adulterated "candies" and "sweets" of modern times. If these were fed on honey instead they would develop and grow up into healthy men and women.

I would rather eat bread with honey than bread and butter. A pound of honey will reach as far as two pounds of butter, and has the advantage of being more healthy and pleasant to the taste, and always remains good, while butter soon becomes rancid and often produces cramp in the stomach, eructations, sourness, dyspepsia, and diarrhea. Pure honey should always be freely used in every family. Honey eaten with hot bread is very beneficial to dyspeptics.

Cooking with honey instead of sugar improves every kind of cooking and makes it more delicious for the palate as it is more wholesome for the stomach. In preparing blackberry or rasberry short cake it is infinitely superior.

It is a common expression that honey is a luxury, having nothing to do with the life giving principle. This is an error—honey is food in one of its many most concentrated forms. True, it does not add so much to the growth of muscles as does beefsteak, but it does impart other properties no less necessary to health and vigorous physical and intellectual action. It gives warmth to the system, arouses nervous energy and gives vigor to all the vital functions. To the laborer it gives strength—to the business man mental force. Its effects are not like ordinary stimulants, such as spirits, etc., but produce a healthy action, the results of which are pleasing and permanent, a sweet disposition and a bright intellect.

RIPE CUCUMBER PICKLES.—Pare and seed ripe cucumbers. Slice each cucumber length-wise into four pieces, or cut it into fancy shapes, as preferred. Let them stand 24 hours covered with cold vinegar. Drain them; then put them into fresh vinegar, with two pounds of sugar and one ounce of cassia buds to one quart of vinegar. Boil all together twenty minutes. Cover them closly in a jar.

MAITRE D'HOTEL SAUCE.—Melt a couple of ounces of butter in a saucepan, mix thoroughly with it two table-spoonfuls of flour, add half a pint of hot water, white pepper and salt to taste, and stir until it thickens; if too thick add more hot water. Mince very finely a handful of parsley, knead it with half an ounce of butter, add this to the sauce, with the juice of half a lemon, stir it well on the fire and serve.

MINUTE PUDDING.—One quart of milk, salt, two eggs, about a pint of flour. Beat the eggs well; add the flour and enough milk to make it smooth. Butter the saucepan, and put in the remainder of the milk well salted; when it boils stir in the flour, etc., lightly; let it cook well. It should be of the consistency of thick corn mush. Serve immediately with the following simple sauce, namely, milk sweetened to taste and flavored with grated nutmeg.

PICKLED GRAPES.—Take ripe grapes; remove imperfect and broken ones. Line an earthen jar with grape leaves; then fill with grapes. To two quarts of vinegar allow one pint of white sugar, half an ounce of ground cinnamon, and a quarter of an ounce of cloves. Let the vinegar and spices boil and when cold pour over the grapes. If poured on while hot it shrivels them, even if it does not break the skin and spoil the appearance of the pickles.

VEAL CUTLETS A LA MILANAISE.—Trim some veal cutlets into a uniform shape, and dip them in liquified butter—that is, butter melted on the range. Then pass them through a mixture of equal parts of bread crumbs and grated Parmesan cheese, properly peppered and salted. When set dip them in a beaten up egg and pass them through the mixture again, then fry them brown. Boil a small quantity of macaroni, dress it with butter, Parmesan chees, and tomato sace, with the yolk of an egg stirred into it. Place the macaroni on a dish and the cutlets in a circle round it.

The action of the General Conference on the "color" question is amusing, if not absurd. The resolutions declared that "color" was no bar to all rights and offices of the church, and then wound up with an "Expediency" clause.—Minnesota Methodist.

HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY is no "hit or miss" componnd or old woman's mixture. It is prepared by a scientific pharmacist, with a full knowledge of the powers and virtues of each ingredient in the class of diseases which it cures. It is purely vegetable and cannot harm the youngest child or the most feeble invalid.

PESSIMISM.

"Is life worth living!—Well, to tell you true,
It scarcely is if all men were like you"

Bright-faced maiden, bright-soul maiden,
What is this that I must hear?
Is thy heart with sorrow laden,
Is thine eye dimmed with a tear?
Can it be that lips so sweetly
Rounded to be kindly kissed,
Could be twisted indiscreetly
To that vile word Pessimist?
Not for thine own ills thou weepest;
Softly feathered is thy nest;
When thou wakest, when thou sleepest,
Thou art fortuned with the best.
But thy sisters and thy brothers,
Pierced with many a woeful smart,
Dying children, wailing mothers,
Fret thy nerve and stab thy heart.
In the country, in the city,
Godless deeds a loveless list
Stir thy blood and move thy pity,
And thou art a PESSIMIST.
Storms and wars and tribulations,
Fevered passions' reinless tide,
With insane hallucinations
Mingled travel far and wide.
Can there be an Eye inspecting
Things so tumbling in pell-mell,
With a cool control directing
Such a hot bed; such a hell?
Nay, sweet maid, but think more slowly;
Though this thing and that be sad,
'Tis a logic most unholy
That the gross of things is bad;
'Tis a trick of melancholy,
Tainting life with death's alloy;
Or in wisdom, or in folly;
Nature still delights in joy,
Dost thou hear of starving sinners?
Nine and ten or ninety-nine,
Many thousands eat good dinners,
Many hundreds quaff good wine.
Hast thou seen a score of cripples?
Equal legs are not uncommon,
If you know one fool that tipples,
Thousands drink not—man and woman;
Tell me, if you know, how many
Murders happen in the town?
One a year, perhaps, if any;
Should that weigh your heart quite down?
No doubt, if you read the papers,
You will find a strange hotch-potch—
Doting dreams, delirious capers,
Many a blunder, blot, and blotch;
Bags of windy speculation
Babblement of small and great,
Cheating, swindling, peculation
Squabblement of Church and State;
Miners blown up, hum[illegible] Bugs blown up,
Beaten wives in[illegible] alted brides,
Raving preachers, witless teachers,
Lunatics and suicides,
Drains and cesspools, faintings, fevers,
Poisoned meats and stolen collies,
Simple women, gay deceivers,
Every sort and size of follies,
Politicians' brainless babble,
Deputations, meetings, dinners,
Riots of the lawless rabble,
Purple sins of high-toned sinners;
Driving, dining, drinking, dancing,
Spirit-rapping, ghostly stuff,
Bubble schemes, and deft financing,
When the shares are blown enough!

All true!—but we and all our neighbors,
Meanwhile in pure and peaceful ways,
With link on link of fruitful labors,
Will draw our chain of happy days,
See things as they are; be sober;
Balance well life's loss and gain;
If to-day be chill October,
Summer suns will come again.
Are bleak winds forever sighing?
Do dark clouds for ever lower?
Are your friends all dead and dying?
All your sweetness turned to sour?
Great men no doubt have sometimes small ways,
But a horse is not an ass,
And a black snake is not always
Lurking in the soft green grass.
Don't be hasty, gentle lady:
In this whirl of diverse things
Keep your footing, and with steady
Poise control your equal wings.
All things can't to all be pleasant,
I love bitter, you love sweet;
Some faint when a cat is present,
Rats find babies' cheeks a treat.
If all tiny things were tall things,
If all pretty things were grand,
Where would greatness be, when all things
On one common level stand?
Do you think the winged breezes
Fraught with healthy ventilation,
When a tender infant sneezes
Should retreat with trepidation?
When dry Earth to Heaven is calling
For soft rain and freshening dew,
Shall the rain refrain from falling
Lest my lady wet her shoe?
Fools still rush to rash conclusions,
And the mole-eyed minion man
Talks of troubles and confusions,
When he sees not half the plan.
Spare to blame and fear to cavil,
With short leave dismiss your pain,
Let no fretful fancies revel
In the sanctum of your brain.
Use no magnifying glasses
To change molehills into mountains
Nor on every hill that passes
Pour hot tears from bitter fountains.
Trust in God and know your duty,
Some good things are in your power;
Every day will bring its booty
From the labor of the hour.
Never rock what fools are prating,
Work and wait, let sorrow lie;—
Live and love; have done with hating,
Goethe says—and so say I.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR:—Please allow me to inquire through your paper for my people. The last time I saw them was in East Tennessee, about 15 miles from Athens, down on the old stage road. Their names were Rachel Cobbs, my mother, and January Cobbs, my father, and sisters Amy Cobbs, and Priscilla, who lived with Miss Rister Frarstone, and brothers Peter and Moses Cobbs. Myself, mother, father and brother John were sold in Athens to Mr. Cobbs; John staid there and I was carried to the Western district by Mr. Tom Hoard, and from there to McMinnville, Tenn. My name at that time was Jemima Cobbs, now I am Jemima Patton. Address me at Prairie Plains, Coffee county, Tennessee.

JEMIMA PATTON.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for Louis Bruce, whom I left in New Orleans about 8 or 9 years ago. When I left there he was porter on the steamer Gov. Allen. His wife was my grandmother; she died before I left there. I have written to Louis Bruce several times; he used to answer my letters, but late years I do not hear from him at all. If he is living I would be glad to hear from him. When I was there he used to call me Johnny. Please inquire for him, and address me at Belle Prairie, Yazoo county, Mississippi.

Gammon School of Theology.

The following appreciative notice of our School of Theology is taken from the editorial page of the Central Christian Advocate, of April 22rd:

"The Gammon School of Theology of Clark University, Atlanta, Georgia, is fully organized under the competent management of Rev. Wilbur P. Thirkield, Dean, and doing, we are informed, excellent work. The aim of the school is set forth as follows: "To teach Biblical rather than systematic theology; to unfold a Christ centred theology expressed in scriptural terms, rather than a dogmatic theology cast in scientific phrase, is the aim of this school." This is the true Methodist notion of training men for the ministry and none other would meet the requirements of this school. And it will turn out ministers equipped for actual service in the field where they are to go. There is a great demand for a better educated class of colored Methodist preachers, and it is along these lines of Dean Thirkield that we shall get them."

The work of the first year is closing up satisfactorily. The outlook of the School for next year is most hopeful. The number of formal applications already on file, indicates a large increase in attendance. The School is now thoroughly organized and is prepared for effective work.

In a recent letter to Prof. Thirkield, Mr. E. H. Gammon indicates his deep interest and his plans for the future of the institution that bears his name. He says; "I can conceive of no work of greater importance in the whole church than yours, and I trust your Theological School will be the leading school of the kind of the whole South. I will cheerfully render what assistance I can to make it such."

One of the cottages now building for the use of married students of the Theological School, is completed. It is beautifully situated in the grove back of Gammon Hall. It has three rooms, neatly furnished, a veranda along the entire front, and the whole is tastefully painted. The frame of the second cottage is now up. Dean Thirkield has raised about $50,000 for this good work, and hopes by next year to have half a dozen cottages built. —Elevator.

Worth Thinking Of.

What Ayer's Cherry Pectoral does:—

It prevents the growth, to serious illness, of a dangerous class of diseases that begin as mere trivial ailments, and are too apt to be neglected as such.
It alleviates even the most desperate cases of pulmonary diseases, and affords to the patient a last and the only chance for restoration to health.
It breaks up a cold, and stops a cough more speedily, certainly, and thoroughly than any other medicine.
It spares mothers much painful anxiety about their children, and saves the little ones' lives.
It cures all lung and throat diseases that can be reached by human aid.

How Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Does Such Good.

It expels the mucus from the throat and the air passages of the head, and cleanses the mucous membrane.
It allays inflammation, puts a stop to tickling in the throat and coughing, and enables the patient to rest.
It heals sore throat, reduces the swollen tonsils, and restores natural tone to the affected vocal cords.
It soothes to natural and refreshing slumber, during which Nature regains strength to combat disease.
It clears out and heals diseased air cells in the lungs, and helps Nature to repair the waste made by the corrosion of pulmonary disease.
It puts a stop to the cankerous decay of Catarrh.

Why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so Perfect a Medicine.

Because it is a scientifically ordered compound, of great potency, the product of years of study, observation, and experience in the treatment of throat and lung diseases.
Because it is prepared from the purest forms of the drugs employed in it, chemically combined by a process of such perfection and accuracy as would be unattainable, even by the most skillful pharmacist, dealing with small quantities.
Because it is not only the most effective medicine for the uses to which it is designed, but, owing to the enormous quantities in which it is made, is sold at so low a price that it is placed within the reach of every household.
Because it is an active curative agent, that must be taken by drops, as prescribed in the directions accompanying each bottle, and not a mere palliative syrup that may be swallowed by mouthfuls.

Where Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Stands Before the World.

It is popularly known to be a medicine that has cured laryngeal, bronchial, and pulmonary affections where all others had failed.
It is a favorite household remedy to-day with people whose lives were saved by it, when they were young, a generation ago.
It has held the first-place in popular estimation for nearly half a century in this country, and is more and more highly appreciated, year after year, both at home and abroad.
It evokes daily, from all over the world, expressions of gratitude for lives saved by its use.
It is everywhere recommended by reputable druggists, who know, from conversations with their patrons, and from their own experience, how almost magical are its effects for good.
It is regularly prescribed by many physicians of the best standing, and is recommended by Professors of Medical Colleges, to their students, as invaluable for all diseases of the throat and lungs.

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time, the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—*Rev. A. E. P. THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Mr. Moody says his revival campaign has been eminently successful. Nothing like 100 meetings were held in eleven districts. Thirteen different meetings were held every week. Intelligence from Nizni, Novgorod, now confirms the reports of conflict between Christians and Jews at that place. The rumor was circulated to the effect that a Jew had kidnapped a Christian child and taken it to the synagogue. A mob attacked the synagogue; many Jews were badly handled and several killed. Some heathen are not as much of the heathen as we think; read a Mahometan proverb, "God has answered the good things of this world to relieve our necessities, not to reward the virtues; these will be rewarded in another world." Our Colored Editor.

Marshall W. Taylor, D.D., was born of free parents at Lexington Kentucky, in 1846, and entered the ministry in 1863. He has not only had a successful career as a pastor, but is now serving a second term as Presiding Elder in the Lexington Conference. Dr. Taylor's literary tastes are well known through his frequent contributions to our church periodicals, and his book "Plantation Melodies and Revival Hymns." No one of our colored ministers stands higher in the pulpit estimation then Dr. Taylor, and it is to be hoped that he will meet with such success in his present field, as will recommend him to one still higher.—Delaware Conference Standard.

Rev. W. M. Taylor, D. D., who was elected as a delegate from the Lexington Annual Conference to the General Conference now in session in the city of Philadelphia, has been elected editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, a church paper published in New Orleans. It is a position of great responsibility and will be another one of test applied to us to test the capabilities of the race as to whether, after being weighed in the balances, we will be found wanting. The Dr. will no doubt successfully stand the test and prove, as has oftentimes been proven in the past, our fitness for positions of trust in the church of our choice. He is a man of liberal ideas, a fine speaker, good writer of quick perceptions and fully qualified for the task assigned him. Taken altogether we may expect the ADVOCATE to impress its thought in the future deep on the mind of the church. He is announced on the programme at the Centennial Anniversary and will be present and address the gathering of the people on the day named.—Centennial Methodist.

Gen. Chalmers was seated in Congress on the 25th.

A gentleman was heard to offer an objection to our new New England Bishop. Speaking of a sermon which he heard the Bishop preach in Philadelphia, he said his only criticism on the sermon was that the Bishop kept constantly injecting religion into it. This may be a serious objection with some, but we trust the Church will have grace to endure it.—Christian Witness.

"After two months I was given up to die!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work, as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I pooched at him but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and many children, well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. Berk, Ex-Supervisor.

The Rev. E. W. S. Hammond, P. E. of the Indiana District, Lexington Conference, is set down to preach a Centennial sermon at the celebration of the Centennial year of Methodism, July 13th at Paris, Ky.

The Centennial Methodist has the following to say of him and we endorse it.

When such eminent teachers of the people as Rev. E. W. S. Hammond and many others, who will be present at the Centennial Anniversary at Paris, Ky., July 12 and 13, come to instruct the masses and bring them the good news, all ought to come out and hear them. The gentleman named in this article is one of the most brilliant, forcible and truly eloquent divines in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his presence on the 13th of July ought to attract large numbers of the people who appreciate talent and love to hear an intelligent saving gospel preached. He will preach in the afternoon of the 13th and doubt.ess the feast promised will be enjoyed by the thousands of anxious ones that always love to help on everything that elevates and refines the human race

Not a Spasm of Coughing Since Using Compound of Oxygen.

So writes a gentleman from Archie, Missouri, whose whole system was so run down that he was not able to do any kind of work. In a little over a month after commencing the Oxygen Treatment he made this report:

"I have not had a spasm of coughing since the first time I inhaled the Oxygen. The 'utter goodness' when a little out of wind (I can't describe the feeling, but it was a most miserable one) also left me right away. You think my recovery will be slow; I am going to try and disappoint you. Three days after I lost my leg, six surgeons gave me till next day at noon to live. When my stump was almost well I got a terrible fall. Again the hospital surgeons said I could not live; but I am here yet. I can't say all right, but by the help of the Compound Oxygen I hope to be soon. Am much stronger, can stick all day at anything that is not too heavy.

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER, LESSON I July 6, DAVID KING OVER ALL ISRAEL. (2 Sam. v, 1-12)

Last Winter we learned that Samuel the prophet, by the command of God, anointed the shepherd boy David to be king of Israel. He made a league with the elders; that is, both he and they promised to do certain things; and then he was anointed over again, after more than twenty years had passed. During this time he wrote most of the beautiful psalms, which have been such a comfort to Christians in the past, and will be to the end of the world.

The first thing he did was to make war on the heathen in the land. He conquered the "strong-hold of Zion," a fort near Jerusalem. The king named this place the city of David, after himself, and built around it, making it larger. David grew very rapidly grew to be a great man. The Lord was with him. It is said that Hiram, king of Tyre, sent carpenters and masons to build David a house. We know that the Tyrians had great skill in building, and so probably it was a fine house, like men have now when they grow rich.

The SOUTHWESTERN

A Thrilling Adventure.

MR. EDITOR:—While I was walking out last week late in the evening to visit some of my husband's sick members, I was terribly frightened by a snake. I had a little child in my arms about 2 months old which I am raising for my own. With a bottle of milk in my hands which the baby was sucking, the snake fell in some palmetto bushes near. Getting dark I could not find the bottle but felt in the bushes, and found it. I walked as fast as I can guess about one acre, expecting somthing swinging my right arm, I looked and saw it was a moccasin trying to spring in my face. I lost all courage and commenced fainting. While struggling with this monster, no one coming with him coiled around my arm, killing the use of it, one of the white citizens of this town came to my relief and threw him on my arm and killed him. I owe Mr. West many favors for his kindness toward me. May God bless him and his family. Pray for me as the Lord has spared me years in Christ.

LEXINGTON DISTRICT—METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

DEAR BRETHREN: This is the centennial year of our Church. Our work has been wonderful.

The advancement of our district is unprecedented. We are the bright example and highest emulation of all other districts. Let us remain so. We will not sleep; nor will we be excelled. Let our work be still our fame.

The Bishop and Conference are very proud of us.

Some district is boasting that she will beat us or drive us to do better. She dontbtless means greater work. Shall we who lead be driven? Impossible! For work is the very life of the Lexington District.

Our District Conference will convene at Paris, July 10th, at 8:30 o'clock a. m.

All Pastors, Locals, Exhorters, and Stewards and Class Leaders are expected to be present and remain until the 13th.

All preturen for examination will be on hand Wednesday, July 9th.

The 12th and 13th will be devoted to Centenary Exercises.

The assessment for the Episcopal fund and benevolent monies will remain the same as last year. The last session of the Lexington Annual Conference held at Covington recommended that as a Conference we raise the sum of $2,000 to secure four scholarships in the Central Tennessee College. Making our portion of that sum $400. I therefore respectfully suggest and earnestly urge that each Pastor on this District set apart the fifth Sunday in August as the day when each church take up the special collection for the purpose named..

All your collections may be sent to 44 East Third Street, Lexington, Ky., by Registered Letter or P. O. Order.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. je14-1y

Some of the Southern journals are not well pleased with Senator Brown's defense of Mormon polygamy under cover of an attack upon New England. The Louisville Courier Journal (Democratic) referring to it says: "No Senator from the South has of late years made a speech so discreditable to the morality and intelligence of the section which he is supposed to represent." We make no apology for the sins of New England, but the man who raves and unloads his heart as if the purest billingsgate were the only language he understood cannot make the people have much respect either for his head or conscience. Senator Brown ought to understand that mere raving and venomous blackguardism is generally regarded as proof of baseness of character. It may be true that some of the Southern States have no divorce laws, nor laws defining and punishing adultery, but the millions of mulattoes quadroons and octoroons all through the south are a little too conspicuous for men like the Senator from Georgia to read New England a lecture on virtue. This virtuous indignation on account of New England's sins has more the appearance of a heart that hates and raves than of one that loves, laments and mourns.

CHURCH BELLS.

The Bell Catalogne of the BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO., of Cincinnati, O., in addition to discription, prices, &c, coatains some 1,500 testimonials from purchasers throughout the United States and Canada. The Bells are warranted two years. The prices are comparatively low, and within reach of even feeble communities Churches needing Bells—and none should be without—would do well to write for the Catalogne.

Punctuality.

Recently a correspondent of the Sunday-School Times gave an instance of a boy in Massachusetts, who had completed seven years of unbroken attendance at Sunday-school, who was only eleven years old. This statement called out an Illinois pastor, who gives the record of one John Harmon of Sterling, Ill., who in this month has celebrated eleven years of continuous attendance at Sunday-School. On one occasion he waded through the snow to his knees, the having measles at the same time. On another he brought a broken arm, and now he works three miles in the country but walks regularly to his school. This boy is only fourteen years old. Do any of our ministers know of a boy who has made a better record? Fourteen years old and eleven years in the Sunday-school is a good example for punctuality. C.

Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

Labor and dnty comes before pleasnre.

We were favored with a copy of the sixty-eighth Annual Report of the American Bible Society.

The Ohio Wesleyan catalogne has been received, with compliments of President Payne.

We are now in Kentucky, planting the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE on soil where it has had an unsnccessfnl growth before.

Two hnndred cash snbscribers in the month of June sent in by the editor is a solid sort of congratulation, which is not less gratifying to the publishers than to him.

The year book of Drew Theological Seminary for 1884 is at hand. This excellent Methodist institution has 304 gradnates, in all fields of church work.

The catalogne of Northwestern University 1883 4, is a document of considerable size and information about an institution of our church.

Can any of our contributors refer to the volume, chapter, page and column of the Encyclopædia Britannica which contains reference to Bishop Simpson?

Asbury M. E. Church, Washington, of Washington conference, distributed 127 gold medals of the centenary of Methodism on Children's Day. Is this the banner church?

The editor on June 8th, preached in Centennial Church, Baltimore, at 11 a. m.; addressed the great Children's Day mass meeting of probably 2,000, mostly children and youths, in Sharp street at 3 p. m., and preached to a dense audience in Asbury Church, Washington at 7:30. Such is our average Sunday work.

We are under obligations to many brethren for invitations to district, centennial and other special meetings. We want to come, brethren, but there are engagements upon us which were made before our change came, and from which after trial we have failed to obtain release. But we are coming and in due season will be with each of you for any duty you may assign us.

We have to acknowledge congratulations from the Texas Methodist Advocate and Methodist Messenger, both sprightly, well conducted papers. Long live our Bros. Johnson, Webster, Lawrence and Cardoza, the first and last of whom are remembered as the kindest of personal friends and pastoral associates.

The chief colored congregation of the Methodist persuasion in Baltimore. is Sharp Street Methodist Episcopal Church. Its Sunday-school execnted the entire programme for Children's Day. The chnrch was a wilderness of the rarest shrubs and flowers. The pastor, snperintendent, teachers and pnpils may congratulate themselves upon the success of their magnificent effort to execute a programme at once both difficnlt and beautiful. It required the grandest minds in the country to think out the Children's Day service, but the minds that conld faithfully interpret and render it were their equals. The performers in Sharp Street, and many other of our colored churches proved by their work that they were in possession of snch minds. It is said the coutriver, and executor are in most if not all things equals.

Now and then some one writes us that they have not received their SOUTHWESTERN. We are sorry of any oversight by which yonr paper has failed or been delayed. We thank and solicit yon to write ns in every instance where it fails to come. The snbscriptions are pouring in npon us at a pleasing rate, and there is an occasional possibility of a mistake in pu ting names on mailing books. Some times there is a failnre to give correct street and number. In each instance the snbscriber should make inqniry at the post office. There is no delay in pntting names on books at this office. We will cheerfully correct all mistakes. We take it as an act of friendship to have you write ns. This paper is printed and intended to be mailed to its snbscribers every week sure as the sun.

We would like to know what is the oondition of our Constitutional guarantee, that all the States of this union shall have a government republican in form, not in conflict with onr national constitution, when in any section of our great commonwealth ninety can out vote four hundred. Such we learn is the posture of affairs in a locality which we can name, where there are four hundred colored supposed to be all Repnblican voters, and only ninety Democrats carried a recent election there. The whole four hundred could have voted the Democratic ticket without difficulty, but a somewhat intricate registration law interposed serious impediments to a fair chance for voting the other way. Seventeen of these four hundred deposited and possibly had their votes counted, the others found it prudent to retire without the the exercise of this fundamental right of Amerioan citizenship. It is poor defenceless Negroes who suffer now, but this intolerance has shown itself able to give others to feel its power once in the past and it will do so in the future if unrestrained.

President Arthur vetoed the Fitz John Porter bill; it passed the House, bnt failed to pass the Senate over the veto.

Notes From Nashville.

The past year has been one of the most interesting in educational matters in the city. The different schools were more numerously attended than ever. The city shools were full; the various private schools had nearly as many as could be accommodated, and some of them were full to the overflowing. The Central Tennessee College was among the latter. The buildings were fnlly occupied, and some rooms were crowded, and then we were compelled to refuse others. The need of additional accommodation is keenly felt. The attendance last year was 362 in all departments. Of these ten were in the college classes, thirty-five in the college Preparatory depratment, two hundred and thirty in the Normal classes; two in the Academic, thirty-one in the Meharry Medical department, and thirty-two in the Theological class. Thirty-one stndied instrumental, and over one hundred and fifty vocal mnsic. Two pursued the law course, and propose to fit themselves for practice in the cour.s, where it is to be hoped, in the near futnre, more even handed justice will be administered to the colored persons arraigned for crime. The desire for more advanced education is evidently on the increase among the students who attend the college. Years ago, when first it was a new thing to be permitted to own a book, and not be guilty of a crime, the eagerness was very wonderful. The grand parents and grandchildren were often in the same classes, and some predicted that this desire for knowledge would soon die out. With some of the very old people perhaps it has, and with some of the lazy ones, who can be duplicated, in almost any community, on either side of the ocean; but with the mass of the young people, who have been favorably situated, the desire to complete some course of study is, I think, on the increase.

The examinations at the close of the school year were generally excellent. In addition to the common English studies, classes were examined in physiology, geography, physics, algebra, geometry, conio sections, Latin, Greek, ecclesiastical law, mental science. Those who heard the examinations expressed themselves as satisfied that both stndents and teachers had done faithful work during the school year. The closing exercises were largely attended; the college chapel was filled at all the exercises, and the literary preformances of the students in the different classes were spoken of very favorably by all present. The mnsical exeroises were of a more than usual interest. Prof. Leroy N. Piokett, who was for several years a student in this college, and began his musical studies here, after several years absence, engaged with the "Tennesseeans" and with the "Donavin Troupes," was present, and by his fine vocal exercises, and splendid performances on the violin and cornet, fairly astonished his old teachers, associates and friends. His performances would not be considered ont of place in any of the first class concerts, that have been given in Nashville, for years past. He composes readily, and executes his own, as well as the composition of the masters, with the facility and delicacy of expression that is the clearest evidence that he has a soul with music in it. He proposes to condnct a new band of "Tennesseeans," in the interest of the college during the coming season. The mnsical world will hear from him in the fnture.

In consequence of the session of the General Conference, the trustees did not meet at the usnal time No degrees were conferred except in regular conrse. The degree of M. D. was conferred on A. Sydney, J. Burchett, N. Hill Middleton, A. B., J. Paul Pratt, Benjamin F. Reed, Green J. Starnes, G. Reed Townsend, C. Francis Thompson, James M. Vandavell, gradnates of the Meharry Medical Department. The degree of A. M. in course was conferred on Thomas A. Fortson, of the class of '81, who is teacher of mathematics and languages, in Bennett Seminary, at Greensboro, N. Ca. An application for honorary degree reached us too late for action. The faonlty and trustees are a unit in giving these degrees only when deserved. by special attainment. They will not confer the M. D. without the required examinations and attendance at school.

The property of the college has been held by trustees, two thirds of whom must be members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The property on which four of the buildings staud, was originally purchased by the money appropriated by the Missionary Society. The Freedmen's Bureau erected two new bnildings and expended considerable sums in repairs of the buildings on the ground, when purchased. The Tennesseeans by their melodies raised about ten thonsand dollars, toward the new building, which was ereoted in 1875. This paid abont half the cost of the building. The Freedmen's Aid Society advanced the rest, and took a mortgage on the entire property for the ten thousand dollars, with notes at 8 per. cent. interest. So Dr. Rust informed the Board at its meeting on the 19th inst. He and Bishop Wiley also told the trustees that, as all the other property in which the schools of the Society were held, was deeded to the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, it was often asked, why the property of this, one of the oldest of its schools, was held by trustees; that it would harmonize the property question, to have the trustees deed the property to the Society, espeoially as the ten thousand dollar mortgage at 8 per. cent. was fast covering the value of the property, and that a school whose property was so held, would not be so well provided for as others whose property the Society owned, as the church should control the propery of the schools she supported. The trustees recognized the reasonableness of this, and appointed a committee to attend to the matter and convey the property, valned at about fifty thousand dollars, to the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This does not interfere with the corporation of the trutees, or relieve them of any care of other property, as endowment, scholarships, etc. The indebtedness of the Freedman's Aid Society is likely to interfere with the efficiency of all the schools unless the churoh does more towards its relief. Dr. Rust is carrying more debt now than during any period of his sixteen years of laborious service in this work. It is a time of special need for strengthening our schools, and yet such is the financial embarrassment, that retrenchment to such extent as to seriously affect them is threatened. When the young men and yonng women are crowding to these schools by the thousand, seeking the needed preparation for the duties of life, is it not disastrous to the best interests of the chnrch, to be compelled to cripple our schools, for lack of a few thousand dollars, which the church can easily raise? Will not the members in our Southern conferences make their collections for the Freedmen's Aid Society a special one this year, and help pay the debt, and relieve the faithful Corresponding Secretary, who has had the burden laid upon him for another quadrennium, by the voice of the church, and also enable him to do more to increase the efficiency of these schools by increasing the teaching force, and by supplying them with the much needed bnilding and apparatns? The outlook for the Central Tennessee College never was brighter for a large attendauce. Already students are engaging rooms, and there is an unusual inquiry for catalogues, circulars and information.

The nomination of Blaine is generally received with favor by most Republicans and by thinking Democrats, the latter says he has snch a good record to fight, "Little Rock R. R.," "Mulligan letters," etc, will make splendid campaign documents for us." Judge Reed, the Republican nominee for governor, opened the campaign in a speech over two hours in length, on last Saturday night. The large house was crowded and the speaker said some very plain things to his audience, about the rebellion, (he was a Confederate soldier), reconstruction, and repndiation. He was frequently applauded. He has some hope of winning in this race. All good citizens who wish the State debt settled honestly will certainly say "so mote it be." J. BRADEN.

Children's Day at Union Chapel.

Sunday, June 28, having been fixed for the celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in conjunction with Children's Day in America, by the pastor at Union Chapel, the various Sunday-schools, to whom invitations had been extended, met at Union Chapel at 11:30 a. m. The opening exercises were then oondncted as follows:

The introductory was rendered by Prof. Oglesvi, organist of Union Chapel Sunday-school. "We come again to greet you" sang by all the schools. Reading the 150th Psalm by Bro. Wilson, snperintendent Pleasant Plain Snnday-school.

Invocation by Bro. Finney, of Wesley Chapel Sunday-School; reading 10th chapter St. Mark, commenoing at the 13th verse to 28th, responsively, by Mr. A. Cox, assistant superintendant First African Baptist Sunday-school, and the Snnday-schools. The children then recited the following appropriate declamations. Miss Ida Johnson, "God Wants the Girls;" Miss Nellie Wieteuling, "Little Nellie's Last Prayer," both from the First African Baptist Sunday-school; Miss C. Coleman, "Dew Drops;" Master Richard Wilson, "A Good Advice," both of Pleasant Plains Sunday-school; Miss Maud Williams, "Children's Day;" Miss Sophie Wilson, "Century's Outlook," both of Union Chapel Sunday-school. The amount collected for Children's Day is $23.40. The morning exercises were then closed and service resumed at 3 o'clock p. m. The evening services having been resumed the Rev. Stephen Priestley, pastor, delivered the following address: He said that we had assembled to celebrate the one-hundredth anniversary of the M. E. Church in America. The pastor stated that not one of the many hundreds of Methodist Episcopal Chnrches now reared up were erected a hundred years ago. All had been built since Philip Embury had organized the first Methodist congregation in a garret in New York. Rev. Priestley said th t he knew of no other religious organization that had made such rapid progress in the same length of time. The pastor then referred to the good work achieved by the Methodist Churches through the Sunday-school; he said the first Sunday-school was organized in England by Miss Hannah Ball and Robert Raikes 119 years ago, and ever since its inauguration it had been found to be to the church what the nnrsery is to the garden, a safeguard against the flood of evil found in the irreligious world. The pastor endeavored to impress the parents with the importance of giving their children an early religious training, such as may be acquired by attending the Sunday-school. "Bring up a child in the way yon would have it go, and when it grows old it will not depart therefrom" said the pastor. Mr. Priestley said the church and parents both would be saved from much trouble and turmoil that must necessarily be undergone to bring these children back to God, and in many cases they are lost ere this can be accomplished, if parents bring them to church and to Sunday-school. Mr. Priestley suggested that parents should make their children their company in the family circle; if this were done, children would not seek other company in the street, an evil so often proving fatal to their moral welfare. The pastor referred to Francis Asbury, who organized the first Snnday-school at Baltimore, Maryland, and in two years we will be oalled npon to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the M. E. Sunday-school. Rev. Priestley spoke of the good resulting from the work of the Christian women of the day, and the pastor added that there was a time when it was necessary that women should keep silent, but that time had passed; they must now come to the front. The pastor in concluding endeavored to impress the parents to be more cautious in the raising of their boys and girls in the future, that they should make good and respectable citizens. This was followed by several addresses delivered by the little folks, after which Bro. Steinburger, of California, delivered a very appropriate address. The beneciction was pronounced by Rev. David Young, of Concordia parish. At night, the opening ceremonies over, the children proceeded with their little speeches and other exercises; notwithstanding the fact they had been kept out all day they were still on the stage with eyes sparkling as bright as ever. At the conclusion of their programme Bro. Mason, of Haven Chapel, delivered the sermon of the occasion. The church was well attended at each service, and the singing by the different Sunday-schools was interesting.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

LOUISIANA.

Solomon Shelby, Columbus: "We have had very high water on the Sabine river. One of our churches was surrounded; the people made preparations to build a new one. We have a fine Sunday-school."

F. D. Bowers, Darrowville: "Our second quarterly conference was held May 25. Elder Williams found our reports correct, and preached a sermon well adapted to the occasion. We received one from the Baptist connection and licensed a local preacher. The members and friends are encouraged to help their pastor."

S. B. Hason, Alleu: "In 1865 my father, Alfred Hason, organized Allen circuit, and in 1868, when I was 11 years old, he was called out of the same house in which I am sitting and shot by unknown parties. In Hason Chapel I reflect upon when I was a boy and father sent me to day and Sunday-school. After an absence of 15 years I return here as preacher in charge. Robert Emmett leader of my class is still here and in charge of it. I have received 16 in church this year and built a church at Marthaville, a fine little town on the Pacific railroad. People are on low lands and under water. Some of the merchants have stopped advances, and many go hungry; pray for us."

K. Anderson, Opelonsas, has arranged to give a moonlight picnic for the benefit of repairs to St. Mark's church, July 11th and 12th. Admission 10 cents. He invites all friends to come who can do so.

S. Williams, Smithland: "High water kept us out of church for six weeks. On Bayou Letsworth I have been blessed with four converts; one is now a Sabath-school teacher."

N. Randolph, Cheneyville: "There is great distress here. High water has ruined crops. I had 32 acres cultivated and water covered all. We don't know what to do."

C. Crockett, Grand Cane: "On the first Sunday of June, we had a basket meeting and a crowded house. Six preachers spoke during the day, one of them being Bro Williams, a Baptist. Rev. A J Pickett, from Pleasant Hill came Saturday. Jackson Randolph, our Sunday-school superintendent, is doing a good work. He has a large school and he recently delivered an excellent address on education."

TEXAS.

John McCarty, steward of church at Patterson, writes, that a serious difficulty occurred between whites and blacks, and that two or three innocent blacks were shot. The trouble began about the purchase of a piece of tobacco at a store, and the arrest by the keeper of a spectator, instead of the one who struck his wife who had interfered in a dispute. Bro. McCarty says the whites were several times under arms. People were leaving from fear, and the whites were trying to persuade them to return. No service in church for two weeks.

A. M. Mason, Mt. Vernon: "Prof Crawford, a colored man, gained the argument in discussion on the subject of a right use of language, on the decision of a white judge against a white man. Prof. Crawford asked a Baptist minister, who was engaged in the discussion who was the founder of the Baptist church, but he could not answer I am glad that everybody knows, every little Sunday-school scholar, that John Wesley is the founder of the Methodist church. My camp meeting will commence on July 24, 1884. Everybody is welcome, three miles South of Gonzales."

B. F. Pinkard, Mexia: "Rev. T. J. Mitchell held our quarterly conference, and it was a pleasant one, except that it was found necessary to expel a local preacher. Collection $795. Bro. Mitchell delivered several sermons."

H. Johns, Clarksville: "Elder Webb visited us, and we had a good time; 70 partook of sacrament."

M. C. Baker, Clarksville: "Bro. Webb held our quarter, and delivered a fine sermon to a large congregation. We gave him $12.50. In the evening H. Johns, our pastor, occupied the pulpit, and we had a love feast. He is adding members to the church, and doing good work."

J. Mortou, Gibson: "Our quarterly conference was held by V. M. Cole; reports of class leaders were good."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Massey, Martin: "Bro. T. A. McCall, who moved to our town about three weeks ago from Tibbee, Miss., became a member of the church, and on Sunday 25th, many took deep interest in our protracted meeting. He came to class meeting, and took a front seat. In fifteen miuntes he was a dead man. He leaves a wife and one child. His father is Mingo McCall, I find from letters from Tibbee."

G. F. Douglass, Spain: "Rev. J. J. Barr preached the funeral sermon of Maria Kirby at Mount Zion to a large congregation. One was received iuto the church. Not two-thirds of the people could get inside of the house. Many came to the altar to be prayed for."

J. L. Massey, Martiu: "I have just returned from Paris, where I found the pastor, R. Palmer, and his kind wife doing a noble work. He is getting on finely with the church, and has the confidence of the members."

R. Palmer: "Paris circuit is in a prosperous condition. I took charge Feb. 14th, moved my family here March 30th, and went to work to bring up my circuit and to build our church in town. I have succeeded, have the frame up, the weather-boarding paid for and means enough to complete it for service. Elder J. P Price held our second quarter on the first Sunday in May at New Providence church, eleven miles from Paris, and preached and lectured with great acceptability. He paid us a visit May 30th, and brought us aid from the Church Extension Society. I protracted my meeting in town a few nights which resulted in 8 converts, 9 joined the church. I have in Paris 56 Sunday-school scholars, and two good Sunday-schools in the country."

J. Kencer, Tullahoma: "My circuit is in a very good condition. Having watched the progress of our people I find that they are just becoming convinced that the Methodist Episcopal Church is the church for them. My second quarterly conference was held at Manchester by Rev. W. C. Miller. He preached a sermon that opened their eyes; the Sunday after I received from the Baptist church 4, caused by reading the general rules of our church. It will do more good at times than a sermon. Brother Miller is much loved by my people, they want him back again. The day being bad my collection was small, only $1.45; my benevolent money is $5.20. I think I will bring up all of my money by conference. Just a little help at Manchester will give us a nice church. Please help us."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. H. Cook, Crystal Springs: "We had nine deaths in the 12 days from May 19th to May 31st. Three children were buried in one day, the oldest aged 13 years. The epidemic of flux is being checked. Little Bertie Jenkins believed she was going to her Savior, and left us aged 13 years."

D. F. Dudley, Augusta: "Elder McDonald held the quarterly conference at Wade's Chapel. After exhortation from the elder the brethren seemed determined to make this centennial a year of jubilee. Rev. G. W. Smith followed the elder in a noble sermon. Collection $9.85. The people in Wade's settlement love God, and no quarterly conference had been held there in seven years. I propose to erect a church building at Hattiesburg. Elder Reynoir, of the M. E. Church South, spoke to our people and promised to help me all in his power, that we might work together to tear down the miserable whiskey shops."

P. Harris, Yazoo City: "We closed a six weeks protracted meeting a short time ago, after the conversion of 69 souls and 14 on probation. The church prospers spiritually. In Sunday school there is an average attendance of 140, and good teachers. Dr. Revels preached on the different benevolences of the church with excellent effect. We are going to complete the front of our church for $210, and have collected some money for the purpose."

O. Gillespie, Shubuta, reports 22 conversions on his work this year, and 50 accessions. The Sunday-school are all in good condition.

S. Williams, Greensboro: "Bro. Gatewood, our pastor, has built three churches on this circuit; two are 30x40, one 25x30. He bought 8 acres of land. The churches cost $1,500. We have paid a good part of the pastor's salary. The fourth church is under way, the lumber bought. Bro. Gatewood is a good leader of the people."

L. J. Terrell, New Albany: "Our second quarterly conference was held by Elder Williams, and he aroused the church by a timely sermon."

ARKANSAS.

O. Gamble, Goodlet: "The people of this region are suffering for a pure Gospel, and education."

A. J. Phillips, Fayetteville: "I received my appointment from Bishop Wiley, and I reached here by the first Sunday in March. We set to work to complete our church building, which is now done with the exception of painting. Rev. Bro. Duncan deserves great credit for his heroic labor here last year. One year ago they had no place of worship, but now, through Rev. W R. R. Duncan's labor and management, they have a neat chapel complete, about 45x30. Our number is small, only about 75 or 80 in membership. Cotton is raised in this part of the country. Our people are all poor, but are willing to do all they can for the church. To give their pastor a comfortable support, they raised more money last year, according to their capacity than any congregation in the conference. Our church is in the lead here and we are still on the onward march. We are closing up a two weeks, meeting which resulted in the conversion of twelve or thirteen souls, and about twenty joined the church. We are trying to get ready to do all we can for the Childrens day. We are expecting the presence of presiding elder soon.

Duty of the Government to Suppress the Liquor Traffic.

BY W. E. HARRIS OF BALTIMORE.

The liquor traffic is our overshadowing crime. We find every where seemingly inexhanstible supplies of fermented liquors. The result of this traffic is widespread debauchery, pauperism and ruin. Government is honestly obligated to suppress this traffic. We argue because, first there stands pre-eminent in the constitution the promise to promote the general welfare of her citizens. But the well witnessed, disastrous effects of such traffic hurl forth stern opposition and defiance to this promise. Indeed, if she would promote general welfare she must endeavor to maintain the hearty allegiance of her citizens. How, can she command such reverence, such allegiance of them if not by promoting the purest unblemished morals? When she suffers her garments to be so deeply stained by the transportation of this poisonous beverage, she don't but nonrish a serpent that will finally strike its deadly fangs into her own bosom. The perverse, the ambitions, in short the most demoralized masses of men by dealings in this fraudulent traffic enrich and shelter themselves, when so conditioned as to wield any considerable degree of power, by using the most degrading stratagems and impositions. They are the first to turn traitor to the government. To create a collision of her interests, and prove an obstruction to the predominance of the very Christian principles, on which depends her stability, unhindered growth, and high character. The midnight gambler sets up this destructive drink as a valuable prize for the best worker in satanic darkness.

The bloody assassin resorts to its secret device as a plausible reason for strange and foolish actions, which assume the form of insanity when summoned under the inspection of the civil law. Even the cold blooded murderer forces himself into some quiet chamber in the solemn stillness of the night, and there having completed his fiendish deed, immediately feigns as his shield a state of inebriety, by which to plead that he was irresponsible when he committed the crime. Thus it, baffles the courts of justice and either lessens or escapes a just penalty. Hence this drunkenness or pretended drunkenness proves a most successful palliation of crime, in the presence of the very law, the government sets forth. What is more, it sends the complaining winds that pierce the rude crevice of your lonely cottage, in which reigns the most abject poverty and chilled the life blood of the mother's hearts and children, and hasten the time for the chanting of their solemn requiem, whose hearts now like muffled drums are beating funeral marches to the grave. Call this general welfare? Call it general worst fare, intolerable fare, and the premises are still far from being wholly covered. The influence of this traffic sets in motion a wave of direct conflict between the laws of Church and State. How may we ever determine the morals of any people, if not by the state of their morals? Can the work of the evil doer ever be crowned with a blessing? Holy Writ cries out a thousand times no! Have you ever observed the fall of a wounded bird, with its gorgeous feathers all disfigured with blood? We pity the plumage but forget the dying bird; likewise we observe the clanking chains about the wretched drunkard being urged to some miserable slavish prison cell, we pity the deplorable condition but forget the dying soul of the man. The Bible says: "strong drink is raging." The State, "It is quite damaging." The church says "handle not that which is unclean." The State hesitates not the least to deal in that which destroys the physical and defiles the spiritual man. The government further promises to insure domestic tranquility. But, says the experienced advocate for the tolerance of such trade: "The traffic in liquor does not affect that assurance because it is simply commerce in the grain of the field, in the fruit of the earth." But who would sanction such a depraved, deceitful utterance? A just and allwise God never distined the vegetation of the earth, which He hath blessed to the good of man. He never destined the fruit of the field, which He hath decked in glory surpassing that of Solomon. No, God never intended liquor to destroy the peace of His creatures. From the bosom of the mother, is to us the son, the child of her heart, and stay of her life, and caused to forget the blessings of sobriety and to wander out into the filth of the world, and then return homeward in all his wayward proneness to pierce the mother's heart with the dagger of sluggishness, disobedience and ingratitude. Not only in this does it blight such assurance but in its tendency also the church, that most holy and divine institution. Mark you toper, having satisfied the fullness of his delight, plodding his way with unguarded footsteps toward the sacred church. See him mingling with her devontest Christians and even at the invitation to the holy eucharist, approaches that hallowed alter. But behold him kneeling there in all his sin and wretchedness, arrayed in the very vestment of Christ's humble servants about to pollute that solemn ordinance; now who would plead the innocence, the incorruption of such a traffic, knowing that in such inquity what must be the great displeasure of the omniscient God. Hence I appeal to the wise discretion of the lovers of justice, of virtue, of loyalty to our "Colors Three," call this domestic tranquility? It cannot be, for whatever corrupts the morals of the church, corrupts the morals of every household, whatever corrupts the morals of the household destroys the peace of man; and this foul evil works in the chief executive mansion, infects the dignity of our chief magistrate, and influences the action of all it rules, provoking the emanation of those intolerable decisions that inevitably brings about discontent and ultimately destroys all peace and harmony. When filled with liquor it is that the unworthy husband, half crazed by this fiery rum, gives the deadly blow to his beloved companion; then it is that by indulgence in this dipsomania which so brutalizied the inclination of man, that it causes the son to rise against the father, brother against brother, and in some cases even the daughter against the mother. Thus, seeing that this traffic in distilled liquors produces strife and confusion, and destroys the peace and tranquility of society, may our government speedily proceed from a sense of moral obligation to suppress this traffic. May the influence of Christianity be felt in every law. So that the places of such vicious, untoward characters in our land may be filled with sober, sound minded men; that contention, grief, and privation, may give place to union, comfort and prosperity. So that temperance doctrine may be received in every degenerated enterprise, and the blessings of our holy religion control the counsel of the nation, and the hearts of the citizens. May the nation verify those solemn avowals of its constitution, and correct the vast disorders of free liquor. "Who hath woe, Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

Is a Collegiate Education a Necessary Qualification for the Pulpit?—No. 3.

BY PROF. T. B. SNOWDEN OF THE CENTENARY BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

Again, if a collegiate education is an essential qualification for other professions, it is a necessary qualification for the pulpit.

Does any one donbt the usefulness of our colleges? Or does he believe that we can do just as well without them? Some may say that they are necessary to prepare young men for the law, for statesmen, doctors, scientists, and teachers; but they are not necessary to prepare men for the ministry, because when the Lord calls a man to preach, he fits him for the work. We reply that no man was ever born a scholar, not even the Son of Glory; nor yet did any one become learned without hard study and diligent application for long and continued years; neither did the Lord put a premium upon ignorance, indolence and ease. He endowed man with a faculty capable of development, and then left the development wholly with man; and he who waits for God to prepare him for work is as unwise as a farmer would be who would wait for the Lord to plow his ground, sow his wheat, and plant his corn and potatoes. Our God does not work on that line. He who wants his meutal powers to bud, then blossom out into beauty, and then bring forth luscious fruit, must labor and toil for many years. "First the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." It is admitted on all sides that our colleges are useful, and that we could do so without them. The secular professions would suffer greatly if the colleges were to suspend for a few years. But is any of these professions of as much importance as the ministry? Then, if the minister holds the most important office, the young man preparing for that office should have the best education; and, if the colleges afford the best, the young minister, by all means, should have the college education in preference to the young man entering other professions. Surely the highest position occupied by man should be filled by the most learned and best men. It was so in the days of the patriarchs, prophets, and apostles. Moses was skilled in all the learning and wisdom of Egypt; and that meant a great deal more than we ever thought of. Jacob, Elijah and Isaiah were among the wisest men in their day. Solomon had no equal among his predecessors or contemporaries; and it is doubtful whether his equal lived before Christ. Saint Paul was the greatest scholar of his time and the nearest man to the Lord Jesus that ever lived. Such were the scholars of God's chosen times. The greater the responsibility to be assumed, the broader the scholarship should be. Heavy burdens are for strong men.

Again, a collegiate education is a necessary qualification for the pulpit, because the minister is to be teacher of all classes—the high and low, rich and poor, learned and illiterate. It is not his to select his auditors, but to preach to those who may come to hear him. Hence he must "be instant in season and out of season." To know how to address a promiscuous audience, that all may be interested, requires learning added to good sense. The minister cannot divide his congregation into classes as a school-teacher can, and then give to each class the lessons suitable to their understanding. But he must teach all at the same time, or else instruct a portion and leave the others uninstructed. A teacher of that sort in the school room would not be tolerated a month. I have great sympathy for our fathers who came up under adverse circumstances, when they were not allowed to attend a primary school, much less a college. Under such circumstances they did well, and some of them are still doing a good work. But a young man of to-day, surrounded as he is by golden opportunities, has no business to ask the Church to send him to teach she people unless he has a good education, and, if possible, he should have a collegiate education. The Church should demand as much of her teachers as the school does of hers. A man who can only teach spelling, reading and writing could not get a position under any well-regulated school system; nor would any one of you desire your children to go to such a teacher, even if they did not know as much as the teacher. Then, if we send men to preach who know but little, we should not complain if the best-informed ones of that charge should attend some other charge and then join it. And that is just what they are doing. Bishop Foster freely confessed to the Preachers' Meeting the subject in hand. A collegiate education is a necessary qualification for the pulpit, when its possessor is imbued with the Holy Ghost; without this he is not fitted for that work.

The apostles were not prepared to go to work until after the descent of the Holy Spirit. They had the brain-power, and simply lacked heart-power. A fully developed intellect and a wholly sanctified heart compose a power that will subdue the world and send the devil howling to his own place. They enable their possessor to laugh at impossiblities and to brave dangers and hardships. But if a minister is not imbued with the Holy Ghost, he will be "but a sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal," it matters not how much learning he may have. We may make a mistake here if we persuade men to enter the ministry because they have a good education. Let us persuade no man to preach. When the Lord wants him he will let him know, and if the Lord is not able to do his work we had better not undertake to help him. When a man's heart has been consecrated to the Lord and he has been called to preach, "Woe is that man if he preach not the Gospel." He who has his head full of wisdom, and his heart all aglow with celestial fire is a moving power among all classes. It was the wisdom of Christ and the purity of his life that made him so potent with the masses; and although some did not believe in him, they had to acknowledge his power and goodness. Wisdom and goodness are the chief elements in the Godhead, and they alone make true manhood. Fill our pulpits with men of broad scholarship and sanctified hearts, and in a short time there would be a shaking among the "dry bones;" sin in high places would succumb, the enemy would flee as a bird to the mountain, and we would take the world for Christ.

The Delaware Conference.

The twentieth session of the Delaware Conference convened in Asbury M. E. Church, Easton, Md, on Wednesday morning June 11, at 9 o'clock. Bishop Simpson was to have held the conference, but on account of his illness was substituted by Bishop Fowler. Everybody seemed to regret the absence of Bishop Simpson, but gave a very cordial reception to Bishop Fowler. It seemed to be generally known that Bishop Fowler has been a special friend to the Negro race, all his life, and it looked to us as well as others, that there was a particular fitness in him commencing his Episcopal work in a colored conference. His opening prayer was fervent, deliberate, and comprehensive, showing that he had his mind fully upon the condition and work of the Conference, and was anxious that great good should be the outcome of their session and influence upon the people. He asked with noted emphasis, that the Holy Spirit would especially help the preachers to exert their influence for good among the children and women in the homes that have been thrown open to them during the session. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered after prayer, and at 10 o'clock a. m., the business of of the conference began. A. R. Shockley, secretary of the last conference, called the roll; 65 of the 69 members answered to their names. Harrison C. Webb, deceased during the year.

H. A. Monroe was unanimously elected secretary, and Dr. Butler and J. Wesley Parker, assistants.

ceeds as well in all other [illegible] ences he may visit, as he did in this one, the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN will very soon exceed that of most of our papers. He left the conference greatly encouraged and hopeful of great results for his paper in the future within the bounds of the Delaware Conference.

The members of this conference give evidence of being earnest, intelligent, Christian gentlemen, imbued with the Methodistic fire and zeal which gives success to the cause wherever they go. Among the things worthy of note in the history of this conference is the fact that during the twenty years of its organization there has been only one member who has been charged with immorality, and that charge was against Rev. John W. Stevenson, M. D., who came to this conference from the Baltimore Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church about eighteen months ago. He was tried at this session and acquitted.

The work of the conference is progressing most encouragingly. One new district was made at this session, viz., Easton District, Rev. J. H. Riddick was received by transfer from the Washington Conference. Rev. Mr. Riddick was one of the most active and influential preachers of the conference he has acceptably served during the last twelve years, and will do good service in the Delaware as he has in the Washington Conference.

Trash.

As I was looking over my article on "Woman's Work" in the SOUTHWESTERN of June 19th, I read the following: "If there are women who neglect home duties and become harsh and unfeminine, they are of the trash, etc." Could I have written that, I thought, and yet there it was, as plain as could be. I intended to write "If there are women who neglect home duties and become harsh and unfeminine, they are off the track;" and really I am sure I wrote it so. No doubt I owe the printer an apology for having written it so poorly, that he had to guess at the meaning of my words, and so made me express myself so unfortunately. By using "off the track" I thought I could be easily understood. The omitting of an f, and changing ck to sh, made me give expression to what I cannot at all endorse. But, as it was not my intention to write any thing unkind, I hope to be forgiven. I am not sorry to have an excuse for writing some things that have long been in my mind, and about which we should all think.

There are people who are in the habit of applying unkind epithets to those, seemingly inferior to them, in culture and education, and whom they deem death them in social life. The commonness of it may make it seem unimportant but as it is a sin, in the sight of God it is not trivial. In the days of slavery, the terible yoke that rested upon the colored people was not in accordance with the laws of God. Each of God's laws when broken is followed by its penalty, and so there was suffering among them. Neither did the blessing of God rest upon their oppressors. No portion of society can be degraded without the whole feeling its influence. The blight of slavery rested upon all who were in any way concerned with it. Several weeks ago, I read in the Nashville Christian Advocate a letter written by a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in which he represented that the colored people in many places were even then in a bad condition, notwithstanding all the advantages for education that had been provided for them. He wrote also, that there were in this country as many or more of poor whites as badly off as they. The whole world pitied the colored people, turned off, as they were, to depend upon themselves, ignorant, without homes, and destitute. The fact, that there were as many or more of the same kind of sufferers among the whites has not been so generally appreciated, because it has not been understood. Surely, it has been well proven that slavery was not a "Divine institution," and a blessing! The degrading epithets "nigger," and "poor whithe trash," originated in slavery and are relics of it. The former is a corruption of the word Negro, which is as good a name as as any race ever had, but "trash" has degradation in its meaning. It means something that is good for nothing, and so it cannot, properly, be applied to human beings, for they are of untold value, and no one is so low or despicable as not to be worth saving. Our Savior would never have died for the world and have made such exceptions. I have heard the term of reproach applied to people who were, no doubt, as precious in the sight of God as were those who used it, "for God is no respecter of persons." We now live in an age in which such reminders of the past sorrows are inappropriate and sinful. Let us not return to such "flesh pots" of past degredation. We need to discountenance unkindness, to others in any form, if we wish to have the favor of God, and do good. I promise, with all my heart that I will never apply the word "trash" to any human being.

The Stage-Driver's Story.

How General Scott's Life was Saved and How His Driver Twice Escaped Death

The traveler of the present day, as he is hurried along by the lightning express, in its buffet cars and palace sleepers, seldom reverts in thought to the time when the stage coach and packet were the only means of communication between distant points. It is rare that one of the real old time stage drivers is met with now-a-days and when the writer recently ran across Fayette Haskell, of Lockport, N. Y., he felt like a bibliographer over the discovery of some rare volume of "forgotten lore." Mr. Haskell, although one of the pioneers in stage driving (he formerly ran from Lewiston to Niagara Falls and Buffalo), is hale and hearty and bids fair to live for many years. The strange stories of his early adventures would fill a volume. At one time when going down a mountain near Lewiston with no less a personage than General Scott as a passenger, the the brakes gave way and the coach came on the heels of the wheel horses. The only remedy was to whip the leaders to a gallop. Gaining additional momentum with each revolution of the wheels the coach swayed and pitched down the mount in side and into the streets of Lewiston. Straight ahead at the foot of the steep hill flowed the Niagara river, towards which the four horses dashed, apparently to certain death. Yet the firm hand never relaxed its hold nor the clear brain its conception of what must be done in the emergency. On dashed the horses until the narrow dock was reached on the river bank, when by a masterly exhibition of nerve and daring the coach was turned in scarce its own length and the horses brought to a stand still before the pale lookers on could realize what had occurred. A purse was raised by General Scott and presented to Mr. Haskell with high compliments for his skill and bravery.

Notwithstanding all his strength and his robust constitution the strain of continuous work and exposure proved too much for Mr. Haskell's constitution. The constant jolting of the coach and the necessary cramped position in which he was obliged to sit, contributed to this end, and at times he was obliged to abandon driving altogether.

Speaking of this period he said: "I found it almost impossible to sleep at night; my appetite left me entirely and I had a tired feeling which I never knew before and could not account for."

"Did you give up driving entirely?"

"No. I tried to keep up but it was only with the greatest effort. This state of things continued for nearly twenty years until last October when I went all to pieces."

"In what way?"

"Oh, I doubled all up; could not walk without a cane and was incapable of any effort or exertion. I had a constant desire to urinate both day and night and although I felt like passing a gallon every ten minutes only a few drops could escape and they thick with sediment. Finally it ceased to flow entirely and I thought death was very near."

"What did you do then?"

"What I should have done long before; listen to my wife. Under her advice I began a new treatment."

"And with what result?"

"Wonderful. It unstopped the closed passages and what was still more wonderful regulated the flow. The sediment vanished; my appetite returned and I am now well and good for twenty more years wholly through the aid of Warner's Safe Cure that has done wonders for me as well as for so many others."

Mr. Haskell's experience is repeated every day in the lives of thousands of American men and women. An unknown evil is undermining the existence of an innumerable number who do not realize the danger they are in until health has entirely departed and death perhaps stares them in the face. To neglect such important matters is like drifting in the current of Niagara above the Falls.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1884.

Important to Agents.

DEAR BRETHREN: At the close of the first six months, and the second quarter of 1884, we find it necessary to call the attention of many of our agents to the following facts:

1. It is understood that you are not to become indebted to this office for papers.

2. We requested agents to receive small payments from subscribers, and forward some money to this office on account each quarter.

3. The responsibility of an agent means that where assumed, the agent is to pay this office every dollar due on the list sent in by him, at a time not later than his annual conference. Any postponement or delay is rightly considered by us as an act of bad faith.

4. The subscription money collected for the church paper can not properly be diverted to other purposes, either as an individual or a church loan, with the expectation of making it good at conference. The money collected for the paper belongs to the paper, and should be promptly forwarded to us as rapidly as collected. Small amounts are always acceptable, and we allow a commission to pastors for the reason that it costs something to forward the money.

We do not desire lists on account with agents who are unwilling to comply with these terms in any particular. We cannot wait until the end of the year for all of the money each agent owes, we must have some during the year to pay the expense of publishing. Again we urge you to proceed at once with the payment of accounts.

A Contrast.

Girard College does not permit ministers within its walls even as visitors. This state of affairs is provided for in the will of the great benefactor whose name it bears. Yale College, its next great neighbor, has a large and stately building for its theological department, and through its ministerial students (among whom is one colored man, Rev. Mr. Miller, from South Carolina, a member of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, acting pastor of the colored Congregational church in New Haven) it sends out a leaven of Congregational Christianity over the whole country.

The Cholera.

The cholera, after almost depopulating parts of Africa in its ravages last year, has made its way and now begins its deadly work in France. It is following closely the line of movement which preceded its entrance into this country as an epidemic in the years of 1832 and 1847. Little besides shutting it up within the infected districts was attempted last year in Egypt. So after there was nothing remaining for it to feed on, the scourge subsided in that country.

It has been expected to make its appearance in Europe, and arrangements perfected by which its effects will be reduced to the minimum of disaster. We on this side of the ocean have no good reason to expect immunity from this fierce and malignant disease. It may first touch lightly upon our Eastern shores, and by the following year be fairly in the midst of its carnival of death. The points of greatest danger in times of epidemic prevalence are the cities. Here large populations congregate themselves together; rents are high and hence to many people are forced to live in the same house. This genders disease, and induces contagion to take hold by means of a poisonous and vitiated atmosphere. This in turn tends to disorganize the blood and greatly incapacitate the constitution to assert itself against these stealthy and determined foes.

Filth in yards, gutters, streets, cellars, houses, out buildings and stables, with decomposing vegetable or animal matter exposed to the sun, induce physical disorders, hence these abound in cities. Bad drainage, and foul sewers contribute in no small degree to the deterioration of health. Imperfect burials and decaying bodies in the passage of water veins taken into public wells also cause disease.

In a protracted heated term all the sources of physical disorder unite for a grand assault upon man and beast within their reach. Thus they either originate or superintend and prepare the way for the disease germ to exist and propagate itself. But it will be seen at a glance that none of these inducements to the creation and spread of contagion are beyond the control of man. Low fevers, all cutaneous or eruptive complaints feed on dirt. They can not exist without dirt, and the more dirt, the worse is the disease.

The remedy then is simply and only cleanness. Personal, domestic, and municipal cleanness, will either prevent or largely mitigate the effect of this dreadful and impending scourge. The same in time of yellow fever, malarial fever and small-pox. It is a solemn duty of the authorities to recommend and enforce thorough cleanness and perfect drainage, by all the means in their power, whether these be of persuasion or legal force. We must do those things which are conducive to the greatest good of the greatest number.

Assimilation or Isolation—Which?

Hon. Frederick Douglass regards assimilation as the solution of the problem of the colored race in the United States. Wm. Wells Brown takes the same view of it. The New York Globe that isolation will solve it. Hon. Geo. W. Williams, the historian, and Wm. Still seem to take a middle view, agreeing fully with that of neither of the others. Thus are the ideas of the leaders neutralizing and canceling each other. Meantime the races are working out their destiny, each drawing nearer the other in all useful things every hour. So they will proceed until at last the heights of human fellowship shall have been mounted, each having maintained its normal qualities and acquired all that is circumstantially necessary. In pursuit of this ultimately objective point unity, and progress to closer combinations for this purpose is the work before us. In this we stand in line with the enlightened tendencies and thought of the age. These tendencies we could not alter or reverse if we would, and would not if we could.

Stand by the Courts.

Col. Buford who shot Judge Elliott, of the Kentucky Supreme Court, was pronounced insane, confined in an insane asylum from which he escaped, and after crossing the Ohio river was allowed to go at liberty in Jeffersonville, Indiana, less than 20 miles from the asylum.

Since the shooting of Judge Elliott two other Kentucky judges have been violently assaulted by dissatisfied litigants, and one of them, Judge Reid of Mount Sterling, has committed suicide.

Recently Mr. Thomas Crittenden was convicted for killing Rose Moseby, a colored man at Anchorage, Kentucky. Nobody expected the sentence of the court to be enforced upon him, and sure enough it was not. He, upon appeal to the Supreme Court, gets a new trial. The grounds upon which it was granted were purely technical, as the killing was done in broad day light and is well established. It is not so much because Moseby was a Negro as it is because his slayer was a Crittenden that he escapes punishment as he doubtless will.

It is not often that men of wealth and high social connection are punished in Kentucky for killing a man whether he is black or white. In the case of Crittenden the lower court did its duty faithfully. Major Carruth, the prosecuting attorney, could not have labored more earnestly than he did under the circumstances. But before courts can be expected to do all that is required to maintain peace and protect the life and property of the people, there must be created a public sentiment which will give some assurance of protection to the courts.

Analysis of the Republican Platform.

1. It regards the success already attained by the Republican party as the result of fidelity to their principles, and promises to insure a continuance of national prosperity by adherence to these principles in the future.

2. It promises hereafter as heretofore prompt responses to the public demand for freedom, equality, national unity, honest money, integrity in the public service, and to lead in all progressive measures of reform.

3. It laments the death of, and refers to President Garfield as a sound and patriotic statesman.

4. It recognizes, approves and recommends the wisdom, conservatism, and patriotism of President Authur's administration, as being conducive to the present prosperous condition of the country.

5. It declares the first duty of the government, is to promote the industry of its own people; by the imposition of a tariff, on foreign imports, not for reveune only, but that the laborer may enjoy the nation's prosperity.

6. It protests against the Democratic doctrine of free trade, charges that party with a failure to keep its promise to reduce taxation, and pledges itself to correct the irregularities of the tariff and protect sheep-husbandry and the culture of wool.

7. Having always recommended sound money it will continue to do so, and endeavor in furtherance of this policy to secure an international monetary standard on the relative value of gold and silver.

8. It promises such legislation as will secure the regulation of foreign and inter-State commerce on the most equitable basis, eight hours as a working day, a fair legal control of railway-transportation, the protection of Americans abroad, and the arbitration of national differences.

9. Having an original hatred to slave labor, it is pledged to oppose it whether of domestic or foreign origin, and to that end, will faithfully enforce the law against the degradation of American working men, by the importation of Chinese coolies.

10. Having inaugurated, it pledges the Republican party to carry out the spirit and purpose of civil service reform.

11. It demands the forfeiture by Congress of all land grants, to corporations which have not faithfully attempted to carry them out.

12. It regards with veneration the work done for the nation's good by our patriotic soldiers and sailors, and promises to modify the arrears of pension act, that all relief may begin with the date of disability or discharge from the public service.

13. It opposes entangling alliances with foreign nations but desires further peaceful commercial relations with all countries, and especially desires closer commercial relation with those in the Western hemisphere, and to encourage American shipping by congressional enactment.

14. It favors the appointment by the President of citizens of the territories to official positions therein, and regards it as the duty of Congress to suppress polygamy.

15. It declares that the people of the United States are a nation, not a confederacy merely, and regards law and order as essential to its perpetuation; they therefore arraign the Democratic party for suppressing the freedom of elections.

16. It extends its sympathy and pledges its support to Republicans, regardless of past party affiliations, in procuring such legislation as will secure to citizens of every race, their civil and political rights.

We have divided the above document into such form as will render its comprehension less difficult. There is in it nothing explicitly favoring prohibition, but for this omission as a statement of political doctrine it would be open to very few objections. The other parties will say about the same things in other words. Parties represent ideas but in the present effort to retain or gain power the most prominent features will probably be the omission of points involving the essential quality of reform.

The Democratic Convention Pre-viewed.

The Democratic party as an organization has a bad reputation. There were good men in it before the war, but they were compelled to leave it to save the country. Many such men are in it now but they are, and will prove to be unequal to the work of restoring it to popular confidence. The Democratic party represents an idea inconsistent with the meaning of Democracy. It believes in the enslavement of labor by capital. It went to war in behalf of this idea. It has not recanted that opinion though it has by words adroitly connected, obscured it at times only to have it break out again upon the least indication of a returned to power. The Democratic party is committed to rule in opposition to the wishes of the majority in the South. The Democratic party North and South [for the North is responsible for the South as long as they, the two wings of the party, co-operate with each other], is a blood-guilty party, whose footsteps are attended by oppression and violence. The Democratic party offers no inducement for labor or immigration to come South. It promises nothing to 1,000,000 colored voters and their wives and children, who live in the Southern States and compose a laboring population indigenous to its climate and soil. This party does not care to secure their co-operation by choice; it is committed to the policy of compelling either the support or neutrality of this large mass of its citizens by means of hard laws or violence. Such is the law and the traditions of the Democracy when in power. It cannot hope for or expect the co-operation of the Negroes and mulattoes in the South until some assurance is given that their freedom will be secure and their rights as citizens fully maintained. The Negroes are anxious to be at peace with the people in whose midst they live, and by whom they are employed. They have given practical evidence of this desire by faithfully performing their duty and by respectful recognition of the rights of others. But they have refused political affiliation with the dominant party in the South because they were bound by ties of gratitude for their freedom to the great Republican party. And because their self respect and humanity forbid them giving support to a party which denied them any right of political choice, selection or preference either of men, measures or parties. The South cannot afford a continuance of strife, and the Negroes are tired of it. Let us have a cessation of these asperities. For the sake of the South and the whole community "let us have peace." Will the Democratic convention at Chicago be equal to the task of giving to the colored people an unequivocal assurance that they are hereafter to find that quality of friendliness which will warrant their trusting their interest in the hands of this party. The nomination of Governor Hoadley, Governor Pattison or Butler, on a platform committed to popular reform, justice, majority rule, civil rights, protection and prohibition, will work a marvelous change in the relation of the two classes of citizens to each other. With the support of these voters, nothing can prevent the triumph of that party. Are its leaders able to give the patriotic assurance required? The giving of which will insure national peace, commercial prosperity, business stability and moral progress? We shall see.

A Word to Our Readers.

We gratefully acknowledge the many compliments constantly coming to us. Some are congratulations, others expressions of pleasure with the manner and matter of our work. This is gratifying to us, and we wish to say that the SOUTHWESTERN is destined to accomplish a good work for Methodism. Our first edition was early exhausted, and the salutatory of the editor was republished without his knowledge to satisfy a pressing demand. The number for June 19 contains valuable contributions. We call attention to the reports on the first page as valuable matter of a statistical nature will be found there. Rev. L. M. Hagood has also given statistics which are interesting. The inquiries for lost friends furnishes a theme at once pathetic and touching. No newspaper has superior facilities to ours for securing the information desired. The benefit of this department is placed at the disposal of our patrons free of charge, others 50 cents for each insertion. Our advertising department can be relied upon, for we publish only such business as commends itself to the confidence of patrons for the pure and useful quality of their goods. Our household receipts are fresh, economical and valuable. The notices from the conferences, districts and churches are always accurate and reliable. Marriages, conversions and deaths are so reported here that it renders this paper essential to a correct knowledge of society among our subscribers. The personals are spicy, abundant and inoffensive. Our exchange list brings us means of collating news of the most valuable character, adapted to the wants of our patrons. Our political statements are always reliable, and offensive personality cannot be found here. Our Sunday-school lesson is short, clear and strong, and the selections such as are especially pleasing to young people. Every number contains [illegible] columns of fresh matter, and our book notices are quite helpful to the buyer. Matter will be found in every paper helpful to members, pastors, presiding elders, teachers, local preachers, exhorters and official members and Christians, and well meaning people generally. We therefore ask those who owe us to [illegible], and all these classes to subscribe and secure other subscribers. $1 to the end of 1884. The publishers speak plainly and earnestly. Please read their announcement at the head of the first column, fourth page, and act promptly. We must double our subscriptions—two new cash subscribers for each old one will do it. Who will send the first two?

True Christianity.

Christianity is not merely an intoxication. It is a life of elevating elevation. Therefore it is impossible to be a Christian except such a change of our habits takes place as will render them consistent with the requirements of this new life. Men who live in hot climates, where nature can be relied upon to furnish in a great degree the necessary things for living, are apt to be disinclined to strive to obtain the adorning and embellishing qualities of mind, home and heart. This would seem to be especially true of a people like those who lately obtained the blessing of freedom. There is a temptation to find an excuse in the fact that our fathers had few comforts of life, we have more, and hence we need not strive for others. Those we have can only be retained by the multiplication of the good, and substraction of the unprofitable. Above all we must covet and labor to acquire all that is useful in life and abiding in death.

The statement having been made that Senator W. P. Kellogg devoted the money received from star route transactions, to campaign use for the Republican party in Louisiana, there is a general inquiry as to where and how any such an amount was ever spent here. Well informed Republicans assert they know nothing about it. Mr. Kellogg deserves to be retired from public life, as he brings reproach upon his constituents and does not honor the Republican party in general.

The Fouth of July was observed in the United States Senate by a prayer from Bishop Andrews, and the reading of the Declaration of Independence. All over the country there was a patriotic observance of the day. In New Orleans greater interest was manifested than ever before, and it was really a holiday enjoyed by thousands of people.

There is to be a centennial celebration at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, August 8th, Bro. W. O. Emory conducting it.

Kind Words.

New Orleans, June 26, 1884.

At a regular meeting of the New Orleans Preacher's Meeting a committee of three was appointed, to draft resolutions expressing our gratitude to the General Conference for the election of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, welcoming him to our midst; and also to extend to Rev. L. P. Cushman and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., our former editors, our appreciation for the able manner in which they have conducted the paper in the past. The President appointed the following committee, Revs. M. C. B. Mason, chairman; Rev. James W. Hudson and Rev. A. J. Ford, Secretary, who, after deliberation, preseuted the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The SOUTHWESTERN, under the management of Rev. L. P. Cushman as editor, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B.D., as assistant, has been a power for good among our people, not only in the State of Louisiana, but throughout the Church; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting, voicing as we believe the sentiments of the Church in this State, do extend to them our sincere thanks for the good accomplished by them, and pray the blessings of God upon the work in which they are now engaged; and, further be it

Resolved, That we look upon the Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., as a true and tried son of Methodism, rejoice with the Church everywhere in his selection as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, cordially welcome him among us, and pledge our full and undivided support to the paper. Respectfully,

M. C. B. MASON, Chm'n.
JAS. W. HUDSON,
A. J. FORD, Secretary,

Frankfort, Ky., June 25, '84.

The Louisville District Stewards meeting opened with prayer by Rev. Marshall W. Taylor. The churches were fully represeuted. The basis for the financial work of the year was agreed upon, and other resolutions were adopted, as follows:

Resolved, That the apportionment for the presiding elder shall be one-seventh of the estimate for the pastor.

Resolved, That the apportionment for the Bishop shall be one-fourth of the allowance for the presiding elder.

Resolved, That the basis of the assessment for benevolent purposes shall be 10 per cent. of the estimates for the pastor's, and that this includes the conference claimants.

Resolved, That we have been long and closely acquainted with the Rev. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor as a neighbor, friend, pastor and presiding elder, and in all these relations have found him an earnest Christian man, one with whom it has been both pleasant and profitable for us to have been associated with. In view of these things, we regret that he is to be removed from us, although we rejoice in his promotion, which we regard as the reward of merit. We are gratified that it should be our district and our presiding elder who was first called to so eminent a place as that of an official editor, and we therefore pledge our material support in order to secure his success in that responsible situation.

Resolved, That the policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as it has always been, and as it was reiterated by the General Conference, convinces us of the wisdom of our choice in uniting with it; confirms our purpose to live and die in it, and strengthens us with arguments to recommend it.

Resolved, That we hail the election of a white man as Bishop to Africa, and a colored one for an official editor as a full vindication and illustration of the inter-race policy of our Church.

Resolved, That it is our duty to faithfully circulate our own literature in preference and in opposition to all other, and more than ever to support the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by subscribing for and contributing to it.

Resolved, That we regret the retiremeut of Drs. F. S. Hoyt and D. D. Whedon, but we hail with joy the election of Drs. J. H. Bayliss and Daniel Curry as editors of the Western Christian Advocate and Methodist Quarterly Review.

Resolved, That we regard the death of Bishop Mathew Simpson as a great calamity, affecting and bereaving not only the Church but the nation, and that we see in it a fresh evidence of the saving power of Christian principles and practices. We tender to his bereaved family our heartfelt condolence and sympathy.

Resolved, That the thanks of this steward's meeting is due and are hereby tendered to Mamie Baker, our accomplished Secretary.

Done by the District Stewards of Louisville District, Lexingtou Conference, June 26, 1884, at Frankfort, Kentucky.

Bishop Simpson's Funeral.

DEAR BRO. TAYLOR:—It may interest your readers to have a brief description of Bishop Simpson's funeral by an eye witness. The funeral occurred last Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the beautiful white marble Arch Street M. E. Church, which Bishop Simpson dedicated in 1870. His family are now members of, and occupy a pew in this church.

At 2 p. m., at least 300 ministers of different denominations, including the Church Extension and other boards, formed into line at Wesley Hall, 1018 Arch street, and marched to the church. The lower floor was reserved for the family and friends and clergy. The galleries were open to the public. Including many ministers from Boston, New York, Pittsburg, Baltimore and vicinities, it is estimated that at least 450 clergymen were present. So many members of the recent General Conference were present it seemed like a regathering of that great body. Sprinkled over the entire congregation were many colored people.

Promptly at 3 p. m., after a brief service at the house by Bishop Taylor and Bro. Robinson, the family and friends, preceded by the coffin, which was borne by Gov. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, ex-Gov. Evans, of Col., Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, Secretaries Teller and Lincoln, and others, filed slowly into the church amid the solemn hush of more than a thousand subdued hearts. The vast audience quietly rose to its feet, and the organ glided into the subdued and melting strains of Beethoven's march as the procession slowly moved toward the draped pews.

Eight of the Bishops and several of the General Conference officers led the entire procession. Several colored women, probably at some time members of the Bishop's household, were among the immediate family. Bishop Bowman read the verses of Scripture at the beginning of the ritual service; Bishop Andrew read the first lesson; Bishop Ninde the second; Bishop Harris offered a simple prayer abounding chiefly in scriptural quotations; Dr. Longacre, pastor of the church, announced a hymn, No. 1010; and then Bishop Foster pronounced a magnificent enlogy. It was at once discriminating, comprehensive, scholarly, graphic, pathetic, beautiful, eloquent. It was in every way a fitting tribute. Before the Bishop died the writer hoped that Bishop Foster would be selected to deliver the eulogy, he was rejoiced to hear that choice had been made, and his highest expectations were fully realized when finally Bishop Foster's eloquent peroration lifted all the audience to view the glorified form of the departed Bishop Simpson, speaking to them tender and inspiring words from the open portal of Heaven.

Bishop Bowman next, and in most admirable taste, spoke very tender and appreciative words, chiefly reminiscences.

Bishop Fowler then delivered an address which would have impressed the audience more deeply had it preceded the eloquent words of Bishop Foster. Then followed a prayer, or rather an oration, by a prominent minister (white), who reminded the writer of an informatory prayer made by one of the colored delegates at the opening of a session of a recent General Conference. The brother prayed about as follows, some of the sentences are exact quotations: "O, Lord, we thank thee for this General Conference; we believe thou has directed almost all the deliberations of this great body, and hast chosen nearly all the men elected by our ballots; God bless our dear senior Bishop, who was so good to us all, who presided first over our annual conference (naming it), who twice laid his hands on this head and ordained me deacon and elder, and who married us once. Lord bless the dear Bishop and let him live." The prayer of the white brother on the occasion of the funeral was much longer, more accurate, rhetorical, comprehensive, but hardly exceeded the colored brother's prayer in earnestness, good taste and discriminating attention to detail. The mistake was, probably in writing an oration, twisting it into the form of a prayer, and committing it to memory which almost compelled its delivery as written, although the hour was so late. However, the prayer was not in as bad taste as the sacrilegious words and actions of very many displeased ministers and laymen all over the house. That man would indeed be captious who would attempt to minify the fame of the great Simpson. The writer believes that no man since the death of Asbury has left upon the Methodist Episcopal Church the impression for good that Bishop Simpson has left. We shall not see his like again. But many have joined the writer in the conviction that there was too much eulogy of the sainted Simpson at the expense of the kingly Christ he so royally preached. And yet the magnitude and sweep of the Bishop's life was a natural temptation to such a grave mistake. Although we do not believe the crowned Bishop was pleased with it, he doubtless tried hard to pardon it as of human infirmity, and of the strong expressions of love which a historic event would be likely to stir.

Dr. Trumbull, editor of the Sunday-School Times, announced the closing hymn, No. 979, and Bishop Mallalieu pronounced the benediction. From that hour until 9:30 in the evening almost a constant stream of people, including ragged children, news boys, men in shirt sleeves, filed past the coffin surrounded by flowers and under a catafalco. There was a great and varied display of beautiful flowers. Among other beautiful designs was a crown presented by Cincinnati Methodists. Telegrams and resolutions, a multitude of them, poured in from all directions. If the church ever sees a tithe of them they must appear in the biography of the dead Bishop. Prominent men, official and private, from State and Church, were at the funeral, and many sent testimonials of regret. A guard of honor composed of several young ministers, watched the coffin in the church all night. The body was to the last in the custody of the ministry.

On Wednesday morning, attended by Bishops, loving relatives and friends, all that was mortal of the great Simpson was carried to Laurel Hill Cemetery, adjoining the city proper, and was put away amid flowers and rocks, in a sealed casket, to wait the resurrection of the just. And yet the Bishop is not dead: His voice and power will be felt in the Church to the end of time.

A Voice From the Washington Conference.

MR. EDITOR.—I grasp the first opportunity to express my unbounded pleasure in your elevation to the high and responsible position of editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Your election by the ballots of at least two-thirds of the members of the General Conference, and nine-tenths of those ballots being cast by white men, are facts that bring joy, inspiration and encouragement to me, and to the whole colored membership of the church. They evidence two things, namely: The perception of capability developed into ability in you, a colored member of the church; and secondly, the existence of sufficient courage in the church to give a full recognition to merit, existing even in a colored man. Is has been an open question with many of us, both in and out of the church, whether the Methodist Episcopal Church would ever fully recognize the ability of her colored members, and have the courage to elect those who may merit it to any General Conference office? That question has been squarely met, and, to the pleasure and encouragement of the "ins" on the one hand, and to the discomfiture and embarrassment of the "outs" on the other, it has been in no uncertain way answered affirmatively.

I must confess that both before and after the General Conference met, that I was apprehensive that either by action or non-action by the Conference, that the status of the colored membership would be allowed to remain either undefined, or their hope for full recognition blasted. But to my delight the grand old church, who, in the days of other years suffered the loss of one of her Bishops and thousands of her members by withdrawal, rather than ignore the doctrine of the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man, dared to say both by resolution, and action suitable to the resolution, that "color nor race is not a bar to election to any office in the Methodist Episcopal Church;" and, further, to follow up those declarations by electing you to the responsible position of editor of one the organs of the church. The way is now open and every member of the church has an equal chance to serve her in any and all positions that his ability fits him for. I am filled with emotion as I look through this open gate, upon the great field of possibilities that lies beyond the rising membership of this grand old church of God, since there is no department of church work that is closed against any member on account of his color or race.

While I rejoice, dear sir, in your election because you are a colored man, I am more highly elated in a knowledge of the fact that you are in every way fully competent to do the work assigned you. I am proud to be able to look upon you as the peer of your journalistic collegues, and, therefore, you will be able to demonstrate to the church and the world, in behalf of our own race, that the color of a man's skin is not the index, whether to his capabilities or his intrinsic worth.

In you, I feel that the entire colored membership is on trial; hence you should not be left alone by us to make the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE a success, but every colored member especially, should co-operate with you in bringing to this paper the true essentials to newspaper success, namely, brains, readers, and money. There are about twelve hundred colored itinerant ministers, and 250,000 colored members in our church, and all of them should feel enough interest in your sucess (which is but our own) to lay hold upon the enterprise with determination to succeed. Every one who can write should contribute articles to the paper, which would serve to develope the writer, increase the demand of the paper, and make known to the church men of large capabilities in the church who at present are unknown outside of their immediate localities. Every preacher in charge should immediately set to work to secure cash subscribers, and thereby bring to the SOUTHWESTERN both readers and money. If the twelve hundred colored preachers in charge would send in only two cash subscriptions and his own, success would be attained in that line at once. I verily believe, sir, that you will have the co operation of your brethren, and at no distant date the circulation of the SOUTHWESTERN will be increased from 3,800, which I am informed is the present subscription list, after having been published eighteen years, to at least 30,000. Any less circulation should fill every colored member of the Methodist Episcopal Church with shame, and show him to be disgracefully indifferent to his own interests. I feel to be fully identified with you, sir, in you work, and will cheerfully contribute in every way that I am capable to the advancement of the SOUTHWESTERN. I congratulate you upon the reward you have thus far received for your faithfulness to the church, and development of intellectual manhood; and at this time will only hint that a continued working and waiting along the same line pursued in the past, will bring you in the near future to another position in the church in which you will become one of the chief exponents of her book of Discipline. It is my heart's desire and prayer to God, that your time and talents being consecrated to the high and responsible work to which the church has called you, that you may do the work so satisfactorily that all will be constrained to say to you at the end of the quadrennium, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The Housekeeper.

Tomato Piquant is a very appetizing dish. Cut half a dozen tomatoes into slices, fry them in a very little butter just to brown them, and add a table-spoonful of white vinegar, the same of cayenne or chilli, and a few drops of tarragon or cucumber vinegar, a salt-spoonful of salt, and the same of sugar; simmer for twenty minutes.

Stuffed Tomatoes will be relished, and any scraps of meat, ham, or bacon will answer the purpose. Divide the fruit, remove the pips, and mix the pulp with bread-crumbs and meat, or whatever is used, finely minced and nicely seasoned; do not omit herbs of some kind; fill the tomatoes with the mixture, put a bit or two of butter or dripping on each half, and bake or fry brown.

Stewed Liver.—Cut up into slices one half pound of calf's liver and the same quantity of fat bacon; put first a layer of bacon at the bottom of a pudding dish, then one of liver, sprinkle with pepper and salt, add one medium-sized onion and one apple, both cut up; cover down and let it stew gently in the oven for about one hour and a quarter. No water is required, as the liver makes sufficient gravy. Serve with apples cut in rings and fried, or with tried parsnips.

Mrs. Frederick Grant, the wife of the ex-President's oldest son, and a daughter of a former millionaire, when informed of the failure of her husband, and the necessity for economy in her domestic relations, remarked: "I have lived on the army rations once, and I can do it again."

Water made slightly salt, and to which bran in the proportion of one quart to every gallon has been added, is said to increase the yield of milk by 25 per cent., if it is given to cows as their ordinary drink. After a short time the cows will refuse pure water, unless they are very thirsty.

Flummery.—Boil one pint of milk with one and a half ounces sugar and a bit of vanilla; as soon as it boils add one ounce of corn flour which has been mixed with a little cold milk, and stir with a wooden spoon until the corn flour is well cooked. Then take the pan off the fire and add four or five whites of eggs, beaten to a stiff froth; pour the mixture into a mould and serve with custard or fruit syrup. To be eaten cold.

Torette.—One pound of rice, [illegible] pound of butter. Melt the butter, and add to it one pound of [illegible] lean chicken veal or lamb, cut in small pieces. Cook for half an hour on a quick fire. The rice must be washed in boiling water. When added to the butter and meat, cover with meat broth about twice the quantity as of rice, adding salt, pepper, &c. Boil quickly with the lid on for half an hour; when finished, add a little piece more good butter. Serve up very hot.—J. B. Peyroux.

Fondue a l'Americaine.—Beat in a saucepan eight eggs and a pound of fresh white American cheese, sliced very fine, a cup of cream, two ounces of butter, a little salt and nutmeg; put on a moderately hot fire and stir constantly with a wooden spoon until the cheese is melted and the fondue pretty consistent and very hot, but do not let it boil, as the eggs would certainly curdle. Pour into a deep dish, surround with eight square slices of bread fried [illegible] in clarified butter and serve on very hot plates.—Felix Deliee.

After all the arguments about cheapness and quality it appears that Dr. [illegible] Cough Syrup is the best remedy for the cure of Coughs and Colds ever offered to the public. The price is only 25 cents a bottle and every druggist who has it sells and recommends it.

[illegible] is on orphanage for boys [illegible] Jerusalem founded by the German [illegible] which has in it 300 inmates, [illegible] brighter or more beautiful [illegible] children is seldom seen.

WHAT SEEK YE?

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. vi. 33.

Seek ye first, not earthly pleasure,
Fading joy, and failing treasure,
But the love that knows no measure,
Seek ye first.

Seek ye first, not earth's aspirings,
Ceaseless longings, vain desirings,
But your precious soul's requirings,
Seek ye first.

Seek ye first God's peace and blessing;
Ye have all if this possessing.
Come, your need and sin confessing,
Seek Him first.

Seek Him first; then, when forgiven,
Pardoned, made an heir of Heaven,
Let your life to Him be given;
Seek this first.

Seek this first—be pure and holy;
Like the Master, meek and lowly;
Yield to His service, wholly.
Seek this first.

Seek the coming of His kingdom,
Seek the souls around, to win them;
Seek to Jesus Christ to bring them;
Seek this first.

Seek this first. His promise trying,
It is sure—all need supplying—
Heavenly things (on Him relying.)
Seek ye first.

REV. HENRY W. TATE, LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D.:

I received my first copy of the Southwestern and I think your salutatory very good and in place. I am securing subscribers for the Southwestern and will send in my list and money before long.

I also enclose my appreciation of of the General Conference actions, which was published in the Globe last week under the title as you see. If you think best you can insert it in the Southwestern.

THERE IS NO COLOR LINE.

The M. E. Church and the Negro.—A Comprehensive View of the Benefits Conferred Upon the Race by the M. E. Church—Its Educational Establishments—The Colored Element in the General Conference at Philadelphia.

To the Editor of the Globe—

Sir: The recognition and elevation of the colored man by the Methodist Episcopal Church is worthy of consideration. This branch of the Christian Church has always been composed of both white and colored membership. The discipline of this church recognizes no difference whatever in the right and privileges of its members on account of distinction of color. It is for the people of all races and colors. There is no color line. In 1872 the General Conference expressed the sentiments of the church in the following weighty words:

"There is no word 'white' to discriminate against race or color known in our legislation, and being of African descent does not prevent membership with white men in annual conferences, nor ordination at the same altars, nor appointments to presiding eldership, nor election to the General Conference, nor eligibility to the highest offices in the church. Some one may ask why are there separate conferences? The first colored conference—the Delaware—was organized July 28, 1864, we now have fourteen colored and three mixed conferences, not including two in Kansas. These have come about by mutual consent of a majority of the white and colored ministers of mixed conferences, with the concurrence of the presiding Bishop for the separation when they were together, because the colored brethren feel that in this association, all the responsibilities of a conference devolving on them, they improve more rapidly and feel more easy in the association than with those whom they know have enjoyed superior advantages in culture; also it enables them to demonstrate their capacity for self-government.

The separate bodies exist because it suits all parties concerned. Bishop Asbury ordained Richard Allen a deacon in 1799, who was the first colored man ordained in the United States. Rev. John Stewart, colored, started the first missionary society in our church in this State among the Wyandotte Indians about 1819, which was recognized and founded by the church. The first foreign mission of the M. E. Church was established in Liberia in 1833. The General Conference in 1836 constituted the 'Liberia Mission' in a mission annual conference.

By the earnest request of Mr. Seys, our Missionary Board resolved to establish a classical school, and Rev. Jabez Burton was elected president of this institution, which went into operation in 1839.

A paper was established, called Africa's Luminary, which made its first appearance the same year. In 1852 Bishop Scott visited this work and held the session of conference, which reported twenty-eight traveling and nineteen local preachers and 1,309 members. The General Conference held in 1856 authorized the election of a missionary bishop, and Rev. Francis Burns, colored, was chosen, in 1852. After his death, Rev. J. W. Roberts, colored, was elected, on June 20, 1866, in his place. He having died in 1875, the Mission was visited by Bishop Gilbert Haven in 1876-'77, who gave everything careful attention.

Bishop Burns and Roberts' functions were limited to Africa. In 1866 "The Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church" was organized, and has for its object the education of the colored people of the South, which has done a great work for our oppressed people. The society has in sixteen years established twenty-four institutions of learning; invested in permanent school property $450,000; 80,000 pupils have been taught in these institutions; nearly 1,000,000 children have been taught by the teachers, and those prepared to teach in these schools; disbursed during sixteen years, $1,241,610.50. It requires $125,000 annually to prosecute the work of this society. Yet the work in this direction is but fairly begun.

At the General Conference which has just closed in Philadelphia, the interest of the colored man was well cared for. In the organization of this body Professor William A. Crogman was chosen one of the secretaries, who is a scholarly colored layman. He is now professor of Greek and Latin languages and literature in Clark University, Atlanta, Ga. He is the first secretary of the General Conference that has been so honored of our race. Four years after graduation the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him. He was a member of the General Conference of 1880, and ably represented the Savannah Conference. The election of Rev. William Taylor, D. D., (white) as Missionary to Africa, manifests there is great interest in the dark continent. Though India and Europe petitioned for resident Bishops, neither received their requests, but Africa was favored to have a Bishop to live and labor there who has had a large experience in the work he is assigned. He has already been to Africa, and no doubt will do great good there. This is the first white resident Bishop to the land, while there have been two colored previous.

During the past quadrennial there was an assistant colored editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate, published in New Orleans, La., in the person of A. E. P. Albert, who filled his position creditably.

But at the recent General Conference Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., who is well-known in Ohio and thoroughly qualified for the office, was elected by a handsome majority to the editorship of the above mentioned paper, which is highly pleasing to the colored race all over the land. He is the first colored editor elected for a religious or secular paper owned and controlled by whites (with but one exception, Rev. H. R. Revels in 1876, who did not accept) in America. This action is commendable because it recognizes the ability of colored men. There is no distinction because of color. A stimulus to colored young ministers to prepare for usefulness.

Lastly, the resolution unanimously passed that "color is no barrier to membership or school advantages in our church," is a wise and needed legislation which will meet the approval of all.

In this church the color line is wiped out, the freed man is educated, the colored race recognized and promoted to positions of trust and honor. He has gone from membership to the bishopric.

Rev. Henry Tate.

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the Southwestern.

Mr. Editor—I desire to inquire for my relatives: father, mother, sisters and brothers. I was quite young, about 8 years of age. I think we lived in Maryland. Father's name was Wm. Golder, and mother's Clarissa. We lived near a town called Marion. Father was born free, his occupation was running on a boat. Mother and children belonged to a widow lady by the name of Kate Words or Woods, who sold us to a Negro trader who took us to Washington City and and sold us to a man by the name of Harrison Davis; father was not at home at the time; however, when he heard we were sold he pursued and bought mother and four children, James, Calvin, Marcellus, Eliza Ann and Mary the baby; the rest of us were brought to Richmond, Va., and sold, William, Peter, Daro, Wesley, Sam and sister Diana. My name was Emily Golder; I now go by the name of Emily Wills. If any one knows the whereabouts of the above named, please address me at Aquilla, Hill county, Texas.

Mr. Editor—I am seeking lost relatives that I have not seen or heard from in 25 or 30 years. I was born 12 or 14 miles east of Richmond, Va.; my father's name was Moses, my mother's Aggie; one of my sisters was named Fannie and one Lizzie, two others whose names I can not remember. My brother got burned up in a fire in an old sage field. I was the youngest one when I left; my name is Henry; I am now over 40 years of age. My old master's name was Frank Muncas; he died when I was a small child; my young master's name was Milton Muncas; he lived in Petersburg at that time. I was brought to Richmond by Ben Prentiss, and sold to two speculators, one named Clavaut and the other Stokely Williams, and I was carried South by them and sold. Address me at Elmo, Kaufman county, Texas.

Henry Eldridge.

Mr. Editor—I wish to inquire for my brothers and sisters. Brothers were Squire, Willis and Morris; sisters Amanda, Margaret, Lucinda and Maggie Neal. We belonged to Love Neal in Madison county, Miss. I was brought to Louisiana by his son, George Neal. Mother was Sarah, and I heard she was dead after I came here, and that sister Rose was brought here. I have not heard from any of them since 1871. Address me at Negreet, Louisiana. My name now is Eveline Palmer.

Mr. Editor—I wish to inquire for my relatives. Sister Sarah, the oldest, and Harriet next. I was the younger. After Wm. Dike who owned us died we were sold; Harriet to Tom Handy and myself to George Handy, in a little town near King and Queen Courthouse. Parents were Jerry and Rachel; we were born in Essex county, Va. I was a little boy, weighing 56 pounds in Richmond, where speculators bought me and brought me to Carolina, about 1832. Squire Montgomery brought me in a speculator's drove. Address me at Starkville, Miss.

Samuel Robinson.

Mr. Editor—Allow me to inquire for my sister. I left her before the war at Union Court-house, South Carolina, in Union district. She went by the name of Eliza Rice. My only brother was named Bob Rice, and mother Julia Rice. All of us belonged to Ben Rice. I was sold to the Davis family, and brought to Texas a few years before the war. Sister Eliza was left with Ben Rice. If Eliza is alive she may be living somewhere in Texas. Any information of her whereabouts will be thankfully received and liberally rewarded by addressing me at Bryan, Texas.

A SURE THING.

Baldness is only incurable when the hair roots are dead and absorbed, which is a rare condition. In nearly all cases they are simply torpid, and can be stimulated to put forth a new growth of hair by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the only preparation that cures baldness and restores youthful color to gray hair.

Baldness Cured and Age Rejuvenated.

J. W. Hammond, Lake Preston, D. T., when he was but 40 years old found his hair growing gray. At 50, his hair and whiskers were entirely white. So they continued until he reached 62 years of age, when he began using Ayer's Hair Vigor, three bottles of which sufficed to restore their original rich, dark brown color.

Mrs. August Valentine, of Buffalo, N. Y., had become nearly bald, and though she made use of many of the so-called hair restorers, none had any effect. Ayer's Hair Vigor did what nothing else could do, and now the lady again has a fine head of hair, thanks entirely to it.

Geo. Mayer, Flatonia, Texas, presented an apparently hopeless case. Baldness was hereditary in his family. By the time he was 23 years old he had scarcely any hair left. One bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor started a soft, downy growth all over his scalp, and in a few months his head was covered with soft, dark and abundant hair.

Medicinal Virtues.

The rare medicinal powers, emollient, stimulative and tonic, possessed by Ayer's Hair Vigor enable it to cure speedily Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Tetter-sores, Dandruff, Humors of various kinds, and other diseases of the scalp liable to cause baldness. It is not a dye, contains no coloring matter, and effects its rejuvenation of faded or gray hair simply by bringing back the vigor of youth to the roots and color glands of the hair.

The wife of Dr. V. S. Lovelace, Lovelace, Ky., had very bad Tetter Sores on her head. Ayer's Hair Vigor cured them.

The son of James N. Carter, Occoquan, Va., was cured of Scald-Head by Ayer's Hair Vigor.

Herbert Boyd, Minneapolis, Minn., was cured by Ayer's Hair Vigor of intolerable Itching of the Scalp.

Mrs. O. Davenport, Williamstown, Vt., became entirely bald at the age of 20 and remained so 38 years, during which time she tried many hair "restorers" without success. Eventually she used Ayer's Hair Vigor, four bottles of which covered her head with a fine growth of silky brown hair, twelve inches long.

Mrs. O. O. Prescott, Charlestown, Mass., had lost two-thirds of her hair, by its falling out, when she applied Ayer's Hair Vigor, and one bottle of it caused her hair to grow out even more handsome than before it began to fall.

Mrs. D. N. Parks, Clio, Michigan, is 57 years of age, and her hair was quite gray, but one bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor restored the color it bore in youth, and she now has "as fine a head of hair as when she was but 16."

Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind., lost all his hair in consequence of a severe attack of brain fever. Ayer's Hair Vigor brought out a new growth in a few weeks, and it speedily grew long and thick.

A Toilet Luxury.

Where the hair is brittle, dry, harsh, weak, or thin, the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor speedily renders it pliant, soft, glossy, and stimulates it to a rich and luxurious growth: It also keeps the scalp free from dandruff, and affords a perfect assurance against the hair falling out or turning gray. No other dressing is so clean or has such a delicate and delightful perfume. Without it the toilet cannot be complete.

Ladies who have once made trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor never after prefer any other hair-dressing, and many of them voluntarily offer such testimonials as the following, from Miss Kate Rose, Ingersoll, Ont., who writes:

"While keeping my head clear of Dandruff, and preventing Scald Head, it has also caused my hair to grow luxuriantly, resulting in my now possessing hair forty-two inches long, and as thick as any one could wish it."

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. THE NEW SHORT ROUTE

TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Much of inspiration and sacred memory clusters about that family. Chaplain McCabe's Valedictory.

In submitting his final report to the Board of Church Extension on Wednesday, June 11th, Chaplain McCabe concluded as follows:

"The consciousness that I am making to you my last report comes over me. For more than fifteen years I have been in your service, and I leave it, at the order of the Church, with the most profound regret. My associations with Dr. Kynett, and with the Board have been most pleasant to me, and I wish to leave on record my unqualified testimony that while I have been working in your service with all my might to advance the Redeemer's Kingdom, you have always treated me with unfailing respect and kindness and brotherly consideration. It was no choice of mine that my field of labor has been changed. My heart is still with you and will forever be, and you may expect me to strike many a blow for you as long as I live until the glorious prophecy shall be fulfilled—that through this Board of Church Extension two churches a day shall be built in our country.

I trust that there will never be any relaxing of your vigilance in guarding the sacred fund committed to your care, increasing rather than decreasing the 'red tape.' Give no heed to criticisms in this respect. I have often secretly admired your caution even when you have exercised it upon my own movements, and if ever you have seen fit to deny me anything, or to vote contrary to my wishes, I have rejoiced in that vigilance which for personal friendship would not violate one jot or title of the law. Ours is a work, brethren, which ought to inspire us to great activity and intense application. We have a whole continent to capture for the Lord Jesus Christ, a conquest more splendid than was ever achieved by the sword. The Missionary and Church Extension Boards working together in harmony can plant the church of Jesus in every part of this Republic; can distribute the leaven of the Gospel in the meal of humanity until the whole lump shall be leavened.

"I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified."

C. C. McCABE.

The unabated interest in the cause of Church Extension and the cordial approval of the strict and careful methods by which the Board does its work, evinced in this report, were highly gratifying to the Board; — the more so as some idle rumors had gained a measure of currency during the General Conference that the Chaplain had felt himself to be hampered and embarrassed in his work. After accepting this report Dr. Kynett offered and the Board unanimously adopted the following:

Whereas, Rev. C. C. McCabe, D. D., has been in the service of this Board, first as agent and afterward as Assistant Corresponding Secretary, for more than fifteen years, having entered our service November 15, 1868; and

Whereas, By his election by the General Conference as one of the Missionary Secretaries of the Methodist Episcopal Church, he now retires from our service; therefore

Resolved, That we hereby record our high appreciation of his generous and unselfish devotion to the interests of the Church, the great and permanent value of his services in the work of Church Extension, and our unlimited confidence in his manly and Christian integrity and of his pre-eminent abilities to lead the church in greatly enlarged and more generous activity for the saving of the world.

Resolved, That we warmly commend him to the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society, to whose service he has been transferred.

Resolved, That we assure Chaplain McCabe of a permanent place in our Christian love and confidence, and will always gladly welcome him to our hearts and homes.

Did Colored Blood Course the Veins of the Word's Redeemer?

It seems to be very generally believed that Jesus was a white man. All pictures of Him (the creations of men's imaginations), apparently have that indication. And one able writer, of a quarter of a century ago, has a labored argument to that effect. But when we turn to the Book of books, we trace His genealogy back to Shem, who it is universally admitted, was a red man—Noah's red son. If Shem, Arphaxad, Abraham, were red, and that family are still of the red race, what must the intervening links have been? Red of course. But that would include our Savior. "Salvation is of the Jews." Indeed, our "Elder Brother" may have seemed to be a white man—(hence, perhaps, the erroneous inference above referred to) — just as some white men are mistaken for mulattoes.

But was colored blood—in the popular sense of that term—in any measure propelled by the great heart through the sacred system, and finally shed on the cross for a lost world? From the same liber of wonderful revelations we learn that the inhabitants of the "Promised Land," to be subdued and destroyed by Israel, under Joshua, were descendants of Canaan, "Canaanites," but Canaan was the youngest son of Ham, and Ham was a black man—the first "colored man." Hence, "Rahab, the harlot," who was "saved alive" in the overthrow of Jericho was also colored, being of the "daughters of Canaan," the son of Ham. She afterwards—when duly incorporated into Israel—became united in marriage to one Salomon, (perhaps one of the spies she hid), with whom she is made honorable mention of as wife, and mother of another of the progenitors of our Lord. See Whedon, Smith's Bible Dictionary, Clark, Luke, Matthew and Moses. TYRO.

—Methodist Advocate.

[Christ had in his veins the blood of Adam; so has the colored man, so has all men.—ED.]

"Died Poor."

"It was a sad funeral to me," said the speaker; "the saddest I have attended for many years."

"That of Edmonson?

"Yes."

"How did he die?"

"Poor—poor as poverty. His life was one long struggle with the world, and at every disadvantage. Fortuned mocked him all the while with golden promises that were destined never to know fulfillment."

"Yet he was patient and enduring," remarked one of the company.

"Patient as a Christian—enduring as a martyr," was answered. "Poor man! He was worthy of a better fate. He ought to have succeeded, for he deserved success."

"Did he not succeed?" questioned one who had spoken of his patience and endurance.

"No, sir. He died poor, just as I have stated. Nothing that he put his hand to ever succeeded. A strange fatality seemed to attend every enterprise."

"I was with him in his last moments," said the other, "and thought he died rich."

"No, he has left nothing behind." was replied. "The heirs will have no concern as to the administration of his estate."

"He left a good name," said one, and that is something."

"And a legacy of noble deeds that were done in the name of humanity," remarked another.

"And precious examples," said a third.

"Lessons of patience in suffering, of hope in adversity, of heavenly confidence when no sunbeams fell upon his bewildered path," was the testimony of another.

"And high truths, manly courage and heroic fortitude."

"Then he died rich," was the emphatic declaration; richer than the millionarie who went to his long home ou the same day, miserable in all but gold. A sad funeral, did you say? No, my friend, it was a triumphal procession; not the burial of a human clod, but the ceremonies attendant of an angel. Did not succeed? Why, his whole life was a series of successes. In every conflict he came off the victor, and now the victor's crown is on his brow.

To perish under any circumstance must be dreadful, but to perish near the house of God, where the gospel is preached, and to which you are affectionately invited, must be fearful indeed.

Color caste in the army is very strong, and it is fortunate that the head of the War Department is a son of Abraham Lincoln. A young colored man, who had gradnated from college at the head of his class, made application recently for admission to the Signal Service. General Hazen, of whom we have at various times heard accounts which have not prepossessed us in his favor, ruled that the youth could not be admitted, on the ground that Congress had only provided for the admission of colored men in two specified regiments, leaving the inference that from the remainder of the service they were to be excluded. The young man carried his trouble to the president of the college at which he had received his education, who vigorously espoused his cause, and appealed to the Secretary of War. Secretary Lincoln at once reversed the decision of General Hazen, pointing out that his inference from the action of Congress was altogether erroneous, as was evident, among other proofs, from the fact that colored cadets are admitted at West Point. He instructed the young man to make application to General Hazen again, who would act in conformity with the view thus laid down. Robert Lincoln is indeed a worthy son of the man who, with one stroke of his pen, freed four millions of slaves.—N. Y. Witness.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Everts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER, LESSON II. July 13. THE ARK IN THE HOUSE. (2 Sam. vi, 1-12.)

Adequate provision must be made for the religious instruction of the people. One of the pagan writers taught that it was as easy to rear a city without walls as to train a people with belief in a god. The race has not yet outgrown its religious needs; these are likely to continue while the present constitution of our nature remains unchanged.

Reverential and appropriate forms must be observed in the service of religion. The descendants of Abinadab overlooked this. We may have the form without the spirit, but when we have the spirit the form will be maintained. Discipline and orderly proceeding is just as much demanded in the outward business of the house of God as discipline in the camp or field.

Undevout rashness merits punishment. We need to cultivate reverence. God will vindicate his holiness by requiring that they be holy who bear the vessels of the Lord.

The far-reaching influence of religious institutions can never be estimated. Think of the tabernacle and the ark at Jerusalem, and the lines of light that streamed out from the Holy City as a religious center. Who can estimate the power for good of the Church of God?

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A biographical and critical paper appears in the July Manhattan on the Earl of Dufferin, written by J. L. Whittle, the Earl's intimate friend, and one of the staff of the Lord Chancellor of England. The Earl became so well and favorably known in the United States, while he was Goveernor-General of Canada, that an article about him ought to interest a large number of persons in this country.

The Century will commence in the August number a series of three papers by Mr. W. J. Stillman, recording the experiences of a classical expedition undertaken for the magazine. His object was to trace the wanderings of Ulysses, as described in Homer's "Odyssey," and to indentify, as far as it is possible to-day, the localities visited by the Ithacan king. The articles will have archæological value, as well as special interest for modern travelers. The illustrations have been drawn by Mr. Fenn, from sketches by Mr. Stillman, who has closely described the localities as they appear to-day. Mr. Stillman made his journey in a yacht, in order to examine at leisure all the localities in question. At Ithaca he discovered an archaic inscription of great interest, a fragment of which had previously been found by Schleimann, and the method of the latter's investigations is incidentally spoken of.

In the Outing for July, the first article is an illustrated description of the Catskills, where one can still find nature at her best, without getting beyond the bounds of civilization. The various 'cycling descriptions are particularly readable, Mr. Hume describing a French Bullfight, and recounting some Rhine Legends, in a vein of light sentiment, while Mr. Fiske touches up Belgium wheeling with humorous severity, and President Bates tells, in his funny way, of a drive with his wife. 20 cents a copy; $2; a year.

The Current, in its initial number of Vol. II (July 5) makes a slight change in dress, thereby attaining a still higher grade of typographical excellence and beauty, the size of the type having been enlarged a trifle. No loss in the variety of the published matter will occur, as the Current will, even more rigorously then heretofore, require condensation of contributions.

The July Harper's contains as a frontispiece a drawing by Sir Frederick Leighton, P. R. A., "A Daughter of the Nile," accompanying a richly illustrated paper on "The Nile, by a German writer, Dr. Trautvetter, which, with an article on "Harrow-on-the-Hill," by Joseph Hatton, with many pictures, represent foreign travel. American scenery is represented by "Summer Resorts on the St. Lawrence," written by Mrs. Frechette, a sister of W. D. Howells, and illustrated by Sandham, and by an interesting description of "Approaches to New York," by Alexander Wainwright, with some fine views. Mrs. Comyns Carr contributes a sketchy, gossipy paper on "Professional Beauties of the last Century," with illustrations from the paintings of Sir Joshua Reynolds, and other great masters of that day. An interesting account of the deaf-mute college near Washington is from Miss S. M. Brady, under the title of "The Silent Schools of Kendall Green."

The July number of the Pulpit Treasury will be welcomed by preachers of all denominations who love good expositions and sound doctrine. The Southern Pulpit, of Richmond, Va., a magazine in its fourth year, has combined its talent, interests and efforts with those of the Treasury, and the union, as shown in this number, insures a grand success. Yearly, $2.50. Clergymen, $2.00. Single copies, 25 cents. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

The Season, a lady's illustrated magazine of fashions, has been received for August from the International News Co., New York. Price 3o cents.

Our Little Ones (Boston: Russell Pub. Co.) has come with its delightful stories and pictures.

The Pansy, (Boston: D. Lothrop & Co.) 75 cents a year, is an interesting children's magazine.

W. A. Evans, 154 Canal street, New Orleans, has sent us several specimen copies of 5 cent sheet music, for sale by them; 1 cent extra if by mail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 10, 1883

"For diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder, and urinary organs I received great benefit from HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY. I pronounce it the best."—H. W. Payne, Manufacturer Harness, Trunks, etc., 447 Main St.

Waste no time: delays have dangerous ends! If a member of your family is suffering with a slight cough or cold, don't wait until it develops itself into consumption, but procure at once a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and cure that cough.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. ly10-1y

Bishop Simpson was the greatest Methodist of his times.

The annual catalogue of Texas Wesleyan College is at hand.

All men are born and die alike, in this is seen the natural equality of men.

Sin is of two classes, physical and mental; both are forbidden in the Decalogue.

The rule of self-love is neighbor love. Do all you can for yourself but no less for your neighbor.

The identity of the resurrection body consists in quality and typical appearance, not qnantity.

The true church is founded upon God and is, therefore, in its very nature impregnable and indestructible.

We are to esteem yonng men as brothers, elder women as mothers, the young women as sisters with all purity.

The Methodist Episcopal Ministers and Laymens' Association of the Ohio Falls cities have endorsed

The reporter asked amongst other things:

"Do the Catholic whites worship with the colored people?"

"Oh, yes. In my cathedral in Savannah there is a long line of pews on one side of the building rented by colored people, and at communion white and black kneel at the altar rails. When I hear confession I generally have as many blacks as whites come to me."

You have in this the spirit of Rome makes to the colored question to Liberia, Africa, as a [illegible]. As usual it is full of interesting information on that subject.

On the 30th of June a New York audience met and paid $14,000 to see a drunken pugilist lean upon the ring ropes in Madison Square garden, and to hear him say:

"Gentlemen—I am too sick to spar, I have brought a doctor along and he will tell you I am sick." This is the class of citizens who are in the habit of making complaint about the expensiveness of churches, the fanaticism of preachers, and the narrowness of creeds. A sum of money equal to the salary of such a man as Dr. Buckley for four years, paid to see a bruiser too drunk to bruise. Verily we have a Christian country.

A thoroughly consecrated pastorate means the surrender of self ambition, worldly prospects, and an assiduous devotion to the duties of pastor. A man who can hold his call to the pastorate subject to a call of the government for him to watch whiskey, or of a candidate for him to swing aronnd and harrangue in favor of this man or that for an office, and the meanwhile keep his eye on some clerkship or something with bread and butter in it, or who holds himself in reserve for any invitation to another church if the pay is better, may have been called of God once, but now, whatever else he may be, he is not a thoronghly consecrated pastor. The world expects the pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be thoronghly men, devoted for life to the one work of saving sonls and beantifying lives.

The most effectual way to utterly overthrow and finally destroy the growing potency and influence of the colored people in the United States is to thoroughly and indiscriminately mix them with the white race. The force of superior nnmbers, education, wealth with perfect organization, far-reaching combination, and almost infinitely advantageons circumstances, are in favor of the white people in all cases where competition is possible. It is an equally ruinous policy to isolate them from the whites entirely. There must be such an alliance formed between them as will secnre the natural and blend the circumstantial pecnliarities of both races. Such an alliance as this is exactly the relation which exists between the races in the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is the only relation which will not ultimately absorb or (as they call it) "assimilate;" which means the same thing as annihilate the colored race.

Berner and Palmer, one a German and the other a colored boy, the latter with his whole family being well known to the writer, have been tried, convicted, and sentenced for the murder of William Kirk in Cincinnati last winter. It was a most atrocions, a premeditated murder for the purpose of robbery. If there are any cases which merit capital pnnishment this was such a one. These men were equally guilty if equally sensible to the nature of their offense. The verdict of the court is that the German, Berner, has committed only manslaughter, and fixed his punishment at 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary with the probability of his getting ont in two or three years.

The negro, Palmer, is convicted of murder in the first degree, and the verdict of the court has fixed the penlalty at death.

The verdict certainly is wrong in one case or the other, as the offense of these two men, as viewed by common people, is the same. Let us hope that the difference in their sentences is not the measnre of the difference between the pnnishment of crime when the criminals are all able or not to introdnce large money into their defence. It does not appear that the verdicts were influenced by the difference in the color of the murderers.

Prohibition is tho only true antidote for the llqnor traffic. To secure this it is the dnty of all classes of temperance men to unite, and in every way press it until it prevails.

Letter From San Antonio.

MR EDITOR:—Since my retnrn home from the General Conference I have been kept very busy. The high water sent me via Galveston to reach home; just happened in the Island city Sunday the 8th of June to spend a pleasant Sabbath with Rev. I. B. Scott, and to take part in his Children's Day exercises, which were executed most grandly; the old as well as the young, took active part in the whole proceeding, which concluded with a good collection. Prof C. P. Westbrooks and myself, being fresh from the legislative halls of our great church the pastor and people were anxious to hear us tell about its proceedings; notwithstanding, they had read in the daily papers about it, they were pleased to have us give a synopsis, which we did to the best of onr ability. Onr people everywhere, as far as I can ascertain, feel much encouraged and highly pleased with the action of the General Conference. And your correspondent caught a new inspiration by spending a few days with the eminent men of the church, intellectual giants of a glorions trinmphant Methodism, wonderful in all her noble efforts. Onr cause here is prospering in spite of adverse blasts, and lowering storms. We found the church much in debt; we paid on the $1,700 debt this year, $641.70. July 4th we gave a grand dinner and festival at night, and in behalf of St. Paul membership and congregation, we extend a most hearty invitation to the newly elected, but excellent editor, of the SOUTHWESTERN. Onr Children's day exercises, were delayed till the 22d of Jnne, partly on account of the absence of the writer, and the failure of receiving the programme for the day, which was promptly forwarded to this office from headqnarters, 805 Broadway, New York, May 3rd, according to directions. However, to the shame and inattention, of the agents here, they did'nt even give notice of our goods until your correspondent called and demanded said goods, presenting at the same time, a letter of Messrs Phillips & Hunt. After all, our success was beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. We raised for educational purpose $10; and without a miscarriage, Dr. Kidder certainly rejoices with us. Also, on the 22d of Jnne we organized a Literary Temperance Band of Hope of 112 members; on Thursday 26th we elected the proper officers, and 13 new members received. June 10th onr Snnday school convention convened here and was conducted by Pro. G. O. Richardson, by request of Dr. Gillette, of Cincinnati. I am greatly snpplemented in all my labors, by Dr. G. J. Starnes, who is building up a good practice. The claims of the SOUTHWESTERN is urged.

Yours fraternally,

MACK HENSON.

The Graves of the Unknown.

W. E. HARRIS, BALTIMORE.

Look into yon cemetery, where or whenever you will, and there behold within the bosom of the voiceless earth, the qniet home of those who have slept from every period of time. Here behold a monument towering high to mark the resting place of one, buried with brilliant obsequies, there nestling close; side by side, other graves, on whose rnstic headstone is simply engraved—Unknown. No marble slab, or stately stone, singles out the spot.

Why are these peaceful dreamers laid so rndely down to their last repose. Can it be that a soldier bold made havoc of his endurance, and fell from burden of stern engagement in dishonor? No, for in that same grave lies a warrior trne and tried, valiant and brave.

Can it be that there was no friend or parent to strew out of pure love a flower or two; or thus erect, to signalize esteem, some symbol, some humble statne of neat nesign? No, for some bodies now lie there, the pride of a father's heart, the idol of mother's love; but they are buried, unknown to kindred and friends, and far from their native land.

Does the funeral rite mark the deeds of those in the graves of the unknown? It tru'y does not, for says a familiar poetess:

"The smallest bark on life's tumultuous ocean,
Will leave a track behind for ever more,
The slightest wave of influence set in motion,
Extends and widens to the eternal shore."

While they are not honored for being leaders of a thonsand souls, or king of a host of subjects, they have left behind them great and manly deeds far more glorious, when threateniug bayonets, and glistening steel, played with the vital power of man, henceforth in fields of redness made them countless lay. 'Tis they that bore the painful burden in the heat of the day.

Only see on yon field of battle these humble fellows tossed and driven in the raging sea of insufferable privation and hopeless despair, perpetuated by insatiable thirst for blood and sterner malignance. Now review onr patriot crouching beneath the death-like threat of the stayless musket, and more lamenting, the flaming sword sink deep into the heart of man; he shrinks, and gazes upon those streams of blood that once in much warmer channels did reign snpreme. He falls, discoursing thns: "Not vengeance throngh thy blood, but only liberty." From whom could emanate a grander sentiment!

They have not like Ninns of old, essayed to found some city, which in magnificence of structure, and spacious extent could not be snrpassed by succeeding generations, failing in such vain-glorious chimera, but have reared a temple, of constant loyalty, and truest manhood, on whose snmmit is still engraved, "We lived, fought, bled and died here, rather than implore nature's sod to protect a coward's grave;" and though nothing the strangers saw, save the snmmer sod, or tongue weed ranging wild remains to hint the hallowed spot, to whose care is entrusted the solemn keeping, the simple name is sufficient to distingn sh those peaceful dreamers so exalted, while so lowly, most lordly, while most insignificant. Had they tongues, no donbt their sentiment could be expressed in words of young Byron:

My epitaph shall be my name alone,
If that with honor fail to crown my clay,
Oh! may no other deeds the fame repay,
That, and that alone shall single out the spot,
By that remembered, or by that forgot.

Who dwell in the graves of the unknown? Better inqnire of yon yew trees shade, that cool the fevered brow of many a traveler yet knows him not. Better consult the threatening winds that sweep over Greenland's hibernal shore, yet can no story tell. The dead are there of whom it could be written, they labored much, toiled more and suffered most.

The dead are there, that rightly on whose rustic headstone could be inscribed, Trne and faithful servants of the Most High.

Calm be their sleep; in them once lived what now is dead, living and noble deeds far more generons, than many benefactor great. In them showed a light for many a shipwrecked brother. For them will be a crown in brightness, walking with Abraham glorified or Moses meek, who, having fulfilled his earthly trnst, was buried high on Nebo's rugged steep. Who watches over the unknown grave? The heavenly pleiades send forth their radiant gleams all over the dreary distance bnt knows not a favorite. Neither does the silver moon know, bnt to be impartial. The great God, the wondrous Creator, the omniscient Being that notes the slumbers of Duke and Lord, that marks even the sparrows fall, is the same merciful God that ever watches the graves of the unknown.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Louisville Letter.

Rev. Dr. Taylor: I have been trying to get an opportunity to write you the news for some time, but have not succeeded until now. Death makes its regnlar nsnal visits to us here. We have now to remember and weep for Madison Minis, Esq., the well-known and highly respected janitor of the city buildings. The Mayor, Chief of Police, and many members of the city council attended his funeral. The bells tolled until the burial services were concluded. A good man will be respected. "Water seeks its level."

The Republican convention has come and gone. So has Hon. John D. White, but he will not soon be forgotten by the whiskey element of the party who, by their great influence kept the convention at a stand still for two-thirds of a day. When at last the opportunity came, Hon. Mr. White took the floor and gave them the most pungent raking up one side, and down the other I have ever listened to. Some of the politicians say that "Mr. White is a great weight on the party." I say that it is not him, but the 14,000 voters behind him, the only 14,000 votes in Kentucky which sends a Republican to Congress. Ontside of his district in this State there is seemingly very little use in being a Republican. Down in this neck of the woods they need only enough to hold the offices, and a few of the "colored troops" for whiskey watchmen. That is the grandest of all. Outside of your church we begin to feel more and more the good jndgment you folks within it have displayed by staying there. That Church is in a position to do more lasting good for our race than any other human agency. She has already done a great work. And to an ontsider it seems that she has begun now to work anew. We are watching yonr proceedings with deepest interest. When we see you take so much pains to open wide the door of the church and school to all, the conclusion comes npon us that your church is destined to lead in the solution of the problem of our race in this country.

The steps she has taken towards it, and the providences which have led her to it, are truly wonderful. Her history is a study of importance to all men. Those [illegible]

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. Handy, Brandon: "To the brethren of the M. E. Church: I beseech you all to assist Bro. A. K. Davis, pastor in charge at Canton, Miss., as he is very low, and the money that his congregation gives him is not sufficient to keep him and his family up. The medicine and nourishment his family up. The medicine and nourishment he is required for him costs $5 a bottle. All who feel it their Christian duty to assist him send to the Jackson district presiding elder, J. M. Shumpert, and he will note in the ADVOCATE what brothers give. I think it requires immediate attention."

Wm. Majors, Durant: "On Children's Day there were 81 scholars in attendance. J. D. Weathersby is superintendent. New scholars enrolled, 20. Collection $7."

J. B. Holiwell, Slate Springs: "Bro. Shumpert and Gatewood have done good work here; three churches have been built on the work where we thought one could hardly be raised."

C. H. Brown, Moss Point: "Sunday-school has a regular attendance of about 110. An exhibition was held June 6. The children spoke pieces, we had fine singing, and the pastor made an appreciated address."

G. W. Beaman, Pickens: "Rev. A. Lemons preached a centennial sermon June 7. The school had a grand march, bearing a banner. Our pastor preached an excellent sermon, and everybody went home rejoicing. In the evening there were songs, speeches and short lectures by the school."

G. W. Ivy, Mashulaville: "Children's Day was observed at New Zion, and the people were pleased. The young folks decorated the church with evergreen and flowers. I preached at 11 a. m. Collection $3.00. Rev. W. T. Barnett, of the M. E. Church, South, preached at 3 p. m. Dr. Place, of Macon, was with us also, and enjoyed himself."

Rev. L. J. S. Bell, wishes his correspondents to address him at Coffeeville. He says Methodism is alive all along the line on his charge.

ARKANSAS.

B. J. Donnell, Helena: "My wife is very ill, has been for nearly two weeks. We ask your prayers and the prayers of the church for her recovery."

ALABAMA.

The post office address of Rev. W. F. Smith, in charge of Sorapetay Circuit, is Kellyton.

KENTUCKY.

Lloyd Street Church, Louisville, Lexington Conference, Rev. J. L. Perrine P. C., had a most enjoyable Children's Day service in the grove on June 14th, and in Church on the 15th.

Rev. M. McCoomer, Wesley M. E. Church, had a centennial basket meeting at Vienna Park June 8th.

Cane Chapel, Louisville, Rev. A. [illegible], P. C., same conference, also had a basket meeting at the same place on Sunday, June 29th.

The Methodist Episcopal Preachers and Laymen's Association of the Falls Cities, held its monthly meeting in Wall Street Church, Jeffersonville, Indiana. Dr. George L. Curtiss read a paper on the discussion.

poor, fixed up the children splendidly, and Children's Day will be remembered. The stages were handsomely decorated with flowers and evergreens. Hon. John G. Lewis played the organ for us with good effect, and delivered an address at night on education. Forty-eight boys and girls spoke, each one receiving a token of merit. Elder Duncan spoke with grand effect on the subject of Missions. Our thanks are due to many for assistance, especially Mrs. Jeannette Jefferson, Miss Cornelia Hason, Miss Ellen Burns, Mrs. Yarborough and Israel Shepard."

A. Powell, Musson: "On Children's Day there was a grand turnout. We crowned a king and queen, and 22 scholars spoke pieces. There are 77 enrolled. Three local preachers were present and spoke."

TEXAS.

E. Jefferson, Hempstead: "We expected to have a glorious time on Children's day, but on May 10th four colored men were killed at this place, a terrible outrage, and the people were badly scattered. They are leaving here in great numbers. The church was so badly disturbed we could not hold a meeting for three weeks. On June 8th Children's Day was observed; collection, $3.55. It is thought all the colored people will leave this town."

A. Williams, Orange: "Our second quarterly conference was a pleasant occasion; though the weather was bad, there were good congregations. Collection for elder $15.10; for pastor $5. The overflow made it impossible to reach the church except by skiffs, and we were without services for two weeks. High water interfered with Children's Day."

TENNESSEE.

H. W. Simmons, Gallatin circuit: "Our Children's Day exercises was one of the pleasantest occasions ever witnessed on the Gallatin circuit. We had quite a large crowd mostly young folks. Bros. Harland and Ury, of the Presbyterian Church, were with us. The services began early. Prayer by Rev. Harland. Opening address by the superintendent. An introductory by the writer was given concerning the origin and design of Children's Day, after which we proceeded with the regular exercises. Great attention was given by the visitors, and many of the good workings of the grand old Methodist Church, which was not seen by us before, presented themselves. Bro. Bell, of Castillian Springs, who is a lifelong Methodist, aroused us with the expressions of joy that he has in the good and fruitful labors of the old Mother Church. Our collection was $1.40, which was immediately sent to the Board of Education. We all pray for the success of Methodism in spreading the Gospel of Christ throughout the whole world. She has received the command and is fearlessly carrying it through. God bless the Methodist Episcopal Church."

P. P. Brooks, Jasper: "Third quarterly meeting was held at Gaines' Chapel. Elder Primm preached to a large number. Collection $14. A church lot was given us to build on by Mr. Lodge, of South Pittsburg."

J. B. Bradford, Clifton. "I must say success to you and your paper. My second quarterly meeting is over and it was a grand feast to all who were present. Elder J. P. Price was on time as usual, and all of the class-leaders and the stewards and the committees had written reports. Some of the sisters had raised as much as $1.05 since the last quarter. The stewards' reports show favorably, also the Sunday-school is on the advance; 8 joined the church in full connection. On all the benevolent claims of the church the reports show about $6 raised during the quarter. Sisters Martha Hughes, Amanda Nunlee, Emma Britt and Bro. Martin Maberry are workers for the cause of the church. These persons raised means for a grand supper on one week's notice, and raised $18 to get the suit of clothes. Bro. Jas. Robinson makes a good steward for the pastor."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

From the "Radical" Country.

BY J. W. HAMILTON.

Macaulay tells us, that the men who were called "Radicals" in his time were called in an earlier time "Root-and-Branch-Men." And the young and brilliant Robertson, at Brighton, declared that "Radicalism means root-work; the uprooting of all falsehoods and abuses." In New England we do not deny that we are "Root-and Branch-Men," and Robertson has well defined our Radicalism. It is quite the thing now-a-days to toss stones at the New England notions, and we try gracefully to bear the honors, for it was with such "applause" our fathers were answered, when they told the great truths which have turned this nation upside down. We do not expect all our preaching to be practical at once; if it were, the business would be up, the millennial would be here. Ideas, like great forests, must have time to grow. And if we repeat the same sermon a great many times here in New England, and when we go West and South, it is because it has not all been taken and used. He was not wholly an impracticable preacher, whatever his haste and taste, who preached the same sermon in his pulpit six Sundays in succession. When some of his hearers called on him to know if they couldn't hear something new he replied, "Why, you havn't practiced all this sermon yet." One idea landed in Massachusetts and another came ashore in Virginia, and it has long been the fashion for Jamestown to sneer at Plymouth; but the Pilgrims landed on a rock, and that rock was a part of the "ribs" of this whole New England coast. They began right who adopted their charter on Plymouth Bay; and though that right has had to fight, first abroad and then at home, to stay and to grow, it has kept right on, and you hear of it yet. The first truth took a pulpit, but the first thing it built was a home, then a school, and John Winthrop declared for more when he said, "The corner stone of the State is the Church." From that day to this, preaching and politics have gone hand in hand to school; and it has always been a dangerous thing not to let the left hand know what the right hand did. And this kind of preaching we find we have needed here at home; it has only been carried by us inth the South as we went down there to visit, or were sent for to move down and stay. It may occasionally have been that it was only a store, or a farm, or a school or a church which sent for us to come, but if we went we may have said same things there that we say up here. But how could we help it? It was the only thing we had to say; say it must and did say. It hasn't always gone easy with us, of course. Virginia encroached upon New England, until the first enactment made for slaves, be it said to our shame, was here, and by Massachusetts at that. But the Pilgrims held on to the papers put forth in the Bay, and by degrees Virginia went back and to stay. Brown and worn and stained those old papers are to-day, but we take them for a text all the same as when Elder Brewster preached and the Pilgrims prayed. We don't get all things straight, but we still try to get and take our preaching that way. Virginia hasn't left us entire. She was slow to go, and only drags herself away now, but she goes, and Massachusetts goes with her. "On to Richmond" the Pilgrims are bound, and you'll yet hear of us and from us through to the Rio Grande. We are taking the documents of the Mayflower with us; and don't shudder if we tell you we vote as we preach and pray. This is "Radical" New England.

We have not expected the civilizations of centuries to yield in a day, but we do expect them to yield, not to us of New England, but to the truths which New England taught us first to believe and then to teach; it is the truth which is to make men free. Nor have we obtruded ourselves where we have no business to obtrude. And anger, wrath, malice, we have put off all these. We have gone by the days when, if a man says something we cannot accept, "it is coffee and pistols for two." An argument or an opinion which can't stand without a revolver or a gun is just the size of the powder and lead. And it does not lessen the crime when a man starts out to teach or preach if he only dresses in white and fills his pockets with stones. When a man can't tell what he believes, or stand by and hears what another may have to say and believe without putting a pound of mad into an ounce of blood, it is simply best to wait good-naturely until the man gets over his sin. We hold that it hurts us to believe anything which makes us mad to think that somebody else can't or won't believe. The Gospel is better for an infidel than the law, "speaking the truth in love." And yet we are not fifty years away from a mob, old Judge Lynch law, the settlement of things with a grave. Garrison was dragged by a rope, and threatened with death simply for the way the ink ran off his pen, right here in sight of his home, less than half a century ago. But fifty of those years are a half a dozen centuries now. That which came here was a gun once, is a book now. And this kind of a North must get into the South for the good of the South. Until then the truth unmixed must be told and preached from the North, if it may continue to show that an argument against it is a gun in the South. We are understood already; to retract now we must begin on the monument of "Faith" which we have built at Plymouth. No man in the South expects us to go backward now; it is our business to stay until we are through. The manly way is to stand up for what we have said, and still say; the very eyes must look straight out over what we have to say. A Southern man understands the white of the eye; a whole race grew up to look into his face in only that way, but now that very same race can give him the black, or the brown, or the gray, or the part whatever the color where the eyeballs lay. If, then, we are sweet in spirit what we say will weigh.

This was the meaning of the "Radicals" at our Ecumenical in Philadelphia in May. And they believe a square, open comment is the best thing to say. The Advocate, at Nashville, is right when it says, "A two-faced policy will not do. Boston in Massachusetts and Birmingham in Alabama must be in accord." And that is just what every "radical" went to the General Conference to secure. The policy had been, was and is not one, but two. No strategy could cancel it, and plain English admitted it to be true. To keep it so was the aim of not a few. What did the General Conference do? It did what some did not want it to do. And it is best to say so and be true, for no language, not even that of the mutes, will differently construe. And the history of what was done, will show that the one thing done, was a key to all that was left undone or was wrong done. Early in the session of the Conference, all questions concerning the races were committed to the committee on the State of the Church by vote. Even the Committee on the Report for the Freedmen's Aid Society joined its action as all influenced by what the Committee on the State of the Church would do. Action was hampered for weeks, waiting for a report on the state of the Church. At length, when a report encouraging separate schools came into the Freedmen's Committee, it was trimmed, amended and construed to mean just what the Committee on the State of the Church intended it to do, and both reports now agree. On the 12th of the month a paper intended to mean what the Southern mind could construe as favorable to separate churches and schools, was offered at an early morning hour, it is true, and "went through" without going to the committee as the Conference intended all such papers should do, but its force of construction was afterward historically made, and that history settles how that action can alone be construed. Having secured its passage, it was made the argument in both the committees why nothing more should be said or done. In this form it came up, and in the same language again, first in the sub-committee, then in the committee of the whole, and it was voted down, when a number of the men who had signed it at first now voting against its adoption again. At last even the report of the Committee on the State of the Church declared no student should be excluded from the schools this same paper came to the front as a reason why that report should not "go through," but a subsidiary motion ended any possibility afterwards to misconstrue. And the policy of the Church is just this: Every white church in the North or South is open to the black man too, not the attic or gallery or back door pew, but anywhere, in the pulpit and pew. And no school can be owned or built, and be made a Methodist school, from which any student can be excluded because of his condition or hue. No more nor less do we in New England expect to do. There will be no compulsion except to forbid exclusion. And this is the law of the land, too. Our Revere Street Church amuses for past-time many folks who seem to think it is our business to force the black man and the white into the same church and pew. We simply allow people in Boston to do what they please to do, unless they please to make other people do what they don't want to do. The writer was pastor of the Revere Street Church for two years, and by the wish and vote of the Society, too. One fourth of the people who worship there now are white, and Boston white, too. And they who are black visit our best churches when they chose so to do, and sit in the first pew. No harm can come of such a principle as this, and there will be no riotous attempt of a black man to enter a church to worship where it would spoil the worship of the owners of the church or pews. And as for the academies and colleges, a level head, a steady hand and a righteous heart can take this principle and "keep school." There is a great deal of fictitiousness about this whole exclusive business, which does not exist with even Southern people when they get into the North. We have students at Harvard from several States in the South, and side by side in the same class, in the same school-room, they sit with colored students, and then fall behind in attainments and grace. This very year they have been distanced, while in a class of between two and three hundred, a young man of color was one of seven selected because of his gifts and culture, to represent that great University on Commencement Day.

And must the Methodist Church step down to a seat below the nation's standard and rule. Mr. Lincoln, Secretary of War, in his late noble order to the head of the Signal Bureau, has said some good words for even Methodists to remember. "Just after the close of the war of the rebellion," he says, "in reorganization of the army, Congress declared affirmatively that all the enlisted men of a specified number of regiments of cavalry and infantry should be colored. Since that time no legislation has been necessary. Colored men have been Senators and representatives in Congress, and have occupied many high official stations of an executive character under the national government. No distinction is thought of in admitting or instructing them as cadets at the Military Academy, or in making them officers in the army after they have graduated. No distinction is made in appointing them as clerks in this department or in other departments, and none should be made in admitting them to the signal corps in any capacity which they are qualified to fill." Underneath this exclusive cry is a more dangerous matter than can appear in any dispute as to color or condition of servitude, and that is the great danger to all our churches North as well as South—it is the treatment of the poor. There is not an argument against the colored man that can not match against the poor whites found to be neglected in every section of this great country. You say of the black man: "Make the 'ignorant,' 'filthy,' 'non-religious,' 'beastly' Negro a place in the churches and schools with us!" Every word used here has been used against whites in our churches and "common schools." It is the old story North as South of disposing of the poor. Within a year it was said to me by a member of one of our wealthy churches, "The tone of society in our church is running down; we are getting too many poor people converted and brought into our church." I am content to let the proud sneer at me for an advocacy of the poor, black or white. We shall meet again. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me."

Philadelphia Letter.

Dr. Marshall W. Taylor: I have just finished reading the first copy of the SOUTHWESTERN I have ever seen. I read nearly every word of it chiefly because of the interst awakened in the new editor during the recent General Conference. The number of the paper, or rather the date is June 12th. I desire the copy or copies beginning with your editorship. I have thus missed your salutatory. I am full of anticipations of your success. I trust the type and press-work in the future will better serve your easy pen. I am greatly interested in the wise uplift of your race; indeed, I am that much interested to be willing at the call of the church to do anything in that line of duty.

I need not say what is patent to you, that the first Negro official editor of our church papers holds a most important station; he is lifted up as a cynosure of the eyes of the whole white church. In an important sense he is to give tone, character, inspiration, moderation, modesty, in short a typical character to his own race. A modest, far reaching, manysided use of power and honor without abuse will do much for a people which has been almost without hope, destitute of ambition and deprived of a fair chance in the world. May God bless you, the Holy Ghost inspire you, the encouragement of your friends cheer you, the criticism of your foes sweeten and strengthen you. I believe you grasp the difficulty and delicacy of your trust, and that these words of mine may be superfluous, and yet this private note can do no harm.

The Designs of Rome.

In the spring of 1883 it entered into the plans of Rome to make the United States the theatre of greater expansion and care, in founding their ecclesiastical empire in the new world.

The nations of the old world have been handling the Monkish orders roughly for some time past, so they have turned their attention to America as the most secure home for their refugees.

We gather from the public journals that an agent of an unusual character has been placed amongst us, M. Capel, who comes to the United States as from the Pope, a nuncio or legate, a full representative of the Pontiff—king of Rome, in an informal way of course.

Monsignor Capel landed in our country last August, and from that time has been active in promoting the cause and interests of Rome. He is of English birth and education, but of Irish parentage.

A second important move on their field of action, was the retirement of the old general of the Jesuits, Father Beekx, and the election of his assistant, A Anderlady, who served some time as a priest in the United States; this action took place in Rome last September.

Pending the third grand move—the assembly of the American Bishops in the capitol of their empire, in November last—sundry reports of their proposed measures were circulated, such as placing the Church of Rome in harmony with our American institutions, and if need be providing a secure home for the Pope; likewise a great university and educational measures were named.

About the 13th of November the Roman Bishops for America met in Rome, so say the dispatches, and discussed the relations of our country to their chief, and others matters of interest, agreeing on a Plenary Council for America, to be held in November 1884, in the city of Baltimore. There is much preparation for this grand gathering, at which questions nearly related to American civilization will be discussed in secret, as is usual with these priests. Amongst others the relation of the Freedmen and their posterity. Already the Arch-Episcopal Council of Baltimore has been called, and held a short preparatory meeting in part on the race question; whilst one of its members, Bishop Gross of Georgia, has announced the plan of Rome, so far as his own conduct can be taken as a guide, in a recent interview with a reporter of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Rome proposes to blend the white and the blacks together in her congregations, and thus appeals to the delicate race question, discussed in our General Conference and so wisely decided by us. A few words from Bishop Gross will disslose the whole scheme. The reporter asked amongst other things:

"Do the Catholic whites worship with the colored people?"

"Oh, yes. In my cathedral in Savannah there is a long line of pews on one side of the building rented by colored people, and at communion white and black mingle at the altar rails. When I hear confession I generally have as many blacks as whites come to me."

You have in this the appeal Rome makes to the colored masses, as against the exclusive not to say proscriptive spirit of many white people in the South; it will have a disasterous effect in driving in the wedge between them and their old masters, and the children of the slave and of the master.

Furthermore the aspect of things as they now stand between the races, must not be taken as the condition of the next gereration, wherein Rome will have had time to mould her Southern perverts; the adherents of Rome are now in the minority, in the South; this is the strongest Protestant section of the United States to-day, hence this movement of Roman ecclesiastical forces, on the home of our colored people, as her best, and really her only hope of controlling the South, for the rapid subsidence of the prejudice of white against white, and North against South, is depriving them largely of that factor of discontent, in the make up of the fearful game for empire, that the blood stained queen of Rome has played amongst the nations of the earth; she therefore turns with more hope to the well defined and distinct colored race, as a more hopeful factor suited to her hand. Nor is she in any hurry, all time is hers, from generation to generation her agents do her bidding, and her policy is fixed and traditional, the same yesterday, to day, and forever—so claims this mistress of the Roman world.

Bishop Gross announces in the above interview that "he expected it would take several generations to perfect the work. He believed in taking hold of the young." This has been the policy of Rome under the lead of that astute body of military monks, the Jesuits, who devote their energy to three grand objects, management, education, and propagandaism.

The case is thus made up, in its light what is the duty of the hour? What should Protestant journalists white and colored do?

They should turn an eagle gaze on the movements of this imperial queen of the nations, and with a searching eye fathom her every movement, for the time has come, or it is at the door, when "great Babylon comes in remembrance before God, to give unto to her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath," and sad has been her history for a few generations past, amongst her supporting princes of the old Roman empire, for God has truly said of the ten supporting kingdoms of Europe that "these shall hate the whore and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire."

Let it be the province of the fierce Europeans to execute this sentence against this corrupt church. Let it be ours to stand on the defensive, and repel by moral means, the flood of dangerous soul destroying error she is pouring over our lands.

Will my brethren of the Church South hear me, and other Protestant churches in the South; whilst I say let not the wedge be driven in between the whites and blacks. Draw the Freedman and his children to your side, and unify by every means in your power our American Protestantism, and be assured we do this best by meeting the demands of the second table of the moral law. "Love thy neighbor as thy self."

Allow me then to impress on friendly journalists, that this is not the time for slumber. Christ hath said in regard to this age: "Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." We are still in the breaking up period; and Rome has to be broken up, its idolatry, its civil imperialism, and its ecclesiastical Hierarches must all be swept away before the winds of God's displeasure.

The Admonitions of an Honored Father.

REV. M. WALTON, OF LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

Rev. Marshall W Taylor, D. D. Dear Brother: I congratulate you upon your high office which the church has called you to. I greet you first because you have never been a congressmen, but instead have sat in council with our presiding Bishops five years or more, have filled that office well, and will vacate it without any fault to be found with you. I greet you because you have never allowed yourself to be appointed a whiskey guager, as some ministers have done. I greet you because you have remained an humble preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. A call to church office is a call of God. Therefore keep that same God before you, that spared your life when you was so sick, that you said yourself that you thought your earthly life had almost expired. You were my choice for a delegate this year. And you well know on the morning of the day of the election that I ate no breaktast, but fasted and prayed for your success. I have not passed a day without praying since you left for General Conference, that God would put you in the right place. I was glad to hear you declined the nomination of Bishop. But I am prond you got the office you now hold. Now you have got to contend with the whole world and talk with friends and foes, keep God before you as I have told you. Keep Marshall and Roscoe Conkling at you side, if God will spare you to raise them and them to live; see that they have a thorough education, thus though you die you will still live and your works will follow you. I am prostrated on my bed and have been confined to my room. We like Shelbyville, the church is doing very well and we have a splendid Sabbath-school; the average attendance is forty-five. Brother Long says it is the best Sabbath-school that has been here for quite a while, we are all regretting that we are to lose you as our presiding elder; we feel like sheep without a shepherd, we hope our loss will be the whole churches gain. The vote I gave to you may be my last vote in our annual conference for a delegate to General Conference and hope it will prove to be good for eternity; you have my prayers until death. Now be a holy man, and what ever you do, do it with an eye single to God. I think you will need a great deal of patience and pray that God will give it to you. Unable myself, I have got a lady to write for me, one of the members of my church, but I dictate every word of it. I want to see you before you go away.

Arkansas—Then and Now—Sketch No. 1.

BY L. W. ELKINS.

When in the years agone, the new territory of Arkansas was attracting the attention of the honest sons of toil, and the first settlements were being formed in the beautiful and fertile valleys, there existed a friendly relation between man and man that might well be coveted by all after ages. These new comers were all laboring men; robust and hearty. Luxury had not yet imported from effeminate towns her cohort of old diseases, and there was no dear doctor with sleepy syrups and pills that poison while they cure.

"There were then few debts, and they were debts of honor, and therefore need no coercion to secure payment that is prompted as much by honest pride as by a sense of imperious duty."

"There were then no quarrels because there were no lawyers whose very life depends on the discord that breeds litigation."

There were then no splendid churches with mellow toned organs and choir of dulcet voices and "golden mouthed" priest with his manuscript of melodious words; but many a log cabin was formed into a temple of humble prayer where the plain itinerant preacher drew with cords of the heart, the rustic worshipers around him and uttered mild seutences of mystic fervor, that melted like the music of Heaven on the soul.

At this stage of their progress, the pioneers are the happiest people on earth. Spontaneous instinct serves them instead of philosophy; and in place of metaphysical abstractions, old Mother Nature throws free and full into their central soul all her rich concretions—sun pictures on the evening clouds, and flashes of glory from rising and setting stars. For them the minstrel winds sing hymns on every hill-top, and the little birds whistle sweet psalms from their mountain homes. To these new comers, nature is a revelation and the blue sheet of immensity spreading away above their heads on high, is one leafe of nature's book, written with the flaming pencil in letters of gold, and dotted with suns that never go down. To them every cloud has its silver lining and all nature is flooded with beams of golden glory. Peace and contentment rests on every brow and universal love for all mankind fills every heart.

Oh, ye thrice happy green shades of the dim, distant backwoods; why can ye not always remain thus—an oasis of love and friendship and instructive virtue, in the great world's desert of barren sands—a happy exception in the universal hatred—sole image of the innocence of Eden since the fall. Ah, me; it is but a dream. It comes and goes like the shadow of a passing cloud.

The serpent entered these happy bowers of Eden and placed his blighting curse upon the fair land. Soon refugees from justice, of other states fled to those peaceful woods for an asylum. These fertile vallies soon attracted the attention of speculators, and then a fierce war of competition commenced—a competition which has reduced the world to one great battle field of opposing interests where friendship bleeds, and human sympathy is trampled under foot and the love of man to man dies out, and even holy virtue with the many becomes a hollow sound as of an echo from some forgotten sepulchre.

The country becomes infested with gamblers and thieves, and whiskey shops spring up as thick as mushrooms in April. With these changed surroundings, the camp meetings that came around once a year, so peacefully, and bringing so many happy greetings of the hand and heart, are disturbed and broken up by the fierce revelry of drunken riot, and the mad wafture of bowie knives and pistols.

Runaways from almost every state in the union collected along the western line of the territory and preyed alike upon both whites and Indians. Whiskey dealers, the devil's own agents, thronged the country, and many of them built their groceries on the territory line, one-half in Arkanaas, and the other half in the Indian country, so that when a crime was committed in one side of the house the culprit had but to step to the other side and he was in an other jurisdiction and beyond the reach of legal process issued by the court on the side where he committed the deed.

The year 1840 has been called "the year of murders" in this country. The rival parties of Ross and Ridge were in open war in the Cherokee nation, but open war is not to be dreaded like secret assassination. While this war was raging, the midnight assassin robed some of the best families in mourning and filled the land with alarm. On the night of the 20th, of June that year all the leaders of the Ridge party were murdered. That night Boudinot, a man of vast learning and eminent virtue, was slain, as was also Mr. Ridge an aged chieftain who fought under Gen. Jackson's banner at the battle of the Horse Shoe; and many others on both sides of the line,

This seemed to be the day of hell's triumph, but we shall see in a future sketch how the advancing tide of Christian civilization drives back the hosts of darkness, and how the religion of the blessed Jesus has changed the current of thought and feeling in Arkansas from what they were then to what they are now.

Dr. B. proceeds to advise: "Select a circle of two or three or five or six intelligent, attractive and vivacious young ladies. Call upon them from time to time, and leave the mystic influence which some one is to exert over you to its natural development."

How to be Beautiful

Ladies, you can be sure of this: that you cannot have rosy cheeks and a clear complexion unless you are in good health. Disease always spoils beauty. Parker's Tonic purifies the blood, invigorates the organs, drives all bad humors out of the system, and makes the plainest face attractive. Tell your husbands.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D., Editor.

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1884.

Good Things Ahead.

We catch in the breezes that Goldsboro, North Carolina, and New Orleans are to have model homes in connection with our schools located there. This looks like the work of certain Cincinnati ladies. Commend us to Mrs. Dr. Hunt, Mrs. Dr. Davis, Mrs. Bishop Peck, Mrs. Bishop Warren and numerous other ladies like them, "full of alms deeds" which they are constantly doing.

We wonder if it ever occurred to these great "Shunemites" that they could do a good deal toward bettering the homes, and lives of many poor people by seeing that the SOUTHWESTERN goes into them. There are very many good people unable to pay even our small subscription price. A hundred such as now reading it, who could not do so, but for the liberality of a happy New Jersey Methodist. The Lord increase his like and his joy a thousand fold. The schools will benefit the young, but a paper like ours is the best elevator for the home.

Still Spreading.

We clip the following from the New Haven Journal and Courier of June 17, 1884. The good work begun has culminated in a new Methodist Episcopal Church, amidst the magnificent elms of New Haven, Connecticut. Our Church is still spreading to the East and West as well as Southward among the colored people. It can not be otherwise when its great advantages and adaptation above all others to meet the needs of our people is truthfully stated and fairly understood. There is not a more intelligent congregation, or a more worthy one among our colored membership than is that in New Haven. Bro. Johnson is to be congratulated upon the success which has attended his labors. He has a future of great promise in our Church if he lives.

A NEW CHURCH.

The little church on Sperry street, which has passed through several fiery trials that nearly wrecked it, has finally come out alive, and last evening was organized as a regular Methodist Episcopal Church. A quarterly conference was held in the church last evening over which Rev. Dr. Goodsell presided owing to the unavoidable absence of the presiding elder. Rev. T. H. Johnson, who was the choice of the people when the church was an African Methodist Episcopal Bethel church, is the pastor of the new church. Sydney B. Dayton was chosen secretary. Rev. Dr. Goodsell made a few remarks in which he stated that there had been no effort on the part of the Methodist Episcopal Church to induce the colored people to come into their denomination, but that the people had acted entirely of their own accord. He welcomed them into the Methodist fold and told them that they need have no fear that they would not be given all the privileges of the denomination. The trustees of the church were appointed and the stewards, and the quarterly conference was organized. Isaiah Cornwick, the superintendent, was admitted to the conference. Frederick Moore was granted a license to act as lay preacher. Pastor Johnson made a verbal report in regard to the condition of the church. He said that there were seventy-two members and an average attendance on Sunday nights of two hundred. Three preaching services are held every Sunday. The superintendent of the Sunday school reported that the Sunday-school was not in a very flourishing condition. The pastor's salary was fixed at $820 a year, including rent and fuel. John Norton was appointed district steward and the various committees of the church were appointed. The church members seem united in the desire to enter the Methodist denomination, and the church seems to have entered upon a prosperous career. Rev. Mr. Johnson gives entire satisfaction.

Independence Day.

The advent of a State into the galaxy of nations is an event which always marks an epoch in that nation's history. When the original Thirteen Colonies of North America raised the standard of freedom, they gave the world a reason for their deed. The reason which they assigned for this action forms that patriotic and famous document commonly called the "Declaration of Independence." The annual recurrence of the date upon which this instrument of writing was formally signed, has in the run of our national affairs and the march of years, become our nation's great holiday. The movement which culminated in this utterance took shape when Chryspus Attucks, the run-away slave of Mr. Wm. Brown, of Framingham, led, in 1770, the irate populace of Boston to an assault upon Capt. Preston's ministerial troops, shouting as he advanced upon them, "The way to get rid of these soldiers is to attack the main guard, strike at the root; this is the nest." Attucks, colored, Samuel Gray and Jonas Caldwell, white, fell dead at the first fire of the English soldiery; while Patrick Carr and Samuel Maverick were mortally wounded. The impetuous citizens who thus rushed into death consecrated the growing cause of liberty and consigned it to American patriots by their blood. They were described as a "rabble of saucy boys, Negroes and mulattoes who could not restrain their emotion." "The death of these heroes aroused the fires of patriotism to a burning flame, which time and impoverished circumstances were unable to extingnish. Finally, on the 7th of June, 1776, Richard Henry Lee, of Virginia, offered a resolution in the Colonial Congress, which declared that "the colonies, are and of right ought to be, free and independent States, absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and all political connection between them and Great Britain is, and ought to be, dissolved." Debate on this resolution ran high, but the spirit of independence gained ground; and the final consideration of the proposition was set for July 1st. Meantime a special committee of five, namely, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robt. R. Livingston were appointed to draw up a more elaborate declaration. Mr. Lee had gone home on account of sickness, and his colleague, Mr. Jefferson, was therefore appointed chairman of the committee. Mr. Lee's resolution was taken up in order, and on the 2d of July, 1776, it was adopted. The formal declaration was vigorously debated on the 3rd, and at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 4th of July it was also adopted.

All day long the bell-man stood,
With iron grip on the steeple wood,
'Do it, they never will;' he sighed;
'Ring! ring!' just then the urchin cried,
And ring he did, with mighty hand,
Proclaiming liberty through the land;
O'er town and city the tidings went,
To all inhabitants of the land 'twas sent.

The great Declaration set forth the natural equality of all men, that they were divinely endowed with the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuits of happiness, and that to secure these to the citizen was the object of human government. The grievances of the colonies were recited. Then the patriotic fathers signed each his own name and pledged his all to the maintenance of the government, built on these broad and comprehensive principles. The first step was taken; English, Irish, German, and Negro, all had contributed their blood to secure American independence and the extension of human liberty. Not all of that which they sought was at once attained. The Irish and the German in the United States had his day of affliction and his night of sorrow: The doctrine that "Americans shall rule America" was proclaimed broadcast with especial reference to them. But they finally beheld the removal of the last and least obstruction to their entrance upon the fullest rights and citizenship in every part of the land. The Negro was as yet denied these precious and equal rights. They tarried, but they came at last and made the inscription on that old, cracked but venerated bell in Independence Hall a living verity. The hour was hastening when liberty should be proclaimed throughout all the land. The country was now ready. It was made so by a proposition of the President, which was sent to Congress Friday, March 6, 1882: "That the United States ought to co-operate with any State which may adopt a gradual abolishment of slavery, giving to such State pecuniary aid, to be used by such State, in its discretion to compensate for the inconvenience, public and private, produced by such a change of system." This was followed by the emancipation of the District of Columbia, April 16, 1862. Then, on the 22nd of September of the same year, it was heralded over the land, that in one hundred days thereafter the President would proclaim all slaves of persons then in active hostility to the authority of the government free, unless such hostile persons returned to their allegiance to the Constitution during these days of grace. They did not return, and when the days of warning were expired, January 1, 1863, the impending blow came down upon its brazen head. Slavery was now crushed, but it still retained its grasp upon the States of West Virginia, parts of East Virginia, and Louisiana, Maryland, Delaware and Kentucky. These fragments of the crumbling system soon followed that which had been already swept away. In 1865, two years from the beginning, the crowning act of freedom came. On the first of February, 1865, Congress adopted and sent to the States for ratification, the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution. This was soon ratified and declared the law of the nation. It said: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction." The Emancipation Proclamation had gone forth under military necessity, and had been justified as a war measure. Now the doctrines of that instrument were incorporated into the fundamental law of the land. This was closely followed by Mr. Johnson's Amnesty proclamation, on the 29th of May of the same year. So that master and slave might stand beneath the "banner of a nation saved," and live in peace until they could rejoice together. This magnanimious act was followed, in 1867, by the submission of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which extended to colored men not only freedom, but American citizenship, and this was ratified in 1868. There was yet one more step to Negro manhood. This step the great and good white people of the nation were now ready to take. So, in 1869, the Fifteenth Constitutional Amendment, granting suffrage to all the citizens of the United States, was adopted, and on March 30, 1870, it was proclaimed as the law of the nation.

The theory of the Declaration of Independence now being a practical reality, it furnishes a sufficient reason why every citizen of this great country should regard and observe the natal day of the Republic with feelings of peculiar veneration. English, Irish German, Negroes and all the various people of our vast domain, North and South, are by these national declarations wedded into one cosmopolitan body politic. Therefore, henceforth it is fitting and proper that Americans should give utterance to the sentiments of patriotism which inspired the fathers and saviors of our governments. But how shall this anniversary day of freedom be most properly observed? It should certainly not be transformed into a time of speculation and money getting. It should be a day of sermons, addresses, bonfires, music and general joyfulness all over the land. Families should meet together with neighbors and spend the evening in social pleasantries and historical reminisceuses. The children should be led from the hot and sweltery city to the cooling shade of the leafy grove; cheer and gladness should be brought to all. The rich should know the poor are happy, and the poor should be made thus to rejoice in the prosperity of the wealthy. The days when successive steps in the march to universal freedom and citizenship were taken gravitate backward to the 4th day of July, 1776. One people, let us rejoice in the greatness of our one country and celebrate altogether its one great natal day. In view of these historical facts, and in view of the fact that the colored people of these United States are now citizens thereof, and that they have not, and never have had, any other citizenship, we fail to find any sufficient reason why they should have another national celebration day than that upon which the nation was born, and upon which it uttered the sentiments which are now at last legally realized by all its people.

Editorial Perambulations.

We were, by invitation, present to deliver the address and lay the corner stone of New Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church at Lexington, Ky., July 4th. On the run from Louisville to Lexington, about 95 miles, the train filled up with colored people of all ages and conditions, going up to witness the ceremony. The drill corps of Frankfort Commandry Knights of Friendship took passage on the same train, to join that of Lexington in the street parade in honor of the occasion. Rev. H. W. White, presiding elder of the district, and Rev. H. W. Evans, pastor of Asbury Church, with a vast concourse of citizens, awaited to greet us upon our arrival in the depot and escort us to a splendid reception and lunch in the Pioneer Hall. After this we were taken to the residence of the pastor and received such a cordial welcome as only Mrs. Baltimore, his accomplished daughter, can give. At 2:30 p. m. we were on the spot, ready for services. The following ministers and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal and other churches were present: Rev. H. W. White, Presiding Elder; W. H. Evans, pastor of New Asbury; Wm. Macafee, of Centenary; G. W. Thomas, of Gunn Chapel, all of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Lexington; J. H. Stanley, New Zion; J. W. Russell, Winchester; Daniel Jones, of Paris; Green McWherters, of Cadentown; Arthur Jammerson, of Cynthiana; Frank Cromwell, of Corinth; Richard Adams, of Lewis Chapel; and Geo. W. Henderson, also Hiram Shaw, Esq., James Turner, M. M. Bell, S. P. Young, Jos. Dancer, Archibald Kennedy and Solomon Coleman, from the African Methodist and Baptist churches. The plan of our Church, as outlined in the ritual for laying a corner-stone, was closely followed, viz: Rev. H. W. White, Presiding Elder Lexington District, Lexington Conference, made the general statement and introduced the other participants in order. Rev. Daniel Jones, pastor in charge St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, Paris, read Hymn 559 and led while the people prayed. Rev. H. W. White read the 132 Psalm, alternating with the congregation. The Scripture from 1 Cor. 3, 9-23 was read by the pastor, and then we delivered the address. The Revs. John H. Stanley, Geo. W. Thomas and W. W. Locke, the new presiding elder of the Louisville district solicited the contribution of the people at one stand, while the pastor, Mr. Clark Mack and Rev. J. W. Russell, pastor in charge of Winchester church, from another. The entire collection for the occasion amounted to $408. The builder and the Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN then laid the stone after depositing in it, first, a copy of the Bible, common version; second, the Methodist Hymn Book; third, the Discipline, 1880; fourth, the Methodist Centennial Year Book; fifth, the Western and SOUTHWESTERN Advocates, the latter containing electrotype of Bishop Simpson. The congregation contained from two to five thousand earnest people who stood under the burning sun in good order to the end of the service.

THE CHURCH.

Asbury congregation went out from the Church South before the war, held their meetings in a carpenter shop on Town Fork or Gas Branch, as it is called by Lexingtonians, and it was commonly known as "Branch Church." The leaders of the movement which culminated in its organization were Daniel Francis and Wm. Smith. The first pastor was Henry H. Lytle, and the next the well-known evangelist G. W. Downing. Geo. Perry was the first Sunday-school teacher, and the writer was one of his pupils, being born within a stone's cast of the site upon which the church stands. They built a frame, and afterward a brick, but their quarters became too strait, God having greatly blessed the enterprise with thousands of converts. The following preachers received their licenses and entered the traveling connection from this charge, viz.: Charles T. Jones, Aaron Jones, G. W. Thomas, Zachariah Winchester, Benjiman Coleman, C. J. Nicols, B. Strider, Simon Clay, J. H. Stanly, G. W. Sissell, W. W. Locke and Green McPheeters, with more than twenty-one local preachers.

A colony was sent out from it which is now Gunn Chapel, and has a membership of 250. Asbury has about 700 members. The new building is on the North East corner of Mills and High street. This is one of the most fashionable localities in the city, and their purpose to erect a Negro church there was antagonized by the denizens who enjoined the builders, secured an ordinance from the council, and stopped the work for a season. But this was soon overcome by exemplary conduct and politeness. This, mingled with a persistent and firm purpose to secure their rights, finally caused the opposition to be removed, and the work to be again resumed. The building will be 74x54 feet and two stories high. The basement of stone and upper story of brick, all appointments in modern style, will cost $10,000 when complete. It will be ready for use this fall. The minister and members of our white congregation are in hearty sympathy and active co-operation with the design. Bro. Macafee is a young man of energy and culture, and doing a good work in Lexington. Mr. Hiram Shaw, a wealthy layman in this church, and a firm friend of the colored people, with others of his circle, will help. Rev. H. W. White, the presiding elder, and the pastor W. H. Evans, have wrought dilligently at their task, faithfully sustained by as noble a band of laymen and women as ever spoke in class.

At the conclusion of the services we repaired to the residence of Elder White where an elaborate spread was set before us. The elder enjoys a good dinner, his wife is a princess among epicures. Their home is a neat cheerful place, surrounded by that which is both useful and ornamental. He is giving to the paper honest and effective support. Since our last note we paid a brief visit to Troy, Cincinnati and Covington. Old friends were on every side anxious to greet and congratulate us. We go next to the great centennial meeting at Paris. Fifteen or twenty thousand people are expected there; we are to read a paper on the organization of the church. Look for a good list of new names thereafter.

REV. W. W. LOCKE.

Rev. Willis Worthy Locke, our successor, as presiding elder of the Louisville District, Lexington conference, was 37 years of age in March past. He was born in Fayette county, Ky., and was a slave of Rev. Ryland T. Dillard a minister in the Baptist church and pastor at David's Fork and East Hickman, Ky. Bro. Locke was freed by the war and married Miss Ellen Piersoll of the same county. He was converted from sin in a cornfield on Mr. Joseph McCann, s farm near Lexington in 1870, and united with Gunn Methodist Episcopal Church in that city, under the pastorate of Rev. G. W. Downing. He has served as a pastor in Versailles, Ky., Bloomington, Indiana, Boyd Station, Ky., Gunn's Chapel and Winchester; from the latter he was appointed to work on the district.

He is a good preacher, has along with a successful pastorate, secured a fair education, and is every way worthy and well qualified for his place. The Rev. J. W. Russell succeeds to his vacant pastorate at Winchester. He has been cordially received and is actively at work on his district.

The Democratic Convention.

On Tuesday, July 8th, the Democratic national convention met in Chicago. Gov. Hubbard, of Texas, was chosen temporary chairman, and a committee on platform was appointed. The convention declared in favor of the unit rule, the chairman of the New York delegation being allowed to cast the vote of his State according to instructions of the State convention, and against the protests of Mr. Kelley and friends. On Wednesday the report of the credentials committee was adopted. Wm. Vallas, of Wisconsin, was elected permanent chairman. The roll of the States was ordered to be called for nominations. Delaware presented Thos. F. Bayard; Indiana, Joseph E. McDonald; California, Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio; Kentucky, John G. Carlisle; New York, Grover Cleveland. Adjournment was then made and on Thursday the call was resumed. Ohio presented George F. Hoadley; Pennsylvania, Samuel J. Randall. The committee on platform, after 36 hours labor, caused by an equal division of membership on tariff reform and protection issues, brought in a lengthy document differing principally in verbiage from preceding ones, and equally accommodating in the various constructions which can be put upon sentences referring to living issues of the day. Gen. Butler offered a minority report as a substitute, which was voted down by 97½ to 714½ after a brief discussion. The platform is a triumph for chairman William Morrison, Henry Watterson and John G. Carlisle, as against the protection element represented by Samuel J. Randall. At 11:40 p m. the first ballot for President was ordered and it resulted as follows:

First Ballot — Cleveland 392, Bayard 170, Randall 78, Thurman 88, McDonald 56, Carlisle, 27, Hoadley 3, Flower 4, Tilden 1, Hendricks 1.

The convention then adjourned till Friday, when the name of Randall was withdrawn.

Second ballot— Cleveland 684, Hendricks 45½, Bayard 81½, McDonald 2, Randall 4, Thurman 4.

Mr. Cleveland's nomination was made unanimous. In the evening session Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks was nominated for vice president by acclamation, and the convention adjourned.

Kind Words.

Please allow me to congratulate you upon your election. I am only sorry to see that our brethren are so quiet about it. Every number of it seems as an absent friend just arrived with much that is new and useful to tell. It is my impression that the General Conference under God has been instrumental in doing much good by the election of yourself and Dr. Wm. Taylor. And that you are destined to do a great work for the grand old mother church. Let each member of the Savannah Conference take hold of the long arm of equal rights which was extended to them by the General Conference. Let those who have been accustomed to write long letters on "caste" stop, and use their time, talent, and means in securing subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. The Lord threw his strong arm of protection and guidance over you all through life. Our people are mourning, and sad over the death of Bishop Simpson, and our church is hung with funeral weeds. Onr quarterly conference meets on the 6th of July at which time we will hold a memorial ser vice.

We observed Childreu's Day on the 7th and 8th of June. We had a grand time and raised $5 for the Educational Funds.

REV. J. H. GRANT.
Savannah Conference.

Frank. Brave, and Manly, by Aristides E. P. Albert, Louisiana Conference.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., Permit me to extend to you the assurance of my continued friendship, sympathy, and co-operatiou, iu the exalted but difficnlt sphere of usefnlness and activity, as editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, into which the church, under God, has called yon.

Having shared for the last two years and a half, with my former associate, and now your honored predecessor, Rev. L. P. Cushman, some of the burdens of your pres ent position, I feel in a measure qualified to anticipate your trials conseqnently feel in duty bound to sympathize with you.

The fact that I, iu obedience to the instrnctions of the Lonisiana conference, which honored me, espoused the re-election of Bro. Cushman; and that when it became apparant that a colored man was to be elected, that I consented to the use of my name by delegations from nearly all the colored Sonthern conferences, who desired to press me for the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN, need not and must not be taken to imply that I shall lack in my devotion to the interest of the paper under yonr editorship. Its presence, bold utterances, and influeuce were never more indispensable to our work in the Sonth than right now.

It is as necessary to our Southern work, as is the New York Advocate to our general work.

It needs and deserves the support of every member and friend of Methodism and good government. I shall continue to stand by the paper manfully and earnestly. The SOUTHWESTERN can be made better and stronger.

Let the preachers do their full duty in the premises, and it can be made to enter npon such a career of prosperity and usefulness as it has never experienced. The verbal welcome among us which I extended to you in the Book Committee, soon after your election, I now heartily emphasize. Your very kind invitation that I should continne as assistant editor with you, I highly appreciated, but it could not be accepted for reasons that are patently known to all who have any knowledge of the financial working of the Concern.

Teanking the friends who so generously aud devotedly sup ported me for the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN, and gracefully bowing to verdict of the majority, I wonld, through you ask those friends to continne their devotion to me by giving to yon the help and support which you so richly deserve.

I would have written to yon earlier but the pressure of the work of my district prevented.

Gainesville, Ala., July 8, 1884.

Dr. M. W. Taylor, Dear Brother: In behalf of our work in Alabama, we congratulate you. We trust sir, that in you we have a man from the Lord, one that shall comfort us in our work.

Your election has removed a great stone from the gateway of our cause. We have great respect for yonr predecessor, Dr. Cushman, but, as you know, the fact of a man of onr race being elected to snch a position, is a practical argument which those who would reproach us can not gainsay. As the days demand, so may thy strength be.

Our conference snpported the Atlanta Methodist Advocate until it was discontinued, and onr conference an its last session adopted the SOUTHWESTERN as our Conference organ. We would like to see it in every Methodist household in Alabama.

Inclosed find stamps. Please send a few copies to canvass with. Yours in Christian brotherhood,

A. W. MCKINNEY.
Central Alabama Conference.

We are permitted to print the following excerpt from a very touching personal letter which Rev. W. H. Ongley has been pleased to write us, viz: "Sabbath last I spent with my dear Bro. Chadwick, at the parsonage and church, Central Methodist, No. 60 Seventh avenue. Had a delightful time; I assure you a warm welcome, which I always get from him and his dear family. He went through with the history of your conference promotions, your declining the Bishopric and final election t the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN, but while speaking in the highest terms of yourself every way, he regretted to say your frequent hemorrhages and ill health, he feared, was going to shorten your useful days. We, of course, as yonr friends, hope and pray that it may not be so; but rather length of days. As I said in my former letter, I can not but congratnlote you that you have so many friends to sustain and bring you to the front; and so for our sable brethren everywhere, I do pray yonr life may be prescious in His sight, and a special providence be over you for good, and your influence tell very largely in excess of what it has ever done before, throngh the medinm of the press."

Union Chapel, N. O., June 25.

Rev. Dr. Taylor:—

I am much pleased at the selection of the General Conference. I believe yon are the right man in the right place. I congratulate you and wish you great success in your work throngh the South. I shall do my duty. Yours fraternally, STEPHEN PRIESTLEY.

American Bible Society.

By the politeness of Rev. George S. Savage we have an extract of the sixty-eighth annnal report of the American Bible Society before us. The Society was organized in 1816, the year Bishop Asbnry died and also the year in which the African Methodist Episcopal Church was organized. It issued last year 1,808,215 Bibles, Testaments, etc., of which 510,516 were circulated in foreign lands.

The total nnmber of volnmes issned since its orgauization has been 43,892,031. It pnblishes a monthly called the the Bible Society Record at 30 cents a year. Donations may be sent to the assistant treasurer at the Bible House, Astor Place, N. Y. The death of S. Wells Williams, L. L. D., president; of Norman White and Robertson Walsh, Esqs., vice-prisidents; of James Lenox Banks, M. D., aud of George W. Lane, Esq., managers, are announced. The Bible Society is performing an indispensable work.

The Methodist Episcopal preachers are supposed to take an annual collection for it.

For this canse there was raised by our church in 1883 $27,260. The money is paid over to the Society, and in return the pastors are permitted to snpply any destitute families in their charge with the Scriptures at a very low rate, or gratuously, as the occasion may require. There are depositories in most of the towns aud at least in every county. We shonld esteem it as a favor, and so would the managers of the Society, if pastors wonld thoronghly canvass their parishes for persons who have not the Bible, and where the least difficulty is experienced in securing them, report promptly to this office.

We print the report of the great work being done through this agency so that all onr pastors may be able to study it.

Abstract of the Sixty-Eighth Annual Report. May, 1884.

Baldwin has translated the Books of Jeremiah and Lamentations into the Foochow Colloquial. In India Dr. Chamberlain has resumed work on the Telngu Version, in connection with Dr. Hay, who is in the employ of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The Permanent Committee in Japan have given their endorsement to four additional portions of the Old Testament, viz.: I. and II. Samuel, and I. Kings and Proverbs. An edition of the New Testament in China-Corean has been prepared by a Corean of high rank, who has also translated one of the Gospels into the language of his people. A committee at Constantinople has charge of introducing necessary corrections into the Turkish Bible. Dr. Riggs has re-examied the Armenian New Testament, and Dr. Van Dyck is giving carefully attention to a new edition of the Arabic Bible which is passing through the press.

THE GENERAL SUPPLY OF THE UNITED STATES.

In the last Annual Report the Board announced the successful commencement of the work of re-supplying the entire country with the Scriptnres. This great nndertaking has been pushed forward dur ng the year with as much rapidity as possible.

The vastness of the territory to be explored, the sparseness of the popnlation to be reached, and the difficnlties of thoroughly systematizing the work and the consequent large expenditure involved, had been carefnlly considered by the Board; but they went forward, depending npon the Bible-loving people of this great country for the necessary means to carry it to a successful consummation.

The responses to the "Address to the People of the United States" (which was issued at the commencement of this work in 1882,) have not been as general and as generous as was anticipated. Thus far the means to carry on this work have chiefly been derived from the last gifts of the departed. Bnt even this precarions source of income has been insufficient to meet the demands upon the resources of the Society, and a considerable draft had to be made upon bequests received in former years.

In view of these facts, the Managers cannot refrain f om giving expression to their apprehension that unless the canse is more generally and pressingly presented in the churches, and the friends of the Society respond more liberally to its claims, the time is near when the work both at home and abroad must be greatly curtailed. Never was there a more general demand for the Scriptures in our own land; never were the nations of the earth stretching forth their hands so eagerly for the word of life; never was this Society more thoroughly equipped for its work and prosecuting it more vigorously. The work done at home and abroad during the past year makes a most cogent appeal for more general and liberal contributions.

GRANTS OF BOOKS.—Value of grants of books to auxiliary and missionary societies, churches, and individnals, $34,700 83; for colportage, $150,956 16; to Life Directors, etc., $9,384 20. Total, $195,041 19.

District Superintendents engaged in the Society's work in this country nineteen; colporteurs working in twenty-nine States and Territories, 418.

Number of Auxilaries reported as engaged in the canvass of their fields dn. ing the year, 156; Agents employed and paid by them, 138; unpaid Volunteer Distributros, 1,108.

The Combined Results of all the agencies of the Society for supplying the destitute, so far as reported, are as follows:

Families visited	1,217,213
" found without the Scriptures	150,067
Destitute families supplied	101 489
" individuals supplied	67,495

OPERATIONS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The reports from lands in which the foreign work of the American Bible Society is carried on, indicate constant enlargement of area and increased opportunities for circulating the Scriptures.

It is gratifying to tell of new fields opening for Bible distribution in Cuba, Bolivia, Peru, and Guatemala; of a cordial welcome given to Bible colporteurs in Siberia and the Amoor; of a circulation in Egypt which has not been redneed by war or pestilence; of an advance in China over the highest circulation ever reported; of a demand in Japan for the Old Testament as well as for the New; and of a steady increase of desire for the word of God throughout the Turkish Empire. The Agents of the Society resident in Turkey, Persia, China, Japan, Uruguay, Brazil, and Mexico are in immediate and and constant communication with most of the labourers supported by the various missionary societies of the United States, and throngh them provisions is made for such supplies of the printed Scriptures as are needed for mission use; while the missionaries themselves bear a willing part in promoting the circulation of the Bible within and beyond the bonnds of their personal labonrs. Whether it be the book sent out in advance of the living preacher, or the book accompanied and applied by oral explanations, or the book containing in permanent and legible form the great facts which the preacher's voice has proclaimed, everywhere the Bible is in demand and is counted indispensable to the permanent success of missions.

For Bible work in lands where the Society has no Agents, grants of money and of books have been made, as in former years, to various missionary boards, as well as to Bible societies like those of France and Russia.

Three hnndred and twenty persons have been employed to distribnte the Scriptures in foreign lands, the average term of actnal service being somewhat more than six months each.

To meet expenses incnrred in translating, pnblishing, and distributing the Scriptures in foreign lands, the amount of $167,452 41 was paid to the Society's Correspondents and Agents.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Wiley has left for China and Japan.

—Baboo Ram Chandra Bose has been lectnring in Cincinnati.

—Rev. Morris Bell, of the Pleasant Green Baptist Church, Lexington, Ky., is one of the most humorons men of his times; it is delightful to meet and converse with him.

—We had, while at Lexington, Ky., a pleasant half hour with Messrs Scroggins and Jackson of the Kentucky Republicnn. Their office is entirely controlled and managed by colored men.

—If any one doubts the capability of colored gentlemen to be courteous and magnanimous toward each other let him read our letter from Bro. Albert. With snch manliness and courage it is only a question of time about the other things.

—The Oregon Statesman gives an account of the nnveiling of the monnment to the memory of Bishop E. O. Haven at Salem, Oregon, in June. The monument is constructed of Quincy marble, and cost something over $1,000. Dr. Stratton, the biographer of the Bishop, delivered an address, Rev. F. S. Hoyt and Rev. F. P. Tower took part in the services.

LOUISIANA.

R. C. Barrow, Alexiers: "Ou Childrens Day at St Matthew Church, there was singing and speeches. The church was beantifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. There was present 75 scholars. Visitors and all were pleased. At Asbury the water is falling rapidly, and we will soon be able to recall Sunday services. Collection $3.15."

W. H. Moore, Eola: "Childreu's Day was a grand occasion. The young people decorated the church, and crowds came from all directions through rain and mud. Among the addresses was one by a Baptist brother, Rev. Jack Wade, on education of youth; W. Coleman, on old people in Sunday-school; others were by Miss C. Jase, Mrs. Rachel Scott, Rev. C. Monroe. Collection $2. Our pastor is raising money to build a church, and is serving the people spiritnally."

TEXAS.

P. Morgan, Galveston: "Five long months have rolled away and you have not heard from the West Tabernacle. The Lord has been working with us. I came to this work about the 16th of December, I could wish to meet no better people; a few days after I arrived, our beloved Presiding Elder F. C. Moore came and held our first quarter; 120 were around the sacremental board; collections $18.35. Again in April he held our second quarter, and we had a still better time; a larger nnmber came around the sacremental board, same were baptized; a nnmber joined the church, and many a soul was made happy; collections over $20. Bro. Moore is beloved by all the people, and has great power among them. We then commenced our second protracted meeting, which lasted until the Children's Day. Both old and young were happy enough all day to fly if it had been possible. During the day nineteen were baptized; collections $14. At night we closed with a farewell Christian march; the result of the work for the previous part of the year is as follows: 43 converts, 38 baptized, recieved by letter 8, received in full 16, reclaimed 18, dismissed by letter 3, expelled 4; total addition 71. Now that I have told you of spiritual things, believe me as I will now tell you of temporal things. We had no parsonage when I arrived here, nor did we have one when the presiding elder held his second quarter, but we had $98 towards it, which we started to build with as soon as he left. I prayed at the spot on the 26 of April; on the 28th the building commenced, the last day of May we moved in it. Mr. Editor, beyond dispute, it is as fine a parsonage as Texas can afford. The building is 20x26, frame building, two stories, gallery above and below. The bottom room is 11 feet, ceiling, top or upper room 9 feet; two rooms and a hall below finished nicely, decently painted, white; will soon finish npstairs; cost $400; had not a great deal of work given and lumber donated, the same would have cost $750. But we are so blessed as to be almost out of debt with it, though times have been unusually hard. We owe about $75, so you see that we are wide awake and expect to do more. We are getteng up our benevolent collections also"

Aaron Taylor, Madison circuit.—"Children's Day passed off nicely, little Ela Wilkins, 5 years old, made the opening address. We stood her on the Bible that she might be seen by the people, and her words interested all who heard her. After a lecture by Miss Emeline Green we collected $5 in ten minutes time. The closing address was made by our beloved Superintendent Leonard Green. Our hearts were full of joy."

J. Buell, Horn: "At second quarterly conference Rev. B. F. Smith preached to a crowded house, 10 were baptized, and sacrament was administered to 92. Protracted meeting was held and 13 persons joined; collected for elder $9.65."

Letter From Washington.

Dear Dr. Taylor: This is my first contribution to your valuable paper, and I hope you will deem it worthy of publication. I am so mch elated over yonr speech at the General Conference, and so much everjoyed at yonr election to snch a responsible and dignified position, until I am forced to tell you to put me down as a friend who is always willing to give yon a line on general affairs in Washington.

I, myself, am a member of the M. E. Church, and no one watched its deliberations and actions at its recent Augnst session more than I; and when that resolntion passed abolishing the color line, my heart was filled with joy, for I saw in the future, not very far, the possibilities for colored men of piety, intelligence and executive ability, in the church, in the publication department, in the assembly of the Bishops.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

ACCIDENTS.—Coolness, presence of mind, quiet but prompt action when necessary, are all important. The senseless scream, fainting, or hysterical spasms, so often indulged should be consideration and thoughtful action, it is when danger is present. The coolness of a senseless physician in emergencies is not heartless indifference. He has learned to exercise his judgment calmly. We must learn to distinguish between real and imaginary suffering. Some people will scream louder and more piteously when a splinter is picked from the flesh than others will when a leg is amputated. A cool head and steady hand with a knowledge what to do, will save many a life and much suffering. When an injury occurs, if not serious or dangerous to life or limb, make the injured member as comfortable as possible by stitching the RHUBARB.—Break half pound of cheese in small pieces, add three well beaten eggs, a very little salt, a tablespoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of mustard, a teaspoonful of salt and half a cup of cream. Put all into a saucepan and set in boiling water. Stir until the cheese melts. Then spread it on slices of crisp toast. Serve immediately.

THE CRUSADE IDEAL.

BY M E WINSLOW.

Dream of prophets, seers and sages,
As the centuries come and go,
Graven deep on history's pages,
Guiding star of darkest ages,
Heaven on earth below.

This the warrior's promised glory,
Who of old assumed the cross,
This the poet's song and story,
Rune and rhyme and legend hoary,
Gain worth every loss.

Only let the cross be planted
Where in scorn it stood of yore
Throned in pomp, then disenchanted,
Earth so long by sorrow haunted,
Eden is once more

Still that dream of old is floating
Down the centuries white with years,
Still true souls their lives devoting,
Toil and sorrow nothing, noting,
See it through their tears.

Throne the cross! faith cries, aye, throne it,
Where man's greed and rapine reign;
Sorrow, want and pain will own it,
Evil in defeat bemoan it,
Peace will come again.

Wave, brave sister-hands, your banners!
Where the blazoned cross appears!
Wield your weapon, prayer, ye Hannahs!
Strike for God, the white, hosannas
Drown the wail of fears.

Christ shall reign, although his foeman
Fight him with hell's reddest dart,
Christ shall reign in temples human,
Throned in every heart.

Thus the dream of seers and sages
In heaven's radiant light shall glow,
Thus shall dawn those golden ages
When black sin no warfare wages,
But is white as snow.

Raise your battle cry, crusaders!
Deus vult as long before,
Drive from Zion all invaders,
Throne in shrines defiled by traders,
Christ forever more.—[Zion's Herald

Be Sure You're Right, Then Go Ahead.

BY A. L. RICHARDSON.

MR. EDITOR—I came across these words, and have been deeply impressed, after reflecting over them, to say something in relation to them. Along the pothway of life we see men of high rank and station practicing vices that are ruinous to soul and body, and devastating character for time and eternity. Then we turn our eyes in another direction and we see others habitually halting between two opinions, and trudging along life's pathway as though life was mean, or as if there was nothing real in life; continually fretting, whining and complaining of their condition, and saying life is better to others than themselves. But it is not so; she is no respecter of person; she favors all her children alike; but be assured she conducts none to prosperity, happiness and respectability except the industrious and persevering. Life is not mean, it is just what one makes it. If one desires to make life miserable and mean they have a good chance to do it; they have only to go to the rum shop occasionally and empty their pockets, fill their stomachs with beer or some other intoxicant, spend their evenings in the gambeling hells at some game of chance, and they will soon be good-for-nothing vagabonds, a perfect pest to society. If you do not wish to become of such a character you must avoid these evils in the commencement of life. A wrong beginning often results in serious results; but think, reflect, and compare, and when decided upon a certain object then put your whole soul into the purpose. "Be sure you are right, then go ahead." The thought of justice and right stirred the heart of this great nation to its profoundest depths, and at the simple moving of her pen millions of swords and bayonets gleamed and flashed in the air, and vast armies met in deadly array, and fought face to face till liberty, rebaptized in blood, was given to man, as man. And now in this free country, decked with institutions of learning in every conceivable quarter, with the power of will used in the right direction any one can be just what he wants to be. Life is a voyage from the cradle to the grave. The world is the ocean, our characters the vessels, and our will is the great oar with which we steer. At the commencement of our voyage we should be careful to choose the course that justice, truth and virtue sanction, then go ahead. "Heed not the stormy winds though loudly they blow, watch the bright morning star and pull for the shore." Along the voyage we may cast our eyes in every conceivable quarter of the globe, and behold, she is decorated with scenes of enchanting beauty, overspread with forests of evergreens, viewed in the prospect looks serene, pleasant and inviting, but beneath is concealed shoals, rocks and quick-sands, on which a great many, failing in the proper use of the oar which is the power of will, that great invisible law of nature which holds undivided empire over the soul of man, have made a perfect shipwreck of life, and blighted their characters forever, and, alas! how few ever succeed in reaching the distant shore.

Up then, young man, and gird yourself for this great journey, whatever your hands find to do, do it with all your might, relying not on the exertion of others. He that waits lazily along the stream of life depending on the labors and exertions of some one else will be continually drifting with the tide. He may be borne along for awhile, but when he finds himself, he will be as far from the object he is following as he was when he started on the voyage. We must not drift, but steer.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D:

We rejoice to learn of your election to the editorship. We congratulate you, ourselves, the Lexington conference, the colored people, the Methodist Episcopal Church, and especially the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church; you because we know that you are competent and worthy of the position; ourselves because we rejoice in your being placed in a position where as a minister of the gospel and a bold defender of the truth we all can be benefited. We feel assured that though you are not with us in your former position, that you are with us in a broader and more useful one; and that your opportunities to do good, not only to the Lexington conference but to the whole church, are greatly enlarged. We expect and pray that great good will be accomplished by God through you for the Negro race in this land, and we pray that God may grant to you many years of usefulness. We also congratulate Mrs. Taylor, and pray that God may continue to endow her with all the Christian graces that she may be a helpmate to you, indeed, we shall take great pleasure in reading the SOUTHWESTERN. I have never taken it before but of course I must now for our own Dr. Taylor is its editor. Amen!—Ed.

Church Dedication.

MR. EDITOR: The new Scott M. E. Church was dedicated to the Lord's services on Sunday, May 18, '84. It is situated on Phillip Street, below Central Avenue.

Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., preached at the morning service from Matt. 16:26. While he was preaching the Lord was with him, and backed up the word with great power. In the afternoon, Rev. H. M., Brown, pastor of the M. E. Church, Gloucester City, preached the dedicatory sermon from Matt. 11.28 and dedicated the church. Rev. G. G. Vreeland also preached in the basement in the afternoon an interesting sermon.

At night, Rev. W. C. Dickerson of Easton, Md., preached for us from Haggai 2:7, and that sermon will not soon be forgotten. The Holy Ghost was with him while he was preaching. The collection during the day was $232 94, and the penny collection, 15.40.

The church is a fine commodious structure, 60x40 in size. It has a large gallery, and over the pulpit is the inscription, "Holiness unto the Lord."

On Monday night, Rev. L. W. Deakins from Port Deposit preached for us a Holy Ghost sermon with great power from on high.

Yours, J. S. HOLLEY.

More than a hundred tons of human hair are annually bought and sold. Four ounces is an average clipping from a human head; so that a hundred tons represent the product of from 800,000 to 1,000,000 heads. In Europe the heads of female criminals are shorn, and they supply a large market, but the greater part is bought by traveling peddlers.

One reason why diseases of the bladder and urinary organs are so difficult to cure is that they frequently have no pronounced symptoms. HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY is peculiarly adapted to the cure of these complaints, and goes at once to the seat of trouble giving relief at once.

INDIGESTION AND CONSTIPATION

ARE CURED BY

AYER'S PILLS.

Dyspepsia

Is one of the most dangerous of the diseases caused by these complaints. Affecting as it does the centre of life—the stomach—it quickly deranges and imperils the whole system, physical and mental. Its symptoms are manifold, and many of them so serious that they are generally regarded and treated as special maladies.

The Only Cure

For the various forms of dyspeptic diseases, is in a medicine that will remove its primary cause, by restoring the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels, to a healthful condition. Any other treatment is as useless as an effort would be to make a watch keep time by simply gilding its case, when it had a broken main-spring.

Ayer's Pills

Are the best medicine to accomplish the necessary work of cleansing, stimulating and restoring. They are more thorough in their purgative effect than any others, yet are not violent in their action, exercise a powerful influence for good upon the other vital organs as well as the bowels, and effectually

Banish Disease.

For Biliousness, Jaundice, and other evil consequences of hepatic disorders, there is no remedy so prompt and thorough as AYER'S PILLS. They are also, by their efficacy in regulating the digestive functions, of the greatest value to women in the most critical stages of existence.

Kidney Diseases

Also spring from disorders of the digestive functions, and are not only exceedingly painful in themselves, but have symptoms, such as Dropsy and Rheumatism, which are of the gravest character. The work of the kidneys is the purifying of the blood. When, through disease, they cease to do this,

Prompt Relief

Must be accorded to avert most serious consequences. Medicines that lull their pain by dulling their sensibility, or that stimulate them to unnatural activity, do infinitely more harm than good. To restore them to health, the kidneys must be cleansed, their inflammation allayed, and their strength restored.

Ayer's Pills

Do this more effectually than any other. Their diuretic effect is not less marked and beneficial than their purgative power. Not only do they, at once, by a moving dose, free the clogged, and rouse the torpid organs, but their continuous effect, when taken in small doses, is to regulate the machinery of life, and Restore Health and Vigor.

For all the several varieties of Piles, and for the many Cutaneous Disorders produced by Blood Impurities thrown into the circulation during attacks of constipation, no cure is so quick and easy as AYER'S PILLS, which free the bowels and aid nature.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krekbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE

TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn. and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City, For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. General News Items.

Dr. Buckley, of the Christian Advocate is in Europe.

Colleges issued few degrees the past year, out of respect to higher scholarship.

Germany is fast becoming the military school of all Europe, and Berlin is now crowded with officers of the continental armies, all anxious to learn the art of war at what is now considered the fountainhead. The English officers alone hold aloof with true insular pride, maintaining that there is no school of arms like Woolwich, and Count Von Moltke quietly retorts by showing a dozen practical plans for the successful invasion of England.

The libel suit of M. A. Dauphin, of the Louisiana Lottery Company against the Philadelphia Times, has been thrown out of court, the Judge saying: "This business here is not entitled to any protection whatever. It is not only unlawful, but it is worse. It is an infamous crime. Is it possible that a business stigmatized by the law of Pennsylvania cannot be so characterized here by the editor of a newspaper or any other citizen, notwithstanding the fact that the business may be lawful in Louisiana? Is it possible that the citizens of Pennsylvania may not express their approval of the laws of Pennsylvania?"

The formal presentation of the Bartholdi statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" by the French Government to the United States took place in Paris, July 4. Mr. Morton, United States minister, received the statue in the name of his government. Prime Minister Ferry sent a letter stating that he regretted that illness prevented him assisting at the scene of fraternity between two great republics. In heart and soul he would participate. De Lesseps said France, under all governments, had always been a friend and ally of America. America now realized that the Panama canal was a work of universal interest. The statue would forever be a pledge of the amity between France and the great American people.

Rev. Dennis Osborne, From South India.

Among the members who for the first time appear in the General Conference is the Rev. Dennis Osborne, who comes from his home in Allahabad ("the city of God,") to this "city of brotherly love." He is a representative of the large class of people in India, for whom our Church has done so much, the Eurasians. He was born in the famous city of Benares, on the Ganges, just 40 years ago. In the terrible Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 his parents were killed. They had removed to Agra in order to place their son in school, and returned on business to Benares, where they were massacred. The orphan boy attended the Government College at Agra, where he received a good education, and soon found employment in a government office. He became connected with the Scotch Presbyterian Church at Allahabad, and was afterwards transferred to Lucknow. He was gradually promoted, until in 1871 he was at the head of one of the prominent Government offices in Lucknow.

In this year Brother Taylor visited Lucknow, a number of conversions occurred, and among others Mr. Osborne joined the not over-popular Methodists. He at once began working and instituted a weekly meeting at his own house, which was largely attended, and resulted in great good. He also engaged in native Sunday-school work among the heathen children, and for years was a popular Sunday-school superintendent in Lucknow. At last he felt called to preach and dared not resist. From the first his preaching was greatly blessed. For more than a year he carried on his official duties during the week and preached on Sunday. Mainly through his efforts our Church at Allahabad, now so flourishing, was organized. In 1874 he decided to give his entire time to the work of God, and joined the North India Conference, relinquishing a salary double that received by our missionaries, feeling that God would provide for himself and family. He was appointed to Allahabad, where he has spent most of the time since, building a beautiful church and a parsonage.

Since 1876, Mr. Osborne has belonged to the South India Conference. During the past 5 years he has served as Presiding Elder, and has had remarkable success here, as well as in the pastorate. Through his efforts several new churches have been organized, at Mussoorie, Lahore, Agra, Roorkee, and elsewhere. He is a good man, an earnest preacher, an eloquent speaker, a faithful worker. His personal appearance is striking; his hair is coal-black; his eyes are also dark, and his countenance indicates an active mind and a good heart.

Mr. Osborne is an able lecturer, and is already receiving numerous invitations to address our churches. He is accompanied by his wife and youthful son, who will assist him in singing the native hymns of India. We are glad to know that the South India Conference is so well represented.—Daily Advocate.

Episcopal Fund.

To the Presiding Elders:

REV. AND DEAR BRETHEREN.—By the election of four Bishops at the recent session of the General Conference, the claims on the Episcopal Fund have been largely increased. The additional amount which will be required to pay the salaries, house rent, traveling and moving expenses of these four for the seven months of the present year will probably be $12,000. For the next year the addition will be $20,000.

The Book Committee, which held its regular meeting in February last, could not anticipate this increase nor provide for it.

A special meeting of the new Book Committee, appointed by the late General Conference, was held before the close of the session, and fifteen per cent. was added to the apportionment. Unless immediate and earnest efforts are made by the church, a deficiency will be found at the close of this year.

We appeal to you as a Presiding Elder to bring this matter before the Preachers and Quarterly Conferences of your District. Please see that this additional sum is apportioned among the Charges of your District, and that the whole is paid.

It will aid us if you will forward to us quarterly such sums as may be collected. The Bishops draw upon us for their claims monthly.

The Conferences to be held during the remainder of the year must be relied upon largely in the attempt to carry the treasury through the year with the additional claims upon it.

During the past four years the Church nobly met this new claim upon its liberality; and we devoutly hope that during the present quadrennium we may not suffer the humiliation of a failure. Justice to our Bishops and the honor of the Church alike demand that the treasury of the Episcopal Fund be kept prepared for all claims upon it. Yours sincerely.

German Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

There are eight German Annual Conferences in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and one additional district, that of the German District of the the California Conference. Of these German Conferences seven are within the United States, the one remaining being the Conference of Germany and Switzerland. This German work reported January 1, 1884:

Itinerant preachers	649
Local preachers	724
Lay members and probation	59,543
Ministerial and lay members	63,192
Number of Churches	727
Number of parsonages	327
Value of Churches and parsonages	$2,886,559
Number of Sunday-schools	1 183
Sunday-school officers and teachers	10,270
Sunday-school scholars	61,531

The official returns of the German work in 1883 for the year 1883 showed that the following amounts were raised by the Churches during the year: Paid for building and improving Churches, $115,516; paid on old debts on Church property, $59,590; paid for pastors, Presiding Elders and Bishops, $289,554; paid for current expenses—sexton, fuel, gas, Sunday-schools, etc., 58,155; a total for the year, exclusive of the amounts raised for benevolent contributions, of $522,-815.

The Centenary Medal.

The crush of correspondence in the office of the Board of Education since Children's Day has exceeded all precedent. So great, in fact, has been the inflow of remittances for collections and medals that the Secretary, with all the effort he could make, and all the assistance he could employ, found it impossible to send out his official receipts and the medals ordered as promptly as he had hoped to do.

But a point has now been reached from which the work of his office promises to be speedily overtaken, including the immediate sending of all medals ordered.

Our friends at large will not be surprised to learn that a new demand for the historic Centenary medal has sprung up following the lamented decease of our dear Bishop Simpson, and we respectfully suggest that all individuals and families not already provided with it would do well to send to the Educational Secretary at 805 Broadway, New York, for a token of remembrance, which they will prize more and more as years roll on. Its uniform cost, delivered at any post-office in the United States, is one dollar. Canvasser's certificates are still furnished, and some Sunday-schools are planning for extensive presentations of medals on different occasions between this and Christmas. Any pastor or Sunday-school Superintendent disposed to do what he can for the supply of the medal in his locality will be furnished with a specimen on application.

It is generally deemed only fair and right to let all our children and people have an opportunity to at least see this beautiful and significant token and souvenir of the present Centennial epoch, as well as to give those who may desire to do so the privilege of becoming possessors of it, by means of making or securing subscriptions for the Children's Educational Fund.

All additional subscriptions sent in for this object will be credited as a part of the Centennial offering of the several charges from which they come, provided a definite report is made of the same.

A predicament. 2 o'clock in the morning,—sleet on the side-walk,—baby got the croup, and no Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup in the house.

Governor Glick, of Kansas, has pardoned six saloon-keepers of Salina who were serving sentences, on the ground that the juries which convicted them were packed by the prohibition attorney, with the aid of the judge.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steel engraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Washington Irving and his Friends	28x36
Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36
Departure of the Pilgrims	28x36
Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34
Preaching of John Knox before the Lords of the Congregation in St Andrew's	28x36

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THIRD QUARTER, LESSON III. July 30. GOD'S COVENANT WITH DAVID. (2 Sam vii, 1-13.)

The house which King Hiram's workmen had built for David was finished. The heathen enemies of Israel had found that the Lord was with the new king, so they had gone back to their homes, and the land had peace. But there was one thing that troubled David as he rested in his new home. The ark of God was in a tent while he lived in a beautiful house. So he sent for his preacher or prophet, as they were called then, and talked over the matter with him. Nathan advised him to do as he felt about it. That night the Lord spoke to Nathan and told him what to say to David. God was different from what he had said himself. Even good men do not know what is best, unless they wait to find out will of the Lord. Before David was told that his son and not himself would build the temple the Lord made him a promise, which is the most important part of this the Lord reminded David all the commands given people for their own good guidance, he had never even why they had not built temple. He cared more for and obedience, as he care. Yet it was right for to want to build a house of God, as it is for us churches or fix them. The Lord also called to he had taken David from and made him king, great in the promise this throne after his death this and for the taken from this would be true until Christ. There was more in them either Nathan at the time. So we how much is meant by promises of the Bible. bearing through all

NEW BOOKS.

Cookery For Beginners, with Marion Harland's name as author, needs no other indication of its character and genuine value. It has been a fault of previous books on Cookery that they have taken for granted the possession of a certain degree of knowledge requisite to their successful use not always possessed. This book while affording a range of information unsurpassed by any other book and thus suited to the use of all, has the advantage of being perfectly adapted to the needs of the veriest tyros in cookery. Kitchen edition in water proof cloth binding, limp, 60 cts. With extra pages, blank, for new receipts, in extra cloth binding, stiff covers, $1.00. Boston, D. Lothrop & Co.

THE POULTRY KEEPER. Printed at Chicago, Ill., is the best poultry journal ever published,—Woonsocket, R. I., Patriot. Read their large advertisement in another column.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Herbert Spencer gives his attention, in the leading article in The Popular Science Monthly for July, to "The Great Political Superstition" of the divine right of parliaments. He shows, contrary to the assertions of many eminent publicists, that rights exist antecedently to any laws; that laws are only recognitions and vindications of those antecedent rights, and that consequently they are valid only as they conform to them, or as they possess the "ethical sanction derivable from the laws of human life as carried on under social conditions." The Rev. George G. Lyon presents an interesting view of "The New Theology," as a development from the old, corresponding with the growth in human powers of comprehension, not contradictory but harmonious with it, and "reformatory rather than revolutionary in its teachings and tendencies." Perhaps the most important paper in the number is M. Pasteur's account, given before the French Academy of Sciences, of his discovery of "The Preventation of Hydrophobia, by inoculation. The editor at his "Table" discusses "The Survival of Political Superstitions," and President Eliot's address at Johns Hopkins University on "What is a Liberal Education?" New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

The American Kindergarten Magazine is published monthly at Room No. 70, Bible House, New York, $1 a year.

The July Electra has a sketch by Poe, short stories, poems and choice miscellany. Louisville, Ky., $2 per year.

"Five Years of Faith Work in India," by C. B. Ward, has been received from the Anglo Vernacular Press, Bombay.

From the author, Ram Chandra Bose, we have received a pamphlet of 72 pages, entitled "Hinduism and the Hindu People," being the substance of extempore addresses delivered by Mr. Bose, who was a delegate from North India to the last two General Conferences. We may refer to it again.

Gospel Melodies, a collection of sacred songs for use in gospel meetings, social gatherings, etc., by Harrison Millard, has just been received. The arrangement is good and the hymns and music for the most part original. L. F. Gordon & Sons, publishers, 132 Fourteenth St., New York.

We have heard both Democrats and Republicans say that there is nothing better for a Cough than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup; this old reliable remedy never fails to cure a Cough or Cold at once, and may be obtained at any drug store for 25 cents a bottle.

We call attention to the advertisement of Washington & Lee University, Lexington, Virginia. The Academic Departments as well as the Schools of Law and Engineering, open on September 18th.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. jy10-1y

Letter From Aberdeen, Ohio.

A paper is before me, containing your remarks upon striking out India and inserting Africa as an Episcopal residence. I am pleased at the view you take of the matter, and admire your manner of laying your views before the conference. I cannot help feeling proud of the favorable comment your speech excited in this part of the country. It is in fact, with Dr. Hatfield's, among the very few speeches reported at length in the daily papers in the West. Both were noted speeches, but for vastly different reasons. There is a matter that pleases me still more than all of this. It is this: In a speech delivered by Mr. George William Curtis in memory of Wendell Phillips, at the invitation of Boston, in his address, on page 7, I find a reference to certain facts and to a certain point, made by yourself in a lecture at Cleveland. I gave the lecture reasonable notoriety, and when I saw the address of Mr. Curtis I wrote him a letter of thanks. He sent a copy of the speech with a letter which I enclose for your inspection. Speaking advisedly I regard you as a great man, Doctor, and feel myself honored in the possession of the friendship of such a man. Whatever the present has for you there is in the future, whether you live or die, a certain and sure reward. I know something of what interferes with your progress. Now there are two things that you need to overcome, you will overcome them, however, I am sure, by the power of your intellect, the purity of your life and the love that the Lord has for you. The things I refer to are Caste and Envy. I know I need say no more on this head. God grant you such things as he deems proper.

I cannot close without a word about my charge. We are on good terms with each other. I think will pay my church debts off. Here and at Vanceburg I am pushing the battle to the gates; results, I have received 18 members, organized one Sunday-school and supplied all our schools here with our own literature; organized four societies, two temperance and two lyceums, with a total membership of one hundred and seven on the work. I have secured in each of my appointments the active co-operation of the young people. I am determined to make my mark up here so that I will be remembered for what I tried to do. Now, I thank you for reading this letter. Pray for us; your memory is green here, your name is often called, by no one more than by yours, devotedly,

"JAB."

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS IN COUNCIL.

Sixty Addresses by American Educators.

Edited by REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D. D.

8vo. 272 pp. Price, stiff paper..$1. 25
Cloth..... 1 75

The New England Journal of Education, speaking of the National Education Assembly, for 1883, says: "It was the most remarkable gathering ever held in our country in matters connected with the schooling of the people. The volume of addresses is the most interesting collection of popular educational documents ever given to our people, and should be in the hands of every educator, legislator, and intelligent citizen in the land."

The sixty addresses are arranged topically, as follows:

1. Education and Man's Improvement.
2. Illiteracy in the United States.
3. National Aid to Common Schools.
4. The Negro in America.
5. Illiteracy, Wealth, Pauperism, and Crime.
6. The American Indian Problem.
7. The American Mormon Problem.
8. Education in the South since the War.
9. Christ in American Education.
10. Tabulation of Illiteracy and Educational Facts from Census of 1880—ten tables.

It is a book for all who want information on any of these great practical questions. The addresses are carefully prepared and revised by the authors, and are filled with information and incidents. The authors are nearly all engaged in actual work in the fields of which they speak. The book should be in every public library. A full table of contents is supplemented by a carefully prepared index.

A special feature of the book is a series of ten tables, compiled by the Hon. H. R. Waite, Special Statistician U. S. Census, and the Hon. John Eaton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, giving complete data upon the illiterate and educational status of the United States, each State and also of the South as a section.

Editorial Notes.

Why don't some people behave themselves?

Are we enduring afflictions that we may do the work of evangelists, thus making full proof of our ministry?

Attendance on the public worship of God is a blessing to the attendant because of its association, work and instruction.

The National Grand Lodge of the United Brothers of Friendship will meet this year in Galveston, Texas.

The minutes of the twenty-first session of Delaware conference, H. A. Monroe, secretary, have been received.

If any Christian provide not for other Christians, and specially for those of his own church, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

Labor and capital are partners whose business can only prosper as they live together in peace, mutually aiding, and protecting each other's rights.

It is impossible to have a prosperous church where most of the members are without church work. Christian activity is needed to preserve Christian character.

A woman whose object in life is only pleasure is already dead while she lives, and this is a gospel to be constantly preached that such may be converted to usefulness.

It is due to ministers that they be cordially received, respectfully entertained not rebuked, but encouraged as fathers when they are over churches like fathers.

Poor and desolate Christian widows will have the companionship of the Holy Spirit in great power, who are entitled to the aid and sympathy of their church.

When it happens that the thing we dislike is the thing most needful to us, prayer ought thereby to be chastened with the spirit of submission, if it be not granted in our way.

Saved by grace and good works are fruits of grace. The law is the school of a Savior, and the knowledge of the Savior leads to obedience. We are under the law to Christ.

The Presbyterian Church, Camden, S. C., is a mission of Rev. Wm. R. Davis. The typographical error in our last issue is corrected.

We fail to realize the attractiveness of God's house, and the full enjoyment of visiting it, until we are unable to go to it. Then, with the psalmist, we mourn, "How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts."

Christian employers should provide for a proper observance of the Sabbath by their employes, by making such disposition of public and domestic affairs as will most surely conduce to this end.

From God's standpoint of observation a church which produces no converts is not in a normal condition, if the church reaches the highest ideal in this respect it must do so by great and constant missionary effort.

Rev. Dr. C. K. Marshall, of Vicksburg, has addressed a communication to President Richardson, of the World's Exposition at New Orleans, urging him to provide some plan for Sunday worship at the Exposition.

It is a fearful thing to be cut off from the communion of the Church on earth, how much more the fellowship of that in heaven. "For a day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness."

We should not weaken in the face of persecution or in any way compromise the dignity of our ministerial standing; we must hold on to what we believe is right, and do what we believe is right, let the consequence be what it may, only make the best effort to have a right belief.

Colonel Robt. G. Shaw who fell at Fort Wagner at the head of the gallant 56th Massachusetts colored regiment, was the brother-in-law of Mr. George William Curtis, the editor of Harper's Weekly. Mr. Curtis in politics, is, we believe, an Independent free trade Republican, and in all things a gentelman.

Every pastor should carefully arrange a list of appointees for the committees taking for that purpose different members of his charge for each place, and as far as possible appoint each member to some one and only one office. It is the idle ones who make the trouble and wander away.

The Masonic fraternity have recently concluded an agreable session of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, at Henderson. Revs. W. C. Echols, George Sissel and other members of Lexington conference were in attendance, some of whom called upon us, as they were returning. They have not explained how the Ohio Grand Lodge can make Masons on Sunday and within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky. We are waiting to hear.

A minister whose appointment is changed by the usual constitutional method has no cause of complaint. He knew of such possibilities, before he accepted membership in Methodist Episcopal Church, and the conference to which he belongs. For him to abuse the presiding elder, or to attempt schism in the charge from which he has been removed, is to do a thing which is clearly actionable under the head of sowing "disension." Such a minister forfeits thereby his claim to the confidence of the church, and hence his hope of promotion.

Letter From Boston.

THE NEGRO ORATOR AT THE HARVARD UNIVERSITY COMMENCEMENT.

BY PROF. WILBUR P. THIRKIELD.

"Is there anything of special interest at the Harvard commencement this year?" inquired your correspondent of a friend.

"Well, yes," was the reply, "you will be interested in knowing that a colored man is one of the graduates."

"That is good," I replied, "and he is not the first graduate, for I was present several years ago when a Negro took his diploma."

"Oh! but your colored brother has come out at the top this time; and his rank entitles him to be one of the seven speakers who represent a class of over two hundred."

That was enough. It were worth a ride of 200 miles to hear a colored man speak, who, by his energy, pluck, and perseverance, could come out so near the head of a class of 200 men in the oldest and proudest university of our land.

Of course I should go to hear him when it was only a ride of three miles from Boston to the seat of the great institution at Cambridge.

Arriving ahead of time on the appointed day, I wandered about for an hour among the classic halls of Harvard. The college buildings are arranged about a great quadrangle. Some of them are venerable with age, others are elegantly built in modern style. When, in 1636, less than sixteen years after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, this institution was founded, no one could have cast the horoscope of its future. When John Harvard gave it several thousand dollars and his library of 300 volumes, he did not know that his name was to be thus handed down to posterity upon the seals of this university. Surely from little seeds planted in faith and nurtured by prayer, great results follow.

It now has an endowment of over $3,000,000 and a library of 200,000 volumes. From its halls have gone forth more than twelve thousand graduates. It now has an attendance of twelve or thirteen hundred students The influence of its graduates is felt in science, letters and statesmanship all over our land. We are shown the room in one of its halls where Charles Sumner spent his student days, and more than one anecdote is told of Wendell Phillips, the genial, brilliant student there, of fifty years ago. To this renowned institution, that has given to the Negro race these illustrious friends and helpers, we had come to hear the graduating address of Robert Heberton Terrell, born only a quarter of a century ago, and the son of two slaves.

Behold! what hath God wrought! Less than fifty years ago Garrison was dragged through the streets of Boston by a pro-slavery mob. The fiery heart of a Phillips is aroused by the sight, and his eloquent lips are consecrated to the liberation of the slave. It seemed a long fight and a bitter one. But now we see the same Boston who mobbed these men, arise in tears to build their monuments. And here is a Negro, only a score of years ago liberated possibly from the auction block and the shambles, rising in the strength of cultured young manhood to the top of his class in our greatest university.

But, if we tarry longer here in meditation we shall miss the graduating exercises which are held over yonder in the great Memorial Hall. As we stand waiting while the distinguished guests are passing in, we have an opportunity to take a glance at this beautiful hall. It is built in memory of the sons of Harvard college who died in defence of the Union in the war of the Rebellion. It is a splendid structure, with its great dining hall and art gallery, its beautiful theatre and lofty dome. As you stand on its marble floors and look through its stained glass windows, by whose mellow light you read the names of the noble dead upon the marble slabs set into the walls, the effect is inspiring. They died to liberate the slave, and to day, from the rostrum of this hall, dedicated to their memory, one of the liberated is to speak, and to prove that their death was not in vain.

Now the doors swing open to all, and entering hastily with the crowd, in true Democratic fashion, we take the position possible to observe and hear. Among the dignitaries upon the platform we recognize the Governor of the Commonwealth, surrounded by many distinguished men. After the orchestra has by its beautiful strains of music hushed all to silence, a prayer is offered. Then the distinguished president arises and announces as first speaker upon the programme, the name of Robert Heberton Terrell. As the stately form of the colored man advances to the platform, he is greeted with loud applause. As he bows to the great audience, round after round of applause is given to this noble representative of his race. In clear, measured tones he begins his address on the well chosen theme: "The Negro Race in America since Emancipation." We have already taken too much space to give an outline of his excellent speech. But while in eloquent sentences he is setting forth the past history, the present status and the hopeful future of the Negro race, let us take a look at the man and learn something of his history. He stands there before the multitude arrayed in the long flowing black gown, which is always worn by the speakers at a Harvard commencement. He has a fine figure; his countenance is really attractive, his head is well formed and is indicative of the fine intellectual powers he has displayed during his college course. His history is like a romance. He was born in Glen Cove, Virginia, in 1857, and both of his parents were slaves. His grandfather was a white man, and at his death the family was freed and came to Washington. There Robert got some common school education. At sixteen he turned up in Massachusetts to shift for himself, still bent on securing an education. Soon he appears in the dining hall of the same Memorial Hall where he now stands speaking, as a waiter. Encouraged by some students, he begins to think of college. He then goes into Boston to teach some and to study. Next year we find him at Groton preparing for college. Here he earns enough to pay expenses, and he took a first prize for declamation. He entered Harvard in 1880. He had nothing to start on but his pluck. Friends became interested in him and secured gifts from liberal people to help him along. He at once took fair rank. He was well received and treated like a gentleman by the members of his class. We have seen how this young man on the rostrum before us, pleading so eloquently for his race, entered one end of this Memorial Hall as a servant ten years ago, and now goes forth at the other end crowned with the highest honor that Harvard can bestow.

After the exercises closed, I had the privilege of meeting him, and most heartily did I congratulate him on his high honors. With joy I learned that he would give his life to helping his race. He is to take charge of a high school in Washington this fall. Hail to the noble university that honors itself and blesses humanity in thus graduating this Negro, with honors! All hail to the race that in this graduate has added another to the list of its true noblemen! And all this in twenty short years! If the Negro is true to himself and his opportunities, what may we not expect before the close of this century? With confident hope we await the future.

Methodist Preacher's Aid Society.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to notify the members of the Methodist Preachers' Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society of the United States of America, and all whom it may concern, of the change that we have found it necessary to make. Last year, by the request of the board of directors, I traveled in the South not only to represent our society, but also to become acquainted with our leading men and from them learn the actual condition of our people, socially and financially; in order that we might make any change necessary to meet the financial condition of the people among whom we hoped to operate. So I spent the summer in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Louisiana; and a great deal of the time was spent in Lexington conference and several weeks at your house, Mr. Editor, and on your district. Let me say here, not only are you and your most excellent lady, Mrs. Kate Taylor, policy holders in our society, but there is no one better posted concerning our society than yourself. So of the several hundred pastors, presiding elders and leading laymen with whom I conversed, I made it a point to ascertain as nearly as possible the social and financial condition of our people in their locality. We found that we would not have any trouble until we reached Tennessee. There I saw that our society would be a burden too great for the mass of our people. But I did not get my eyes open to the real financial condition of our people at certain seasons of the year until I reached Atlanta, Georgia, there Dr. C. O. Fisher convinced me that so far as that section of the country was concerned at least, in order to insure success, a change was inevitable, yet neither mentioned a change. From Atlanta, I pushed on to New Orleans in quest of information, and calling at the office of the SOUTHWESTERN, I formed the acquaintance of the editor, Rev. L. P. Cushman and the business manager Bro. Bentley. There I explained our society to Bro. Cushman, and he told me that it met his hearty approbation, that he thought he could see how it would benefit the pastors and the people in more than one way. I informed him that I wanted to establish a general agency in New Orleans for several States. He requested that the agency be offered to Bro. Albert, with the assurance that he would help in the work, and from those great leaders, I learned a great deal on the financial condition of our people. Bro. Albert accepted the general agency; but afterwards seeing that it would take too much of his time and interfere with his district work, therefore after several weeks consideration he sent in his resignation. Thus you see we are not working in the dark, but we have the advice of the best informed men in the different sections of the country. It was the request of the board that I continue my search for information into Mississippi this year and after consulting with Dr. J. R. Revels and Rev.s S. A. Cowan, J. M. Shumpert, J. O. Eckles, B. L. Crump, J. Houston, and others and finding very much the same state of affairs here that Dr. Fisher pointed out in Georgia, concerning the financial condition of the people, therefore the board of directors have made by my request the following changes:

1. They have done away with the life benefit as it would cause too many assessments for the financial condition of our people in the South.

2. They have reduced the fee for joining, from $6 for men to $4, and from $4 for women to $3.

3. They have reduced the assessments from 60 cents for men to 40 cents, and women from 40 cents to 30 cents.

4. They reduced the policies for men of all ages to $800, and the women to $600; all payable at but death. We hope the new plan will be accepted by the old members if it is not, my recommendation to the board is to refund the money. This will give our young pastor all of the light he wants in regard to the Methodist women's department of our society. As I know the Bro. I can't believe his heart to be as far wrong as his figures are. He has seen his mistake before this hour, for when we think we have an eye open, or that we have found something that all of the old heads have overlooked, we rush into print and tell a few freinds to look out for the next paper and you will see how I have pened those fellows. One of those friends told me, but he meant good, he is my friend, his name is in the above list.

Yours in the cause of Christ and fallen humanity.

L. N. TAYLOR.

[A reasonable amount of brotherly discussion on this subject is needed. Quite a large number of Methodists are members of the Association. They think they have a contract which connot be set aside except as provided for in their agreement. We expect to say some things on the subject ourself. We will say now that the association has characteristics under the present plan which commends it to the favor of Methodists. And some form of consulting them should be adopted before any vital change is made. ED.]

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

J. J. Garrett, Forest. "On children's day the old church was beautifully decorated, and the teachers were busy as bees. The organ gave out fine music. The white children from the M. E. Church came marching in and took seats among us, also the colored Baptists. We had a centennial celebration with the children. One of the white children, Miss Carrie Penrood, played the organ, and then Prof. Jenkins, a graduate of Rust University, class of 1875, delivered an address, followed by one from Mr. Kirkland, Superintendent of the white school. A collection of $6.25 and $10 worth of medals were taken. Mr. Jenkins lectured for us again Monday night, and the whites turned out on both occasions and seemed to appreciate a good cause. At my little church 4 miles from town, on same day, collection was $5.50, C. W. Williams, superintendent."

Jane Coffey, Greensboro: "Agreeable to appointment our Sabbath-school met at Greensboro Church on the second Sabbath in June; meeting presided over by Rev. Wm. Gatewood. Had a large attendance. Miss Alice Buffkins heard the lessons in catechism and our children never did better. The children repeated about 800 verses by heart from the Old and New Testaments. They are advancing rapidly and it made their parents rejoice to see the little ones so proficient in answering the questions as they were propounded. We are living out in the back woods. Bro. Gatewood preached a good sermon to a large congregation at 3 p. m."

A. H. Johnson, Tupelo: "On children's day our pastor and 65 children were present. We had a lovely time. Collection for pastor $4; children's day 70c."

R. Anderson, Mount Salem circuit: "Elder J. M. Shnmpert held our second quarterly conference June 15 16. He preached a glorious sermon, and administered sacrament to 52 adults. During the last quarter received into full membership 3, converts 2, baptized 3 adults and 22 children; paid elder $40, and pastor $45.90, bishop 30c., [illegible] $59.60."

J. M. Lampkin, Whitefield: "Children's day will long be remembered. At Liberty Church 125 children were out. The church was decorated. Collection was $3."

A. D. Payne, College Hill circuit: "My second quarterly conference was held on the 14th inst. by Rev. J. O. Eckles; 16 or 20 of the official brethren were present, most of whom had good reports, and the session was pleasant. On Sunday at 10 o'clock we had an old-time speaking love feast that was good, and at 11 o'clock the elder preached a fine sermon, and communed."

TENNESSEE.

W. W. Key, Murfreesboro: "On the night of the 3rd, after reading as was my want, I was on the eve of having family prayer previous to retiring, when all of a sudden something like hail fell against the door, and then a low rapping inquiry was heard; after a while the door was thrown open, and such a crowd!—it was a storm party. The following made up the party: Sisters Susan Green, Docia [illegible], the leaders; Priscilla Anderson, Anderson, Nannie Pettway, Mary Jones, Sarah Smith, [illegible] Cotner, Addie Simmons, [illegible] Scully, Jane Howard and [illegible] McNary; Bros. Cole Brown, [illegible]ons, Robert Vaughn, [illegible]rman, Geo. Taylor, and Mr. [illegible] Reedy. I learn since that [illegible] of others were coming, but were kept back on account of the rain. Such a repast as they had [illegible] have done honor to any [illegible] of people; the manner in which the party was conducted [illegible] When they left [illegible] me there was more to [illegible]."

[illegible], Clifton: "The [illegible] met at 9 o'clock, in [illegible] Our pastor, [illegible] read the 7th [illegible] C. Mack; then came singing and the Lord's Prayer. The Sunday school took up the topic according to the programme. All who wished to read joined in reading the 6th chapter of St. Luke. After some pointed and brief remarks from the Rev. D. Collier, of Waynesboro, the school took a short rest. At 11 o'clock the school was called to order by the pastor, who made some of his strong points in regard to the Sunday-school and its work. D. Collier preached. The collection was $5. There were 94 in attendance."

ARKANSAS.

H. H. McAllister, Little Rock: "Our Conference adjourned here in Wesley Chapel the 18th day of February, and surprisingly I received this appointment. That day I took the names of our stewards here, and as I learned their names the first day I have since learned the men, and they are the right men in the right place; they are men of God. Our Sunday-school, having for its superintendent Prof. H. B. Fry, and assistant Miss Anna M. Richmond, is surprising to all spectators and elevating to Little Rock; and on the last day of May the Sunday-schools of the city had a union picnic, which was a grand success generally. The young people seemed to have been carried away with mirth. The last week in April we started a revival with this thought: "I wonder will any one be saved?" So, we began to preach, pray and sing, not caring what the world would say, and God blessed our labors most graciously. The meeting ran four weeks, and fifty-five souls were converted and fifty-seven have joined the church since conference. Our large Church here that holds a great many people could not hold them, and our people here believe that God will bless any man that will do His will every day. I have baptized 23 adults since conference and 1 infant. A goodly number of the students of Philander Smith College were converted during our meeting. We believe that by a united effort on the part of our school and church here we will take Little Rock for Methodism. Two of the Zion Methodists joined our church during our revival, and several of the Baptists had children to join our church. The old church here is moving right along. We gave a festival on last Tuesday night and raised $35.80. Sisters Fryerson, L. E. Stevens, M. Furgeson, M. Crumpton, M. Richmond, F. Irvin, M. Laport, J. Given, M. Gilbert, E. Logan and G. Carroll constituted the committee on arrangements, and all gave liberally."

TEXAS.

Dewitt Frison, Anderson: "Our children's day was one of the grandest we ever had. Old and young were joyous."

C. McIlveen, Fairfield: "I returned to this place, my native home, about 18 months ago, and found no Sabbath-schools. As I am a lover of Sabbath-schools I could not be contented until we began one. In Trinity Church, Houston, I was taught to live as a devoted servant of God. May 6th the school gave a picnic, and formed a procession and marched through the streets. There were singing and recitations, and Miss Jennie Bragg was queen and Anderson Blaine king. I think the children will never get done talking about it."

G. Wilson, Mooresville: "I have had 18 converts to date; 14 full accessions, and 4 deceased. A class leader of fourteen years service, and another who served eight years died, greatly lamented by the church. Sunday-schools are making rapid progress, supplied with efficient officers."

R. W. Durham, Butler: "We had a glorious children's day. There were 100 present, and our pastor, M. Wilson, was pleased with the day's work. There were several addresses. Collection $4.50."

I. B. Scott, St. Pauls, Galveston: "Our children's day exercises were a pronounced success. We used the programmes sent by Dr. Kidder; the little folks marched around with flying banners as we deposited our pennies. Collection $10; several medals sold. Since I wrote the SOUTHWESTERN last God has greatly blessed our charge in the conversion of souls. We had 45 conversions and 70 accessions. Among the converts were quite a number of Sunday-school scholars and teachers, also a number of life long Catholics. As soon as our seats are finished we shall be ready to occupy our new church. God is with us."

Jefferson Buell, Horn: "On children's day members crowded the school-house and witnessed interesting exercises. Collection $3.65. In protracted meeting I had 24 convercions. High water injured my people and destroyed crops. We are moving on, but slowly."

W. R. Patterson, Calvert: "We visited Rev. Thomas Cole's Sunday-school on children's day, and enjoyed it very much. Brother Cole had the people in high spirits concerning the centennial in connection with children's day, and had secured the co-operation of the Baptist church and white friends in the community. His Sunday-school was very well drilled on the centennial programme. The choir from the Baptist church had selected some nice pieces, which they sang to the delight of all present. The choir from the white Sunday-school sang several excellent pieces for the occasion, which were highly appreciated. Bro. Cole demonstrated the work of the church in the uplifting of humanity and the bringing of souls to God, in a very enthusiastic and impressive manner. A handsome little collection was taken for the children's fund, and a few centennial medals distributed."

B. Alonzo, Belton: "The people here as a general thing, are mighty contrary, but faithful work and patience will, I hope, bring them to the true light of the Gospel. A camp meeting will commence July 27, and we ask for help. No place could need it more than this. I ask my brethren to come to my assistance."

G. Norman, Manor circuit: "St. Paul and Asbury Chapel are doing very well. June 8th was children's day, and we had a grand time at St. Paul M. E. Church. We had the centennial programme for the children's day, parts one, two and three, besides other reading matter. All of the Sunday school had something to say about the day; we also had a sermon by the pastor. We closed with a glorious class-meeting. Everybody went home rejoicing over what they had heard concerning the work of the old M. E. Church. The three Sunday-schools of the circuit were invited to meet at St. Pauls, as it was near the center of the work, but only two came. We also invited the congregations to come and bring dinner with them. They did so, and after the forenoon services were over, the people came together and spread their dinner, and had the schools to march up to the tables, and made them all comfortable, after which the congregation ate. Then the three o'clock service was taken up, and the work for the day was finished. Collections $3.20."

J. C. Johns, San Marcos: "Children's Day was observed with complete success; 169 children were present. Times are hard, and collection was $3.30. Our pastor, Bro. Browley is loved by all."

ALABAMA.

H. Matthews, Dadesville circuit: "I am glad of the election of Dr. Taylor to the editorship, and I hope it will result in great good to the church and people. My church is doing very well at this time, and we have raised for benevolent causes $6.25. F. M. Ragland shot himself, but is not dead. We are weak and moving slowly. Pray for us."

New Orleans District.

The child of God should not be a mere bundle of opposites and inconsistencies. He is the only Bible t at multitudes read, and if he is devout to-day and frivolous to-morrow, truthful to-day and fluent in falsehoods to-morrow, he is a terrible curse, he does more to embitter men towards the religion of the Lord Jesus than any Ingersoll that ever cursed this world. No argument is more powerful in attracting men to Jesus than that of a correctly living Christian; and none is more effectual in repelling men from Christ than that of one whose life is covered with blots and with disgraceful records. It is unfortunate when the church has to apologize for the bad conduct of her members. At Pleasant Plains Bro. Forrest is abundant in labor. The church is not strong, but the faithful few stand ready to co operate with their pastor in every good word and work. The absentees from church, class, prayer meetings and Sunday-schools are carefully looked after. The spiritually sick and backslidden are cared for; strangers are visited and cordially invited to the church, and made welcome when they come. Over forty have been added to the Sunday-school, and the congregation is steadily increasing. The second quarterly conference was held June 24. The reports were all in order. The class reports were as follows: No. 1, $8.80; No. 2, $8,90; No. 3, $8.25; No. 4, $6.25; No. 5, $11.95; No. 6, $12. The report of the stewards showed that for all purposes a little over two hundred and fifty dollars had been raised during the quarter. Bro. Forrest has occasion to rejoice in what has been accomplished. In the porch of Solomon's temple there were two massive pillars which bore the names of "Jachin" and "Boaz;" "Jachin" signified "The will established," and "Boaz" signified "in strength." Taken together they are emblems of the strength of real goodness. Sin is an element of weakness, while goodness and strength go hand in hand. The Christian pastor who builds up the church shuns laxity in morals and sanctimonious harshness; both are hateful to God and harmful to men.

At Mount Zion Bro. Hudson is having a year of marked prosperity. The congregations are large, and the Sunday-school constantly increasing. The reports at the second quarterly conference were all in perfect order, showing that over $430 had been raised during the quarter, and that all current expenses had been promptly met. At an entertainment given by the trustees over $140 was raised and applied in paying old debts. Bro. Hudson does not belong to the class of ministers who seem afraid to mix with their fellow men lest their goodness rub off. He goes to the homes of all as a light and a leader. That Chrirtian minister is most like Christ who does most "to seek and to save the lost."

Simpson Chapel bears the name of a man who was a burning and a shining light. We refer to him with grateful remembrance, and profound gratitude to "the Great Head of the Church" that the "light was visible so wide and so long." Thus far during the ministry of Bro. Jackson this church has enjoyed continued prosperity. God has honored the honest, persevering faith of his people. The congregation and Sabbath-school have more than doubled; and over a hundred have been converted and joined the church. All the current expenses have been promptly paid and nearly $600 raised and applied in paying the debts that were upon the church when Bro. Jackson was sent there.

The Millennium.

EXTRACT OF A SERMON BY REV. W. T. HARRIS OF BALTIMORE.

Text—Rev. 1. 2-10.

Who are the singers in this grand chorus? The prophet calls them the four beasts or properly translated four animate beings, and the four and twenty elders. He also calls them saints, which appears in verse 8th. They sung a new song. The four beasts is a figurative representation of the whole New Testament and Church, both in character and chronology, presenting the four different stages of trial through which the church should pass in her pilgrimage in this world before she would enter the visible kingdom of her glorious Redeemer, the New Jerusalem, and reign on the earth. Every individual Christian who lives any length of time after his conversion passes through some or all of those states of trial.

The four and twenty elders are the twelve patriarchs, which are sometimes called prophets, and the twelve Apostles of the Lamb, for it is said that we are "built on the Prophets and Apostles, Jesus Christ being the chief corner stone." It also represents in a figure the faithful ministers of Christ, the same as the twenty-four courses of the priest-hood under the Jewish economy, which you will see by reading 2 Chron. 24, 7 19. It is typified by the four grand divisions under Moses. The first on the East was to follow the standard of Judah; that on the South, and second on the march, was the standard of Reuben; on the lowest side Ephraim, and his was the third standard; on the North side was Dan, who brought up the rear in the march of the Jews through the wilderness. Under the figures above stated we are called upon to notice the Gospel church in Apostolic times marching forward bold as a lion. But in all this there is nothing seen to indicate a temporal reign of Christ upon the face of this earth. During the days of Constantine the Great the Church enjoyed full privileges, but soon became proud. Her last state of trial was indicated by the anti-Christian beast, Rev. 12th. She was ready to meet it, for wings were given her with which she flew to a wilderness which God had prepared. Undoubtedly this means the Church all through the state of human conflict until it reaches the land of spiritual and endless song. Admitting that Daniel 7-10 means to set forth the Church in glory and splendor as God's gracious kingdom, he in no wise claims that this will be a temporal reign of Christ on earth. Though the whole chapter is full of glowing prospects of glorious triumph, but only a portion out of every kindred and tongue and people and nation, are to participate in it. We will now call your attention to the new songs. We sing songs of praise and triumph, "God bless our native land," and "My country 'tis of thee," and many such, but they sung a new song. We pour forth honor to the happy results of the labors of Christopher Columbus in opening the new American world. They sung praises to the living God; a new song, as they entered into the new happy land having the glory of the new Jerusalem, washed in the blood of Jesus Christ. There they stood and sang their new song, "Where no storms ever beat on the glittering strand, while the years of eternity rolled." Should not the day of Gospel victory animate the faithful pilgrim with songs of everlasting joy; when having trod the golden plains of the new earth in company with Christ our life, and the unnumbered millions of the happy saints for whom he shed his blood, and whom he redeemed from earth to the heavenly home of many mansions. He who would give a heart of perfect obedience is surely able to give such a glorious reward as would produce joy and gladness, praise, thanksgiving and the voice of melody. Having passed through the wilderness and over the Jordan should we not sing "Pharaoh and his host is drowned." The dominion of the wicked is at an end.

"Bright shore beyond the river
Where we'll meet no more to sever
In the bright, the bright forever,
In the spirits land of song."

We do not look for a personal, temporal reign of Christ on earth. Where is any authority for such a doctrine? Is it the Bible? It cannot be. If so the Jews are right in their belief, and are justified in looking for a king who will reign on earth as a temporal monarch, for which sin we learn that they found no place for repentance though they sought it diligently with tears. We call and look for an endless reign of government; yea, that rests upon the shoulders of an eternal King whose kingdom shall stand forever. Have we a continual city here? No, but we seek one which is to come, "whose maker and builder is God." We shall reign amid the glories of the celestial. We do not mean to say that the Church will not enjoy many beautiful, calm and gentle summer days, but will they not be succeeded by gloomy clouds and storms? or how are they to go "up out of great tribulation?" It is supposed that the great increase of riches and wealth, arts and science, and civilization combined with the preaching of the Gospel will bring in this personal reign of Christ. If we judge the future by the past, we shall consider it quite different. Temporal prosperity, has as a rule caused more to become proud, and as the end drawns near, the nations become more careless and vain. See Sodom and Gomorrah and the antediluvians at the time of the deluge. And if we retrospect upon the the past history of the church, we will see that all though her seven stages nations have arose and fell. Let us ever remember the words of our dear Lord's Gospel, "There shall be a new heaven," and "The earth shall pass away." "When this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality" and "They that are alive, on earth" need not fear for they "shall be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air" and this "earth shall melt like wax." I may say in conclusion, if we meet no more on earth "Where Christ who is our life shall appear," from the Nile to the Danube, the Hudson and the Mississippi, Rhine and the Thames, "We shall appear with him in glory."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Memorial Services in Washington.

In keeping with the expression "Honor to whom honor is due," a meeting was held at Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, on Sunday evening June 29th, beginning at 8 p. m., in memory of the late Bishop Mathew Simpson. This church is constructed of brick and seats comfortably about 2,000 person. The recent improvements upon this edifice place it among the finest houses of worship white or colored. The members of the congregation are of average intelligence, sprinkled here and there with men of culture and learning. At half past six the stream of those interested in the beloved Bishop began to flow and continued steadily and increasingly for two hours. The galleries of the church were draped in mourning for a trustee, while the pulpit was also trastefully mantled in robes befitting the occasion; below the reading desk in letters which glittered in the gas light were these words, "Memoria in aeterna;" beneath this was a collection of straws arranged to represent the rays of the sun, and under this in letters as above "1811 Bishop Simpson 1884." After waiting some time for Rev. Brown, presiding elder, who was unable to be present, contrary to his wishes, a procession consisting of delegates from the different Methodist Episcopal Churches of the city filed in, after them the speakers headed by Revs. Hughes, Dennis Wright, and Mr. Chestnut, Supt. Asbury S. S. Then followed an organ voluntary, after which Rev. Read read the 90th Psalm solemnly and impressively; hymn, "The precious seeds of weeping" was sung, and an appropriate prayer was offered by Rev. Dennis, who also gave the first address of the evening. Rev. S. R. Hughes, a rising minister of the church, read a well written paper on the life and character of the Bishop, which was highly but becomingly ornamented with figures, and filled with eloquent passages Rev. Wright next took the floor, at first he was calm and somewhat lisping, but before long he warmed up, as a slumbering volcano, when unexpectedly it sends forth fire, smoke, ashes and lava, and when he stopped cries of "go on," etc., were heard from every quarter. Mr. Chestnut next entertained the audience with a biographical sketch of the Bishop, which was exceedingly interesting and instructive. Last came Rev. Read whose eloquent tribute to the Bishop and skillful interjections of lessons drawn from the life of this noble man, completely electrified his congregation, calling forth vociferous ejaculations, "amen, glory," etc. Mr. Read is one of the few men, who posesses a fertile and productive imagination, and here lies to a great extent the secret of his success as a preacher. The music was exceedinly fine often melting members of the audience into tears. The great number present, the marked attention given the speakers and the sorrowful countenances, attested the fact that the people felt keenly the wound inflicted upon Methodism and religious denominations in general by the death of Mathew Simpson. Soldier, rest! thy warfare is over.

Rev. H. R. Elbert, who is about 80 years of age preached in this church on Sunday morning; he is probably the oldest colored veteran in the cause. The vitality which he still possesses, his remarkable memory, his skillful division of his text, unique illustrations and parables, also his ingenious display of wit is astounding. I spend many evenings with father Elbert and the more I visit, converse and hear his sermons, the more I am persuaded he is a philosopher.

Mr. E. A. Forest, who has probably had more experience in journalism than any young man of his age, is completing a history of colored journals and journalism at the earnest solicitation of friends, who have the greatest confidence in his ability and fitness for the task. Mr. Forest is noted as a rapid methodical writer and thinker. He would be glad to receive information form all who can give it. Success must crown this young man in this pursuit, for a good honest, earnest effort never fails. WRAP.

Letter From Dr. Revels.

MR. EDITOR—There is a matter which I, till recently, thought was understood and hence my long silence in regard to it. My apology for speaking in reference to it through the columns of your valuable and interesting paper at this late day is, the fact that I have been lately convinced that my action respecting the matter refered to is and has been entirely misunderstood and that I have been damaged to the extent of that misunderstanding in the judgment of many. I allude to my election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, by the General Conference of '76. That action of the General Conference of our great church was hailed and welcomed as an evidence of the freedom of our church from caste prejudice, and its firm resolve to do every thing in its power to elevate socially, intellectually, morally and religiously, a people who had been degraded by abject slavery; but on being informed of my resignation, their painful disappointment was inexpressible, and (strangely as it may sound to many) I shared with them in it. But at this point the question may be asked Why did you not stick to the position, and allow the Methodist Episcopal Church through your instrumentality to confer upon your poor unfortunate race the great benefit intended by their election of you to the above position and I reply my answer is, 1st. That on receiving a telegram from [illegible] Hartzell, informing [illegible] and assuring me [illegible] himself and the [illegible] commenced [illegible] and satisfactory [illegible] the duties of the [illegible] fully desired and expected [illegible] prepared [illegible] a letter from Mr. Phillips, now of Phillips & Hunt informing me that he would soon call by Holly Springs on his way to New Orleans and see me relative to my editorship, and he did so, when he and I agreed to meet in the above city, and arrange matters pertaining there to. A friend had written to me from New Orleans, informing me that Dr. Hartzell in advancing the SOUTHWESTERN to the point of success it had reached had, under the circumstances, done wonders, and what few other men could have done, and that from its present financial condition and the comparatively small appropriation by the General Conference, he seriously feared that unless I had some means of support other than editor's salary, (for there was no salary) I would not be able to run the paper for one year. He however, advised me to go to New Orleans and ascertain whether I could by Dr. Hartzell's assistance (of which I had already been assured). The above letter led me to write to Dr. Hartzell that I was not fully certain of being able to occupy the position, but at last Mr. Phillips, Dr. Hartzell and I met in New Orleans, and Dr. Hartzell laid before Mr. Phillips and myself the real financial condition of the SOUTHWESTERN, and we found first, that the revenue from subscribers together with the $2,000 appropriated by the General Conference was not sufficient to defray the expenses of running the paper while a debt of $1,600 stood against it. It was further found that the former editor of the paper had not drawn any of his support in the way of salary for services as editor, but had entirely depended upon church work (presiding eldership) for his support. It was also found that outside of my employment as editor there was no presiding eldership, nor even a small charge in the bounds of the Louisiana conference open to me. Some of the leading colored men of the city seeing that there was not a shadow of support in the editorship in question, consulted in regard to the matter but could find nothing in which for me to engage for a livelyhood. Your readers will feel the force of the fact more fully on being informed that even Bro. Cushman and his assistant Bro. Albert did not depend on, nor were supported by editorial salaries, but by compensation for their services to the church as presiding elders. Mr. Phillips and Dr. Hartzell gave me all the encouragement they could, but were not able to solve the question how I could support my family, while almost, if not entirely, gratuitously editing the paper. It was under these circumstances that I resigned. I desired that the paper should be continued and become a power for good in our zion and in the world, and in the coming years be the herald and palladium of truth, justice and religion, and in order that such might be the case I persuaded Mr. Phillips to use his influence to induce Dr. Hartzell to accept the position, as it was evident that we were crossing a dangerous stream, and that if the conductorship was placed in new and inexperienced hands, all would go down. But as to the great SOTHWESTERN, we to-day have nothing but joy and gladness. The last General Conference confered a shining, lasting honor upon the colored race of the world by electing to its editorship that great Christian, finished scholar, eloquent speaker and writer Rev. Dr. M. W. Taylor, a man of whom any people may be proud, and of whom not only the colored people but the white friends as well are proud. I have not explained this matter in the hope of becoming popular on behalf of promotion. For the church has nothing that I desire above what I now am, that is a herald of free salvation. The greatest honor I ever have realized, is the knowledge of the fact that God has called me to the great and glorious work of the Gospel ministry. He has already given me souls as seals of my ministry, and if faithful to my calling they will be crowns of my rejoicing in heaven. I would not give my office merely ministerial for that of a crowned head of Europe. While I admire the true friendship of many who give me a complimentary vote as delegate to the General Conference every four years, I have refused to be elected as such. I never asked a man in church or State to vote for me for any thing. Then the object of this explanation is to let my brethren know that I am keenly sensible to the needs of my people, and stand ready at all times not merely to do any thing I can for the amelioration of their condition but to sanction and abet whatever in their behalf emanates from others. H. R. REVELS.

"The New South."

THE MEASURES WHICH WILL RESULT IN THE SOLUTION OF THE NEGRO PROBLEM AND THE REGENERATION OF AFRICA.

Below we give the concluding paragraphs of the eloquent oration delivered by the Hon. Geo. W. Williams at the Emancipation celebration at Washington, April 16, containing some pertinent suggestions as to the present needs of the race and a happy augury for the future.

Mr. Williams said: "The Blair Educational bill is the grandest measure of our times. It is broad, comprehensive and beneficent. It is a prophecy of better things to come, and a pledge that this country is not to be Europeanized or turned over to native ignorance, and the nihilism of Russia, the communism of France, the socialism of Germany. What we want is more light in America. The electric light in the streets of Washington is more than your police force. Light in this country is more than our army, stretching from Lake Itaska to where the Mississippi mingles his golden thread in the deep blue of the Gulf of Mexico; more than our navy, overshadowing the ocean. 'The new South,' as Gen. James B. Gordon puts it, must aid this work. A happy solution of the Negro problem can be speedily reached if the white people of the South will take an interest in this question. Three things must be done by the white people there, viz., the chain-gang system should be abolished; the iniquitous cheating plantation credit system should be abandoned; and every child, white and black, should be sent to school for at least seven months in every year.

The Negro is thirsting for knowledge, and should be gratified. Some years before the war, an artist of Philadelphia was secured by the State of South Corolina to paint some national emblematic picture for her State House. Jefferson Davis was invited to act with the South Carolina committee at Washington, in criticising the studies of this work. The most creditable sketch presented was a design representing the North by various mechanical implements; the West by a prairie and plow, while the South was represented by various things, the centre-piece, however, being a cotton-bale with a Negro upon it fast asleep. When Mr. Davis saw it he said, 'Gentlemen' this will never do; what will become of the South when the Negro wakes up?' The Southern rebellion startled the Negro; the reconstruction struggle brought him to his his feet; he has yawned, and today, with open eyes, he is manfully looking the serious questions of life squarely in the face. He is learning the practical lessons of life with ease and thoroughness; and all he requires is kind treatment and fair dealing from the whites, and no people in the country will more heartily rejoice that he was aroused from his slumbers than the Southern people themselves. The valley of the Congo, in Africa, is attracting intelligent attention. Africa is yet going to pay this nation dollar for dollar of the three billions spent in prosecuting the war; and America is going to compensate Africa for stealing her children by placing the means of civilization in her waiting and willing hands. Thanks to his Excellency President Arthur for his message on the Congo, and loud huzzas for the United States Senate for recognizing the International African Association. Africa is sure to be the scene of the world's greatest civilization. She will be quickened in every nerve and fibre by the power of commerce; and Christian civilization will give tone to her sluggish moral pulse. Africa will be regenerated; tribes will be converted; states will be founded; arts and letters will flourish; peace will reign in her mountains and smile in her valleys; ships and cables, journals and literature, science and discovery, will bind her to the civilized world in bonds of eternal friendship.

New leaders for the Negro race are needed. Not the time-serving lickspittle, not the self-seeking parasite, not the obsequious, cringing go-between, not swaggering insolence or skulking cowardice in leadership, nor any man who is either ashamed of being, or mean enough to deny that he is, a Negro. We want, we demand leaders, first of all, who are not ashamed of the race; who are possessed of brains, character, courage, zeal and tact. We want leaders who know the history of the race's trials, struggles and achievements; and who can, from that history, draw inspiration for the great work to be accomplished. We demand leaders who are the friends of mechanical education for the rising young men; and who are pledged to a system of thorough education for young women. We demand leaders who will neither touch, taste, nor handle, nor put to their neighbor's lips, in private or public, at home or abroad, on land or sea, the accursed cup of drink. Men they must be of noble instincts and generous impulses; who have a genius and heroism to lead the way to the heart of the race's moral need. God grant that such men may be forthcoming. Moral emancipation is what we most need now. Many salutary lessons are taught us by the bitter past. Let us lay them to heart, and, taking fresh courage, turn to the great work that awaits us on every hand. All that remains of this tempestuous state of things is but the rocking of a troubled sea to rest. For He whose chariot the winds are, and the clouds, the dust that waits upon His sultry march shall visit us in mercy; shall descend propitious in His chariot, paved with love."

Hon. Geo. W. Williams, an extract from a speech of whom we clip from the Globe has placed us under obligations to him for the beautiful sentiments so beautifully expressed in his address. He is wise in political matters, leaning always toward conservative progress.—ED.

A holy life is made up of a number of small things, little words, not eloquent speeches or sermons; little deeds, not miracles or battles, nor one great heroic act of mighty martyrdom, make up the true Christian life. The little, constant sunbeam, not the lightning; the waters of Siloam "that go softly" in the meek mission of refreshment, not the "waters of the river, great and many," rushing down in noisy torrents, are the true symbols of a holy life. The avoidance of little evils, little sins, little inconsistencies, little weaknesses, little follies, indiscretions and imprudences, little foibles, little indulgences of the flesh; the avoidances of such little things as these go far to make up, at least, the negative beauty of a holy life. —Bonar.

Yes, We'll Have It.

With characteristic energy and forethought the secretaries of the Freedmen's Aid Society propose, if agreeable to the people concerned, a Centennial Jubilee in the South. What is more fitting than that? Such a jubilee for the purposes named in the circular letter of Drs. Rust and Hartzell should be held. The Christmas Conference of 1784, in which the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized, was held on slave soil, and for political purposes in the South. That the great Centennial meeting of Methodism is to be held in Baltimore in commemoration of that vastly important event, does not in the least militate against the proposition to hold one strictly of a denominational character among our members in that section of the country. We can, and ought to hold it. New Orleans is to have a great cotton exposition, which will prove to be an attraction that will draw thousands from every quarter of the nation. Among them will be scores of hundreds of influential members of our Church, whose presence will be useful in more ways than one. The season selected, the facilities for easy and rapid transportation, the reduced rates of tariff, and many local attractions centering in point to New Orleans as the place, and sometime during the Exposition as the time of holding it. Such a gathering of the Methodists of the South can do nothing else but good. The impressions made must of necessity be helpful to all our work in the South. Our schools need money for buildings and endowments. This money must come as the gift of friends abroad or ourselves at home. We would in better grace and respect receive the gifts of others after we had made a tremendous effort to aid ourselves by giving until it is evident that we feel it.

The SOUTHWESTERN goes, therefore, for the Centennial Jubilee, and at least one hundred thousand of the half a million dollars desired to be raised by the "whole Church" for the Freedman's Aid Society's purposes.

SHALL THE SOUTH HAVE A CENTENNIAL JUBILEE?

To our friends in the South—

This is the centennial year for American Methodism. One hundred years ago—that is in 1784—the Methodist Episcopal Church began its present organized form. It is proposed to celebrate this great historic fact throughout the whole Church. One part of the celebration will be to ask every body to contribute money to the work of Christian education. Will our people in the South enter heartily into this centennial jubilee?

The General Conference passed the following resolution with special reference to our Southern educational work:

Resolved, that an appeal be made to the whole Church for half a million of dollars, as a centennial offering to the great work of the Freedmen's Aid Society.

"The whole Church" includes the South, and as that section is to receive this half million dollars if it is raised, we of the South surely ought to rally, and do our best in the grand effort. What say you, Bishops Andrews, and Bowman, and Walden, and Malalieu, our four resident superintendents on Southern soil?

What say you, editors Fry of St. Louis, Carroll of Baltimore, Carter of Chattanooga, Taylor of New Orleans, Johnson of Fort Worth, Fisher of Atlanta, and Webster of Charleston; who preside over our seven papers, published on what was slave territory?

What say you, presidents, and principals, and teachers, in our universities and academies in the Southern States? What say you, presiding elders, pastors, and Sunday-school superintendents, who lead our gallant army of 400,000 members in the same section?

The General Conference said:

The Freedmen's Aid Society is hereby authorized and directed to organize and prosecute such financial effort among the conferences of the South.

We are anxious to know what our leading brethren in the South think of this question.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has never had a centennial celebration in the South. In 1866, the other centennial year, the Church was struggling for reorganization south of the Ohio. The Church is now forever re-established in every Southern State. Why not begin our second hundred years with a joyful and thankful recognition of this great fact? The colored people of the South have not as yet beeen asked to make a thank offering to God for freedom and for education. Can there be a better time than this 1884?

Our institutions in the South must have more money, our Southern people must be more self reliant and self-helpful. Other Churches and people in the South need to know what we are doing there, for their good of well as ours. Would not centennial meetings and sermons and addresses and Sunday-school exhibitions through out the South, and a contribution from every one of our Southern people, be just the things to help bring about these results?

What say you, brethren of the whole South? We want to hear from you. Address your letters on this subject to Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., 190 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, and give us your ideas and suggestions. Out of the multitudes of counsel definite and wise plans will grow.

R. S. RUST,
J. C. HARTZELL.

The Negro in His Relation to the White Race.

We shall proceed to the discussion of this question with the understanding that those who represent the opposite view are as deeply concerned for the welfare of the Negro as ourselves. The theme is an old one with new phases produced by the changing attitude of the two races toward each other. It has occupied the attention of America, indeed of the whole civilized world, for two hundred and fifty years. The question involves features which many of us of varied opinions would gladly surrender to an unerring providence to be worked out to the divine glory. But it so happens that while God works, he requires man to work; and while He is developing His own puposes, the human mind can not be still. What is inevitable to the Negro? This is the question before us. Neither his heathenism in Africa, nor his slavery in America would warrant the highest civilization; and his emancipation, and enfranchisement are events too recent to exemplify their failure as yet. But has he to encounter any insurmountable obstacles to his early achievement of first class manliness? If so, from what source are they to be expected? Nature, grace, or Providence? Is there anything in the nature of the Negro which forbids it? The Anthopologist will have to go down several degrees below the Negro to find his nearest human approximation to the brute, who ever may be above the Negro. The Esquimaux are below him. The South American tribes poleward are below him. His head measures three square inches more than the head of the Hindoo. Is his skull thick? The Vandiemanlander breaks fire wood over his. The ethnological classification of mankind is five, namely, Caucasian, Mongolian, Ethiopian, American, Indian, and Malayan. Would the chances for future prosperity in the South be increased with four million Malays, Chinese, or Indians instead of Negroes? Out of five fifths of the world, white men regard the Negro as next best man after themselves. Does the Negro not compare favorably with the typical Caucasian by the Black Sea? It has been charged that the Negro's mind does not originate, that it is not capable of high efforts, that they are an imitative race. The Egyptian Sphynx was supposed to type the most ancient inhabitants of that country, it is said to be in all its peculiar features a Negro head. Was this an imitation of Caucasian inventive skill? The head of Memnon, in the British National Museum, is also said to bear the Negro features. Did Caucasian art suggest this? It was from the Negro head that the Pyramids and all the great African monuments, splendid even in their ruins took form. These stand today a demonstration of Negro inventive skill. Negro invention must have supplied both Archimedes and Euclid with their ideas. Egypt gave letters to Greece and through the Grecians to us. Did they not? Richard Watson, an authority in the South, concedes this point with many others that we might mention, including Bishop Bascom. Specimens of cutlery, weaving and other arts from the middle of Africa have been produced by Dr. Livingston. Was not our sewing needle the invention of Fatima, a Moorish woman? The Moors were masters of government in Spain for many centuries. Blumenbacks, the first of German naturalists has a large collection of books exclusively the results of Negro authorship. We have a collection of books from Negro authors, among them two royal octavo volumes by George W. Williams, and another of the same class by William Still. There are 150 newspapers, monthlies and weeklies owned and controlled by Negroes in this country. Our German scholar declares that there is no branch of literature in which Negroes have not excelled. Gregoria, the ex bishop of Blois in France, had a library filled with the productions of Negroes. This seems to refute the idea that the the Negro is not original in thought. We need not mention the polished rhetoric of Frederick Douglass, John M. Langston, Richard T. Greener and Sella J. Martin, the mathematical skill of Benjamin Banneker, the poetry of Phillis Wheatley or Francis Ellen Watkins Harper, the gallantry of Robert Smalls and Martin R Delaney, the historical ability of Dr. Brown, or the ripe scholarship of the Cardoza's. In war few captains have excelled Phillip Breda [Toussaint Louverture]; his bravery and his generosity to his master and others who by the fortunes of war became his prisoners or were thrown into his power, has not been surpassed by any soldier in history, and he reaches an incomparable height when measured by Major Tarlton, of the Carolinas, in revolutionary times. He with Dessalines was also great in peace. Liberia affords an example of Negro's governing ability. It has produced of the typical African one of the foremost scholars of his times, in the person of Prof. Edward W. Blyden. Then there is the volume of sermons, by Dr. Alexander Crummell. In favor of the Negroe's many good and Christian qualities, we have the testimony of Dr. A. G. Haygood. The fairly good behavior of the Negro in a state of freedom where the conditions have been onerous, the compensation poor, his rights abridged, and his privileges curtailed at every point, attest his great patience and forbearance. Truly he is often killed without law or mercy, under accusation of a great crime which in court is seldom proved against him. True he has had to contend with the ire of masters who were full of choler because of the loss of their property in him. True he has had to look on in silence while the chastity of his wife and daughter has been made the toy and sport of the lecherous and dissolute of his own and of all races. True he has in many places been compelled to bare his back to the "smiters," and with his blood satisfy the claims of justice for crimes which he did not commit, instead of the white men who did commit them under the mask, or with charcoal on their faces. True that by these disadvantageous circumstances he has gotten a hard name and aroused the contempt of many. True he has in many instances been denied a chance to work with the hope of pay, and for the effort to find more congenial climes, has been thrown into prison under statutes which were conveniently made to serve this unholy purpose. True his wrongs have been told in public until the nation, weary with hearing them, at times seems almost ready to consent that his extermination would be a relief to the country. But notwithstanding all of this, and notwithstanding his real and true personal imperfections, the Negro is rising, and will rise steadily in the national favor. He loves the country; he can be counted on in perilous and critical times to support the laws and uphold the constitution. He is our best Southern work hand. The Negro woman too, she is rising, not so fast as the man is, but she is coming. The girls are fascinated with the charm of music. They love the parlors better than the kitchens, and all that 'tis true, but this was to be expected for a while. It is the other extreme from slavery. It is the intoxicating affect of long sought and new found freedom. Sober second thought hastens on apace, 'tis coming, 'twill come ere long, and when it comes it will be abiding. The Negro can originate, plan, and execute. Give him time and help him. After the South does as much to help, as it has done to hinder him, in literary, financial, and moral growth, and he fails to rise, we shall admit his incapacity. It would be unjust to do so before.

Pastoral Visitation.

There is a hidden quality of power for good in pastoral visits, which comes to no pastor who fails to make them. They are useful in correcting improprieties in the homes of the people, and they have a secret potency in bringing careless people to church.

A friend of ours relates an experience in pastoral work which illustrates the truth of this. There was, in his parish at Versailles, a family who was regarded as being inorably unclean in their person and home. He called there to see them and upon his first visit found only dirt, pigs, confusion and more dirt. He called again, but it was no better; he called again, and things had improved a little. But his members now began to complain of his going into such a place o' filth. He went again this time just as the man of the house came home to dinner.

The gentleman sat down to a bare table, and ate from a skillet, with his bread lying on the unwashed table. The pastor sat down with him and had his dinner. Afterward the man said, "If you respect me like this I will do better;" in a little time the floor was scrubbed, the pigs were penned up in the yard, the children and wife were clad in clean clothes, a new bed and carpet with furniture was brought in. Pretty soon, with a new cashmere dress and bonnet, the lady made her appearance at church. Now she is a leading member of the church in that place and claims that it resulted from the effect of these visits.

The End.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.

I congratulate you, and wish you all manner of prosperity, you have a splendid position for doing good.

B. F. CRARY.

Dr. Crary closes the long roll of friends who have spoken a kind word to us, and encouraged us in our new work. The whole country has been touched, every section of the church has been heard from, and the sentiment is that the General Conference did a wise and popular thing in this election. Many letters have been printed here so that our readers may judge of the effect this action has upon our membership in all quarters. Many letters have not been printed, these we have answered personally. We thank each writer for their kindly expressions. Now we close the congratulations by congratulating ourself.

We are glad we are elected because everybody else seems to be glad. We all rejoice together. May that joy be made permanent by a much heavier subscription list, a prompt meeting of obligations, and hence the accomplishment of the other beneficial results desired.

The Outcome of Proselyting.

The Rev. R. T. Huffman is the rising colored Baptist preacher in Louisville. He had a fair start, being spiritually born in Coke Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church of that city when we were its Pastor. The good work which Methodism has indirectly done for the world through other Christian communities by means of the Christian labor of Methodist among them, and of the Methodist converts who by one means or another have been induced to unite with them, is second in importance only to that which is directly done by Methodism as an organization. By this overflow will come after a while such an intermingling of Christian people of varied beliefs as will compel a relaxation of the high dogmatic grasp of certain denominations on their communities. In this coming result is to be seen the compensation for much systematic proselyting with a different end in view.

Ministerial Education.

The course of study prescribed in the Discipline of the M. E. Church is somewhat difficult, the books are numerous and, for a poor man, some of them are quite costly. But the object sought to be attained by those who prescribed this course was the highest practical standard of ministerial efficiency, and with this intention the course is none too difficult nor the books too numerous or high priced. The Episcopalian church demands a collegiate education as a condition to ministerial acceptability; the Presbyterians do the same; even the Baptist church is doing something to advance the literary qualifications of its ministers. Hence this is no time for our Church, or any part of it under local option law, to consider the project of simplifying its course of study, which would be equivalent to letting down the ministerial literary standard. A college course is not a pre-requisite for admission to the ministry of our church, and hence the increased importance of maintaining a standard for the conference course of study at least as high as it now is. There should certainly be no letting down in any colored conference, as it would be regarded as an acknowledgment of Negro mental incapacity. No man ought to be above his standard. Keep it high and climb, and climb, and climb 'til you reach it.

Exemplary.

Honorable mention must be made of Rev. J. F. Goucher, Henry W. White, Gen. Fiske, Gov. Pattison, Ex-Gov. Evans, Hon. Clem Studebaker, Hiram Shaw, Esq., and Otis W. Snyder, Esq., Christian brethren, colored and white ministers and laymen of our own and other churches, residing North and South of Mason and Dixon's line, who have evinced a spirit of friendliness to us which will take the substantial form of an increase in our subscription list of not less than 500 new names. God bless and increase these brethren in substance and multiply their like a thousand fold. They little know how much Christian light has been infused into, and how much gloomy darkness has been expelled from Christian hearts and homes by their noble benefactions. There are not only in the North but also in the South thousands of good men, colored and white, who can and will do as they have done. Which one shall we place next upon our roll of honor?

We have just received a very brotherly letter which will find its place among all the other good things which constantly appear in the SOUTHWESTERN. With it came the programme of a Sunday-school concert which we were requested to publish and then send the writer five copies of the paper containing it for canvassing purposes. It was dated for June 6-7 and reached us too late for publication in time for the concert. We make a difference between the publication of notices of church services, conference meetings, etc., and printing programmes of this nature. We charge for programmes as for other advertisements. The bill before us cost $1.50 or $2; if brethern will send about what it costs to get any local printer to print these programmes, we will it for the same, and give them a good deal more general notoriety, and if proper work is done in circulating our paper, it will be equally as good or better for local advertising than your home paper or a poster. Send us notice of everything going on, and all those of a religous character will go in free.

Caste and Envy.

We regard our correspondent "Jar" as a scholar and Christian and of course a gentleman with the first characteristic is an impossibility without the latter. We are glad to have his criticism in which ever way it may apply to us. We are as proud as he that it is our privilege to number him as one among our acquaintances and to share his respect.

We anticipate much strength through his friendship and support. We solicit his ever wise and discreet counsel, but we do not see that "case" has ever done us much personal damage, and, as for "envy," a man is entitled to be proud when he has something to be envied for.

The further we go, the more we are confirmed in the belief that the American Negro needs to look after his merits rather than his rewards. The way is clear for him a good distance forward.

May God prepare our men and women to worthily fill the positions which are accessible to them, and more than all the positions of husband, wife, father, mother, son, daughter and Christian neighbors.

Kind Words.

Rev. B. H. S. Ferguson, Mississippi Conference:

Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D.—Accept my congratulations for your fortunate election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN by the General Conference. I have only to say, may your stay here in the South be one of sublimest felicity, and may it be a stay of interest to our people. You shall have my prayers as to your future welfare and success as an editor.

Rev. D. W. Hayes, Chattanooga, Tennessee:

Dr. Taylor—I am right glad of your appointment to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN, and while a little slow to offer my congratulations I hope you will never find me behind any one in aiding you to the extent of my means in the endeavor to enlarge the circulation and usefulness of the paper.

Mr. George O. Moore, Kentucky:

Dr. Taylor—I congratulate you on your nomination and election to the high and honorable position you now hold. It shows that the old Methodist Episcopal Church is still working for the good of the nation, for humanity and equal justice to all men. Go on in the name of the Lord.

Dr. T. B. Ford, Sloam Springs:

Dear Dr. Taylor—Please send me the SOUTHWESTERN for the balance of this year. I like the tone of your salutatory and editorial on Centennial General Conference. I wish you great success.

The election of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., of the Lexington conference, as editor of our SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, at New Orleans, is a just tribute to his ability, scholarship, and discreet judgment. This election ought to inspire and encourage the colored membership of our church. It says emphatically that when a man stands on his merits and ability, color is no bar to promotion. Dr. Taylor in all race questions has in the past shown himself calm, dispassionate and judicious. If he carries into the editorial chair the same good judgment he has hitherto exhibited, the church will enjoy the benefit of a wise and safe discharge of his editorial duties.—Texas Advocate.

The editors of the Advocate appear in their issues of last week in words of salutation. Dr. [illegible] of the Western Christian Advocate writes as he would speak upon the duties of a [illegible]. His style is fluent, [illegible] strong in vigorous Saxon, [illegible] Methodist preaching appearing through [illegible] cannot see how he [illegible] a strong and successful [illegible]. Dr. Marshall W. Taylor mounts the editorial tripod of the SOUTHWESTERN and swings his hat towards the North, South, East and West. He has evidently read all the good things that have appeared in the papers concerning him. His style is of the "splendid Ciceronian fullness." His love of the South is evident from the fact that Latin derivatives suit him better than words derived from the Saxon. He has inspired a great deal of respect for his abilities. Dr. Buckley of the New York Advocate says his talents must constrain the respectful attention of the strong men of both races. Success to the new editors.—Methodist Messenger.

There are about 300,000 teachers who instruct 10,000,000 pupils each year. We expend for these schools and teachers $7,000,000 annually and have $315,000,000 of common school property in the United States.

PERSONAL.

—Mr. John McGovern, for several years a member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Tribune, has become one of the associate editors of The Current, Mr. G. C. Cochran retiring.

—Rev. Dr. W. H. DePuy has resigned the Recording Secretaryship of the Sunday-school Union, a position which he has held for twenty years, and Mr. R. R. Doherty, of the New York Advocate, has been appointed to the office.

—Bishop Simpson is buried in the beautiful Laurel Hill Cemetry, Philadelphia, where rests the dust of Dr. Durbin, Dr. Nadal and Alfred Cookman. His grave is within a few yards of the latter's. It is on a bluff that overlooks the Schuylkill, a bank fragrant with flowers and choice in situation.

—Rev. S. Duncan, presiding elder of the Shreveport, and Rev. P. Landry, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district, Louisiana conference, called last week. Both made good reports of their work, and promise a vigorous canvass for this paper. Bro. Landry expects to see the completion of one of the finest churches in the State capitol, and its dedication to Methodism.

Arkansas—Then and Now—Sketch No. 2.

BY L. W. ELKINS.

Arkansas was admitted into the Union as a State in the year 1836. The legislature that met this year was notable for two things, viz: The Real Estate Bank was incorporated, an institution both in principal and practice, as infamous as any gambling house in America; and the duel fought between the Speaker of the House and the representative from Searcy county, in the legislative hall. The Speaker of the House was the leader of his political party in South Arkansas, and his great reputation as a duelist gave him great popularity as a politictian. He had fought six duels before this, always fatal to his opponent, and notwithstanding this, he had been a member of the territorial legislature for ten consecutive years, and all this time he remained Speaker of the House. This, his last duel, was fought on the floor of the hall during the hours of business. The Speaker left his chair, never more to resume it, and fought the duel in the presence of the members of the House, with fatal results to his opponent. The Speaker receiving a severe wound, sunk to the floor in a swoon by the dead body of his victim. He was then expelled from the House, a thing that ought to have been done ten years before. A merciful judge admitted him to bail, and after long delay he was brought to trial and triumphantly acquitted. This man, notorious as he was, stood forth as the exponent of the moral sentiment of his time. It is said that at this time the bowie knife ruled Arkansas. When a member of the legislature of 1836 arose to speak, the question of the opposite party was not, how many iders are in his head, but, how many pistols are in his pocket!

With such iniquity in high places, is it any wonder that Arkansas should gain an unenviable reputation abroad, and be called the land of bowie knives and shot guns. Place bad men at the head of the government and you set in operation a train of evil influences that contaminate every thing they come in contact with. During this period of demagogism, mob law seemed to be the order of the day, and lynch courts were not uncommon. About twenty-five years ago I heard it said repeatedly that a Negro and a preacher had threatened to burn Van Buren, a town near the West line of the State on the Arkansas river, and as the names of the parties were not given, those who gave credence to the story were suspicious of all Negroes and preachers; especially of the preachers who were in any opposed to slavery. About this time Rev. Mr. Beulah was arrested near the Missouri state line, and on his way back to Texas in the hands of the officer, he stopped in the town of Fayetteville, where Mr. P. R——, the county sheriff, went through the streets like the town crier, saying: "Two bits a sight to see a North Methodist preacher." From this place Mr. Beulah was taken to Texas where he suffered death at the hands of the mob. These were perilous times, when brother was afraid to trust brother. Soon after this the war cloud that arose in 1861 burst in fury upon this fair land, and the epaulets of fashion were exchanged for that of war and the implements of the farm and store for swords and muskets, and the clash of arms and the boom of artilery were heard clear across this broad continent from ocean to ocean. After four years of strife, the angel of peace spread her wings again over this land, and the old M. E. Church began missionary opperations here; with what success we shall see in another sketch.

I know that these sketches will be crucified on the pitiless pen of the critic, but I speak from an experience of 28 years in Arkansas, and have had ample opportunity to learn the past and present, written and unwritten history of this state.

Louisville District—Lexington Conference.

Meeting of the first session of Lonisville District Confrence, held at Frankfort, June 25, 1884.

Rev, Thomas R. Tompkins was elected to the chair in the absence of Rev. Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., presiding elder of the district. Roll call, present 32. The chair appointed the several committees. The pastors made their reports, showing their work to be in a fair condition, with highly exciting and gratifying prospects for the future success of the church.

SECOND DAY.

Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D., presiding elder, having arrived, occupied the chair. He reported the work of the district to be in a good condition, with room for improvement. Local preachers then passed and their licenses were renewed except Edward H. Hicks and Henry Dotson. J. A. Taylor was discontinued by request. Exhorters were granted local preacher's licenses. Rev. H. W. White, presiding elder of Lexington district, in company with Revs. W. Evans, N. L. Carr, S. G. Turner, and J. H. Stanly, as fraternal delegates, were received, who expressed their friendly and brotherly feelings to the conference, which were heartily received and responded to by the conference.

Memorial services on the death of Bishop Matthew Simpson, D.D., L. L. D., were held, conducted by M. W. Taylor, D. D., W. L. Muir and N. Walker.

The following resolutions were offered in congratulation of Dr. Taylor on his election to the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN ADVOCATE:

Whereas, The General Conference in its Godly judgment deemed it wise and prudent to elect one from our midst to the responsibility of editorship; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Louisville district conference, heartily concur with the General Conference in its choice and most heartily congratulate Marshall W. Taylor, D. D.

Resolved, That we deem it a high honor to have the material in our district that meets the pressing demands and needs of the people.

Resolved, That we regret the necessity of a separation in ties and relation between us and Dr. Taylor, but since duty calls, amen.

W. W. Locke steps in, we hail him with joy and friendly greeting and wish him success in his work. The hope and outlook is that we will come to the next annual conference with all the benevolent money. God grant Methodism a blessing. JAS. L. PERRIS, Sec'y.

Coffee Growing in Africa.

REV. J. F. MILLER, DOVER, DEL.

The incidents recorded in this little description are those as remembered by a youth of ten or twelve summers. In our youth we were accustomed to visit various mission stations on the west coast of Africa. Among the variety of things to be seen and examined in that strange country the manner of raising coffee seems to affect us. As we observed it when a farm was about to be planted with coffee trees, it at once took the name "coffee farm." The seed coffee being gathered in the pod, are placed in barrels or tubs of water from twelve to twenty-four hours, so it may swell. Then it is sown in ground prepared for it; there it remains until it has reached the height of five or six inches, then the plants are thinned out, yet kept closely together. When the farm or field is prepared these small trees are planted about eight or ten feet apart, and the middle space between the trees are planted with some useful product. This is kept up for five successive years, after which time the trees begin to bear. To be a successful coffee grower it is very necessary that extreme care be taken to dig about the roots of the trees, so that insects will not destroy them. The tree yields well when it is about three years old. It is necessary to cut the top from the tree, so that it may spread out widely. Coffee trees will grow from eighteen to thirty feet in height, if not topped, in good soil. Hence the great care taken by planters to top out at the proper time, a tree that yields three or three and a half pounds. Good cured coffee is considered a valuable yield. Picking and curing coffee will be our next description.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

ORANGE JELLY.—Boil twelve large sweet oranges (blood if possible), cut them into small slices and squeeze thoroughly through a colander. To each pint of juice add one pound of sugar; when the sugar is dissolved put it over the fire, dissolve two ounces of ising glass in enough water to cover it and add to the jelly as it begins to boil. Let it boil very fast for twenty minutes, pour it while some-what hot into jars or bottles, and when cold cover the corks skins or parchment so as thoroughly to exclude the air.

GRAPE JELLY.—Strip from the stalk some fine ripe black grapes, bruise them; with a wooden spoon over a gentle fire until all have burst and the juice flows freely from them strain off, being on your guard that no pressure is applied to the bag; pass it through and through the bag until quite clear; simmer gently for twenty minutes; when draw it from the fire and stir in until well dissolved sixteen ounces of extra refined sugar (roughly powdered); boil the jelly quickly for fifteen minutes longer, taking care constantly to stir and skim.

CALVES FEET JELLY.—Boil two feet in four quarts of water for several hours, well skimming off the scum that constantly keeps rising. Then, when sufficiently tender strain the liquor through a fine sieve, and set it to cool until the next day undisturbed, when remove with a knife the accumulation of fat and wipe dry with a cloth the jelly, so as to be quite sure that no particle of grease remain on the surface. When this has been done melt the jelly. Beat up the whites and crush the shells of three eggs into three-quarters of pint of cold spring water. Stir this liquid into the jelly, and allow it to simmer five minutes before straining. It is always better to buy calves feet at a butcher's and boil and prepare them yourself than at a pork butcher's, where they are supposed to be parboiled and cooked, for then the gelatinous portion of the jelly has been destroyed.

CEREAL DRINK.—It is one of the best recipes printed for gratuitous distribution by the National Temperance Society. Put three tablespoonfuls of coarse oatmeal into a pint of cold water and boil half an hour; while boiling sweeten with brown sugar. Some prefer it strained, but it is very good mixed with the meal. Add half of cream, as a hot drink may be flavored with vanilla or lemon peel boiled in it. Some drink cold one half cream may be added to three gallons. Lemon juice added to the cold but not to the boiling liquor. Rice or barley water may be made in the same way as oatmeal. Rice and barley are also used. Any of the above drinks for the sick should be made very cheap.

MAPLE SYRUP.—Take two pounds of the best double refined sugar, one quart of hot water, the juice of a lemon; put them in a saucepan; stir until perfectly dissolved, take off the scum and bottle. The flavor of the syrup may be hightened by the addition of a gill of orange flower water to the above quantity.

Needless waste of substance. Throw away the pods of green peas. They contain a large amount of valuable juice, which should be saved and used. Boil them in a little water or in a stock pot, and when done throw away the pods, saving the liquor for the value of the vegetables contained and will be found excellent for soup, which will be richer and thicker than if the pods are boiled in the soup.

BISHOP SIMPSON

BY REV. E. H. STOKER D. D.

Ascend! ascend, O Bishop of the people,
Shepherd, good shepherd, patriot and friend;
Through floods of light thy path unfolds before thee,
While we staud mute, beholding thee ascend.

Bow down! Bow down! it is a day of weeping,
And sorrow's sighs drift courseless through the air;
Our joy eclipsed, and at the full our sadness,
While spirits bend in wordless forms of prayer.

Our souls are draped with symbols of breavement
The crook laid down, and shepherdless his fold;
This gentle Shepherd who divinely guided
With white-robed saints forever is enrolled.

The mountain eagle plumes his wings in sunrise,
And bathes his breast in morning's freshest dew;
With earth beneath, and arching skies above him,
His pinions sweep through fields forever new.

Ascend Bishop! earth's attractions lessening,
Time's shores recede and dissappear from sight;
Eternal realms are widening out before thee,
And higher worlds are blossoming in light.

All heaven hails thee with triumphant gladness,
Ascending steeps of light away! away!
Earth's conflicts ended, white-robed throngs are rushing
With waving palms far down the slopes of day.

Exultant welcome! multitudes are surging,
With nigh-wrought rapture through melodious air;
Billows of bliss o'er shoreless seas are bearing
Immortal songs with which to greet thee there.

O! what a life! Earth life in Christ unfolding,
Fadeless and fragrant under frostless skies;
Millions of years! and all forever vernal,
In stormless climes where nothing ever dies.

An honored life! Intensified in splendor,
Gentle and loving, tender, good and true;
Like living seeds continually expanding,
And filling heaven with rich surprises new.

The calla lily, pearly in its whiteness,
In spotless depths his high perfections show;
Whose modest sisters, bending bells of beauty,
Type his humility in vales below.

Lowly and good his beautiful foundations,
On these he built and rose supremely high;
As great, as good, as high as he was lowly,
He stooped on earth and towered to the sky.

His towering words, like loftly domes majestic,
Or Alpine summits in their heights immense;
Graceful and glowing, burning, leaping, rising,
Divinest art, O, matchless eloquence!

That matchless eloquence was laid in meekness,
With every honor at his Master's feet;
All consecrated to advance His glory,
And that advancement made his joy complete.

His country called, and patriotism answered,
His soul aglow with this inspiring flame;
Impassioned boldness, over all triumphant,
And freedom crowned him amid high acclaim.

Tread softly now, and slow, I would not venture
To say, or do that which would not be well;
But if this life unfolds in life eternal,
Shall not his voice with eloquence still swell?

O, may he not, on some bright mount of glory,
Where trees of life afford delicious shade,
Gather the saints and thrill with higher rapture,
As he shall there receive diviner aid?

What joy of joys to hear the same old story,
In love's own language, now first understood;
The Cross, the Crown, anguish and exaltation,
Until the soul shall melt in gratitude.

Think it not strange! Heaven is the earth completed,
Rather, restored to what it would have been;
Royal and loyal in its peerless beauty,
A heaven itself if still untouched by sin.

Oh, if our Bishop in his great ascension,
Is simply more of what he was below;
His saintly smile still saintlier in its sweetness,
His wondrous words more wondrous in their flow.

What thrills of bliss it will be then to meet him,
Where we shall know as all are ever known;
Walking, it may be, through the groves immortal,
And lowly bend with him before the throne.

I bow and weep for thee, O cherished Bishop;
And yet I swoon with love's delicious joy,
Although my tear-washed eyes with clearer vision,
I see thee still in loftier employ.

My grief and joy, oft in an even balance,
Now change, and joy predominates in thee;

The Church's loss! But, oh, thine own sweet rapture,
Broader and deeper, full eternally.

Then let the Church bow down in meek submission,
God is supreme, and He is always right;
In love He gave, in tenderest love has taken,
And we adore Thee. O, thou Infinite.—Ocean Grove Record.

Commencement at Pittsburg Female College.

Notwithstanding the disturbances of finances and other causes, this widely known Ladies' school, has enjoyed much prosperity and maintained its national fame, the past year. Upwards of 400 pupils were in attendance, gathered from California in the West, to Connecticut in the East. The college is a combination of several distinct schools, each school having its own faculty, separate and apart from the others. President Pershing, who has been at its head for a quarter of a century and has given it national fame, is still directing its interests.

Commencement week is always an occasion of rare interest, on account of the competitive examinations, conducted by committees of teachers not connected with the college; and the many brilliant public entertainments. The brief mention of the salient features of the commencement exercises of eight days, will indicate the galaxy of interesting exercises during that time.

The exercises opened with the examination of the class in Butler's Analogy, in contest for the vice-president's gold medal. The next day the class in Latin were examined and the honor divided between two, one of whom was the president's daughter, and a gold medal awarded each. An entire day was devoted to the review of the junior class in Mathematics, for the Bishop Simpson gold medal. Two of the closing days were occupied with the examination of the undergraduates by expert teachers, with fine results.

The series of evening entertainments were of a high order, as was the vocal and instrumental music interwoven with these performances beginning the first evening with the piano contest for the McKee prize, a superb gold medal cast at the U. S. Mint, then followed the reading contest for the Mrs. M. Davidson prize, a beautiful silver cup; the Hamilton prize, a gold medal, contested for by seven pupils from the vocal department of the Conservatory of Music, and the Grogan & Merz gold medal for proficiency in the School of Elocution.

The other special exercises were the Bacalaureate discourse on Sunday evening in the M. E. Church, by the pastor, Dr. A. C. Hirst, who discoursed with much ability. The "Fruitage of Conflict," and the Art Exhibition for two days, at which the gold medal for oil painting and prizes in drawing were awarded.

The grand finale was the graduating exercises. The essays and music were of a high order. Dr. C. W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, spoke most admirably to the graduating class. There were eight graduates: Misses H. R. Pershing, F. Moore, J. V. Pierce, A. Smith and K. M. Hogan, of Pennsylvania; Miss E. H. Brown, of West Virginia; Miss Z. M. Barnes and N. Eakin, Ohio.

The claims in favor of this college are generally known: The admirable plan of distinct schools and saperate faculties; its central location in a city offering superior advantages in literature and music; its remarkable healthfulness and freedom from epidemic forms of disease; the thorough work done in all departments, and low terms compared with other first class ladies' colleges.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my relatives. I had four sisters—Sallie, Rachel, Ellen and Lizzie. Ellen was burned to death. I had two half brothers, William and Hiram. Mother was Frankie McMillan, father I never saw. I believe his name was Bedford. Hiram was living in Tuscaloosa county, Alabama, the last I heard of him, and brother William was in Danville. My name then was Edward McMillan and is now Bedford. My owner in slave time was Jim McMillan. I was brought to Texas by Jack Grove and Woodruff. Address me at Hallettsville, Texas, care of Sam Grant.

EDMOND BEDFORD.

MR. EDITOR—Mr. M. C. Gary's youngest brother lives at Cleveland, Tennessee, and his name is Samuel Thomas. S. D. HANDY.

MR. EDITOR—Please allow me to inquire for my relatives. Mother's name was Vannoy; my two sisters Harriet and Corilla, who also belonged to the Vannoys, and, our mistress Polly Vannoy. We all lived in Palmyra, Missouri, and I was sold, in 1850, to Grandaly Blakely, a trader, and was carried to St. Louis, Missouri. Mr. Blakely bought my sister Harriet also, and carried her to St. Louis. We were sold to a Mr. McAtee. The white people carried brother to Kentucky when quite a boy. Address me at Bryan, Texas.

MATILDA JEFFERSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people, mother, two brothers and one sister. We all belonged to the widow Lovejoy, and she lived in Jasper county, Georgia; and we were all sold two years before the surrender. A man by the name of Bill Parker bought my mother and the baby child, and my sister was sold to Ann Stafford, a daughter of the widow Lovejoy, who married a man by the name of Stafford, and lived in Coweta county, Ga. A man by the name of Amos Brown bought me and my oldest brother, Clark, in Morgan county, Ga. My mother's name was Elvay, oldest brother Clark, sister Harriet, and yonngest brother Alfred. The last time I saw my brother Clark was in Savannah, Ga, in 1865, and have not seen my mother, sister Harriet and brother Alfred since we all were sold. I heard from Harriet when she was living in Newnan, Ga., about 7 years ago, and brother Clark went and took her to Atlanta, Ga. I heard that she was married. I would be glad for ministers to read this in churches in Atlanta, Ga. Address me at Wedowee, Randolph county, Ala. JANE MOULTRIE.

A card issued by one of the suburban churches near Chicago has this for its motto: "I am only one, but I am one; I cannot do everything, but I can do something; what I can do I ought to do, and what I ought to do, by the grace of God I will do."

Facts and Reasons.

Effects Produced by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and by Nothing Else so Perfectly.

It strengthens and invigorates sufferers from enervation, languor, weakness, and mental depression.
It has an almost magical effect in curing eruptive and cutaneous disorders.
It eradicates from the blood the taint of that terribly destructive disease, Hereditary Scrofula.
It expels from the system the baneful poison of Mercury, which is as serious as that of Scrofula.
It purifies and regenerates the life current polluted by the corruptiou of contagious disease.
It stimulates the secretory organs, effects the removal of all impurities from the blood and makes it new, rich, and pure.
It restores health to sufferers from thin blood and impaired vitality.
It saves, by its thorough purification of the blood, from Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and Tubercular Consumption.
It cures Scrofulous affections of the Liver and Kidneys, and their symptoms, Jaundice and Dropsy.
It cures Scrofulous Catarrh, Itching Humors, and the purulent Sores caused by Scrofula.
It clears and improves the complexion.
It neutralizes the poisons left in the system by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and restores the debilitated patient to perfect health and vigor.
It is, in short, an unfailing remedy for all disorders arising from impurity of the blood, where such disorders have not become so deeply seated as to be beyond all human aid.

Advantages that AYER'S SARSAPARILLA Possesses over all Others.

It is composed of the most efficacious alterative, diuretic, and tonic drugs known in pharmacy, among which are the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia, and the Iodides of Potassium and Iron.
It is a highly concentrated medicine, scientifically and honestly compounded so as to secure to it the highest degree of activity and perfect uniformity.
It has received the hearty endorsement of the leading men in the medical profession, who recognize it as a standard pharmaceutical preparation, and prescribe it in their practice.
It contains no poisonous minerals or other dangerous drugs, the use of which for temporary effect in the many crude and cheap mixtures sold as alteratives, produces effects on the system often worse than the diseases they are offered to cure.
It costs no more than any other, but would still be the cheapest blood-purifying medicine in the world, even were its price three times greater, since it is the only one that does "real, lasting good."
It has been before the public for nearly forty years, and has constantly grown in popular favor, both at home and abroad, until there is hardly a place in the civilized world where it has not a host of friends, made so by its marvellous cures.
It has been used in, and approved by, at least 4,000,000 families in the United States, and 7,000,000 throughout the world. Women have especial reasons for commending it.
It has proven its potency in curing obstinate, deeply-seated, and long-standing diseases caused by vitiation of the blood. It must not, however, be expected and is not claimed that a single bottle will cure such cases; but patients should persevere in the use of this remedy until a radical cure is effected.
It is the only blood-purifier that has won and retained the confidence of the people of all tropical countries, where such medicines are much required.
It is the only medicine of its class that sailors, as a rule, have any faith in—and they are right.

The Negro Republic.

The Chicago Tribune prints the following letter from the President of Liberia which was addressed to Mr. James Otis, of that city:

Executive Mansion,
Monrovia, Liberia, W. C. A.,
May 5, 1884.

Dear Sir: I had the pleasure, about the 1st of the present month, of receiving your postal card of the 24th March, congratulating me upon my new position and requesting a copy of my inaugural address, &c. I received also, by the next mail, a copy of the Chicago Tribune, which you were kind enough to send me. In the first place, I must thank you for your good wishes and the interest you take in our little republic. Our beginning is small, but we have great potentialities. The only future for the negro is building up a nation in Africa. It is God's law, and the negro cannot evade it.

The mistake sometimes made by some of our friends is this: In order to induce the negro to emigrate they are inclined to represent to him that in Africa nature does everything for him. Now, nature does a great deal for us here—more than she does for people in other climes. But in no part of the world (I believe in no part of the universe) is there any evading God's law that enjoins labor. It is a fact, however, that in Africa, especially in Liberia, one can succeed with much less exertion than is required in other parts of the world. I give a single instance—the agricultural interest. Crops can be produced throughout the entire year; even in the height of the dry season they can be profitably cultivated on the lowlands. Land is abundant and fertile. Each adult male immigrant receives free 10 acres and family 25 acres; and an abundance of rich land can always be purchased for a small sum. Coffee, sugar, arrow root, ginger, cocoa, ground nuts, palm oil, vegetables, and root crops can be produced in abundance. The vegetables of temporate zones that require only one season to mature can also be grown. I have raised some fine grapes on my own farm, some bunches weighing 14 to 16 ounces. I believe on fair trial other fruit of the temperate zone would do well. Most tropical fruits grow with little attention. The pineapple flourishes wild in orchards sometimes a mile in extent. They are excellent—sweet and juicy—in the wild state, but they improve rapidly in size and flavor on cultivation.

Trade is profitable. Some foreign houses have large establishments in the republic. The Liberian merchants also are driving a successful business. Besides the articles already named, camwood, ivory, india rubber, &c., bring good prices. Our great drawback is lack of economy. If our people could live within their income they would do much better. This lack of economy puts them to a great disadvantage when coming in competition with people who have always learned to live within their income.

Press of business prevents me saying more just now. I send you a copy of the inaugural and the Monrovia Observer. I shall be pleased to hear from you at any time. With sentiments of respect, I am very truly yours.

H. R. N. JOHNSON.

We have read of a young man who, while he was kneeling at the altar seeking religion, was told that he was converted. "No" he replied, "I must have something more than I have got, for if I were to lose this I should not miss it." A superficial religion is the worst thing a man can have in this world. He needs a religion that he will miss when it is gone. We know of persons who have been at the mourner's bench, professed conversion and joined the church, but if they were to lose all they would not miss it. They know nothing about a sound, substantial, thorough and unequivocal conversion to God. The man who has not religion enough to make him tell the truth, pay his debts, and live peacefully at home, might lose the whole of it and not miss it.—Exchange.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Tribute to Bishop Matthew Simpson.

BY REV. HENRY W. TATE, OF LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

Our beloved and much lamented Senior Bishop, Matthew Simpson, passed to his heavenly reward in Philadelphia, Wednesday the 18th, in triumph of his faith.

This great man was born in Cadiz, O., June 20, 1811, making his age 72 years 9 months and 23 days. The intelligence of this doleful event brings sadness to a church of 1,769,534 laymen and 24,654 itinerants and local preachers, constituents of the chosen field of his life-time labors, in which he so faithfully filled his ministerial functions. Besides this the great State of Ohio, which has the untold honor of such a noble ecclesiastical son must unite with us in dropping green laurels at the spot where his sacred dust rests. Then the fraternal brethren of our family, and all Christendom, are with us in sympathetic tears—"that there is prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel," and the world is constrained to say he was a man of "an excellent spirit." In this great personage we have a learned scholar, succesful teacher, admired lecturer, able theologian, pulpit orator of unequaled ability, and a Bishop of unspotted character. My recollection of Bishop Simpson extends back to the spring of 1880, when he presided over our conference at Paris, Ky. I was remarkably impressed by his kind ways, his apostolic and fatherly appearance.

The power that attended his preaching was indescribable to me; after having gotten my attention I could think of nothing but the wonderful truths that fell from his lips. I class him with the great preachers; to me he was the St. Paul of the nineteenth century. I was received on trial in our annual conference by Bishop Simpson. He presided at our conference (Lexington) in 1873 and 1880. He dealt in the sublime in his discourses. The venerable Bishop was a man that truly could be called great, and was a power for the advancement of the right in the religious world. There is but one Matthew Simpson. He was a man of profound thought and practicability. What did he say or do but was good and useful? He was the young man's friend to direct and encourage him in the battles of life. He was the world's peer—equal to all emergencies. He fell in active service, worn out in usefulness for his master, a great man has quit the stage of action.

We have more of our bishops in the glory land than with us; Bishop Simpson has joined them.

Life is a mystery; our lamented Bishop has lived the natural, he partook of the spiritual and has now entered into the eternal life.

His life and usefulness for the church, God, and humanity will ever have a green memory in our hearts.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth yea saith the Spirit that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Keeping Memoranda.

It is a pity that the habit of keeping memoranda of the home or other records of the family life is so little observed. I remember being shown a book in which a mother had written everything interesting and pleasant which had happened in her girls' lives. There are pen and ink drawings cleverly executed by the artist friend who had been a guest, and these, by a few happy touches, put on paper, scenes droll and mirth-provoking, in which the children had engaged. There was the account written in the mother's hand of the visit to a distant city, of a narrow escape, of the illness of a dear child and the thankfulness felt at her recovery. Here was a page of pretty illuminated texts and cards, here again a bit of poetry, further on an invitation to a little friend's birthday party. Such a record of the growth of children, their development from infancy onward, will be beyond price to parents and to the young people themselves by-and-by.

Another good way of keeping a home journal is to establish a large book somewhere in the library or sitting-room, leaving it where any one who chooses may have access to it and then insisting that each who has anything to tell shall tell it there.

A book of guests and the date of their coming is pleasantly suggestive in houses where guests are frequent.—Intelligencer.

Those who study the life of Christ with care will be struck with his regard for humanity. He never looked upon any one with scorn or contempt. The mearest and meanest form of humanity that crawled into his presence, no matter how trampled, torn and defiled, seemed sacred in his eyes. Two things are to be noted. He never despised any human being. He never stood before men as a haughty and imperious being, demanding attention, reverence and service. He never seemed to think of what was due him. He only wished to serve, to help to lift up, to comfort. And if any man has not the spirit of Christ, no matter about his other attainments, he is none of His.

There are a thousand hacking at the branches of evil to one who is striking at the root.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an old East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellows Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. FOR THE BENEFIT OF

The Pedestal Fund

—OF THE—

Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

This colossal statue was given by the people of the French Republic to the people of the United States as a monument of ancient friendship, and as an expression of the sympathy of France in the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence.

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250,000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

There has been voluntarily contributed about $100,000 towards pedestal for the statue, which is to be placed on Bedloe's Island, at the entrance of New York harbor, and about $150,000 is still required.

The foregoing is from the Report of the Executive Committee to the General Committee of the Fund, of which the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts is chairman.

With a view of aiding the object, another committee, under the supervision of the Hon. Rufus F. Andrews, has arranged for a new issue of art subjects, to be offered the public generally, who will thus be able to secure a magnificent Standard, steelengraving, and at the same time have the satisfaction of contributing to the Pedestal Fund.

The following subjects have been selected, viz:

Shakespeare and his Friends	28x36
Falstaff Mustering his Recruits	28x36
Landing of the Pilgrims	28x36

Farmer's Saturday Night	26x34

These engravings will be from the original plates, and will be as fine as the first proofs, which were sold at $100 each. They will be forwarded by mail, and their receipt guaranteed. The price for each will be $5, which must be sent with the order. Persons wishing to subscribe, are respectfully requested to do so as soon as possible.

All orders, drafts, &c., must be directed and made payable to the Secretary.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Ladies' Floral Cabinet, 28 Vesey Street, New York, is a neat illustrated monthly, $1.25 per year.

Our Little Men and Women, (Boston, D. Lothrop & Co.) for August, has choice pictures and stories.

The English Illustrated Magazine for July opens with a paper on the Royal Collection of Miniatures at Windsor Castle; continues an Unsentimenal Journey through Cornwall; has a paper on the Weasel and his family, and another on How a Bone is Built. Price 15 cts. New York, McMillan & Co.

The North American Review for August contains an article by Justice James V. Campbell on "The Encroachments of Capital" which will command the serious attention of all readers. Richard A. Proctor treats of "The Origin of Comets," and succeeds in presenting that difficult subject in a light so clear that persons who have little or no acquaintance with astronomy can follow his argument. "Are we a Nation of Rascals?" is the startling title of an article by John F. Hume, who shows that states, counties and municipalities in the United States have already formally repudiated, or defaulted in the payment of interest on an amount of bonds and other obligations equal to the sum of the national debt. Judge Edward C. Loring finds a "Drift toward Centralization" in the recent judgment of the United States Supreme Court on the power of the Federal Government to issue paper money, and in the opinion of the minority of the same court rendered in the suit for the Arlington property. Julian Hawthorne writes of "The American Element in Fiction," and there is a symposium on "Prohibition and Persuasion," by Neal Dow and Dr. Dio Lewis.

The August number of "The Popular Science Monthly" contains two brilliant and striking articles on the future of religion. The first, "The Ghost of Religion," is by Frederic Harrison, and is an attack on Mr. Spencer's "Unknowable," and the second, "Retrogressive Religion," is Mr. Spencer's reply. Grant Allen's "Hickory-Nuts and Butternuts," Dr. C. C. Abbott's "Some Rambles of a Naturalist," and M. J. Fischer's "My Monkeys," may be equally well described as lively or amusing essays, or as scientific articles, for they are both; and Dr. Peale's "The World's Geyser-Regions," with several full-page illustrations, is also readable, scientific, and instructive. Professor David S. Jordan contributes a sketch, enlivened by the warmth of personal friendship, of Don Felipe Poyey, the distinguished Cuban ichthyologist. The Editor's Table is occupied with a discussion of the relations of Science and the Temperance Reform." New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

The Universe of St. Louis, Missouri, began its fourth volume with the July number. It is a magazine of refined and valuable literature, well illustrated. Price 15 cents.

The English Pulpit of To-Day is a new monthly periodical for ministers, Alfred E. Rose, editor, published at Westfield, N. Y. Price $1 a year.

The numbers of The Living Age for June 21st and 28th and July 5th, contain James Hope-Scott, Quarterly; Frederick Denison Maurice, British Quarterly; The Princess Alice's Letters, Contemporary; "Italia Redenta," The Clothes of Religion, and Letters from an Idle Woman's Post-Bag, 1884, National ; Fashionable Philosophy, Blackwood; Henry Greville's Diary, and Hayward's Essays, Temple Bar; My Arab, Cornhill; The Library of a Lady in the Seventeenth Century, Leisure Hour; Valentine Baker, Army and Navy Magazine; wers of Irish Speech, In- in Geography, and The of Religion," Spectator; Dr. Goodford, and Tennyson on "The Princess," Academy; Five Letters of Pope, Athenæum; The Abandonment of Wind-Power, Chambers' Journal; Arminius Vambery, and Earthquakes in England, All the Year Round; The Coins of Venice, Antiquary; Wharton's Commentaries, London Literary World; with instalments of "The Baby's Grandmother," "Beauty and the Beast," "A Mysterious Dwelling," "Moonlight and Floods," and "Mitchelhurst Place," and poetry. A new volume begins with July. Subscription price ($8) Littell & Co., Boston, publishers.

In the Midsummer Century, Novelettes by Henry James and Professor Boyesen are to begin, and there will be two short stories of a humorous interest by "Ivory Black," and the famous author of "The Lady or the Tiger?"; besides interesting personal articles, on "Chinese Gordon," "The Queen of Roumania," and "General Sam Houston."

The story of the romantic life of General Sam Houston, who was in turn United States senator, Cherokee chief, general in the army, and first president of the Texan republic, will be told in the August Century by Alexander Hynds, who has been assisted in the preparation of his paper by the family of the "hero of San Jacinto." Two portraits of Houston, one from a miniature showing him as a Cherokee chief, will accompany the article.

One of the most interesting forms of co-operation in this country is the business organized under the style of "The Associated Artists," in New York. The artists are Mrs. Candace Wheeler, her daughter Miss Dora Wheeler, Miss Rosina Emmett, and others, all women, and their work is art-embroidery, which is done by workwomen, from their own and other designs under their direction, and the manufacture of art fabrics. The experiment has so far been commercially as well as artistically successful, and their goods are sold in Boston, Detroit, and other cities, as well as in New York. An account of the artistic side of their work will be given in the August Harper's, by Mrs. Burton Harrison, with illustrations from their designs and of their workshops.

Gen. Butler will make a fight in some of the States where the Anti-Monopolists can work most efficiently.

Cummings Nelson, for the murder of John Martin, was hung at Houma, La., on the 18th.

Editorial Notes.

A sister wants to know if she and her husband are not one. Yes, sister, but you are the most one; you are he better half.

When surrounded by proud and frivolous multitudes, the Christian can say: "Teach me thy way O, Lord I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name."

Dr. Rust wishes us to say that the New Orleans University will open at the regular session in the new building recently purchased, and a live President and an able corps of teachers will be on hand.

A man with a small salary can never purchase a home, pay his debts and keep even, if his wife and daughter insist on dressing like the wife and daughter of a retired merchant for elegance.

Experience in Christian work and in the mercies of God, is an encouragement to further trust and faith and work. Thus do we realize that "mercy and truth are met together, righteousness and peace have kissed each other."

When we look to the past and consider all the goodness of God towards us we are strengthened in our confidence and purpose to trust for the future. "Righteousness shall go before him, and shall set us in the way of his steps."

Bishop Wiley, in view of his absence, has placed the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences in charge of Bishop Walden until the assignment is made at the Bishops' annual meeting. Bishop Walden's post-office address during the summer will be Cincinnati, Ohio, care Methodist Book Concern.

The call for a national convention of colored men in Richmond, [illegible] July 8th, was revoked, [illegible] convention did not meet. We said in a previous number, that we regarded the call an untimely one, and we feel gratified that our opinion has proven to be a representative one. We are having too many conventions any way.

Rev. Mr. Plummer recently appointed, is not the first colored man to hold a chaplaincy in the United States Army, that position having been held by Rev. [illegible] A. Boyd, of Kentucky, in the 24th United State colored infantry, and also by Rev. H. M. [illegible], now Bishop in African M. E. Church. However Mr. Plummer may be the first in this position to receive the rank and pay that belongs to it, as the government formerly failed to bestow [illegible] chaplains. It would have been [illegible] justice,

A scientist, holding up the mesentery of a healthy man before the gas jet, inquired of a Christian professor by his side, "do you believe all this beauty is going to be finally lost by death?" It was asked if the messentery of a cat was not equally beautiful, and if it was going to be lost by death? No answer.

We have received a pictnre of the Sonthern Exposition, which opens at Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16th, and continues until Oct. 25. The view is of the main building, which is one of the largest Exposition buildings ever erected, It covers thirteen acres of ground, and will be lighted throughout by five thou sand electrit lights.

For every child there should be a properly married father and mother. Evidence of this should be at hand when the ordinance of baptism is to be administered to infants. Some one should be responsible for the moral culture of children. God's plan is to have a father whose name can be told, and every child known by the name of its father. Some care and much discretion is in demand here.

The young colored lady of the period must not be less a cook than a classic. The aunt Chloe's who gave our race its history for epicurean taste and genius are rapidly passing away. The parlor, piano, organ and library are cold and cheerless things without the kitchen. Races are what their cooks make them. We eat to live. If the girls do not know how to prepare the food, the wives of the future will not. If they can not properly prepare the food the babies will die, then what about the race?

Young preachers should remember that the harvest comes after, not before seed time. The fathers worked a little and preached a great deal; you might, at least, work a little to help along with a poor appointment, when you see that the people, though willing, are quite unable to give you a comfortable support. There must be hardness at one end or the other of your ministry, and a house which is built with the gable end downward might be beautiful, but it can not be substantial. Then, again, if you do not learn in the school of adversity you will be totally unfit and ought to be ashamed to attempt to teach in that of prosperity. Signalize your right to command by learning to obey; to lead, by being led; to advise, by taking the counsel of your seniors and superiors.

Colored or white leadership for the colored people, which is best? Both. They must have both. The leaders of the people must come together for council and legislation, to compare notes and outline their plan of working just as we do, in our General and Annual Conferences. After that each leader must go where his talents and the circumstances fit him best to labor. This fact is recognized every where in our country except in the three divisions of colored Methodism. The educators of all races, the Baptist, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Catholics, Legislatures, Political conventions and Congress are mixed bodies where leaders meet. The perpetuity of the American system, and the development of the American idea also requires it. But then the exceptions to this rule are "African."

God Leads.

There is nothing taught more clearly in the Bible, than that God cares for His children, and leads them. He has given promise after promise, for encouragement in every time of need, and by the direct influence of the Holy Spirit. He opens and shuts doors, throws down walls of difficulty, or hedges the way with thorns, for those who seek His guidance. We cannot understand why God should thus love and care for a sinful world, but why doubt? "He shall feed His flocks like a shepherd; He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and cary them in His bosom, and gently lead those that are with yonng. Fear thou not for I am with thee, be not dismayed for I am thy God. I will strengthen thee. Yea, I will help thee. Yea, I will uphold thee, with the right hand of righteousness.

"For I, the Lord will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee fear not; I will help thee.

"I will bring the blind by a way they knew not, I will lead them in paths they have not known, I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight.

"Who gave Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to the robbers? Did not the Lord against whom we have sinned; for they would not walk in His ways, neither were they obedient unto His law. But now, saith the Lord that created thee, "I have called thee by thy name, thou art mine. When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee; when thou walketh through the fire thou shalt not be burned. For I am thy Lord thy God, the holy One of Israel, thy Savior. Thus saith the Lord thy Redeemer. I am the Lord thy God, which teacheth thee to profit which leadeth by the way thou shouldst go. O, that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments, then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteonsness as the waves of the sea.

"Who among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness and hath no light? Let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God." These passages from Isaiah, how much of love is expressed in them! How much of power to comfort? Never were commands, promises and entreaties clothed in such words of beauty and strength! We cannot read them too often. They are food for the soul. God has reiterated them again and again clothed in different language so that they cannot be misunderstood. How like a foud and anxious mother is God. Where is there a trne mother, who does not give her children line upon line, precept upon precept, as they go out from her into the snares and temptations of the world? Jnst so does God, only more than a mother can; he goes with His children and helps and gnides them.

How the word of God has freed us from all care and responsibility of our own guidance! We need not contrive and manage, and do things for the sake of policy, concede a little to the wrong for the fear of lossing our influence. We may do right, and let God take care of the results. Our part is to yield ourselves, and go where He will lead, from misfortune and sorrow, to honor and happiness, and eternal life. Homes, friends, occupation, health, love, joy, peace and safety is promised to those who trust and obey God. Perhaps in this fallen world we may not alway be free from discomfort but we may have resignation to His will. As we look around us, we see many of God's children, even, suffering unrest. Have they yielded all to Him and are they trusting Him entirely? God's promises are so definite, that if they fail there must be something wrong. We may by our unbelief make the Bible of no effect to ns, then where would we be? Out on a boundless ocean, with no wisdom or might of our own, tempest tossed and without a guide! The fact that the Bible is exactly adapted to the wants of man, and leads out of darkness, upward, is a proof of its truthfulness. Let us cling to it, and follow its teachings.

"He leadeth me, O, blessed thought,
Oh words with heavenly comfort fraught.
Whate'er I do, where'er I be,
Still 'tis God's hand that leadeth me."

Argenta District Conference.

The district conference for the Argenta district, of the Little Rock conference, met at Van Buren Arkansas, July 10th in its first session for this conference year. After religious services the conference was called to order by G. W. Sams, presiding elder. Rev. A. J. Phillips, was elected secretary. Notwithstanding the attendance on the part of the members of the conference was small, yet all of the business of the conference was properly attended to. All of the best interests of the district and of the church generally were looked after and discussed. The reports of the preachers showed that the interest of the charges and the church generally had been cared for by the pastors as far as we were able to hear. Though this is considered to be a hard year, yet the most of the brethren, who were present stated that their charges were in good condition financially. The brethren did not forget that our church wanted a pure ministry among the local as well as among the traveling preachers. The licenses of F. W. Weaver were revoked and he was left in the hands of his pastor for trial, on the complaint of profanity and and Sabbath breaking.

The religious and literary exercises of the conference consisted in the discussion of the following questions: Temperance, the itinerancy, and class-meeting system, and stewardship of our church. These topics were discussed by the brethren. Upon the whole this was the best session we have ever held. The work on the district is doing very well considering everything. Quite a good number have been converted and have joined the church. The brethren are pushing their collections this year. We hope to be able this year to collect every dollar assessed the district. The people seem to be anxious to have a chance to help raise $1,000 as a scholarship fund, for Philander Smith College, to help educate young ministers for the Little Rock conference. Brethren of the district, let me say to you, let us not put off this matter too long We want to commence so we can get through by the first of January.

Yours respectfully,

G. W. SAMS.

The following is the assessment for each charge of the Argenta district, Little Rock, conference, to pay the presiding elder, this conference year as made by the district stewards at Van Buren, July 10th, 1884; Argenta circuit, $25; Alma, $10; Batesville, $30; Conway, $35; Fayetteville, $35; Fayetteville circuit, $25; Fort Smith, $10; Jacksonport, $35; Little Rock circuit, $25; Russellville, $10; Sweet Home, $25; Van Buren, $35. By order of the district stewards, G. W. SAMS, P. E.

Arkansas—Then and Now. Sketch No. 3.

BY L. W. ELKINS.

The days of duelistic glory have past away, and lynch courts are no more. The slave is freed from his master, and never more shall the bugle sound of the pitiless overseer awake him with the rise of the morning star to resume the dreary toils of the long summer day. Educational facilities have been increased until now, a liberal education is within the reach of every youth in the State; churches, colleges, schools and universities can be seen everywhere with their spires culminating in the sunbeams. This is the Lord's doings, and it is marvelous in the eyes of the fossilized Southerners who sit upon the crumbled ruins of "Southern civilization," and weep because "Ichabod" is written thereon. All that Arkansas is to-day above the state of depression that prevailed fifty years, ago she owes to the benign influence of Christianity. In this work of Godlike benevolence the M. E. Church stands in the front rank with her eighty five itinerant preachers in the State, who are God's heroes, laboring to better the condition of others, and not expecting their reward in this life. In anti-bellum days the M. E. Church could not have lived and labored here. Her churches and colleges would have been destroyed like our seminary twice burned at Harrison, and her preachers would generally have met the fate of Rev. Mr. Buelah. Bnt now, since the advancing tide of Christian civilization has changed the current of thought and feeling in Arkansas, our preachers can labor with a tolerable degree of safety; but still, in obscure places, our preachers suffer outrages, such as that of Brinkley, Emmett, Murfreesboro and Lewisville.

The Little Rock University, the Arkansas Conference Seminary at Harrison, the Texarkana Gymnasium and Philander Smith College at Little Rock, are doing noble work, and are setting in operation a train of civilizing and Christianizing influences that will tell upon the destiny of the generrations of Arkansas throughout all future ages. The printing press has done a great deal in bringing about a better state of affairs. There has been great improvement in the quality of literature circulated in the state, and Christian papers, the Southwestern, Central and Christian Advocate are weekly visitors to many Christian homes and are doing effective work in leading the youth to Christ. It is true that there is still in circulation as vile literature as the foulest passages in Horace, Ovid, Catullus, or Martial; but it is to be found in the slums and sewers of society. These conquests of Christianity have not been won by might of sword; her victories have not been guided by worldly wisdom. By love, by persuasion, by patient toil and suffering, the self offered but God-called missionaries have done this work God be praised for their lives, their work and their successes. There is much yet to be done. The Great Captain is rallying his forces for the great battle. He expects every man to do his duty.

Letter From Houston District.

The Richmond Circuit Quarterly Conference, July 19 and 20, was a successful time. Bro. Geo. Davis is doing a good work. His report showed 50 taken into the church on probation, 40 conversions, 4 received by letter, 5 received into full connection, 7 subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, and the trustees had collected $64 65; paid out on improvements $66.85; cash on hand $3.80. Richmond Church is nearly filled with new comfortable seats, the whole property brightened up outside by whitewashing. Stewards reported $75.20 collected, collected $20 50 this quarter and $15 balance towards a monument to be placed at the grave of Rev. S. Hardwell, their former pastor. $2.85 collected for Freedmen's Aid. Through the Secretary of Houston District Camp Meeting Association this call is made for $500 to pay for the 25 acres of ground and erect the necessary buildings. Richmond members subscribed the first $50 in a few minutes. We have bought 30 acres for an orphanal home and general headquarters for home missionary work and workers, convenient to the two great cities of Texas—Houston and Galveston. The Richmond people are ready to do still better on that when the call is made. $40 was collected on children's day, but it was mostly spent for brass band music. This has been common here. A small school spent $30 last year with outside help. If $5 of the money had been spent for books and the training of home singers for the occasion, the scholars and the church would have been lasting gainers by it. In many places it has been the habit to exhaust the strength of the Sunday-school on May day and have only the dregs for children's day. Keeping May day was a habit before children's day was talked of among them. To change it is like changing the channel of the Mississippi river. Children and people go with such a rush preachers tell me they have to get out of the way. The example and influence of surrounding churches in many cases is not in our favor. They try to please all tastes and have, if they permit, in many cases, lager beer stands, dance platforms and little stomach bitters for those who would have the colic without it.

A sister wants to know if she and her husband are not one. Yes, sister, but you are the most one; you are he better half.

When surrounded by proud and frivolous multitudes, the Christian can say: "Teach me thy way O, Lord I will walk in thy truth; unite my heart to fear thy name."

Dr. Rush wishes us to say that the New Orleans University will open at the regular session in the new building recently purchased, and a live President, and an able corps of teachers, will be on hand.

A man with a small salary can never purchase a home, pay his debts and keep even, if his wife and daughter insist on dressing like the wife and daughter of a retired merchant for elegance.

Experience in Christian work and in the mercies of God, is an encouragement to further trust and faith and work. Thus do we realize that "mercy and truth are met together, righteousness and peace have kissed each other."

When we look to the past and consider all the goodness of God towards us we are strengthened in our confidence and purpose to trust for the future. "Righteousness shall go before him, and shall set us in the way of his steps."

Bishop Wiley, in view of his absence, has placed the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences in charge of Bishop Walden until the assignment is made at the Bishops' annual meeting. Bishop Walden's post-office address during the summer will be Cincinnati, Ohio, care Methodist Book Concern.

The call for a national convention of colored men in Richmond, Va., July 8th, was revoked, and the convention did not meet. We said in a previous number, that we regarded the call an untimely one. We feel gratified that our judgment has proven to be a reprehensible one. We are having too many conventions any way.

Rev. Mr. Plummer recently appointed, is not the first colored man to hold a chaplaincy in the United States Army, that position having been held by Rev. Francis A. Boyd, of Kentucky, in the 39th United State colored infantry, and also by Rev. H. M. Turner, now Bishop in African M. E. Church. However Mr. Plummer may be the first in this position to receive the rank and pay belonging to it, as the government formerly failed to bestow upon its predecessors what would have been simple justice.

A scientist, holding up the messentery of a healthy man before the gas jet, inquired of a Christian professor by his side, "do you believe all this beauty is going to be finally lost by death?" It was asked if the messentery of a cat was not equally beautiful, and if it was going to be lost by death? No answer.

We have received a picture of the Southern Exposition, which opens at Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16th, and continues until Oct. 25. The view is of the main building, which is one of the largest Exposition buildings ever erected, It covers thirteen acres of ground, and will be lighted throughout by five thousand electric lights.

For every child there should be a properly married father and mother. Evidence of this should be at hand when the ordinance of baptism is to be administered to infants. Some one should be responsible for the moral culture of children. God's plan is to have a father whose name can be told, and every child known by the name of its father. Some care and much discretion is in demand here.

The young colored lady of the period must not be less a cook than a classic. The aunt Chloe's who gave our race its history for epicurean taste and genius are rapidly passing away. The parlor, piano, organ and library are cold and cheerless things without the kitchen. Races are what their cooks make them. We eat to live. If the girls do not know how to prepare the food, the wives of the future will not. If they can not properly prepare the food the babies will die, then what about the race?

Young preachers should remember that the harvest comes after, not before seed time. The father worked a little and preached a great deal; you might, at least, work a little to help along with a poor appointment, when you see that the people, though willing, are quite unable to give you a comfortable support. There must be hardness at one end or the other of your ministry, and a house which is built with the gable end downward might be beautiful, but it can not be substantial. Then, again, if you do not learn in the school of adversity you will be totally unfit and ought to be ashamed to attempt to teach in that of prosperity. Signalize your right to command by learning to obey; to lead, by being led; to advise, by taking the counsel of your seniors and superiors.

Colored or white leadership for the colored people, which is best? Both. They must have both. The leaders of the people must come together for council and legislation, to compare notes and outline their plan of working just as we do, in our General and Annual Conferences. After that each leader must go where his talents and the circumstances fit him best to labor. This fact is recognized every where in our country except in the three divisions of colored Methodism. The educators of all races, the Baptist, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Catholics, Legislatures, Political conventions and Congress are mixed bodies where leaders meet. The perpetuity of the American system, and the development of the American idea also requires it. But then the exceptions to this rule are "African."

God Leads.

There is nothing taught more clearly in the Bible, than that God cares for His children, and leads them. He has given promise after promise, for encouragement in every time of need, and by the direct influence of the Holy Spirit. He opens and shuts doors, throws down walls of difficulty, or hedges the way with thorns, for those who seek His guidance. We cannot understand why God should thus love and care for a sinful world, but why doubt? "He shall feed His flocks like a shepherd; He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and cary them in His bosom, and gently lead those that are with young. Fear thou not for I am with thee, be not dismayed for I am thy God. I will strengthen thee. Yea, I will help thee. Yea, I will uphold thee, with the right hand of righteousness.

"For I, the Lord will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee fear not; I will help thee.

"I will bring the blind by a way they knew not, I will lead them in paths they have not known, I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight.

"Who gave Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to the robbers? Did not the Lord against whom we have sinned; for they would not walk in His ways, neither were they obedient unto His law. But now, saith the Lord that created thee, "I have called thee by thy name, thou art mine. When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee; when thou walketh through the fire thou shalt not be burned. For I am thy Lord thy God, the holy One of Israel, thy Savior. Thus saith the Lord thy Redeemer. I am the Lord thy God, which teacheth thee to profit which leadeth by the way thou shouldst go. O, that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments, then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea.

"Who among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness and hath no light? Let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God." These passages from Isaiah, how much of love is expressed in them! How much of power to comfort? Never were commands, promises and entreaties clothed in such words of beauty and strength! We cannot read them too often. They are food for the soul. God has reiterated them again and again clothed in different language so that they cannot be misunderstood. How like a fond and anxious mother is God. Where is there a true mother, who does not give her children line upon line, precept upon precept, as they go out from her into the snares and temptations of the world? Just so does God, only more than a mother can; he goes with His children and helps and guides them.

How the word of God has freed us from all care and responsibility of our own guidance! We need not contrive and manage, and do things for the sake of policy, concede a little to the wrong for the fear of lossing our influence. We may do right, and let God take care of the results. Our part is to yield ourselves, and go where He will lead, from misfortune and sorrow, to honor and happiness, and eternal life. Homes, friends, occupation, health, love, joy, peace and safety is promised to those who trust and obey God. Perhaps in this fallen world we may not always be free from discomfort but we may have resignation to His will. As we look around us, we see many of God's children, even, suffering unrest. Have they yielded all to Him and are they trusting Him entirely? God's promises are so definite, that if they fail there must be something wrong. We may by our unbelief make the Bible of no effect to us, then where would we be? Out on a boundless ocean, with no wisdom or might of our own, tempest tossed and without a guide! The fact that the Bible is exactly adapted to the wants of man, and leads out of darkness, upward, is a proof of its truthfulness. Let us cling to it, and follow its teachings.

"He leadeth me, O, blessed thought,
Oh words with heavenly comfort fraught.
Whate'er I do, where'er I be,
Still 'tis God's hand that leadeth me."

Argenta District Conference.

The district conference for the Argenta district, of the Little Rock conference, met at Van Buren Arkansas, July 10th in its first session for this conefrence year. After religious services the conference was called to order by G. W. Sams, presiding elder. Rev. A. J. Phillips, was elected secretary. Notwithstanding the attendance upon the part of the members of the conference was small, yet all of the business of the conference was properly attended to. All of the best interests of the district and of the church generally were looked after and discussed. The reports of the preachers showed that the interest of the charges and the church generally had been cared for by the pasters as far as we were able to hear. Though this is considered to be a hard year, yet the most of the brethren, who were present stated that their charges were in good condition financially. The brethren did not forget that our church wanted a pure ministry among the local as well as among the traveling preachers. The licenses of F. W. Weaver were revoked and he was left in the hands of his pastor for trial, on the complaint of profanity and and Sabbath breaking.

The religious and literary exercises of the conference consisted in the discussion of the following questions: Temperance, the itinerancy, and class-meeting system, and stewardship of our church. These topics were discussed by the brethren. Upon the whole this was the best session we have ever held. The work on the district is doing very well considering everything. Quite a good number have been converted and have joined the church. The brethren are pushing their collections this year. We hope to be able this year to collect every dollar assessed the district. The people seem to be anxious to have a chance to help raise $1,000 as a scholarship fund, for Philander Smith College, to help educate young ministers for the Little Rock conference. Brethren of the district, let me say to you, let us not put off this matter too long We want to commence so we can get through by the first of January.

Yours respectfully,

G. W. SAMS.

Arkansas—Then and Now. Sketch No. 3.

BY L. W. ELKINS.

The days of duelistic glory have past away, and lynch courts are no more. The slave is freed from his master, and never more shall the bugle sound of the pitiless overseer awake him with the rise of the morning star to resume the dreary toils of the long summer day. Educational facilities have been increased until now, a liberal education is within the reach of every youth in the State; churches, colleges, schools and universities can be seen everywhere with their spires culminating in the sunbeams. This is the Lord's doings, and it is marvelous in the eyes of the fossilized Southerners who sit upon the crumbled ruins of "Southern civilization," and weep because "Ichabod" is written thereon. All that Arkansas is to-day above the state of depression that prevailed fifty years, ago she owes to the benign influence of Christianity. In this work of Godlike benevolence the M. E. Church stands in the front rank with her eighty five itinerant preachers in the State, who are God's heroes, laboring to better the condition of others, and not expecting their reward in this life. In anti-bellum days the M. E. Church could not have lived and labored here. Her churches and colleges would have been destroyed like our seminary twice burned at Harrison, and her preachers would generally have met the fate of Rev. Mr. Buelah. But now, since the advancing tide of Christian civilization has changed the current of thought and feeling in Arkansas, our preachers can labor with a tolerable degree of safety; but still, in obscure places, our preachers suffer outrages, such as that of Brinkley, Emmett, Murfreesboro and Lewisville.

The Little Rock University, the Arkansas Conference Seminary at Harrison, the Texarkana Gymnasium and Philander Smith College at Little Rock, are doing noble work, and are setting in operation a train of civilizing and Christianizing influences that will tell upon the destiny of the generations of Arkansas throughout all future ages. The printing press has done a great deal in bringing about a better state of affairs. There has been great improvement in the quality of literature circulated in the state, and Christian papers, the Southwestern, Central and Christian Advocate are weekly visitors to many Christian homes and are doing effective work in leading the youth to Christ. It is true that there is still in circulation as vile literature as the foulest passages in Horace, Ovid, Catullus, or Martial; but it is to be found in the slums and sewers of society. These conquests of Christianity have not been won by might of sword; her victories have not been guided by worldly wisdom. By love, by persuasion, by patient toil and suffering, the self offered but God-called missionaries have done this work. God be praised for their lives, their work and their successes. There is much yet to be done. The Great Captain is rallying his forces for the great battle. He expects every man to do his duty.

Many houses have been torn down and hauled away. Houses and lots which sold for $1500 three years ago can be bought for about $150. There is very little work for laborers to do. But our people are doing all they can for the church; we commenced taking up benevolent money at the beginning of the year. Elder Sams visited us, but he was in poor health. A large number have paid their quarterage. So you see they are still trying to keep to the old land mark. Newport is a place where the people come and go all the time. Our church is very weak there, but I hope we will soon have a good society there. We are trying to raise money to finish our church there. When the church is finished or repaired so we can be comfortable, I think our work will move along. Eulogy.

By Rev. S. R. Hughes, at Asbury M. E. Church, Washington, D. C. Delivered June 29, 1884.

The occasion which brings us together is one of great moment—the contemplation of one of the purest characters of all the sons of Methodism, and one of the brightest gems that glistened in the ecclesiastic firmament. Though in contemplating upon this grand character our hearts are wrung with sorrow, in a sense, yet it is a stimulus to the mind, inspiration to the heart, and adds a charm to human life. There are a great number of men in the world, it is true, but of the number but few great men. The man whose memory we delight to honor and whose character and integrity this intelligent audience can abundantly testify, well deserves the epithet GREAT. In the council of Bishops M. Simpson acted as the leaven leavening the whole lump, and as the lever and force, in a mass, starting the ecclesiastic universe and propelling it in its majestic orbit around the central sun of truth and liberty. As to the Bishop's personal appearance, he was a good-looking man, about six feet high, and well proportioned; his intellectual faculties, phrenologically speaking, were amply developed; his bright eyes had a peculiarly penetrating glance, and when kindled under the inspiration of the pulpit, added much to the effect of his eloquence. All his features were expressive of intelligence and love, his whole bearing dignified and majestic, and the blending of these great and amiable qualities in his character commanded at once the reverence and confidence of all who knew him. As to his moral and Christian character, from the time of his conversion to the day of his death, Bishop Simpson exhibited a consistent and an exemplary piety. Though, doubtless, there were periods in his life in which his horizon of faith seemed to close in upon him, and his usual light supplanted by darkness arising from doubt, as is common with the best of Christian characters, yet he never forfeited his place in the church or tarnished in the least his Christian name. The uprightness of his deportment was acknowledged by friend and foe; and those of other denominations differing widely from him in creed and custom always accorded to him the reputation of "a holy man of God." But his piety was never ostentatious or austere. Among his most prominent qualities were modesty and humility; and a high degree of cheerfulness characterized his conversation. Irrespective of the ebb and flow of his religious enjoyment he was always careful to walk circumspectly before the world, that through his imprudence the cause of Christ might suffer no reproach. as a scholar his equal was seldom found; his superior nowhere found. He had the ability to penetrate the befogging speculations of Heterodoxy and to show the fallacy of the system. He set the infidel to wondering and pierced the skeptic through and through with the sword of the Spirit. The field of thought was his home; he walked with the great Master, listening as he unfolded to him great mysteries. He never grew wiser than his teacher, but felt himself a child to the last. Because of his superior classical and modern ability he was elected as tutor in Madison College at the youthful age of 18, and filled the position to the credit of himself and the college, as evidenced in his being promoted to the chair of Vice-President and Professor of Natural Science in the same college in 1837. He was consecutively elected President of the Indiana Asbury University, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, and Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church: He declined the offer of the Presidency of Woodward, Dickinson and other colleges, so as to be free to reach the masses of dying men. As Henry Clay would rather be right than President of the United States, so Bishop Simpson would rather be free to teach right to the masses than to accept the presidency of an institution where he could reach but few. As Thomas Jefferson, because of his matchless scholarship, was styled the sage of Monticello, so Bishop Simpson, on account of his churchmanship, statesmanship, patriotism, nobility, generosity, loyalty to the church of his choice and Christianity in general, well deserves to be called the sage of Methodism in the United States of America. As a preacher he was exceedingly methodical and perspicuous. His arraugement was never loose and vague, his thoughts never confused and mingled together; he was a wise master builder; he took care to lay a broad and firm foundation and then build thereon gold, silver and precious stones. There was a mutual relation of dependence borne on the parts of his discourse; his order was natural, so much so that a child could follow him; his manner so impressive that it was almost impossible to forget him. I heard him preach several times, first in Wheeling, West Virginia, where I had the honor, as well as the pleasure of being ordained deacon by him. Prior to the ordination he preached a sermon from Job 38, 7, "The morning stars sang together and the Son of God shouted for joy;" and again, at the Metropolitan M. E. Church, Washington, D. C., January 27, 1884, from Isaiah 42, 4, "He shall not fail nor be discouraged till He hath set judgment in the earth, and the isles shall wait for His law." Both of the sermons melted his audience into tears, and the impression made upon me by them time, with all its conflicting scenes and entangled devices, will not be able to eradicate. He understood himself, and was able to make his hearers understand and feel. As science passing its hand under, above and around the earth discovered its shape, so the Bishop investigated a text in all its extent. He had the power of making the most abstruse passages appear easy and plain; his talent enabled him to cast a ray of light upon the darkest parts of the Christian system. In his descriptive prayers he was equaled by none of his contemporaries, transcended by few or none of his predecessors. He had feeling as well as fancy, which distinguished him as an orator from the poet of his day; while the poet had the language of fancy, he had the language of feeling, and the power to make others feel and to move their will. His motto was that truth must be planted on the hot-bed of feeling if we would enjoy its fruits; and "truth from his lips prevailed with double sway, and fools who came to scoff remained to pray." But be it remembered he suffered not to be wrought up in an unmeaning fury, like a "tempest in a teapot," but was influenced and agitated by solemn considerations of truth, duty, interest and moral grandeur. The description of eloquence was realized in Bishop Simpson. He spoke what he felt and because he felt. The fountain of his soul flowed out upon his audience in streams of living water. He transported his hearers beyond the region of argument, leaving all their cavils and prejudices immeasurably behind, rapt them away to the third heaven of ecstacy. The secret of his power is found in his piety; a man of eminent faith and holiness; these virtues rendered him superior to himself, clothed him with a superhuman energy, 'till he seemed a messenger from the other world. By his eloquence, his audience was swept along the current of his discourse, acknowledging by tears and groans the preacher's hold upon their hearts, sometimes losing self control and bursting into extravagant expressions of wonder and delight.

The Bishop's labors were in a sense world-wide, and as successful as they were extensive. "The sound of heaven was to be heard in his sermons, the Holy Ghost attended his ministry. He had a large spiritual family in heaven awaiting his arrival, and leaves quite a number on earth who can claim him as their father in Christ. He was a connecting link between the beginning and ending of the present century; he had had the light, talent and taste of the beginning, and was enabled to accompany the career of Methodism in the morning of this century, and to follow its rapid strides in the evening. Thus the morning and evening light of the present century was in him. He had the strength to climb to the top Carmel in the morning and remain there during the heat of the day, and to behold the fire consuming the sacrifice and licking up the water. His strength continued by the hand of the Lord, so that he could descend from the mountain in the evening, run without fainting, leap into the chariot of God (drawn by the milk-white steeds of glory) and ride over the terrestial mountains, through the gates of pearl, into the New Jerusalem, the metropolis of God's golden empire, where he is crowned with an immortal crown, the besprinkled gems of which shine far brighter than the golden rays of the morning when seen shooting over mountains of pearl.

His chair is vacant in the Council of Bishops, but his seat in heaven is filled. He leaves the Church militant, he joins the Church Triumphant. His life is worthy of profound study, it is a volume the pages of whose imperishable record bear inscription wrought by the finger of God, it reveals to us God's model idea of a father, husband, preacher and philanthropist. But he leaves us, to rest from his labors, and the voice of the church says:

Rest, Bishop, rest;
From His throne the Lord has spoken,
And our strength and beauty broken;
Silent bow we, 'neath the rod,
Man is man, and God is God;
Rest, Bishop, rest.

Louisville Preacher's Meeting.

MR. EDITOR—Returning yesterday from a long and tedious yet, in many senses, an enjoyable business trip of three months "down east," it was a pleasant surprise to the greated and the meeting of old friends, when he dropped in upon the above meeting in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church to-day. This church, be it known to our friends far and near, is beautiful for situation. the joy of the old Methodist Episcopal Church, on the corner of Third and Guthrie streets, within a few steps of the Custom House and post office, Louisville, Kentucky. "Befo the wah," it was not known, not being in existence till that great leader, in the good providence of God, in 1865 prepared the way, through enterprising and devoted Christian effort, for the establishment and permanent stay, in this boasted Southern Metropolis, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Being still "in a crooked and perverse generation, the writer is thus particular relative to its location, that your readers, who may have occasion to visit the city will make their way to this house of God. Though a member of the above meeting, several months had elapsed since being privileged to sit in the body. "It was good to be there." Rev. I. A. Pearce, pastor of the church, and secretary, was in his place; the president, Rev. Dr. Jenkins, presiding elder of the Jeffersonville district, across the Ohio river, and Dr. G. L. Curtiss, pastor of Jeffersonville charge, Rev. Bro. Carter, pastor of one of our churches in new Albany, Indiana, yourself and Bros. McCoomer, Sims, and visiting brethren made the round dozen.

The instituting this Preacher's monthly meeting is for the gathering of the ministry and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church represented in the cities of the Ohio Falls, which includes New Albany, Jeffersonville and Louisville. It is hoped that the "old church," by its pastors, English and German, white and colored, will heed the call to assemble thus once a month alternately in the cities named. At this meeting new officers were elected. Rev. George L. Curtis, D.D., was made president for the ensuing term. Drs. Jenkins, McCoomer, Revs. Pearce and Carter, vice presidents, and Rev. I. A. Peace, secretary. A sermon predicated on the resurrection was read, as arranged for at the previous meeting, by Rev. Mr. Carter of New Albany, and discussed by the members. Suffice is to say all were interested and instructed. Your own remarks, dear editor, were timely, and the fallacies leading to heterodoxy and infidelity referred to, awakened the highest respect and thoughtfulness. At the close, too, your appeal to the preachers to aid you in the work to which you have lately been called, was well received and will be followed with corresponding zeal in behalf of the SOUTHWESTERN. The vice-presidents, as a committee on programme have divided up among the members, the work of preparing statistics of the numerical strength of Methodism in the Falls cities, to be reported at the next meeting. The writer is to prepare a paper for the same meeting on the centennial of Methodism. May great success attend you as editor, and the ministry be a unit in seeing you well supported with the sinews of war, as carried into Africa, at home and abroad, and abundant blessings attend you in your labors.

Very truly, W. H. O.

Letter From Columbus.

MR. EDITOR:—As I boarded the train at Columbia, about 50 miles from Houston, down on the Brazos river the other morning, I met about 8 or 10 Baptist preachers on their way to Houston, to attend an association. and in their company were a lot of women of the same church. Well the train had not more than started before I saw a bottle in one of their pockets. I tried to think it was water, and this could not be correct for the cooler was full of water and he had no need of water in a bottle. However I soon found out that it was whiskey. We had not gone but 4 miles and come to the next station, where there were still more came on with bottles of the poison stuff, women and men, also with pipes and cigars. I cannot tell you how I felt. And about eight more miles brought us to the next station (Chenango), where there was more ministers and delegates to came on board more drunken than the first. The train arrived soon at the next station (China Grove) where only one got on. I thought then that they were about done coming in with their smoke and whiskey, but we had gone only 3 miles and we came to Sandy Point, where they ponred on until every seat was filled, and some standing up for want of room to sit. And my! how they did hollow and laugh, all from the effects of strong drinks; and from there to Houston, a distance of 25 miles they kept the times lively. I noticed in the crowd a saintly looking man of light complexion that I think was possessed of the right spirit. I heard him tell one of his brothers who seemed to think it was no harm to drink, that he had struck the wrong man now on the whiskey question, that he did not think a man could hold a true light for sinners and drink whiskey. After a while the brother that he was talking to became so drunk that he cried out, "If this train runs off of the track I hope it will run in glory!" Then there was another one very drunk that railed out on the Methodists, and my good brother took him up on it, told him that Methodists were not against the Baptists, if he did hurt himself the Methodists never would. I thought it was a good lick he struck him. My Lord, have mercy on such so-called ministers of the Gospel! I believe in a clean church and a pure ministry. This was not only among men, the women drank and smoked their pipes. Mr. Editor, I don't want to make you tired with a long article, but I would like to say, as I have intended to say heretofore, a few words about the objections raised in the West Texas annual conference of the A. M. E. Church, held at San Antonio, last December, to the fraternal message sent to their conference by ours, that was in session at the same time. The so-called Dr. Pyle said that it should not be published in their minutes. First, "because it has reached us when said (M. E.) conference has adjourned and their brethren have gone home." Second, "It is due to us a moment for thought, reciprocation etc. In all cases of Christianity and modesty let dignity be respected and feelings of regard." Our bishops and brethren are men. In our conference on Saturday Rev. C. L. Madison made a motion and it was carried, that we appoint a committee to convey greetings from our conference to theirs. Rev. R. H. Harbert and myself were appointed as that committee. Afterwards Prof. C. P. Westbrooks was added. Harbert and myself being statistical secretaries, and the conference was to adjourn on Monday morning, we had of course to work late that night to get the tables ready for Monday morning, and as their conference (A. M. E.) was not going to adjourn so soon, we wrote out the greetings and sent them. Now I think the grounds of the Doctor's objections are not very high. We being adjourned did not hinder the accepting and publishing of the greetings. I think he had plenty of time for thought and reciprocation, as they did do, for two or three brothers made speeches on them, and about their adoption and publication. I am certain those speeches took up several moments. Again, I am certain we honored their dignity and regarded their feelings more than they did ours. As I suppose the A. M. E. conference nor Dr. Pyle either would have never during the session honored or respected our bishop and brethren's dignity by being first to appoint a committee to bear fraternal greetings to our body which they had time to do, as ours convened a day before theirs, and I know they had as much right to do so. No, this Dr. Pyle wanted to get up something, he did not know what, but I do. I see it is in the minutes of their session. I am glad it is in their journal because fair minded people who read them can easily see which body gave honor and respect, and how brotherly feelings were regarded. I reckon the West Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be blessed more abundantly this year after receiving the good God bless you of Dr. Pyle of the A. M. E. Church. I will say no more at present. One of your brothers.

Sunday-School Work and Education.

BY REV. JAMES L. PERRINE, OF LEXINGTON CONFERENCE.

Sunday-school work was long over-looked by the Christian Church. When the Scriptures say "A little child shall lead them"—"Suffer little children to come unto me," and the command to "feed my lambs" are beautifully suggestive of this work. In 1784 our church adopted, and in 1884 has organized, and in operation 21,400 such schools, containing 1,796,000 scholars. These have 220,500 teachers. In these schools, from among those scholars, there were 80,000 conversions during the year 1883. The marvelous rapidity and steadiness of our growth and power as a church has been due largely to this Sunday-school work. It is a feature worthy of special note that the annual increase has closely corresponded with the number of conversions in the Sunday-school. We claim that the baptism of young children is to be retained in the church, that the right of membership therein is to be granted to them as soon as they shall be able for themselves, to choose it. This has given our ministers great reason to study the relation of children to the church, and the church has greatly facilitated by adapting them to work among children. Nothing more fully establishes this than our statistics. There are now enrolled in our infant class a grand army of 360,000 "little ones." But in its purpose to prepare children for after years of usefulness, our church has gone far beyond the work of the Sunday-school. Methodism had its origin in a college, and almost the first step taken by organized Methodism in the United States was the foundation of Cokesbury College, for the support and endowment of which Bishop Asbury gave much anxious toil and weary hours of care. It was burned twice to the ground, but the thirst for knowledge was unquenchable. By its smoldering ruin the church though young and poor reconsecrated itself to the cause of popular education. In 1800 our church had 150 schools, embracing universities, colleges, seminaries, theological, medical, law, classical, and normal institutions for both male and female. Over and above all debts and many losses, our schools are probably worth $15,000,000. In these 1,300 [illegible] each night and day for improvement, and have, [illegible] great instruction to 400,000 students. With the coming century we ought to prepare to instruct millions, and these millions ought to be largely recruited from our Sunday-schools. Such is the intimate connection between the two branches of our work that we regard any man disqualified as a preacher or pastor who fails as a worker among the children, and dismiss every teacher from our colleges who is so utterly unworthy of such a position as to neglect to find Sunday employment in our Sabbath schools. Without a liberal Christian education it is impossible for any one to do the greatest amount of good in life. We want therefore to impress it upon the minds and hearts of Christian boys and girls that they are expected to fit themselves for a place in the highest rank of usefulness and that they are invited to come up into it. This will require effort, but effort is good, because it develops manhood. Children, we must have courage to succeed or we shall discourage parents who love us, friends who aid us, and after a while the church which has so bountifully provided all these noble facilities for us. What we need will be given us if we work to show that we need it. Our church has already in embryo a plan to aid deserving and needy youths who wish to enter the higher studies. The children can do much good, aided by the pastors in this direction, by a universal observance of Children's Day, and thus augmenting our connectional educational fund. In its operations this fund has already aided one thousand Sunday-school pupils to get a better education in eighty different schools. It is reported that two hundred of these have entered sixty of our conferences as traveling preachers, thirty of them have entered the foreign missionary work, in Bulgaria, India, Japan, Mexico, and South America. Still others have become teachers or have entered other professions. But never was the demand for help so urgent before. Let the offerings of this centennial year be only equal to our ability as a church and then they will be equal to our needs. The colored members this year should prove by their largely increased offering that the work bestowed upon, is in turn to come back from them, and bless others.

The Duty of Parents to their Children.

BY REV. JOSEPH COURTNEY.

We desire to write as though we were engaged in a common family talk, relative to the duties of parents to their children. Are we not responsible for their secular and religious training? Never were the minds of men more actively engaged about educating and training their children than now, because the age in which we live, is one of progress, and great thought. Our teaching and our influence does not end with ourselves, and our children in this world, but is perpetuated from generation to generation, and is only fully realized in the world to come. As is the way, so will be the end. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Influence is an inherent attribute of our nature, it is an indispensable element attached to us, it cannot be disposed of. It will only bear an aspect of us before God, according to our character and course of life here. The word influence is susceptible of two variations, good and evil. There is only one great right principle; and all we possess that is good, flows to us from that one great rich fountian, that fountian is God. We were designed by our Creator, to be the true exponents of purity and justice. The one great design of Christianity to-day, is to Christianize, and to mold the world of mankind into a Christ-like likeness. To accomplish and carry into effect that essential of all other works, God has employed us as authentic agents of its execution. We are educators, God has blessed us with the high favor of being fathers and mothers. We are to teach immortal souls for whom Christ died, pilots to guide them through all the perils and dangers of their infancy, a light upon their pathway. Oh! what manner of people ought we to be? The care of precious angels are committeed to us. To perform this duty successfully we should be endowed with the highest Christian qualities, for we are laying the foundation upon which the entire safety of the building depends. Educate your children with great care, for education commences its work with the child during its infancy, and steadily advances in its development through, if not beyond mortal existence. Not in all the history of the world do we find where parents manifested more interest toward the education of their children than now. This duty is imposed upon all parents, but more especially upon Christian parents, because they are members of the house of faith, responsible to God, and are under obligations to the church, for the religious culture of their children. A Christian influence, is the strongest element of power that can be brought to bear upon the mind of a child, but if that Chirstian and educational influence on the part of the parents should be bad, so will that of the child's be also. But by the way of contrast; suppose the parents' efforts are associated with a deep seated Christian piety, the same would be influence unto the child and it would soon develop into a thorough, moral and Christian character. We are invested with parental authority, we are to teach and train our children in the way that they should go, not in the way that they want to go. Among the finest cultured minded men that have lived, were those whose first schools were their own homes, and their first and best teachers were their own parents. The first lesson that was taught John Wesley, by his mother in her home school, was submission, and the next was obedience, that is to say, intelligent submission to parental authority; and of course piety, and all other good qualities are connected with these two essentials. To my mind, I see no way possible for us to throw off this duty, it is divinely imposed upon the human family; to neglect it would make us guilty before God, the church and the world. Your happiness and that of your children in this life, and of the life to come, depends to a great extent upon the faithful discharge of their duties toward them during their childhood. We now commend you to the care of the allwise Being; be true, be faithful, be dutiful and apt to teach.

Letter From Bishop Taylor.

REV. W. MCDONALD,—My Dear Bro.,—Your welcome letter received. As for African episcopacy, I never sought it, nor desired it, nor expected it to come to me; but by a sudden whirl of the wheel of Providence, it came,—the nomination, election, and ordination, all within twenty-four hours. The presence of the Holy Spirit was so consciously manifest that hundreds of the brethren said, "This is of the Lord." I so receive it. I cannot see through it, and don't need to. I see the leading hand of Jesus, and put my hand in His to be led withersoever it may please Him to lead me. I am sure he will not have me go back on our record in regard to self-supporting principles or work.

I have not been in India for over eight years, but have not ceased for one day in all that time to work for that land, and have sent them meantime, over fifty missionaries. Most of my remaining years will probably be given to Africa, so far as concerns my personal presence; but I can work for India and South America as well from Africa as I have wrought for India during the past eight years of my absence, and sometime, when the Lord is pleased to give me a "summer vacation," I can visit my churches in those countries and see how they do.

Africa is the most forlorn hope of all the field before the church. The Wesleyan Missions of South Africa have the great advantages of a salubrious, healthy climate, and the support and protection of pioneer English colonies. Their Kaffrarian mission stations were established by treaty through those colonial governments with Kaffir kings, securing the grant of lands for mission purposes, and the recognition and protection of the missionaries; and yet, with all these advantages, those faithful missionaries had from twenty to forty years of hard work to put into the grading and track-laying business, before the glory of the Lord was revealed in a Pentecostal gathering of souls.

On the Liberian Coast we have none of those advantages; and in any other part of Africa, wheresoever the Lord may lead us, we shall have to begin at the beginning of a preparatory work, like the building of a railroad to the Pacific Coast. My only hope for manifest results in my lifetime, is on the principle of Mahomedan propagandism; viz., self-support on the line of the most simple, fraternal, and rigid economy. All the money of all the missionary societies would be insufficient to pay the hire of the men required for such a work; whereas, the possible resources of our "Transit and Building Fund"—or, to use, perhaps, a better name, our "Foreign Educational and Church Extension Fund"—may be adequate to pay the traveling expenses of the evangelists and teachers to the country, and her itinerant tours in the country, and also for the building of houses for our various purposes; but no salaries paid at either end of the line.

Put Africa on the list of our self-supporting missions, except Liberia, which belongs to our regular Missionary Society, and whose sucklings there, possibly, cannot be weaned. It will be my pleasure to do everything I can to help the Society in her great work; but I cannot for a moment entertain the question of a let-up of any sort on the principles and mission of self support, which God has entrusted to me as a specialty. Such a question is not debatable. No one at this General Conference has raised the question.

Let all our dear friends pray for Africa and for me, that I may clearly discern the Lord's leading, and be led by Him in every movement.

There is no mandatory authority between me and the General Conference, and I am sure the General Conference will rejoice to learn at the end of each quandrennium, that the Holy Spirit is the Supreme Leader of His conquering armies in the Dark Continent.

WILLIAM TAYLOR.

—Christian Witness.

"Is the Democratic party for free trade or protection?" is the question now being asked by the plain people in the country. "Is the earth round or flat?" was once asked of a country school teacher. "Oh I'm not particular," was the reply, "some like it round and some like it flat; I teach either."—[New York Tribune.

One sure way of making the community in which we live, or the church which we attend, or the building in which we do our daily work, a better place than it is, is for us to start with correcting our own faults. Every reformation which amounts to anything begins with the individual, and no one of us will ever find a more suitable individual to begin with than—himself.

Like an old Creaky Window Shutter.

This is the way a man's rheumatic joints sometimes are. Hinges old, rusty, and worn, and badly need oiling. The trouble is in the blood. A man who is of any account is worth repairing. The repairing can be done by means of Brown's Iron Bitters. That enriches and purifies the blood, drives out the pains, and works complete restoration. Thousands testify to it from happy experience. Mr. C. H. Huntley, 918 North Sixteenth street, St. Louis, says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for rheumatism, general debility and prostration, with the best results."

Oscillating from Church to Church.

Every Pastor has in some degree and to greater or less extent, had to contend with this evil. It is perhaps more prevalent among our church members in the Sonth than elsewhere. The white people find its cause largely of a political, commercial and social character. Many of our people from beyond when coming South, after a few oscillations between their own and some church of greater power, because of greater likeness to the dominant order of things than their own, leave us. They are led by the blandishments of society people and a fascination of their elegance into a neglect of their own church and their dnty toward i. Business alliances and bnsiness competitions often form the gronnds of their estrangement from those of their own chnrch whose bnsi nesses are less predominant and far reaching. Political considerations also ent no small figure in working ont this disorganizing result. Some people gravitate toward power no matter what the character of the potentate or the end of its employment is. The steady growth and development of our white work in the Sonth reqnires not only money, bnt also snch an accommodation of their circumstances as will prove right, jns; and expedient, all things considered. Above all nnder God it needs and must have the personal influence and co operation of onr own people who come permanently or temporarily to sojonrn in the Sonth. If they are enlightened, refined and wealthy, if they are commercially inflnential and politically powerful, onr white work in the South ought to have the benefit of all these good conditions thrown to its help, by the identification of their possessors with i: in chnrch membership and work. It does not add greatly to the character of a person to worship numbers and blindly follow popular sentiments and social cnstoms. Our colored people suffer the same resnlts from a different cause operating throngh the force of different circumstances. They are largely inflnenced by the personal appearance or their likes and dislikes, of the matter and manner of the new pastor, and to show their disfavor attend another church where they finally form attachments and join, thongh snch was not their original intention. Then there is a strong pressure brought to bear by other Methodist communities upon such of our members as they presume to be weak and impressible. A great deal of proselyting has been snccessfully carried on by means of the old played-out twaddle abont "white bishops," "color line," "caste," and the like, continued without regard to truth or decency. Bnt the real element of success to such unchristian enterprises is the ignorance or gullibility of the snbject upon whom they operate. With the increase of Christian culture comes the loss o: their calling. A Christian is known by the steadfastness of his character. We shonld not only "stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage," bnt we should stand fast also in our denominational pride, relations and work. Once we were invited to attend St. Paul A. M. E. Church, St. Louis, because ours was "small, obscure, and composed of the lower elements of society." We told onr friend that his representation of the condition of onr church in that place presented the strongest possible reason to our mind why we shonld go there and give it the benefit of any possible influence we might possess. We did so, and found that his representations were false in almost every particular. Onr pastor was a scholarly gentleman, his home a handsome three story brick, the property of the church, and was finely furnished with an excellent library and all other needful arrangements. The church was a fine brick, and the congregation as to ... and numbers one of the best ... My informant was a ... for the African Methodist Church in the most offensive sense of that term. Not always ore onr chnrches as powerfnl as the one we refer to; in some places they are weak and uninfluential; and in most all places, Sonth as to the whites, and everywhere as to the blacks, you find the church drnmmer. Disconntenance them; they are nnworthy creatnres. Do as we did. Be true to the church and your brethren who are enduring hardness for Christ's sake.

Stand by Your Principles.

As a last resort Gen. Gordon was sent by the Gladstone power in Britain to the Sondan in Africa. When he went mnch was said of his Christian principles and the downfall of slavery as a resnlt of his appointment. Bnt he songht success at the expense of his principles and lo! his enterprises has not succeeded. The Soudanese have won a series of victories in the teeth of British valor, and in front of their scientific instruments of death. The false prophet will fail, and so will the Gladstone party, if by the abandonment of humanity they seek snccess.

There are 5,000,000 negroes in the Soudan. This conntry has snffered more than any other part of Africa by the slave traffic. Yet its vast host of people has been held in reserve there to answer the Almighty's pnrposes. They have fought most of the False prophet's battles and won the most of his victories. It has been a brilliant and so far a victorions campaign, bnt there can be no permanent snccess for hnman slavery, and Mohommedanism. Success for the false prophet of the Sondan means this. Hence his certain defeat in the end. England, France or Germany will prevail, whichever of them prove to be the exponent of right principles. The end is near; we shall not have long to wait for it.

Promise of a Redeemer.

When the Almighty announced onr first parents, He intimated the future redemption of manhood. To the serpent He said, "Thou art cursed above all cattle, npon thy belly shalt thou go, and dnst shalt thon eat all the days of thy life. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head and thou shalt bruise his heel." By the "the seed of the woman" is meant Jesus Christ, and by bruising the serpent's head is meant that Christ wonld destroy the work of the devil. When the fnlness of time was come, God sent forth His Son made of a woman. Gal. IV. 4 "The God of peace shall bruise Satan nnder your feet shortly." Rom. XVI. 20.

The resolntions pnblished in the Express this morning by order of Fifth avenne Baptist Church shows that the party in the church who wanted to change the pastor for the much mixed W. J. Simmons, had such bad luck that they had to deny their pnrpose and say that brother A. Heath "is not too black," and that "he has good enongh learning to preach Christ and him crncified."—Ohio Falls Express.

The prime cause of the instability of the Haytien government has been color prejndice between the blacks and the mnlattos. This has also been the great hindrance to prosperity in the Repnblic of Liberia. In the latter country these factions were represented from a political standpoint by the Hon. E. J. Roy and J. S. Payne, who were competitors for the Presidency abont 1868. At one time it is said that Drs. Blyden and Crummel held very stringent, almost fanatical theories on the color question; but they were probably not more strennons in their partiality for the black than Hon. John M. Langston is said to be for the mixed races. The social relation of the colored people between themselves is in a condition to require considerable overhauling. The peculiar relation which their clergy sustain to the race and to each other, is a snbject the study of which can now be commenced with great promise of usefulness to all concerned.

Our Church's Influence Upon Others.

"All I know of the Methodist system, I learned it while I was in the Methodist Episcopal Church." This is what a prominent Indiana clergyman, a minister, and presiding elder in the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church said to us lately. Our church is a great school of Methodism, in which the great men of all parts of the system have received their training in one way or another. Thank the Lord for this great influence, and for its overflow in a helpful way from us to others.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Walden has been constantly engaged since General Conference transfering his previons great trust to his snccessor. Still there is a freshness about him which tells that he is resting from mnch of the care which marked its presence by a slight paleness in his featnres a few months ago.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

T. P. Jackson, New Orleans: "I want to let our friends and the public know that Simpson Chapel is yet alive and in a moving condition. We observe i Sunday, June 22d, as children's day. The school and congregation attended en masse the 11, 3 and 8 o'clock services. The church was beantifully decorated. At the 11 o'clock service the p stor delivered an excellent centennial sermon, from Matt. 25, 4-27. After the sermon the son of onr esteemed presiding elder, Lewis Cnshman, presided at the organ with grace and elegance. At 3 p. m. there were splendid oratiohs and essays delivered. Why, sir, while we were on the inside singing and praising God, others on the ontside were with busy feet and throbbing hearts hastening to the place where God has promised to meet the children of men. At 8 p. m. the church was again crowded to its seating capacity, listening with attentive ears and hearts glowing with thanks to God, while onr organist, Bro. Louis Cushman, assisted by the danghters of Bro. John Page chanted (one at each organ) hymns of praise. The newly organized choir took no small part in the singing. At the appointed hour the snperintendant opened the exercises, and by reqnest Mr. Richard Williams rendered valnable services, for which we retnrn onr thanks. The collections were $7.35. The pastor gave the closing address. Pray for Simpson Chapel Sunday-school, its able snperintendent and humble pastor."

C. D. Shallowhorne, New Iberia: "Children's d y was observed, and the church beautifully decorated by Mrs. Hurst, ass sted by Mrs. Shallowhorne. A fine banner was presented to the school by me, bearing initials in gilt letters. There were addresses by Mrs. M. E. Johnson, J. J. Obe, H. Hurst, Mrs. Shallowhorne and others, closing with one by J. O. Richard. The day was enjoyed, and the collection $4.35."

TENNESSEE.

H. W. Key, Murfreesboro: "The centennial meeting will meet in Seay Chapel, the new brick church that I bought of Dr. Kynett for onr work, formerly owned by our white brethren. I recently made a payment of $700 on the property and took possession; also took ont a policy of $200 on the property. It is named for Rev. John Seay, who has given so mnch to aid our church work. I was down to see Bro. Seay on the 4th inst. Though he has been confined to his bed for months, he has not lost any of his interest for our work. He gave 35 ponnds of bacon, which is equivalent to $3.50. He also promised some outstanding debts as soon as they are collected. My prayer is that the Good Lord will restore Bro. Seay to perfect health and add to his life many years. I close np my fonrth year on the district. I have added two fine brick chnrches to the list of onr chnrch property dnring fonr years, valned at $20,000, only about $1,500 of that amonnt nnpaid. There has been 15 churches bnilt within the bonnds of the Mnrfreesboro district dnring the four years I have had charge, and two or three more being erected. I have donations from a great many friends, but none have been more liberal than father Seay."

A. P. Blakemore, Springfield: "Onr children's day was a joyful occasion, and exceeded any previons experience. The Baptist school joined ns in procession, and the chnrch was crowded. The children participated in the exercises. The collection $9.40. Afterwards an invitation was offered to sinners; six have been added to the chnrch. Bro. Gregg preached for me during protracted meeting, and there have been 17 additions to date."

ALABAMA.

M. McKenney, Scottsboro circnit: "Our second qnarterly meeting was held Jnne 21 22; A. S. Lakin, presiding elder, was present; the business of the qnarter was transacted Satnrday. Reports from the brethren showed improvement on the work. Sunday, at 11 a. m., the presiding elder preached an interesting sermon to a very large congregation, after which the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Collection $10."

TEXAS.

Thomas J. Donglass, Donble Bayou: "Honston Seminary is a most useful school. I believe God has given ns that blessing in view of the cond tion of the people in this part of the conntry. It has a beantifnl location in the city and shade trees shnt ont the dnst. Honston is a railroad center. The teachers love to do good, and the instrnction given is eqnal to any in the State. I desire to represent this school according to my knowledge of it. Pray for the school that it may be blessed with the mercies of the Lord."

J. Jones, Prairie Lea: "Our school is prospering; on Children's Day we collected $11,55. There are 60 students, and abont 45 are able to read the Bible. Our excellent day school teachers assist ns in Sabbath-school. There was a contest between Union Hill school and onrs, they won first, bnt we were finally victorions in the matter of taking up collections."

B. F. Smith, Calvert: "There are some things respecting this field of labor that shonld be known. Calvert is claimed to be a self-supporting charge. The amonnt collected for the support of myself and family the past six months is $92,35. I have five in family, so it averages $3 each per month. Food of the most common quality is costly here, and the person who does not consnme more than $3 a month scarcely lives, then where are clothes, fnel, etc., to come from? There is too mnch intoxicating liquor used by the people, and some of them protest against a rigid enforcement of the Discipline. I mean to stick to the tnth and defend the canse of my Master.

R. H. Ponton, Boxville: "I have had a hard time trying to preach the Gospel, and report 4 conversions, and a gain of 5 from the A. M. E. Church. The brethren of that denomination are very busy in making uncharitable reflections upon members of our conference."

GEORGIA.

Any one who should read this, having any books they wish to donate to a poor preacher who is laboring to build his people np, may address L. F. Becks, Palmetto, Georgia.

MISSISSIPPI.

Holly Springs: "I find two errors in the commnnication sent yon concerning the Methodist Women's Mntnal Aid and Benevolent Society, nnder the signature of "A Methodist." Instead of a division of $30,000 in should be $3,000; where yon say $2.16 per month it is $216."

R. H. Patton, Panlding: "Elder Campbell visited us and preached a good sermon. Ten children baptized; collection $13. At night we had a glorions time, and six were converted. I am doing all I can for missionary canse."

S. H. Nevils, Hazlehnrst: "At our children's centennial services there were 115 present. Rev. H. Terry, Baptist, offered prayer; the pastor, A. W. Banks, and Hon. W. Overton, delivered addresses on edncation. Rev. P. O. Gnllage closed the programme of exercises in which the children had participated. We had an enjoyable time."

New Orleans District.

One of the first votes passed by the Pilgrims after they landed at Plymonth Rock was that each man shonld bnild his own honse. In more sense than one do we approve of this action. Every man should build his own mental honse, do his own reading and thinking, and be snre that he keeps clear of all compromises, shams and delnsions. Every man shonld bnild his own moral house, and be careful that the s ructure be solid and enduring. The grace of self-help would enable not a few chnrches and congregations to bnild their own place of religions worship. Certainly this grace needs to be enconraged among oxr people.

The church and congregation at Sixth Street are resolved to help themselves. They are devising plans for the enlargement of their church at an expense of from ten to fifteen hundred dollars, which will secure for them one of the most commodions chnrches on the district. Not many years hence and Sixth Street passes to the front rank of our churches in this city. The Sunday school is large and prospering. Children's day was properly observed. The chnrch was neatly decorated, and appropriate addresses were made by the pastors and others. The children recited their verses with accuracy. The music was good. The collection amonnted to $12.10. A good religions interest prevails among the people. During the second qnarter 12 were converted to God; 20 were received on probation, 14 were baptized, and 2 received into full connection. One of the distinctive featnres of the religion of Jesus Christ is found in its life-originating and life-sustaining power. Our Lord never presented himself as an expert in logical formnla for his opponents. As a preacher he was eminently practical and personal. The argument that reaches most men is practical. If they are inclined to donbt mere hair-splitting distinctions or well worded theories addressed to the intellect seldom, if ever, produce dnce a change of purpose or condnct. But the precept and example are always life-inspiring. That preacher who most perfectly imitates Christ will be the most successfnl in indncing men to practice the truth. He will be able so to touch their hearts on Sunday as to influence them to carry the Gospel rule into the secular transactions of each day of the week. There is no argument like a holy life to unfold and enforce the regenerative truths of the Gospel.

At Clinton Street Bro. Ford is having a good measure of success. The Sunday-school and congregation are working harmoniously with with the pastor. The reports at the quarterly conference indicated a good degree of prosperity. The contributions of the classes were as follows: No. 1, $27.15; No. 2, $10.10; No. 3, $15.90; No. 4, $25.25; No. 5, $8; No. 6, $4.15. The reports were all good, and every one seemed to be cheerful and hapeful. Few things are more destructive than the common temptation in nearly every breast to put off for by and by what should be done now. This temptation seems to affect the old as well as the young. With reference to the urgent calls of duty most people think that to-morrow, next week, next year, will do as well as to-day, forgetting that present work if neglected will make future work all the harder. We pity the man or woman who is trying to do the work that ought to have been done year before last.

At Haven's Chapel our people are at least in one respect discharging present duty. On the 9th of May, 1883, they bought their present church property for $1000. They borrowed $400 to make the first payment, the remaining $600 was to be paid in four equal annual payments. The fact that they had come in possession of this nice property evidently displeased the devil and he sent forth a lying spirit among the people, and about one-fourth of the members withdrew and organized a Baptist church that reaps only what it sowed. Those remaining came close together and went to work. From friends in the North enough was secured to pay the $400 borrowed, to make the first payment, while the church raised enough to take up the first note of $150 and interest, due May 9th. To day our people at Haven Chapel have a property worth not less than $3500, with only a debt of $450, and the first Sabbath of each month is given to the trustees who, with the pastor, are making vigorous efforts to have the next $150 in hand when the note shall become due. The church and congregation are gradually increasing. The Sunday school is one of the best on the district. Let no one say that the "former times were better than these." Never was there more spiritual power in the church than now. We could wish that there was more of a disposition to go out into the by-ways and hedges after the lost, but in this respect the "former times were not better than these.' The outlook is full of promise. The "handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon, and they of the city shall flourish like the grass of the earth."

L. P. CUSHMAN.

History of Clark Chapel M. E. Church, Nashville, Tennessee.—No. 1.

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

The thought has often come to me that we, the members of the Tennessee conference, ought to have a conference historian; so that we, in future, may be able to have material, etc., from which the history of our conference can be written. I wish in these series of articles to give a complete history of the leading church in our conference. I say leading church, because it is situated at the capital of the State and numbers among its members some of the leading men of the race in the South. I am sorry to say that in the case of this church, and in this respect I fear it is an example of a good many, if not all, of our churches, no historical record has been kept by any of the pastors who here had charge, at any rate no such record has been found, and I have gotten these points from sketches here and there in Davison College Record. In the year 1847, [illegible] to hold in trust for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a lot seventy-two by ninety feet, fronting on South Franklin street between College and Cherry streets. On this site was erected a substantial brick edifice, two stories high, with entrance on Franklin street, and two enterances, one on the East and the other on the West side of the basement; the front entrance made over a flight of massive rock steps, called Andrew Church, so named after Bishop James O. Andrew. The society occupying the church had recently moved from the corner of Market and Franklin streets, where they suffered no little embarrassment on account of lack of sufficient room to accommodate the numbers who attended the services. They continued to worship at the latter place until the year 1865, when the property was sold. There being in the city a vast number of colored people unable to provide themselves a place of divine worship, though enthusiastically attached to our beloved Methodism on account of her past record on the question of slavery, and her desire to do all possible for the elevation of the race's condition, the Missionary Society of our church, under the supervision of our beloved Bishop D. W. Clark purchased the property. Immediately that man of God called our people together in this magnificent place of worship and organized all who desired to enlist under the old flag of Methodism. A board of trustees, consisting of Randall Brown, Squire Fain, Elias Polk, (former steward of President Polk and still a member) and others were elected by the quarterly conference, to whom the property was afterwards deeded. In consideration of their high esteem of Bishop Clark and their ardent love of Methodism, these trustees named the church Clark Chapel, which name it still retains. Methodism always believed in the education of her communicants, and in the case of our people she has never relaxed her ardent desire for their education, and in this instance, to provide educational facilities for a hitherto neglected portion of the citizens who were just emerging from slavery and its concomitants, ignorance and superstition, a school was opened at once in the basement of Clark Chapel, where a large number of our downtrodden and dejected people received at her hands instruction. Revs. John Seay and O. O. Knight, two of the most sacrificing, earnest Christian servants of God, who until to-day believe in and preach every where the grand doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, had charge. We pray that their shadow shall never grow less and that their good works may follow them. Thus we see that Clark Chapel is the mother of our educational work in the State of Tennessee. Just here we have a beautiful picture that the Tennessee conference historian must not fail to weave in; that many a family among us have begun the education of a daugter in an humble manner in some dingy cellar, and when an opportunity affords she enters college, and when she returns home spreads her benign influence, scatters sunshine and smiles where despair and doubt once reigned without a rival. Comes home knowing more about everything than mother; washing, ironing, sewing, cooking, reading, and calls the once familiar dog and cat canine and feline animals; her thoughts seem to dwell in the clouds and she talks of cities and countries mother never thought of. Nevertheless she is Mary to mother, and she points with pride to the girl who has outgrown the "hoe-cake," and "straight cut frock," and tells every body far and near "that's my girl." Just see her to day sitting there upon a hill in South Nashville, with her name changed to Central Tennessee College; with four hundred children, and from that hill of beauty seems to rule the world. The new society commenced under favorable auspices and grew rapidly, when its progress was arrested by an unfortunate division. A few bigoted persons succeeded, by slander and misrepresentation, in producing a feeling of disatisfaction, which resulted in the withdrawal of a considerable number, who went out and formed themselves into an African Methodist Society. The spirit characterizing this movement here and elsewhere is aptly, and I think accurately, described by Milton where he puts into the mouths of others "Here we may reign secure, and in my choice to reign is worth ambition, though in hell. Better to reign in hell than serve in heaven," and hence but few if any, who were then in office, uncha lenged left our church. Revs. John Seay, (white) Daniel Brown, (colored), W. B. Crichloir, (white), J. Braden, D.D. (white), assisted by Calvin Pickett (both colored), J. Pickett, J.G. Thompson, Wm. S. Butler, second term, C. S. Smith, from Atrican Church, C. W. Woods, D. W. Hays and H. M. Hagood (all colored) have served this charge. The latter two serving three years each. During the ministry of these several pastors, stretching over nineteen years, this church has often had fightings within and fears without, but rather more of the former than the latter. Each of these pastors made his mark, some of which the church is not ashamed of. It is impossible to speak of the work of these pastors separately as in many cases no record of the work of the church, the years they were pastors was made or kept. Rev. Daniel Brown died in Murfreesboro, from a sudden attack of sickness while on a visit to that place, while pastor here. Those who know Rev. John Seay who now lives not far from Lebanon, Tennessee, and a superannuate of our conference, and of his princely giving to our churches in Tennessee, and of his Godly life and the high esteem in which the people hold him, know that my pen can never portray his character or call up a reminicence of him not already legibly written on the hearts of his admirers Of Bro. Crichlow but little could be learned more than that he had the interest of the church at heart and worked for its advancement. When he was removed the Rev. John Braden, D.D. was appointed. He having formerly been a vocal music teacher in Ohio, during his successful pastorate, was well qualified to take charge of a people whose very nature was musical, and whose souls flowed out in song. His pastorate was successful in every respect, sore it was he was a white man, and here the superstition and ignorance of those days met him every where. Hooted at by white Southerners on the street as a "nigger preacher and teacher," and talked about by colored men, who were too ignorant to lead those they had huddled together; but the most of the complaint came from those colored men who left our church, and indeed it was the reiteration of that old story of the union of Pilate and Herod Those were days that tried men's souls who dared teach or preach for colored people. He was succeeded by Rev. Wm. S. Buttler, a very dark, but noble looking son of his race. The enemies of the church could not say he was white unless they were utterly blind, but they said he was a servant for white folks, and hence he too felt the sting. He did probably all he possibly could for the advancement of the condition of his people. Having enjoyed but few, if any, educational advantages he, by close application to study and earnestness of purpose, learned to read, and thus was of service to his people who were then without leaders of moral stamina.

San Antonio Sunday-school Convention.

The San Antonio District Sunday-school Convention met according to appointment at San Antonio, July 10.

Presiding Elder G. W. Richardson in the chair opened the exercises by reading Cor. vi. 13, which was followed with singing, lead by Rev. G. O. Richardson and prayer by Rev. A. R. Norris. The following officers were elected:

Secretary, Miss P. M. Glover; Assistant Secretary, Miss A. Goodrich; Treasurer, J. C. Mays; Organist, Miss Ella Frazier.

About forty were enrolled and took part in the convention. Three committees were elected to bring in reports and resolutions.

1. Sunday-school literature.
2. Temperance work in Sunday-schools.
3. The Sunday-school Missionary Society.

After organization G. O. Richardson of the Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, who was sent by Rev. A. H. Gillet, agent of Sunday-school Union, to hold conventions in Texas, explained the work and the purpose of the meeting. The convention decided to hold a teachers' meeting at 4 p. m. each day. To spend the time of night services in platform discussions of two important features of Sunday-school work. Hold a model Sunday-school at 9 a. m. to be followed with criticism and sugestions brought out by the work of teachers in the model Sunday-school, and half an hour devoted to question drawer.

Seven questions were received the first session and distributed to seven persons to be answered the next day. The teachers' meeting was attended. The time spent in studying the third lesson of the third quarter, and impressing the thought that teachers were to work for, pray for and expect conversions every day till all their classes were converted.

At night the relation of the adults to the Sunday-school was discussed as follows.

The necessity of having grown folks in Sunday-school, by Rev. M. Henson. How to get them into the Sunday-school, by Rev. G. W. Richardson.

How to keep them in the Sunday-school, by G. O. Richardson.

The handling of these topics answered brother Harveys' question, How should Bible classes be conducted?

Second Day—Morning session, model Sunday-school met in pursuance of adjournment. Children and adults enough were on hand to form seven classes. G. O. Richardson drilled the school in singing, using selections from songs of Redeeming Love and D. C. Cook's song Cluster for the primary classes. After opening five minutes were given the teachers to teach their first six questions of the Catechism. Twenty-five minutes to teach Bible lesson. Five to call the roll, take up collection and bring small classes to the front. Seven minutes for review by the superintendent, which was followed by secretary's report, singing and dismission.

After a few minutes intermission the convention was called to order by the chairman.

Criticisms were in order; most of them were in praise of the work done. A few were too much confined to the journals and the printed questions.

The answers to the questions assigned the day before disclosed the fact that the members of the convention only needed to exchange their stock of information and experience to clear up the troubles and difficulties that each found in his particular field.

Afternoon session, Teachers Meeting was better attended and interest increased.

Night session, topic Temperance Work in Sunday-schools.

Miss M. M. Vaughn discussed the Band of Hope work in Sunday-school. Having established a band in her school in Riddlesville she spoke with the authority of experience. If we had all our Sunday-school superintendents up to her standard of knowledge, zeal and tact on this question, it would not require many years to create a public opinion that would demand, obtain and operate a prohibition law in the State of Texas.

Mrs. C. A. Richardson followed with a lecture on temperance, using as a text a chart illustrating our liquor and tobacco bill as compared with what we pay for necessities and comforts, compiled from the last United States census. It was a telling speech.

The presiding elder worked out the following arithmetical question on the black board: If a man spends on the average of five cents a day for tobacco how much will he spend in eighteen years?

The third day was much like the second only the interest kept increasing and the work was more thorough.

Fourth day, Sunday-school was in the charge of G. O. Richardson. The faith of the teachers had reached such a degree that there had been earnest pleading with the Lord to give us some conversions in our Sunday-school. While we were singing our first hymn "Jesus is the Friend of Children." A young man got up and came and knelt by the organ for prayers. When they were coming unbidden we thought it a good time to extend the invitation. One old man and six boys responded. While we had two seasons of prayers two were born in the kingdom; the young man and Bro. Henson's twelve year old son, Isaac. We then went to our lessons, with more interest on the part of both scholars and teachers than is usual. Closed the convention with a Sunday-school convention love-feast, every body old and young who felt that they loved every body else was invited to partake of the bread and water. Then followed short talks in which the workers reconnted the good they had received from the convention, and others declared their love to God and intentions to live pure faithful lives.

Nearly all the Sunday-school at the close of the service stood up and holding up their right hand said: I will be a Christian by the help of Jesus. It was a precious occasion. The field seemed indeed ready for the harvest. Have since learned that Bro. M. Henson has followed up our work with special meetings and several more both old and young have been converted.

Matthews, one of the editors of The Current, has a paper entiled "Private Citizens"; an interesting paper is by A. Flexner, on "The Bacon-Shakspere Controversy"; while Charles J. O'Malley contributes the second of his delightful papers on "Summer in Kentucky."

Prof. R. T. Greener has recently made an extended tour through the Southern States. His opinions of the progress of his race, as reported by the daily press, are worthy of great respect. Few men are better qualified to form a correct judgment. He finds more pride of race, more independence of character, greater neatness of dress, a stronger desire to enter business, and increasing thirst for education. He expresses high admiration for the work of the missionary teachers. He found the Negro not only in the cotton-field and tobacco-factory, but acting as carpenter, wheelwright, hackman (often owning the stable), blacksmith, brakeman, and in other avocations. He returns very greatly encouraged as to the future of his race. It is a burning disgrace that this cultured gentleman was four times ordered out of "first-class" cars; and it is to his credit that in each case he refused to go. —N. Y. Advocate.

BREAKFAST ROLLS.—Sweet or sour milk, two cups; sugar; one cup; salt, one teaspoonful; compressed patent yeast, one cake; flour to make a stiff batter; eggs, two; butter, four ounces. Set the yeast melted in the warmed milk, sugar and salt to raise in the flour over night. In the morning cream the butter before the fire, and with a teaspoonful of soda add to the batter, which corrects any sour. Add the eggs well frothed and flour to make a soft dough. Shape into rolls, and set to rise in buttered tins till well sponged; bake quickly. Some cooks wash them over with milk and scatter salt crystals and fennel on top of each.

APPLE CHEESE.—Pulp any quantity of apples, and to every pound of pulp add a pound of powdered sugar, the grated rind and juice of four small lemons and four well beaten eggs. When the ingredients are well mixed put them into a stewpan in which butter is melted in the proportion of one ounce to every pound of mixture. Stir it over a moderate fire until all the butter is thoroughly absorbed, then pour into pots or glasses. If tied down like jam and kept dry but not a hot place it will keep for many weeks.

An excellent meat sauce is made with a pint of vinegar, two spoonfuls of mustard seed, two of horseradish grated, two small onions cut in bits, a teaspoonful of red pepper, and a little salt. Put this in a glass can and set it away for a week or two, and it will be very nice when prepared for the table. If any sediment rises on the top skim it off before pouring out the sauce.

Unleached wood ashes added to the bed will keep it free from worms.

FOR MAN AND WIFE.—The inward neatness and beauty of mind in womankind, but it can be entirely destroyed by the slow process of discouragement and the belief that nobody cares. The truth is that human beings need not only food and clothing, but to see fresh-ness and change; and there should be no more of pleasure and interest for woman than to the man. There is much that she can do without him. She can scrub floors, but he could and should whitewash the ceiling. She cannot paint walls, perhaps, though sometimes a wife has done that; but give her the money, and she will buy the paper and find some one to hang it. After her floors have been scrubbed away and her dry-goods, any man who has ordinary tools can make the frames and screens for her windows and doors. If, besides this, he can buy the prepared paints, and little by little gives a fresh coat to the various rooms, it is no more than his share of the task.

SALAD.—Cut up and season the lobster the same as for Salad. Break the leaves from a head of lettuce one by one, and wash thoroughly in a large pan of cold water. Lift them in a pan of ice water for about ten minutes, and then drain in a wire basket to free them from water. Place in the ice chest until serving time. When you are ready to serve put two or three lettuce leaves in the form of a cup, and arrange these leaves together on a flat dish. Mix one tablespoonful of the mayonaise dressing with the lobster. Put a tablespoonful of lobster in each cluster of leaves, and garnish with a teaspoonful of the dressing on each spoonful of lobster. This is an exceedingly invitting salad. There should be two-thirds lobster and one-third of lettuce.

JELLY.—Take one [illegible] ingredients [illegible] simmer [illegible]

fuls cold or dissolved, where great exhaustion is experienced), or can be dissolved as a common liquid, and added to gruel or milk.

CHICKEN SALAD.—Take equal parts of chicken and celery, or half as much chicken as celery. Cut the chicken in quarter inch slices. Scrape, wash and cut the celery in slices. Mix with French dressing and keep on the ice till ready to serve. Make a mayonaise dressing and mix part of it with the chicken. Arrange the salad in a salad bowl or dish, and pour the remainder of the dressing over it, and garnish with celery leaves and capers.

The Drunkards' Dream.

"The drunkard dreamed of his old retreat,
Of the cosy place in the tap-room seat.
The liquor gleamed in his gloating eye,
As his lips to the sparkling glass drew nigh.
He lifted it up with an eager glance,
And he laughed (ha! ha! ha!) as he saw the bubbles dance.
Here's a truce to care, an adieu to pain,
No more sick heart and weary brain,
Welcome the cup with its dreamy foam,
Farewell to work and a mopey home,
With a jolly crew and a flowing bowl,
In tap-room pleasures I love to roll.
Like a flash there stood at the drunkard's side,
His angel child who that night had died;
With look so gentle, mild and fond,
As she tapped his glass with her little wand;
And off as he tried that glass to drink,
She silently tapped on its quivering brink,
Till the drunkard shook from heel to crown,
And set the untasted goblet down.

"Hey! man," cried the host, 'what meaneth this;
Is the man sick, or the dram amiss?
Cheer up, my lads quick the bumper quaff."
And he glanced around with a fiendish laugh.
The drunkard raised his glass once more,
And looked in its depths as of old before,
And started to see on its pictured foam,
The face of his dead little child at home.

The landlord once more at him sneered,
And the crowd of swaggering drunkards jeered.
But as he tried that glass to drink,
The wand of the dead one tapped the brink.

The landlord gasped; 'I swear, my man,
You shall drink every drop in that flowing can."

The drunkard bowed to the very brim:
His heart beat fast and his eye grew dim.
But the wand beat louder than ever before,
And he dashed the cup to the bar-room floor.

As all around the fragments lay,
And the poisonous current rolled away,
The drunkard awoke: his dream was gone;
His couch was bathed in the light of morn;
And he shook with pale, cold fear,
A beautiful angel hovered near.
He arose; that seraph was with him still,
Subduing his passion, controlling his will.
It dashed from his lips the maddening bowl,
And victory came to his ransomed soul.
And ever since that night he dreamed,
The drunkard has been a man redeemed,
And this is his prayer on that dawning day,
And this is the prayer let us help him pray,
That sin is may come in every land,
To dash the cup from the drunkard's hand."

Preserve Your Voice.

The voice is so important a matter to a public speaker, that he can hardly err in giving constant attion to it. And to this end he needs professional advice. In this, as in other things, he cannot see himself as others see him. We once knew a physician who regularly took his carriage to the blacksmith, not to remedy defects discovered, but to see if any defects could be discovered. Usually a screw would be found loose, or a brace was started, or a nut was about dropping off. He was a wise physician. He took one of the stitches that saved nine.

Just so, a preacher should, at not distant intervals, submit himself to the discreet critio—the practal elocutiononist. It will be a marvel if no defect is discovered. "Mannerisms" are always forming. Bad intonations, "sing-song" accents, false emphasis, come like barnacles to a good ship. The victim does not feel them. His friends both feel and hear them!

We remember the convenient proverb that he who drives fat oxen need not himself be fat. Therefore we advise the preacher—young or old—to submit himself to the inspection of the proper expert. It will prove a good investment in more ways than one.—Christian Leader.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people that I left in Marshall county, Miss.—my mother, brother and three sisters. I have not seen or heard from them since the war. My mother was Lucinda, father Willis, but he died when I was a small boy. My brother's name was John, my sisters Dorcas, Mary Ann and Hannah, who was the baby when I left home. My name was Riley, and we belonged to Lem Smith. Our mistress was Loveley, who was the daughter of Joseph Chairs. We fell to Mr. Smith, by his wife. My brother Isam was my mother's oldest child, and sister Dorcas the next, then a brother died of the lockjaw by cutting his big toe; his name was Pressly, but we called him Pedler. Riley, Mary Ann and Hannah were very small when I left home. We lived about 7 miles Northeast of Holly Springs, near a village called Hudsonville, and than people would get off the cars at Sylvester Church, and if that church still stands please tell the preacher in charge to read this to his congregation. Address Riley Smith, Giddings, Lee county, Texas, in care of Rev. T. J. Smith.

MR. EDITOR—My father was Scipio Moore and mother Rachel Young, belonging to Wade Young. Father was taken away when I was three days old. Mother had three children, three boys and one girl. Mother died when I was young, five miles east of West Point, Miss. I wish to hear from father. Address me at Meridian, Miss.

S. YOUNG.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to inquire for my people. I left them in Rutherford, Tenn., in 1849. They belonged to D. C. Dement; he died and they were sold to James Fleming. Their names were Austin Dixon and Dilsia Dixon. They had three children with them, Caroline, Virgil and William. The last I heard of them they were living with Joseph Dement in Carroll county, Tenn., in 1869. The latter were my grandmother and grandfather. My mother's name is Mary Jane Ford, their daughter. I was brought to Mississippi in 1850 by Lucinda Dement. I was called Beriah Dement at that time. Since then my name is changed to A. B. Dickson. Address me, care of Rev. N. Pearce, Yazoo City, Miss.

A. B. DICKSON.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to find the following named persons: My mother Sally, (father Abraham Turner, died during the war), brothers Isaiah, George Washington, often called Lit, and one whose name I cannot remember; sisters Sally Eliza, Nancy Franklin and Matilda; aunts Eliza, Phillis, and Winnei; and uncle Mack. I am the oldest child and got lost from her and the children during the war, as she stopped to get some meal from a mill, and the army of soldiers moved on. I have never seen or heard from them since. I think it was Sherman's raid in North Carolina. Before the war we were owned by Gary Druhorne, in Simpson, N. C., and after his death his widow married a Mr. Hudson, and at her death we were divided off to the children of Gary Druhorne. His children were George T., one I cannot remember, Martha Jane, Francis Ann and Nora. Uncle Mack was sold to Blaney Williams, near or in Clinton, N. C. I was called by the names Nettie, Nep, Hetty and Big Sister by my brothers and sisters. Their whereabouts will be gladly learned by me. Address me, Ester Turner, New Haven, Conn.

A Valuable Remedy for Gravel.

The Methodist Book Concern has recently issued the Autobiography of Bishop E. O. Haven. He was editor of Zions Herald, in Boston when the war for the Union began, and thus speaks of Dr. Round, now Senior Professor in the Centenary Biblical Institute:

"My young assistant editor, Rev. J. Emory Round, recruited a company of soldiers in our office, and was chosen and commissioned a captain. A brother-in-law of mine was one of his soldiers, and subsequently came home to my house with just strength enough to enter his room, which he never left alive. Captain Round, after serving his time, returned, and since the war has been the successful President of the Centenary Biblical Institute of Baltimore, where a large number of ministers among the colored people have received an education. Quietly and unostentatiously he has been doing a noble life-work. It is doubtful whether any missionary in a foreign field, or any college president at home whose name is widely known, has done more to advance the best interests of his generation."

It is 150 fee in height, cost $250,000 to which cost more than 250 000 Frenchmen subscribed, and it is so far finished that it will be ready to be shipped to this country in the course of the coming summer.

HALL'S

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe.

Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause; the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

—AND—

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. The music has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational signing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE

TO

Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn, and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practial route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

The "faithful" from this country who purpose visiting Italy, and enjoying the pleasure of kissing the Pope's toe, will be saddened to learn that his Holiness is so troubled by an ingrowing nail as to render the least pressure on the foot intensely painful. Fortunately, however, this affliction is confined to the great toe, and the Pope has substituted the left foot for the right in this important ceremony. The true Catholic will find no difficulty in believing that the left foot is the right one when the Pope says so; and we see no reason why the exercise may not be just as charming and enlightful, just as rational and philosophical, just as religious and profitable, with the great toe of the left foot as of the right one. A Tariff Fact.

Some of those who have been so earnestly asserting that the South needed no protection for its iron industries, and that iron is made there now so cheaply that it can be transported to any part of the country and compete successfully with any imported iron, do not account for the fact that it is not sold now in American markets where a price rules, which, according to their figures of cost of production and transportation, would give a handsome profit to the Southern furnace man. They do not explain why Southern iron does not seek and monopolize these markets. Taking Mr. Robert P. Porter's figures as to the average cost of producing a ton of pig iron at eleven representative furnaces in Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, which he puts at $12 08 per ton, with the added statement that with transportation added this iron costs $15 25 in Cincinnati or St. Louis, and $17 25 in New York, the price of No. 1 anthracite pig in New York, $20 50, would give the Southern maker a handsome profit. Taking the Courier Journal's estimate on the cost of production the profit would be still better, and yet we do not find the Southern irons monopolizing those markets or cutting any figure in the New York market. The truth is that different kinds of iron are needed for different purposes, and the Southern cold-short irons and fine chilling hematites will not answer all the purposes of founders, steel makers, and other consumers of pig. The South does not make, and is not likely to make, in large quantities any other brands than those two, and, therefore, cannot supply, much less monopolize, the iron business of the country. Supposing that the Southern iron manufacturers needed no protection, which they do not admit, other manufacturers whose product is essential to the iron business do. No country can afford to be dependent for its iron supply on foreign sources, and it is in the interest of the whole country that there should be such a duty on pig iron as will enable the abundant ores for all purposes, which we possess, to be utilized.—Louisville Commercial.

The Democratic Nominees.

Stephen Grover Cleveland was born at Caldwell, Essex County, N. J., in 1837. His father was a minister of the Presbyterian Church who died when his son Grover was fifteen years old. The family were unable to give him a collegiate education, but he attended a high school at Clinton for some time, and was afterward for two years a teacher in a blind asylum. He then went to Buffalo, and entered a law office, where he remained until his admission to the bar. In 1863 he was appointed assistant district attorney of the county of Erie, and in 1869 was elected sheriff of the same county, and in 1881 was made mayor of Buffalo. In 1382 he became governor of New York. He has never married; is a large man, weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. Governor Cleveland's great grandfather was a city missionary in Boston, and was widely known as "Father Cleveland;" his grandfather was for twenty-five years a deacon in the Congregational Church. We have no information as to any religions proclivities in this politician of such orthodox descent.

Thomas A. Hendricks, the Democratic nominee for Vice president, was born in 1819, in Muskingum County, Ohio, but was taken by his parents to Indiana when but a few months old. After a course at Hanover College, he went to Chambersburg, Penn., to study law and was admitted to the bar in 1843, when he returned to Indiana, settling in Shelby County. He began his political career as a member of the State Legislature in 1848; was prominent in the Constitutional Convention of 1850, and was in Congress from 1851 to 1855. In the latter year President Pierce appointed him commissioner of the general land office, which office he continued to hold under President Buchanan until 1859, when he resigned. He was afterward made a senator in Congress for the long term, which ended in 1868, where he served on several of the most important committees. In 1872 he was elected governor of Indiana, which office he held until 1877, when he resumed the practice of law. In 1876 he was nominated for Vice president by the Democratic convention on the ticket with Mr. Tilden. Mr. Hendricks has a good presence and social qualities, and his domestic life is irreproachable. He is an Episcopalian.—Western

A WICKED ADULTERATION.

Eleven Per Cent of Tartrate of Lime Discovered in Price's Baking Powder.

Analysis of Price's Baking Powder, of Chicago, shows:

LIME..... 3.53 per ct.
AMMONIA..... 1.05 per ct.
Starch .....19.00 per ct.

Prof. Habirshaw, of New York, found the following in Price's Powder:

TARTRATE OF LIME.....11.85 per ct.

Aside from the inferiority of a powder containing a useless substance equaling about one-eighth of its entire weight (and which is the cause of the great lack of strength of Price's Baking Powder, as shown by the tests of the Government Chemists), there is to be considered the serious consequences that may arise from taking this large amount of lime into the system.

Lime can not be decomposed by heat, and is not eliminated in mixing or baking, and, therefore, all of this enormous proportion, as found in Price's Baking Powder, remains in the bread, biscuit, or cake with which it is mixed, and is taken into the stomach.

By the application of heat to lime, carbonic acid gas is driven off, and there is left quick-lime, a caustic so powerful that it is used by tanners to eat the hair from hides of animals, and in dissecting-rooms to quickly rot the flesh from the bones of dead subjects.

Lime mixed with starch (and both are found in Price's Powder) will produce a ferment. The process is not quick, and does not take place until the food in which the baking powder is used has been some time in the stomach. Indigestion, dyspepsia, and more serious disorders result.

The cause of this large amount of Lime in Price's Baking Powder is the use of cheap and impure materials.

Prof. C. B. Gibson, Chemist of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, had in view these impure powders containing lime, like Price's, when, after having made an examination of many of them, he volunteered the following testimony that Royal Baking Powder is the best and purest in the market:

THE ROYAL ABSOLUTELY PURE.

"ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.: I recently procured a sample of your (Royal) baking powder from the kitchen of a private family in this city, and subjected it to an examination. I found it so different from many of the baking powders advertised as 'strictly' and 'absolutely pure,' and so far superior that I thought you would be pleased to know it, and might find use for the certificate.

"In view of the vast difference and stupendous frauds that are offered to the most 'gullible' people on the face of the earth, it pleases me occasionally to strike an 'honest article.' Respectfully,

"C. B. GIBSON, Analytical Chemist."

Mary Waters died in New Orleans, La, June 22, in full triumph of the Christian faith. Sister Waters was one of the ready and willing Christian workers of the First Street Methodist Episcopal church in this city, loved and respected by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and a son who stand in need of the same Christ who saved the wife and mother.

Fathy Longe died in New Orleans June 26, aged 66 years. Sister Longe was among the original sixteen who united and formed the First Street Methodist Episcopal Church, of which she has ever been a faithful and devoted member. The minister always found in her a ready and loving helper in every good work. Her life was in harmony with her profession. She rests from her labors. May the Lord give to the church multitudes of such workers.

A citizen of the Quaker City, Mr. F. I am happy to say that a few doses not only gave me instant relief, but effected a complete cure."

NEW BOOKS.

THE ORIGIN OF SPECIES. By Charles Darwin In Two Double Numbers of the Humboldt Library of Science. Price 30 cents. Part I now ready; Part II in August. J. Fitzgerald, Publisher, 20 Lafayette Place, New York.

It is a commonplace that the theory of Darwin has revolutionized every department of Natural Science, and has profoundly affected Philosophy, History and Art; in short that it has changed fundamentally the whole domain of human thought. But precisely what are the conclusions and principles developed by Darwin as the result of his famous researches! The answer is to be found only in the study of his immortal work, the Origin of Species, which is now for the first time published at a price which brings it within the reach of all. For sale by Geo. Ellis, opposite post-office, New Orleans.

A GOLDEN INHERITANCE. By Reese Rockwell. New York: Phillips & Hunt. Price $1.25.

A handsomely bound story book of 348 pages, devoted to the delineation of a sound Christian life.

Kitty Kent's Troubles. By Jules A. Eastman. Illustrated, Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price 25 cents. The publishers have shown rare judgment in putting this excellent story into their new Young Folks' Library. Miss Eastman, took the prize of one thousand dollars offered several years ago by this house, for the best Sunday-school story, and the present book is its equal. The heroine is the daughter of a clergyman, a girl who was neither all good nor all bad, but was partly one and partly the other," and the narrative of her trials and experiences is intended as a guide and a help to other girls who have those of the same kind to contend with, and to impress upon them the lesson that "the only road to happiness lies through the land of goodness."

McShane's foundry in Baltimore has recently been exporting church bells to England. It recently supplied St. Anne's Catholic Church, Birmingham, with a fine bell. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Editorial Notes.

There are times when both lover and friend will either desert or be unable to assist us. At such a time the Christian's experience of the friendship of the Savior is a satisfying portion.

The Blaines are in religion Congregational, and the status of Mr. Blaine on the liquor traffic is satisfactory to such Nazarites as Neal Dow and Hon. Hiram Price. How about Logan?

The numerous Sunday excursions which various congregations, societies, or individuals originate must be regarded as merely social festivities with a slight fringe of religious ceremony.

Banks are breaking, financial ruin is still impending, but the people seem bent on gaining fortunes in an unwarranted and precarious way. To the fields, to the fields! There and there only is true independence, and the sure road to comfort, competence and a right conscience.

Riches are uncertain, and sometimes a blessing in disguise. Therefore the rich should not trust in their wealth, nor the poor be distressed because of their poverty. It is possible for each to be rich in good works, and consequently rich in the possession of a conscience void of offence.

In the United States Circuit Court, district of Massachusetts, in the case of Fitchburg Railroad Company vs the United States, for unlawfully confining animals in course of transportation, decision was rendered in favor of the government. Humane associations may proceed under the statutes and prevent cruelty to animals by the railroads.

It is coming. Are we ready? There soon will be no distinctions on common carriers, between travelers paying the same fare. There ought not to be any, because it is a clear case of forcible seizure and detainer of the rights of one class of people by another. In the South, not as in the North there are large communities of colored people constantly passing from one place to another for profit or pleasure, often crowding whole cars with this class of travelers, and in truth it must be said that they are not always either civil, clean or polite. If they ride where such, clean and polite people ride, they must follow their example. With increased privileges comes these new duties. Are we ready for them? The SOUTHWESTERN is ready for and from [illegible] people in all things.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Breezes From the North

BY REV. JAMES A. DEAN, A. M., D.D.

"The king is dead. Long live the king." So proclaims the herald, when the death of one king has been immediately succeeded by the accession of another, and people leaving out the first part, echo: "Long live the king." So I join with your loyal subjects all over our great Southwestern realm, and shout "Long live the king!" But we omit the first part of the proclamation, for we have no dead king, nor even deposed ones; but two kings have gracefully addicated to bestow the tripodal throne on a new one and I, as a loyal subject of the realm; join with the others in welcoming him to his new capital and throne. But, the welcome of the new does not mean forgetfulness of the old, nor ungrateful remembrance of their faithful labors and sacrifices. The change was to me unexpected and undesired, and I wish to say so to them, through their successor. And yet I wish also to say to their successor in their hearing, that I welcome him just as heartily as though I had been longing for a change, and I know them well enough to almost imagine that I can hear them say, "Amen." But, speaking no more in parables let me say that I am glad of two things. The first is, that it has been decided that one man shall give all his time and energies to the paper; for all the energies of one man are worth more than half the energies of two men. In the second place, I am glad that a colored man was found who is, as I believe, fully equal to the place, and that the wisdom of the General Conference led them to elevate him to the place. But I am still more glad to believe that the Conference did not elect the editor simply because he was colored, and without a full conviction that he was able to do the work successfully. For I believe that no greater evil can happen to the colored people in their present formative condition than to place one of their number in a conspicuous position for which he is unqualified. If this seem unorthodox to any one, whether white or colored, let him write me down as a heretic. But that will not change my thinking, nor my speaking. If a white man fails, the world looks upon it as simply the failure of an individual; but if a colored man fails in the same position, the same world reckons it that the race has failed. Therefore let no man be raised an inch above his natural level because he is colored. But for whatever positions colored men are found equally suitable, let them have their full share. I say again, therefore, "Welcome to the tripod of the SOUTHWESTERN."

People who have come to New England this Summer to escape the heat, have been unusually successful. I have not seen a day, nor scarcely an hour, that was uncomfortably warm since I came, though July is generally our hottest month. As a result crops are rather backward, especially corn, which demands not only hot days, but hot nights also. On the whole the farmers have good reason to thank a kind Providence that seed time and harvest are far from failing, though not so favorable as in some other years. But the cool weather has had an unexpected effect on me. The malaria which had entered my system, has worked out in the form of chills and fever—for the first time in my life. But, thanks to a good Providence and to the Universal Chills and Fever Cure of my friend Dr. Smith (which ought to be known and used wherever malaria exists), I am now free from all taint of miasm.

Stocks in the Presidential market, since the adjournment of the conventions, may be quoted as "quiet." The fever stage, both of conflict and of enthusiastic demonstrations, which characterized both conventions, has been succeeded, not perhaps by a chill, for that, as my experience testifies, would be a reversal of nature's process, but, in one case, I imagine, by a sweating stage. I doubt whether the more thoughful Democrats can reflect upon the nomination of Mr. Hendricks without feeling a cool perspiration gathering on their bones. Not that Mr. Hendricks is the worst man that could have been selected—though by no means the best,—but his nomination was a bold, and I think an inconsiderate, challenge to the Republicans to open the issues of eight years ago. It was unwise; for in the first place it will arouse bad blood during the campaign; and second, it will be the occasion of bringing many things to remembrance which they will wish had been wholly forgotten. And yet it may have been a shrewd scheme—schrewd, but still not wise—of the few who precipitated the action upon the convention, to raise an issue that would divert the minds of the people from the great issue, the tariff question. There are those that are unscrupulous enough to desire to perpetuate feuds of race and section, so that those States in the South which feel the need of a protecting tariff may be made to forget their true interests in a mad strife for sectional and race predominance. But it is to be hoped that the self control of our colored citizens will withhold all excuse for violence, while their sturdy self-respect shall convince the blood thirsty ones that violence is not the safest mode for gaining their ends. But, as I have said, all is thus far calm, and we ought all to fervently pray that neither violence nor bribery nor fraud may be permitted to triumph, nor even to have any part in the great contest that is now beginning to loom up, and is soon to overshadow all other temporal questions of the day. In the mean time let us listen to Christ, as he says, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." This is still God's land, and the party that trusts most fully in him, and works most faithfully for that which shall upbuild his cause, and the well being of humanity, will in the end triumph. It will have the experience that Gibbon attributes to the Romans; in a single battle it may sometimes be defeated, but in the final issue of the war it will always triumph. Let the motto on our banner be, "God and the right," and God will lead the party that rallies under that banner to final victory.

I close with a few words regarding our New Orleans University which occupies a prominent place in the thoughts of easy one that is anxious for the upbuilding of the colored people. May it live forever, and flourish in perpetual youth! When it has suitable buildings; and an adequate faculty, it will become a power that will be felt by all. May the Lord hasten the day.

Many questions have been asked me, with reference to my retiring from it, and with your permission I will answer a very few of them. I resigned my position there, not from any lack of interest in the work. From the day I took charge of it till I severed my connection, all my interest centered on it, and all my labors were undergone for its present and future welfare. I had not become weary of the work, though I had become weary in it. I felt that it would be impossible for me to endure the strain of another year like the last. And even with a stronger faculty, as probably it will have in the future, I was led to believe that some one could be found who could manage its interests more satisfactorily than I. For these reasons I offered my resignation.

To the question of what will be done without me, I can answer only in a general way, that the school will go right on, as in the past. There have been many changes of presidents, but no interregnums. Where one has laid down the work the next has taken it up. And so it will doubtless be now. To one who speaks of having received letters from several students, all desiring my return, and who begs me to continue, and refuses to return if I do not, I would say, that while no pleasure could be greater than to be surrounded again with my students of last year, if all circumstances were favorable, yet I consider that the reasons given above were sufficient ground for my resigning, and they still have their original force. I hope all the old students will realize that the great object of the school is to give a thorough education, and that they will doubtless be able to secure such in the future, as well as in the past. Gather back again, therefore, under the new faculty, and uphold them in all their efforts to build up the school, and in doing this you will secure sound scholarship, while you will at the same time be happy yourselves, and will make the school doubly prosperous. Let this answer be sufficient also for the one who wrote me that it was the almost unanimous desire of the students that I should return, and requested my sanction to secure a petition from them to that effect. I think the above will show him the undesirableness of such a step, else I would give other reasons why I would not approve it.

I conclude with a summary of my advice on the subject: Leave the proper authorites to select the faculty, assured that they will do what their best wisdom shall direct. Rally around the school, every one of the old students that can; don't let the little inconvenience of distance or any thing else that is not insuperable, hinder you. Determine to make the school a success, both in sound scholarship, though the masses may never see and applaud it, and also in those things that will bring you more prominently before the public, which they will see and applaud. Your success in this respect during the last commencement week, amid many difficulties, shows what are your capabilities, and what you can do at any time when you will make the effort. And above all, remember that not what you learn, but the use you make of what you learn, is the true gauge of success. Therefore use your abilities and the acquisitions thus secured, in the cause of God and humanity. Then will your education be a success, and you will make the school a success, in the noblest and highest sense.

Mr. Editor, please pardon the length with which I have written upon this subject. Henceforth my letters will have less of the ego, and I will try to find some spice for them, so that they to some slight extent be, "spicy breezes."

Marshall District Conference.

The Conference met at Marshall, Texas, Tuesday, June 10th. The introductory sermon was preached by R. R. Roberts, of Houston, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, after which president T. Mason of Philander College, Little Rock, Ark., was introduced and made some very pleasing remarks; he also lectured on Wednesday night the 11th., at Wiley University to the Conference the students, and the people of Marshall; the house was crowded.

The members spent Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in visiting Wiley University and witnessing the closing exercises of the school. Thursday evening at 3 o'clock the members met at Ebenezer M. E. Church, and was called to order by the Presiding Elder H. Webb. After the election of a secretary the conference proceeded to its regular business. The literary exercises took up considerable time of the session, and were ably discussed by the members.

The appointment of local preachers and exhorters was left to the presiding elder and each pastor. The Conference was organized into a Sunday-school led by Rev. R. H. Harbert, pastor of Ebenezer, and each morning at 9 o'clock there was a Sunday-school session held with much interest and benefit to the members of Conference.

The presiding made a full report showing a great increase and a renewed energy in the District with few exceptions. He had been able to visit all the appointments and found in nearly every one a revival going on. The pastors made very encouraging reports, and they all seemed to be pleased with the progress of the churches. We give a few of the resolutions adopted as follows:

By W. Ripetoe—Resolved, that it is the sense of this Conference, that legal prohibition is the royal road to success in abolishing the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

By R. H. Harbert—Resolved, that each pastor be requested to hold an entertainment for the benefit of Wiley University, and that each church be urged to send at least one student to Wiley University from its own members, and may assist such student from the proceeds of such entertainment.

By V. M. Cole—Resolved, that this District Conference feel very thankful to the General Conference for locating the residence of one of our Bishops at New Orleans, and that the resident Bishop be requested to visit our next District Conference and travel among us.

The Conference requested the presiding elder to appoint a committee on resolutions to memorialize the Missionary and Church Extension Societies to make a larger appropriation to the Texas Conference. The committee reported: Resolved, —That we respectfully ask the Missionary Board in view of the fact that there is a vast territory unoccupied by our church, and which can be worked up into flourishing fields with larger appropriations, than allowed us at present.

Resolved—That we ask the Board of Church Extension to give us a larger appropriation to prosecute the work of building and extending houses of worship into those places so densely populated, and the ground of which is not taken up by others; also, in order that we may be able to improve some of our bad churches in prominent places. Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to each presiding elder of the Texas Conference, to their District Conferences, and the same to the Church Extension and Freedmen's Society committee.

On Sunday morning the [illegible] an interesting consecration [illegible] perience meeting held at 11 [illegible] At 3 o'clock p. m., the sa[illegible] was administered and the [illegible] ation of the Freedman's Aid [illegible] was made. Short addresses were made by several members and a collection lifted of $16 05.

Conference adjourned to meet September 3d, 1884, at Clarksville, Texas. H. WEBB, P. E.

The Prohibition Candidate.

The following is an outline biography of J. P. St. John, the prohibition candidate for president of the United States: "John P. St. John was born at Brownsville, Franklin county, Ind., Feb. [illegible]. At twenty years of age he went to California, where he worked at farming and other manual labor, making voyages to South America, Central America, Mexico, and the Sandwich islands. In 1852 and 1853 he was engaged in the Indian wars in northern California and southern Oregon. In 1860 he returned to Illinois, entering the law office of Starkweather & Holden, in Charleston, Ill., and at the end of twelve months became a partner. At the commencement of the rebellion he entered as a private in company C, Sixth Illinois infantry, and at the election of officers was chosen captain. Upon the organization of the One Hundred and Forty-third Illinois infantry, St. John was elected lieutenant-colonel, serving until 1864, when he resumed his law practice. In February, 1865, he removed with his family to Independence, Mo., where he continued to reside for four years, taking an active part in politics. In May, 1869, he moved to Olathe, Kan., his present home. In 1872 he was elected to the state senate from his district. In 1876 he was nominated for governor by the Kansas state temperance convention, but declined. The same year he was a candidate for the nomination by the state Republican convention but was defeated. Two years later he was nominated and elected governor, serving two years. He also obtained a nomination for a third term two years ago, but was defeated at the polls by the Democratic candidate, owing to third-termism and the complications growing out of the question of prohibition. Gov. St. John is a very effective campaigner."—Northwestern.

Mr. Seney's financial embarrassment has interfered with the execution of his munificent plans for building and equipping the great Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn. The enterprise is about three-fourths completed, and the Church will be called upon to take hold where Mr. Seney was obliged to leave off. The trustees have appointed a special committee to suggest means for meeting the present emergency.

The Idolatry of Rome.

Cardinel McCloskey "Prince of the Holy Roman Empire," has issued a circnlar to the churches of his charge, which is the echo of a brief issned by the Pope to the Roman world calling on all his devotees to redonble their devotions to the Virgin Mary, by the nse of the rosary, in view of the impending dangers to the Roman propaganda by unfriendly action of the Italian governmeni. We find the circnlar reprodnced in the Christian Advocate of March 13th, thanks to the care and dilligence of Dr. Buckley, who I trnst will keep ns advised of the movements of Rome in that great centre of her activity, New York. The Cardinal's letter is intended to impress on Romanists the valne and obligation of that form of worship known as as "The Rosary of the Blessed Virgin Mary," who has been made the patron saint of the United States. The moral of that papal brief, and Cardinal's letter is bad, as they enforce idolatry, the crime for which God is now cursing and crushing the Roman nations still guilty of the worship of Mary. Herein lies the danger to the United States, if this crime of one-eighth of our people goes without protest. Humble as may be our pen, the South shall not be without its protest, inasmuch as we dwell in the midst of vast masses who were the bond men of yesterday, but being the freemen of to-day. Rome desires to make them her slaves. Thank God our colored people have as a general rule been true to the religion of the Bible, the Protestant faith.

In enforcing the proscribed form of prayer, the Cardinal says: "From this devout practice we argue great good to our souls, not only in virtue of this powerful evidence of our heavenly patroness the Queen of the Holy Rosary, who has never yet denied the petition of those who have recourse to her." Let us now inquire what is the nature of this devont practice that promises so much good, this idolatrous worship as enforced by Rome. Turning to the books for a description of the rosary, I find it is an instrument for counting certain prayers, consisting of a string of about fifty small beads, divided into decades or tens, by five large beads, to this circular string, a small crucifix and five other beads are attached. For each one of these small beads the devotee repeats "The Hail Mary," and when this has been repeated ten times, one of the large beads is reached on which the Lord's prayer is repeated, so that for five "Our Fathers," to use the technical terms of the institntion, about fifty "Hail Mary's" are nttered. Such is the rosary. But in the case enjoined by the Pope and Cardinal, the greater rosary mnst be used, which is three fold larger, requiring the devotee to repeat the Lord's prayer fifteen times and "the Hail Mary" no less than one hundred and fifty times in rapid rotation. The books further give the exact formula, which I will here qnote; it reads as follows: "Hail Mary full of grace, the Lord is with thee. Blessed art thon amongst women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesns, who may increase our faith. Holy Mary, mother of God pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of death. Amen."

This address to Mary is the grossest idolatry that can be nttered or nsed by man, as I will undertake to prove in my next letter. It is without authority in the word of God; the formula is a cunning blending of the words of the angel, addressed to Mary on the annunciation of her selection as the daughter of David's line who should be the mother of David's greatest son, and the words of the idolatrous church of Rome; a blending of truth and falsehood, as in the case of the satanic temptation in the garden of Eden. As to the nse of any instrnment for counting prayers it is of Pagan origin. There is no reference to such a thing throughout the Holy Scriptures, it is a sinful novelty amongst God's people. Its pagan origin is well defined, the rosary as an instrnment to connt prayers is now nsed in oriental lands, and has been used time out of mind, long before the Christian era, by that ancient religion Buddism, one of the most extensive religions of the earth. It is altogether possible that some snch practice as the Buddist rosary was in the mind of Christ, when He said, "Use not vain repetitions as the heathens do." Undoubtedly this command of Christ bears hard against the rosary of the Holy Virgin and marks it as of Pagan origin.

The modern Bnddists have made an improvement on their ancient mode of prayer by rosary, that Romanists might nse to advantage, if rapidity of utterance and gravity of repetition is the thing desired. They facilitate their devotions by the use of a wheel or praying machine to roll off the petitions fast and in large quantity. Such machines might be constituted in Christian lands for the use of Romanists who use the rosary, as a wheel would lessen the labor of bead men. And even to that a further improvement might be added, by applying some kind of motive power other than human to the wheel, the spring of a watch, electricity, or even steam power. May God save the American people from the crime and absurdity of such a worship as that of the rosary of the Roman church, and deliver American Romanists from such delusions.

In my next I will show the idolatry of the formula called "The Hail Mary," of which the Roman ritual is so full, and which if removed, with the enjoined prayers to other saints, would be a long stride towards the reformation of that apostate church.

Prayer to the Virgin Mary an Act of Idolatry.

The Pope and Cardinal have recently united in enforcing the duty of prayer to Mary, that she may interpose to protect the vested rights of the Propaganda from the grasping hand of the Italian Government. We will not discuss the merit of that quarrel in this paper, but attempt to fulfill our pledge made in the last article, to the effect, "That prayers made to the Virgin Mary, or any other being other than God is idolatry, and that the Pope and Cardinal love enjoined idol worship, in the use of the Rosary.

Mary, the daughter of David, was a holy woman, and is now undoubtedly one of the saints of the Most High. As Protestants we honor her memory, as we do that of all the ancient saints of the Most High, but we dare not pray to her or them.

Protestants claim that when man prays to a superior being in the spirit world, he by that act invests the person addressed with all the attributes of divinity, and he honors that being as good men honor God.

The church of Rome claims about one hundred and eighty million devotees, scattered throughout the earth. She loves to boast a large communion, and claims universal dominion. Be it so. We will allow that her people are in Europe, Asia, Africa, in America, on the islands, and in the ships at sea. This net-work of souls we will allow covers the world. Thousands of them are departing this life every hour, to be replaced by other thousands born. And I will allow that the sun never sets on these worshippers, all holding like faith, all using the same prayers to the Virgin Mary and other saints. This universality is at once the glory and the weakness of Rome. This uniformity is at once her boast and her confusion.

1. As it is the imperative order of Rome that these wide spread millions should pray each day, in all places, to the Virgin Mary, is there any absurdity in our supposing that on some occasions they conclude to address her audibly in prayer at one and the same instant of time? Here you have one hundred and eighty million voices rising from all parts of the earth—from city and village, from hamlet and farm house, from the chamber of death and the chamber of birth; midst storms at sea and the calm of the desert; the whole world becomes vocal with prayer. Can the Virgin Mary be present in one hundred and eighty million places to hear all these prayers?

If so, she is Omnipresent, and Rome has taken one of God's attributes and given it to an other. Thus has she so far dethroned God, and substituted an idol.

2. Again all prayer is not uttered in word, but the most successful is the mental prayer of the heart, when burdened with sorrow or care, and that often finds its best expression in weeping, groans and tears, that no human eye or ear can comprehend.

I will suppose that the followers of Rome are in distress, and that their one hundred and eighty millions pray as ordered to the Virgin Mary—mentally—at one and the same instant of time. Can she be present in attendance on them all, and can she understand the import of those mental prayers, those unformed sentences, sighs and groans, unknown to man, but which, nevertheless, profoundly agitate the souls of her worshippers? If so, you have given Mary another attribute of God—omniscience—for none can comprehend the thought of the heart but God, and in so doing Rome has made her an idol.

3. Furthermore: All the petitions that men offer to God are liable to an alloy of error; some being prompted by passion, some desiring forbidden things. Hence when the good man prays, he submits all to the wisdom of God, and says: "Father, thy will be done." Our Heavenly Father, receiving such a prayer, looks down the years and ages, and sees whether it is best for you and your kindred, your neighbors and your country, your church and your soul, to grant the things asked. By his knowledge of the future, and his unerring wisdom, he determines the response to be given. If the Virgin Mary can know the end from the beginning, then may we safely pray to her? But no created being has that power. Prescience belongs to God alone, and to give it to a woman, however holy, is bold idolatry. The Holy Scriptures nowhere attribute such a knowledge of the future, such unerring knowledge to Mary. Indeed this attribute of Diety is one of the most sacred in the list, the one most carefully guarded, and denied to men and angels, so Christ informs us, Matt. 24 chap. 36v., yet Rome has dared to impose it upon her idols.

4. But this is not all. What matters it to Rome's many millions scattered to the four winds if Mary can be everywhere present, know the thonghts of the heart, and see the end from the beginning, yet lack power to aid in distress, or hold back from sin and danger? The being man addresses in prayer must have power.

Can the Virgin Mary be present everywhere to pluck from death all who implore her aid—the sailor in the storm, on any and all seas; to cover the soldier on the battle field from ball and bayonet, and shape the course of the struggle; to pluck from the burning house, in the midst of a city's fire, say of Paris, Chicago, Boston or New York, as the billows of flame lick up whole blocks? Can she display in such hours of danger Omnipotent power, to protect whom she will? Can she stop the earthquake in its march of ruin, or say to a sweeping cyclone: "Peace, be still!" and exercise this omnipotence everywhere on earth at the same moment, and through all the Christian ages, and to all eternity? Just as gravity grasps every atom of matter the moment of its creation, the moment of its birth, in its unyielding hand, can she control gravity and all other laws of nature, reversing them when she wills? Then is she the Lord our God, and worthy of our prayers? But this I deny, on the authority of the Word of God. The Holy Scriptures nowhere gives power to Mary. But such is the idolatrous claim of Rome for her chief saint, and be many others she has dared to lift to a place in her calendar of Gods, to be addressed by her devotees in prayer.

To myself and other Protestants it is no matter of surprise that Rome has struck the Second Commandment out of the list of the ten, because it forbids this great crime of idolatry, and has divided the last Commandment—the tenth, into two, to cover the frand on the souls of men. But let me warn Romanists that there is no escape from the penalty contained in the Second Commandment, as the nations under your rule must learn to their sorrow, and as they are now learning.

I appeal to the Irish priesthood of the United States, and ask them to abandon idol worship, and return to the purity of the ancient faith of the Church of Patrick, Columba, and Columbain.

History of Clark Chapel—No. 2.

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

Rev. Wm. S. Butler was succeeded by Rev. James Picket, a man of urbanity, stability, courage and forethonght, and beyond all a lover of the church of his choice. It took him but a short time to get hold of the people. There being nothing in his appearance or character repulsive, he soon gained a place for himself in the affections of his people. It was during his pastorate, I think, that stalwart Methodist, Randall Brown presented the church a pure silver communion sett, which even to-day is the pride of the church. The church prospered financially, intellectually, morally and spiritually, and there was added to the church souls that are now saved. These men shall never be forgotten. It is true as we stand nearly twenty years away and look back on their labors we see what we consider many mistakes, many places where they might have done much better than they did, where they might have lain the foundation deeper and firmer we think. But no one but God knows and eternity alone will tell of the heart readings, tears, afflictions and cruel trials of Clark Chapel in the years when these men served the church faithfully. These two men have now grown gray and feeble in God's service, so that the swift revolutions of the world and church to-day make them dizzy as they look down. They are now incapacitated for the work the church has to do, but we know the time never will came when their services will not be needed in the church, if for no other purpose than to fill the station of John with children at the temple gate. Me thinks the church says to them to day.

And when hoary hairs shall their temples adorn
Like lambs they shall still in my bosom be borne.

Bro. James Picket, was succeeded by a returned missionary from Africa, the venerable J. G. Thompson, who was appointed in 1873. As to his domestic affairs he was situated similarly to the servent of God Eli, with the exception no death occnred. He was fatherly, but positive; calm, but rigid in disciplining members of the church, and he did some valuable pruning. The church moved on slowly but surely during his administration. One thing in the church gave him much concern and that was the Baptist notion that immersion is the only valid mode of baptism. We only wish it was possible to say truthfully that Baptist notions were entirely eradicated. To obviate the necessity of running to the river every time one professed religion he built a recess behind the pulpit in which he intended to build a pool. The pulpit was of the old style, up above every person's head except those in the gallery, and it was wonderfully handy in hiding from view the wet forms of the baptized. He left with the good wishes and benedictions of his congregation and members, and was succeeded by Rev. Wm. B. Butler, for his second term. However it may be with others, with us, as a race, but few if any of our preachers can leave a place two or three years and then return and be successful. So in this case, Bro. Butler, though he seemed to try to do right, and kept things moving, found his pathway hazy. It was during his second term that his wife crossed the river and left him to battle all alone in this cruel and cold world. The care of his children, some of whom were not able to help themselves, took much of his time. The walls of the church had grown dusty and dingy, the seats were shackelly and uncomfortable, panes of glass were out here and there, the cupola was down and the old bell that once woke up the morning with its early peals, lay quietly in the cellar as if waiting the resurrection morn to rise. After two years of earnest toil on his part, and doubtful benefit on the part of the church, he was succeeded by Rev. C. S. Smith, a convert from African Methodism. This brother was of medium height, straight built and what would have detracted from his otherwise noble appearance, short sightedness, was overcome by a pair of golden spectables that gave him a learned appearance. Indeed he was a man of no mean ability having previously been a member of the Alabama legislature and an honored minister in the African Church, and an incomparable orator on political subjects; his influence, while pastor was wide spread and beneficial to the work he was was then engaged in. Being often called upon to make speeches at political meetings he drew to his church, for some time, large congregations of the better sort; when he got them there they were so highly entertained they were nearly always sure to return. He took charge of the church October, 1876 under two ominous clouds: 1. He was a man who was not raised up in the bounds of the conference and therefore carried a transfer which in most conferences here in the South, if not a crime is synanymous with foreigner. He not only in a certain sense, was a transfer which was bad enough, but a transfer from the African Church which was considered still worse in that they split our church here and then tried to cover with mund those who would not split. I ought to add also an other cloud that hung over this minister's head and that was that some people said he was the best preacher in the conference. Not being on the ground I can't say. Notwithstanding these things the first time his master hand touched the ship's wheel it began to quiver then heave, and eventually set sail and moved forward as it never did before in its history. He was a sensational preacher no one doubted, though many here doubted whether he could here hold out any length of time as he began; but he succeeded a while in doing much good. Being of a nervous temperament he often found arrows fastened in his side made of his own wing feathers. During his work, which we give in his own language below, he studied medicine at the Meharry Medical College and was graduated M. D. in 1880. He at once saw the need of improving the church, and he began by tearing down the great box formerly used for a pulpit, and converted the pool behind it into a dry recess for the beautiful modern style pulpit and altar he built, in which he placed beautiful and serviable pulpit chairs. He had the walls and ceiling nicely and appropriately papered and the wood work painted and then published the work done and the workers who did it in a pamphlet called "the first printed annual report of Clark Chapel" as follows:

Industry.

Our success in life depends on our industry. If men want to become great, they must be industrious; for industry is the road to greatness and wealth. Whatever is useful in art, science and general literature, is the work of industry. Industry will build up any nation, while idleness will pull any nation down. It has been said "that the best cure for hard times is to cheat the doctor by being temperate, the lawyer by keeping out of debt, the demagogue by voting for honest men, and poverty by being industrious." Do you think the founders of these United States were idle or industrious persons? I am sure every person would answer the question by saying they were industrious. Can preachers, teachers, or scholars make any progress without industry? I answer no; preachers can not preach the word of God correctly if idle, and they should follow the One whom they teach, and if so, they will be industrious while on earth. Idle teachers can not teach their scholars, for to be a successful teacher you must be very industrious. Every body should be industrious. Some may think that they can not enjoy themselves if they be industrious. There is an old saying which runs thus: "The way of duty is the way of safety." We all have a duty to perform, and if we do not perform our duty, I am afraid it will not be well with us. To perform our duty we must be industrious, for honorable industry always travels the same road which enjoyment and duty travel. Some one may say: "I am rich; I can pay some one to perform my duty." If there is a person who thinks so, I am sorry to say he is mistaken. God did not intend every person to do the same work. If he has blessed you with plenty, your work is in a different sphere than a poorer person's work. He requires more work of charity from you, than he does from the poorer class.

"Work, for the night is coming,
When man works no more."

The idler can learn of the ant how to be industrious. "Go to the ant thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise." Here the idler is called a sluggard, and is therefore sent to school to the insignificant but provident ant, who is without a master, yet takes more care for its future than the sluggard does.

All is the gift of industry; whate'er
Exalts, embellishes, and renders life
Delightful.

My First Visit to Grenada

Was on the 21st instant. When we reached the depot we met Rev. A. M. Trotter, his face beaming with smiles, for among our number were the orators for the next day (Sunday), when he was to hold his Centenary Services.

At 10 o'clock a. m. the church was nearly filled with children, for that hour was devoted to Children's Day exercises, and from the way they poured in their "nickels," one would suppose that they understood well the object of such a meeting, and that planted in their young hearts are the germs of charity.

Their songs and responsive services showed that great care had been taken in their preparation.

The house was beautifully decorated, and all things tended to make the occasion a pleasant one. It was also very creditable to the superintendent and teachers.

After an excellent dinner, which we enjoyed at Sister Dudley's, came the Centenary Services. We were addressed at 3 o'clock by Rev. S. A. Cowan, of Holly Springs, and at 8 o'clock by Rev. A. D. Payne, of Abbeville. Both speeches were highly interesting and instructive.

Notwithstanding the weather was disagreeably warm, the pastor was well rewarded for the efforts he had made, by having such a crowded house, and what was considered best of all, a fine collection.

The people of Grenada are proud of their pastor, and well they may be, for they will have to "look sharp" to find another who will give them such entertaining services for their next centenial.

A. LENNINGTON TALBOT.

June 23, 1884.

We have heard of a presiding elder who begins his Quarterly Conferences with an inquiry into the religious condition of the members of the Quarterly Conference! Not every presiding elder could do this effectively. Yet official men are sometimes so hardened with the temporalities of the Church that they need to be reminded that they are first Christians and then business-brothers.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

The Wheeling Register, (Dem.) has attacked the Democratic candidates for electors in West Virginia, and also charges corruption against State officials. The indications are that it will bolt the ticket, and the excitement in Democratic circles is growing. The nominations of the recent convention have engendered bitter feelings.

Dr. Doddrige's Dream.

Dr. Doddrige was on terms of very intimate friendship with Dr. Samuel Clarke, and in religious conversation they spent many happy hours together. Among other matters, a very favorite topic was the intermediate state of the soul and the probability that at the instant of dissolution it was not introduced into the presence of all the heavenly host, and the splendors around the throne of God. One evening, after a conversation of this nature' Dr. Doddrige retired to rest with his mind full of the subject discussed, and in "the visions of the night," his ideas were shaped into the following beautiful form; he dreamed that he was at the house of a friend, when he was suddenly taken dangerously ill. By degrees he seemed to himself to grow worse, and at last to expire. In an instant he was sensible that he had exchanged the prison-house of suffering and mortality, for a state of liberty and happiness. Embodied in a light aeriel form, he seemed to float in a region of pure light. Beneath him lay the earth, but not a glittering city or village, the forest or the forest or the sea was visible. There was naught to be seen below save the melancholy group of his friends weeping around his lifeless remains.

Himself thrilled with delight, he was surprised at their tears, and attempted to inform them of his happy change, but by some mysterious power utterance was denied; and as he anxiously leaned over the mourning circle, gazing fondly upon them, and struggling to speak, he rose silently upon the air, their forms became more and more indistinct, and gradually melted away from his sight. Reposing upon golden clouds, he found himself swiftly mounting the skies, with a venerable figure at his side guiding his mysterious movements, and in whose countenance he marked the lineaments of youth and age were blended together with an intimate harmony and majestic sweetness. They traveled through a vast region of empty space until at length the battlements of a glorious edifice shone in the distance among the far-off shadows that flitted athwart their path, the guide informed him that the palace he beheld was for the present to be his mansion of rest. Gazing upon its splendor, he replied that while on earth he had often heard, that the eye had not seen, nor the ear heard, nor could it enter into the heart of man to codceive the things which God had prepared, for those who love Him, but, notwithstanding the building to which they were then rapidly approaching was superior to anything which he had actually before beheld, yet its grandeur had not exceeded the conceptions he had formed. The guide made no reply, they were already at the door and entered. The guide introduced him into a spacious apartment, at the extremity of which stood a table, covered with snow-white cloth, a golden cup, and a cluster of grapes, and then said he he must leave him, but that he must remain, for he would receive in a short time a visit from the Lord of the mansion, and that during the interval before his arrival, the apartment would furnish him with sufficient entertainment and instruction. The guide vanished, and he was left alone. He began to examine the decorations of the room, and observed that the walls were adorned with a number of pictures. Upon nearer inspection he found to his astonishment that they formed a complete biography of his own life. Here he saw upon the canvas, that angels, though unseen, had ever been familar attendants, and sent by God; they had sometimes preserved him from imminent peril. He beheld himself first represented as an infant just expiring, when his life was prolonged by an angel gently breathing into his nostrils. Most of the occurrences here delineated were perfectly familiar to his recollection, and unfolded many things which he had never before understood, and which had perplexed him with many doubts and much uneasiness. Among others he was particularly struck with a picture in which he was represented as falling from his horse, when death would have been inevitable, had not an angel received him in his arms, and broke the force of his descent. These merciful interpositions of God filled him with joy and gratitude, and his heart overflowed with love, as he surveyed in them, all an exhibition of goodness and mercy, far beyond all that he had imagined. Suddenly his attention was arrested by a rap at the door. The Lord of the mansion had arrived. The door opened and he entered. So powerful, and so overwhelming, and withal of such singular beauty was the appearance that he sunk down at his feet completely overpowered by his majestic appearance. His Lord gently raised him from the ground, and taking his hand led him forward to the table. He pressed with his fingers the juice of the grapes into the golden cup, and after having himself drunk, presented it to him saying, "this is my new wine in my Father's kingdom." No sooner had he partaken than all uneasy sensation vanished, perfect love had now cast out fear, and he conversed with his Saviour as an intimate friend. Like the silver rippling of a summer sea, he heard fall from His lips the grateful approbation: "Thy labors are over; thy work is approved, rich and glorious is the reward." Thrilled with an unspeakable bliss, that glided over his spirit and said into the very depth of his soul, he suddenly saw glories upon glories bursting upon his view. The doctor awoke. Tears of rapture from his joyful interview were rolling down his cheek. Long did the lively impression of this charming dream remain upon his mind, and never could he speak of it without emotions of joy and tenderness.

Improper, Immodest and Immoral.

Having written to Rev. James G. Kitchen and Dr. G. W. Harris for, and failing to obtain any information from them as to the truth or falsity of the matter related below, we can conclnde either that the parties have not received our letters, or having received them they do not care to make any reply. If the latter, it wonld seem to imply that the report to which we have called attention is trne. If the former they can still write when their attention shall be called to it.

There is a very low moral tone prevailing where an occurrence such as that could take place without thorongh investigation. We presume it will be had. The relation our Southern work and onr colored work everywhere sustains to the whole church, renders it necessary that the same vigorons Discipline should be enforced upon each class. This case ongnt to be examined. It is due to all concerned. We cannot afford to be lowered on acconnt of moral laxity and the only preventitive lies in sqnarely and firmly uprooting snch things as these, and casting them from us at any cost of labor and courage.

The only proper excuse for the presence of a minister at such a place, would be an official call there to give religious advice and comfort. Shame on any minister or Christian people, who would ntilize the hanging of a man as an attraction to draw a crowd and run an excursion for the purpose of making money. No race or ohurch oan carry such a load as this and rise to useful power. The following is a copy of our letter to Bros. Kitchen and Harris.

"Dear Brother:—I send you an excerp from the Louisville Commercial and other papers as stated below, which concerns you personally as a Christian minister. It concerns also our church, because you belong to it, and our race, because it seems to display a very discouraging degree of moral obtusity. It concerns me especially, because it is used as an argument against the philanthropic work being done by such institutions as the Methodist Episcopal Church, and by snch grand men as the Rev. John P. Newman and Henry Ward Beecher, for the mental and moral elevation of our race. I am unwilling to publish things of this character until I know the facts on both sides, and I write to you because I know that you are able to give me the facts on your side. Please send me immediately any thing you wish to say with reference to this matter; address 513 Laural Street, Louisville, Kentucky. I will wait a week or ten days for your reply."

Simpson Memorial Hall.

Simpson Centenary College, so-called in honor of Bishop Simpson, is located at Indianola, Iowa. It makes the following strong appeal to the Church for an endowment, and also funds to build a hall on the college grounds, which is to bear the name, and ever memorialize the great and good Bishop Simpson.

There is any number of meritorions institutions like this one, only needing a little aid to enable them to do with great ease and certainty the work which they have undertaken. It is impossible to think of failure after reading the following appeal of Messrs. Stnart, Vinson and Bennett. Let onr patrons read it, and then do their best to support them in this most laudable undertaking.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To the Bishops, Ministers and Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dear Brethren:—In these days when the attention of the whole church is called to the saintly character, pre-eminent ability and distinguished services of our lamented Senior Bishop—Matthew Simpson, D. D., LL. D., we deem it proper also to call your attention to the fact that Simpson Centenary College, located at Indianola, Iowa, is the only educational institution which bears his name. The appropriateness of such a memorial as the name of a Christian college, to commemorate the character, life and services of such a man must commend itself to all.

We are confident that our college is in some sense worthy of this distinction. It is situated near the center of the great state of Iowa—a state [illegible] geographical position, vast agricultural resources, extensive coal fields, and favorite climate, as well as the character of its inhabitants have not only given it no secondary place in the nation, but give promise of a still more prosperous future. For the intelligence, enterprise, moral and spiritual culture of its inhabitants it is to-day the peer of any state in the nation. An evidence of this is to be seen in the fact that her citizens have taken the most advanced position on the temperance reform, and that according to the last U. S. census Iowa is first in the nation, having the lowest percentage of illiteracy. The patronizing territory of this institution is destined to sustain a vast population of the strong and enterprising middle classes in her towns and thriving farming communities, and from these will come forth the very best educational material of the future. Upon such both church and state must build their hopes. Methodism has paralelled the rapid growth of the state in population, culture and material wealth. Its membership nearly equals that of all other evangelical denominations combined; and the church has no better field for a great educational institution, which, as a center of intellectual and spiritual power, shall extend its influence not only over this great state, but also far and wide throughout the nation.

The school has been in existence as an institution of higher learning under the control and patronage of Des Moines conference for twenty-four years. Seventeen years ago it was raised to the grade of a college and given Bishop Simpson's name. The funds for the building were raised during the previous year, the Centenary year of American Methodism; hence the title, Simpson Centenary College. It has been in successful operation as a college ever since. The Des Moines Annual Conference controls the institution, elects the Board of Trustees, and gives it a hearty and united support.

A debt which had resulted from years of financial stringency, and had assumed large proportions, was entirely removed in the years 1881-1882. The college has since remained out of debt, and for four years its income has equaled its expenses.

The faculty consists of ten members, nine of whom spend all their time in giving instruction. For four years past there has been a steady growth in attendance, each term's attendance being an increase over the corresponding term of the previous year. The aggregate attendance during the past year has been 270 students, and the average attendance 203 students. The graduating class numbered eleven—seven gentlemen and four ladies. Three of the former enter the Methodist ministry, and one of the latter the foreign missionary field.

Rev. B. H. Badley, A. M., B. D; Rev. C. L. Bare, A. M., and Mrs. C. H. Bare, M. S, are all graduates of the college, and Mrs. B. H. Badley was a former student. Their prominent position in our foreign missionary work in the field of India is familiar to our whole church. Besides these, a large number of persons who have graduated from the institution are in the ministry, while many others are filling honorable professions as lay workers in the church. Therefore whatever may be the future before it, "the past at least is secure."

During the past four years, each year has been characterized by a general revival in the college, being the result of the prayerful, systematic, consecrated labors of the faculty, in perfect sympathy and co-operation with the pastors of the churches. The profonndly religious spirit of the institution, along with the high moral tone of the community in the midst of which it is located, points to it at once as a most desirable agency in all its appointments and surroundings in the work of higher education for the youth of our church and country.

Dear Brethren, we feel assured that the seal of the Divine approbation has been given to this work of the church. It has passed through the fires of adversity, and has come forth purified. It has served its probation, and has demonstrated its right to perpetuity; yea, more, that the church needs it. It is for the church to say whether its growth shall be commensurate with her needs for agencies of higher education in the country where it is located.

Two years ago Bishop Simpson visited Iowa for the express purpose of preaching the Annual Sermon, and delivering the annual address before the Literary Societies of the college. He preached in a large tent on the campus, to thousands of people. He carefully inquired into every feature of the life and work of the college, and expressed himself as pleased with its work, and confident of its large future. He insisted that measures should be speedily taken, looking toward its future larger development.

To accomodate the rapidly increasing number of students who are seeking collegiate advantages, the college needs additional buildings, appliances and endowment. Can the great Methodist Episcopal Church show its respect for the memory of its lamented senior bishop in a more suitable manner than by a thorongh endowment and equipment of the collge which has so worthily borne his honored name for seventeen years, making his name an inspiration to the youth in the future onward march of the church to the conqnest of the world? Can the church build a more suitable monument to his name and memory than by erecting a hall on the campus of this institution, with which his name was first associated and with which it must remain connected forever, to be known as "Simpson Memorial Hall?" And also by endowing the institution that increased facilities may be given to meet the growing deeds of the work of higher Christian education.

We invite correspondence and co-operation. All correspondence addressed to the President of the college, Rev. E. L. Parks, A. M., Indianola, Ia., will receive prompt attention.

By order of the Trustees.

A Cure For Proscription.

When the great men of onr own race will refnse to avail themselves of any special or strategic way of obtaining rights which are plainly denied them as colored men; when they shall demand the same treatment for their race as for themselves, and nse their fortnnes, their culture and influence to secnre it; their patriotic efforts will be reinforced by the brave and trne of every race, and soon snceed. The battle for the rights of freemen will then have begun in earnest. It will be sharp, decisive, short and victorions for the right.

The expedient employed by Ellen Crafts to secnre a ride for herself and her husband to freedom, would be pusilanimons if employed by a freeman to obtain a ride for pleasnre or even profit.

We prefer a colored man who will go up and demand of the train employes to show him the "Nigger Car," thus putting the brand of infamy, squarely on the company's property, rendering it odious to all white travelers, and hence, soon a financial incubus to the stock-holders. It was the preference of Moses to suffer affliction with the people of God, rather than to endure the pleasurs of sin for a season.

Murder of Abel.

Two sons were now born to Adam and Eve; Cain, the elder, became a tiller of the ground, whilst Abel the yonnger, was a keeper of sheep. After a time the two brothers offered sacrifices to God. Cain bringing a portion of the fruit of the earth, and Abel the firstlings of his flocks. The offering of Abel was alone accepted by Jehovah, but he fell a victim to the envy of Cain, and the agonized parents, who had brought sin into the world, now saw its terrible consequences in the fratricide by their first born. Gen. iv. 1-15. "As by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin" Rom. v. 12.

Drinking and spitting in the pulpit are habits which a great many ministers cultivate to the loss of both their health and influence. If they were not thus unprofitable they would still be useless and vulgar habits. Unusual thirst in the midst of pulpit service is an invarable evidence that there are abnormal conditions in the physical system which ought to receive immediate medical attention from a physician. Then too, there is absolute danger that the lungs may be seriously and permanently impaired by such procedure. As to spitting, it sometimes happens that a man is compelled to spit even in a nice pulpit and where they have no spittoon. But it is generally a habit cultivated for elocutionary purposes. It is an accompaniment to the famous nasal twang with which some preachers blow out their ideas. Holding an ear with one or both hands in the time of greatest warmth is also a companion habit to this excessive expectoration. Then again, your spitting preacher has such an exquisitely delicate way of discharging his surplus accumulation of saliva or tobacco juice. He will gather up a good mouthful and spit it out in small particles to the discomfort of any one nearer the pulpit than the first row of seats across the opening in front of the chancel. As a general thing your best and most scientific spitter is also an adept in gymnastic performances. However, the man that indulges in all or most of these habits has the fortnne to live a very short life. He hurries his end and dies before his time; he literally spits and drinks himself to death. Long life, good health, great usefulness, professional maturity, physical preservation and development, mental growth and perfect articulation are generally absent where this spitting and drinking disease prevails. It is probable that a sermon deluged with spit and water is less effective than the hot and burning words of a carefull, even balanced, genteel looking man, who speaks correctly, and behaves decently when in or ont of the pulpit, who is as well behaved, polite and dignified in private as in public. Such ministers are respectable, respected and influential for good, at home and abroad.

Any number of nicely written, properly spelled and correctly punctnated articles come to ns. We welcome them as indices to the rapid progress of the colored people in letters, but they are not representatives of the great mass of onr people. They do not read and write so well as most of these letters wonld indicate. While we want these nice letters to continue and to increase the nnmber and freqnency of their visits to us, we especially desire to have a large, free and easy correspondence with the whole race. Therefore, we ask our friends to sit down and write on a postal card what they think on any subject and send it to ns, it does not matter how poor the writing nor how bad the spelling. You can write neither so good or so bad that We cannot read it. We do not care so much for the manner as we do for the matter. Your ideas are diamonds, and it is these though in the rough which we seek. Men tell us what the colored people think, and we langh at them, because we know that nobody knows what the masses of the colored people are thinking. Write, brothers and sisters, friends and children, and let us know what you are thinking about, speak for yourselves, this is your paper. When your piece is printed go and show it to your neighbors, so they will be encouraged to write to us and also to take, pay for, and read the paper. Don't promise to pay, it won't be half so easy to keep your promise after a while, as it is to pay now. Don't ask the preacher to send for the paper for you unless you give him the money because he is not able to lose, or even wait for it. But give him the money and then tell him to send it on at once. Send your correspondence yourself; don't ask any one what you ought to send, write anything only nothing untrue or offensively personal. We need not tell you to write nothing coarse or vulgar.

—Rev. Milton S. Terry, D.D., of the New York conference, has been elected to the chair of Old Testament exegesis in the Garrett Biblical institute.

—Bishop Fowler left Chicago, July 26, for the Pacific coast. After selecting a place in San Francisco for a permanent residence, he will visit Puget Sound conference, and will preside over the conferences along the Pacific railroad, and will return to Chicago late in the fall. He is looking exceedingly well and happy.—Northwestern.

—Bishop H. M. Turner, of the African M. E. Church, is described as a Bishop, with a capital B. He wears a black silk gown in the pulpit, and puts on all the airs of a full-fledged high-churchman. There seems to be quite a disposition on the part of some of the sons of our African sister to move toward Rome.—Pittsburgh Advocate.

Bishop Merrill will dedicate the Mississippi Rapids Bluff Park assembly grounds, Sunday, August 10. These grounds are located on the river, about ten miles above the city of Keokuk, and opposite the town of Nanvoo. Persons who have visited this place think it the most beautiful site on the river.

Half a Million Dollars for Christian Education in the South.

CENTENNIAL APPEAL.

To the ministers, members, and friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church:

FELLOW WORKERS,—The last General Conference, with great unanimity, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That an appeal be made to the whole Church for half a million of dollars, as a centennial offering for the great work of the Freedmen's Aid Society; and, while through all other portions of the Church the usual agencies are employed in raising this amount, the Freedmen's Aid Society is hereby authorized and directed to organize and prosecute such financial effort among the conferences of the South.

In addition to this important resolution the General Conference directed:

1. That the "entire educational work in the Southern States should be under the direction of one society."

2. That the Freedmen's Aid Society should "have full charge of this work in that section."

3. That the Freedmen's Aid Society be placed prominently among the Church societies, to be specially remembered by our people in their thank-offerings during the centennial year.

4. That, there might be no interference with local centennial efforts, it was directed that this special plea for education in the South be made, "when, in the progress of the year, the ordinary annual appeal . . . is made."

These legislative acts by our highest ecclesiastical council, in which the whole Church was represented, indicate a profound conviction that our Southern educational work is of supreme importance. This work involves the development of institutions of Christian learning on what was slave territory in the nation, where now are found one-fourth of our Church membership, a large majority of whom are ignorant and poor.

This appeal for $500,000 from our whole Church for this work is a reasonable one. Already more than fifty institutions of learning in the South, in which are six thousand young men and women, look to this society for entire or partial support.

In accordance with the action of the General Conference, and in order to meet the exigency upon us for immediate action, our society will apportion the half million dollars [illegible] annual collections throughout the Church, as a special centennial appointment. This will be done with the hope and prayer that every pastor will earnestly place the [illegible]

[illegible] Collars of [illegible] will be needed in [illegible]; [illegible] proportion of this [illegible] Church will rise [illegible] work of the Church is to educate Christian teachers and ministers. This is the work of our society.

Shall we not have the half million?

Centennial M. E. Church. Formerly Old Strawberry Alley M. E. Church Baltimore, Maryland.

The pastors, officers and members of Centennial Church hereby invite your attention to the consideration of the following circular:

Centennial Methodist Episcopal Church has both a national and ecclesiastical reputation. It has in its possession the old Strawberry Alley Church, the first building of the kind commenced in the State under the anspices of Methodism, (see Daniel's History of Methodism, page 425,) and the old building yet remains. It is a precious relic, historical of early Methodism in Maryland. The congregation during the National Centennial year, 1876, completed a neat and commodious building, corner of Caroline and Bank Streets, and named it Centennial M. E. Church in honor of the National Centennial of our country, at a cost of $22,000 in fee. There is a remaining indebtedness on the property of $9,000, at 6 per cent. interest. The year 1884 being the great Centennial year of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, we greatly desire to free our church from its indebtedness in connection with the celebration of the Centennial. Should we succeed in accomplishing this all important end, we will be able to throw off this burden and assist a congregation struggling to free itself. The membership numbers about 360. They are a prompt, hard-working, energetic people and loyal to the church. They have done wonders in carrying the burden of debt thus far. They are pecuniarily unable to complete this work without aid. Will not the Methodist Church and our friends of other denominations rally to the aid of this noble church and pay off its indebtedness, thus making it an object of charity in connection with the celebration of the Centennial? We hereby set apart January 1st, 1885, as Centennial Church Victory Day, at which time we hope to be entirely free for the purpose herein named, praying that the blessings of God may attend this our worthy and earnest effort to honor His name, extend His cause, and perpetuate our National and Historical Church. All contributions can be forwarded by money order or postal note to the Rev. W. T. Harris, 125 South Caroline street, Baltimore, Md. To this end we respectfully appeal to the church at large and all friends of Methodism to contribute any amount they may feel able and willing to assist us in freeing from debt a people who have always been loyal to every interest of the church. The action of the trustees and pastor of Centennial Church has received the sanction of the Board of Bishops of the M. E. Church, the [illegible] endorsement of Bishops H. W. Warren and E. G. Andrews.

We remains yours in the work of the church,

Old Strawberry Alley Methodist Church is one of the three remaining relics of early Methodism. The white members have "John Street" and "Old St. George." This one is in possession of the colored members of our church, and it should be saved in its present condition even if throughout the connection our people found it needful to send up such contributions of money as they are able to Bro. Harris for that purpose.

Twenty-one new cotton mills have been started in the South in the last four months.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

A. J. Pickett, Pleasant Hill: "Elder Duncan held our second quarterly conference June 21. We are building a new church at Prairie Bayou, where the first was burned in 1881. I have succeeded in opening three schools. The one at Pleasant Hill is taught by the writer; at James Chapel, by A. J. Hall, of Franklin; at Prairie Bayou, by Anthony Burrell, of St. Joseph. At Pleasant Valley we need a teacher; one who is willing to stay in the country and suffer with our people."

At the second quarterly conference of Haven Chapel M. E. Church, recently held, the following resolution, offered by Thomas Brewe of the trustees, was unanimously adopted: "Whereas, Rev. L. P. Cushman, our beloved presiding elder, has, by his energy and faithfulness, rendered us invaluable service in raising funds to liquidate our indebtedness; therefore Resolved, That in Bro. Cushman we find an honored servant of the Lord, whose heart is earnestly bent on building up the kingdom of our Lord; and on behalf of the members and friends of this church, we tender him, and through him the good friends who so nobly assisted us, our undivided thanks. Resolved further, That these resolutions be published in the SOUTHWESTERN by the Secretary of this meeting."

MISSISSIPPI.

W. H. Scott, Sallis: "Children's day was observed and we had a nice time. Forty scholars and a number of visitors were present. Bros. Banks and Schuler addressed the school. Our pastor, J. M. Nevils, is a faithful worker for church and Sunday-school. Collection $3."

ARKANSAS.

J. D. Johnson, Little Rock: "I guess you would like to hear from us in this part of the Lord's vineyard. We are fighting under the blood stained banner of Jesus, and we are not discouraged yet. This is my second year on this work; I came to the work immediately after conference, in February, and I was received with courtesy by the people all over the circuit. I was attending school at Philander Smith College when I entered the conference, and by God's help I have been able to keep up the work and remain in school for two years. But it has been through hard work, study, and difficulty that I have gone [illegible] I was determined to not leave school as long as [illegible] chance for me to keep up my work. I began a protracted meeting, at one point on the circuit immediately after school closed, which resulted in 7 conversions and 22 accessions to the church. We observed the children's day and had a good time with the little folks all day. I preached to the children at 3 o'clock p. m., collection $3.05, and preached to the older people at night, and took a collection of $3.05; total collection for the day $7. While you may not think this is much, we feel much encouraged over it. You need not be surprised when I tell you that we do not own a foot of ground on the whole work for Church purposes, but have to worship in the school houses owned by the Government. There are as many Baptist members here as Methodists, and we all worship in the same house, but not agreeably. While I, to the best of my ability, preach all the Methodist doctrine I know on one Sunday, the next Sunday the Baptist preacher will come in and preach all the Baptist doctrine he can find. This is the way we are traveling to the city of our God; but, thank God, I have held the fort thus far; they have not gained any of our members, but once in a while a Baptist member gets his eyes open and joins the old Methodist Church. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

M. Williams, Gallatin: "Yesterday, June 29th, was another lively day for Key's Chapel. The Missionary Baptist Sunday-school came over to review with us. There were over 115 members of the Baptist school, and over 185 of the Methodist schools; over 300 in all. Dr. Braden, President of Central Tennessee College, was with us. He made a stirring address to the schools. He also preached two sermons that will not be forgotten by the members of the church, at the hours respectfully of 3 and 8 o'clock p. m., to a large congregation. We raised for the new church $69.80. Dr. Braden gave us $5. The Sunday-schools raised over $7, making $76.80. Rev. H. W. Simmons, pastor of Gallatin circuit, was with us throughout the day."

S. B. Danley, Purdy: "The children's day was also old folks day. They were delighted with the programme. We marched around the grave of Sister Jennie Johnson, who died June 3, and decorated it with flowers. Her last words and work with us, in May consisted in reading a fine essay before the Sunday-school Institute. Afterward we marched through the streets of the city. Collection $3."

A. P. Blakemore, Springfield: "Our public school closed June 25-26. It was taught by Miss Lydia A. Collins, of Boston, Mass. She has been my Sunday-school teacher and she had an excellent influence over the children, and worked as a true missionary. Some of our best citizens came out to witness the school examinations. We hope she will return in September next. Besides a fine Sunday-school a temperance society of 36 members has been organized."

TEXAS.

A. Brown, Hubbard City: "Children's Day we had a grand time. The pulpit was decorated with flowers. The house was full to its utmost. We commenced our lesson about the great work of the church and Sunday-school; the old people and children could not help rejoicing when told about Bishops Asbury and Simpson; though silent, their footprints are left in the sands of time. Collection $4."

G. A. Shanklin, Moffatt: "We have no Sunday-school at Cedar Creek, and no church. Bro. Alonzo is on this circuit and is trying to do all he can for the people's good."

J. T. Jacobs, Hondo: "Children's Day was observed on the following plan: local preachers attended points as follows: H. Williams, Fredericksburg, collection $6.05; F. Pierce, Bandera, $3; Bro. Johnson, Hondo, $1.50; I held at Elm Pass and collected $5; Bro. H. Johnson supplied a place to which a local preacher refused to go. I would not have one child on the circuit miss the day for any thing, and the celebration seemed sufficient pretext to their duty to their children. On May 30 Miss Anne Bradford and Marrah Labrace gave a festival at Hondo church, for the purpose of getting lamps for the church. They succeeded in raising money enough to get 14 light chandeliers, 2 crochet lamps, and other furniture costing $54.75. May the Lord bless these two young ladies and may the light of the Lord shine in their hearts as their grand lamps light up the sanctuary of the Lord. Our public school is taught at the church, by Miss E. Carter, late of Tillotson Institute. She is giving satisfaction to all. My camp meeting will commence August 13th in Elm Pass; all preachers and people are invited to attend, and to be at the Hondo August 11th. Some of the brethren will take you to the ground".

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Pansy for August (Boston; D. Lothrop & Co.,) is out, with delightful pictures and stories for children.

"The Holy Spirit, the Conservator of Orthodoxy," a sermon by Rev. Daniel Steele, D.D., at the National Camp Meeting, Lansing, June 15, 1884.

Our Little Ones for August (Boston; Russell Pub. Co.,) tells of Dolly Town, Ten Years Old, Mrs. Humming Bird and the Spare Room. It has a piece of music with words "On the Beach."

"A Reply for the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry to the Encylical Letter "Humanum Genus" of Pope Leo XIII," bearing the imprint. Charleston, July 1884, has been received.

The August number of The Pulpit Treasury is not a whit behind any of its compeers in variety of articles and excellence of matter, and in some features surpasses them all. Yearly, $2.50. Clergymen $2.00. Single Copies 25 cts. E. B. Treat, Publisher, 757 Broadway, New York.

Wide Awake, August issue furnishes some very choice vacation reading for its young patrons, illustrated with novel and artistic engravings. This year, the vacation number is beautiful with charming midsummer fancies. "Little Pitty People," forms the frontispiece and illustrates James Whitcomb Riley's musical poem of the same title. Almost as tasteful, are Brennan's three drawings for "The Meadow Princess," by Miss Poulsson. Barnes' six full page drawings for the Æsop's Fable, "The Shepherd Boy and the Wolf," are also very attractive. The opening story is for girls, and is an excellent one in its lessons; it is by Mrs. Frances A. Humphrey, and is entitled "A Modern Kate Barlass." The boys have, in their turn, an amusing hunting story by F. A. Stealey, called "Osito;" and Miss Sparhawk furnishes a funny and very dainty tale for the smaller children in the history of "Polly's Mortification." The "Little Biography" this month is of Dr. Wm. T. G. Morton, the discoverer of ether. Only $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

A WICKED ADULTERATION.

Eleven Per Cent of Tartrate of Lime Discovered in Price's Baking Powder.

Analysis of Price's Baking Powder, of Chicago, shows:

LIME..... 3.53 per ct.
AMMONIA..... 1.05 per ct.
Starch.....19.00 per ct.

Prof. Habirshaw, of New York, found the following in Price's Powder:

TARTRATE OF LIME.....11.85 per ct.

Aside from the inferiority of a powder containing a useless substance equaling about one-eighth of its entire weight (and which is the cause of the great lack of strength of Price's Baking Powder, as shown by the tests of the Government Chemists), there is to be considered the serious consequences that may arise from taking this large amount of lime into the system.

Lime can not be decomposed by heat, and is not eliminated in mixing or baking, and, therefore, all of this enormous proportion, as found in Price's Baking Powder, remains in the bread, biscuit, or cake with which it is mixed, and is taken into the stomach.

By the application of heat to lime, carbonic acid gas is driven off, and there is left quick-lime, a caustic so powerful that it is used by tanners to eat the hair from hides of animals, and in dissecting-rooms to quickly rot the flesh from the bones of dead subjects.

Lime mixed with starch (and both are found in Price's Powder) will produce a ferment. The process is not quick, and does not take place until the food in which the baking powder is used has been some time in the stomach. Indigestion, dyspepsia, and more serious disorders result.

The cause of this large amount of Lime in Price's Baking Powder is the use of cheap and impure materials.

Prof. C. B. Gibson, Chemist of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, had in view these impure powders containing lime, like Price's, when, after having made an examination of many of them, he volunteered the following testimony that Royal Baking Powder is the best and purest in the market:

THE ROYAL ABSOLUTELY PURE.

"ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO.: I recently procured a sample of your (Royal) baking powder from the kitchen of a private family in this city, and subjected it to an examination. I found it so different from many of the baking powders advertised as 'strictly' and 'absolutely pure,' and so far superior that I thought you would be pleased to know it, and might find use for the certificate.

"In view of the vast difference and stupendous frauds that are offered to the most 'gullible' people on the face of the earth, it pleases me occasionally to strike an 'honest article.'

Respectfully,

"C. B. GIBSON, Analytical Chemist."

The Housekeeper.

For a roasted ham, make a brown gravy of beef stock thickened with brown flour and a little lemon juice added.

To destroy all the rank taste that is apt to cling to kidney stew add a little vinegar to the gravy.

Salmon salad may be made by filling a salad bowl with alternate layers of finely chopped fresh cabbage and of finely pickled salmon. Pour over it a rich dressing.

Tomato pie can be made by peeling and slicing green tomatoes; to this allow four tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one of butter and three of half of sugar; flavor with nutmeg and bake very slowly with two crusts. If the tomatoes are first stewed there is then no danger of the pie being too juicy.

Lemon fritters are specially delicious after this receipt:—Take one cup of flour, one egg, half a tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar, one cup of sweet milk and the juice and grated pulp of one lemon. The grated yellow rind may be added to the sauce.

Whipped cream with gelatine is an excellent dish. Take three pints of rich, sweet cream, sweeten to taste and flavor with three teaspoonfuls of vanilla; whip to a perfect stiff froth; dissolve three-fourths of an ounce of gelatine in a small teacup of hot water, when cool stir it into the cream, pour into moulds and set in the ice chest.

IRISH POTATOES A LA MACAIRE.—The following amusing anecdote explains the origin of this dish. Philippe and his family were dining at the Tuileries one day, and the Prince de Joinville was so absorbed giving an account of one of his voyages that he ate a splendid dish of fried potatoes which was handed to him; when he had finished, he turned and asked for potatoes, but justice had been done to the dish, that not a crumb was left; a search in the kitchen for more was made, but there were none ready; there was no time for hesitation; the chef threw the trimmings of potatoes served at the table into a frying pan with a piece of butter, tossed the pieces until a golden color, so pleasing to the eye, and presented by a dash of finely chopped parsley; the prince found them so good that he ate them all.

COOKING PIE PLANT.—Cut the stems so as to form cubes, place them in an earthen vessel, put a good deal of sugar on them and let them stand in a warm place for two or three hours, then stew them just enough to cook them. The sugar draws out sufficient juice to cook them without a drop of water being necessary, and it hardens the plant so that each piece retains its shape and prevents th t mushy appearance so repugnant to looks as well as taste. If the skin is not removed, the bright color at the base of the stem gives it a delicious pink tinge, which adds to its beauty. If put into glass air tight cans it will keep all winter, for pies and preserves, and is very delicious.

Walking With The World.

BY MRS. MATILDA C. EDWARDS.

"The church and the world walked far apart,
On the changing shore of time,
The world was singing a giddy song,
And the church a hymn sublime.
Come, give me your hand, cried the merry world,
And walk with me this way;
But the good church hid her snowy hands,
And solemnly answered, Nay.
I will not give you my hand at all,
And I will not walk with you,
Your way is the way to endless death—
You words are all untrue."

"Nay, walk with me but a little space,"
Said the world with a kindly air;
"The road I walk is a pleasant road,
And the sun shines always there;
Your path is thorny, and rough and rude,
And mine is broad and plain;
My road is paved with flowers and dews,
And yours with tears and pain;
The sky above me is always blue,
No want, no toil I know;
The sky above you is always dark,
Your lot is a lot of woe;
My path, you see, is a broad, fair one,
And my gate is high and wide;
There is room enough for you and me
To travel side by side."

Half shyly the church approached the world,
And gave him her hand of snow;
The world grasped it and walked along,
Saying, in accents low,
Your dress is too simple to please my taste;
I will give you pearls to wear,
Rich velvets and silks for your graceful form,
And diamonds to deck your hair."
The church looked down at her plain white robe,
And then at the dazzling world,
And blushed as she saw his handsome lip,
With a smile contemptuous curled.
"I will change my dress for a costlier one,"
Said the church, with a smile of grace;
Then her pure white garments drifted away,
And the world gave in their place
Beautiful satins and shining silks,
And costly pearls and gems;
And over her forehead her bright hair
Crimped in a thousand curls.

[illegible]
[illegible]
So he built her a costly and beautiful [illegible]
[illegible] beautiful daughters
[illegible] gold;
[illegible] in the halls were
[illegible] and his children were [illegible] and music and feasts were
In the place that was [illegible] for the rich and [illegible]
[illegible] stabby
[illegible] outside.
[illegible] of misery sky over the church
[illegible] heavy sky,
[illegible] heart beat with weight
[illegible]
[illegible] to her,
[illegible] indulgence in [illegible] sports,"
[illegible] pleasure-mad throng.
And smiled and chatted, and gathered flowers,
As she walked along with the world.
While millions and millions of destitute souls
To the horrible gulf were hurled.

"Your preachers are all too old and plain,"
Said the gay world with a sneer;
"They frighten my children with dreadful tales,
Which I like not for them to hear.
They talk of brimstone and fire and pain,
And the hours of endless night:
They talk of a place which should not be
Mentioned to ears polite.
I will send you some of the better stamp,
Brilliant and gay and fast,
Who will tell them that people may live
[illegible]
And go to heaven at last.
The Father is merciful great and good,
[illegible]

Do you think he would take one child to heaven,
And leave the rest behind?"
So he filled her house with gay divines,
Gifted and great and learned;
And the plain old men that preached the cross
Were out of her pulpits turned.

"You give too much to the poor," said the world,
"Far more than you ought to do;
If the poor need shelter and food and clothes,
Why need it trouble you?
Go take your money and buy rich robes,
And horses and carriages fine,
And pearls and jewels and dainty food,
And the rarest and costliest wine;
My children they dote on all such things,
And if you their love would win,
You must do as they do, and walk in the ways
That they are walking in."
Then the church held tightly the strings of her purse,
And gracefully lowered her head,
And simpered, "I've given too much away,
I'll do, sir, as you have said."

So the poor were turned from her door in scorn,
And she heard not the orphan's cry;
And she drew her beautiful robes aside,
As the widows went weeping by;
And the sons of the world and the sons of the church
Walked closely hand and heart,
And only the Master, who knoweth all,
Could tell the two apart.
Then the church sat down at her ease and said,
"I am rich, and in goods increased;
I have need of nothing and naught to do,
But to laugh and dance and feast."
And the sly world heard her and laughed in his sleeve,
And mockingly said aside.
"The church is fallen, the beautiful church,
And her shame is her boast and pride."

The angel drew near to the mercy seat,
And whispered in sighs her name,
And the saints their anthems of rapture hushed
And covered their heads with shame;
And a voice came down through the hush of heaven
From him who sat on the throne,
"I know thy work, and how thou hast said,
"I am rich, and hast not known
That thou art naked, poor and blind,
And wretched before my face?
Therefore from my presence I cast thee out,
And blot thy name from its place."

Arresting the Progress of Con-

In this disease, as in all others, the only hope of cure is in the establishment of a higher vital condition. Efforts are made to reach this through out-door exercise, and by various other means for improving the general health which are known to invalids and physicians. Now in the Vitalizing Treatment of Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia, has been discovered an agent that gives directly this higher vitality, which generally becomes apparent at the very outset of its use. This is manifest in an almost immediate increase of appetite, and in a sense of life and bodily comfort. If the Treatment is continued, a steady improvement nearly always follows; and where the disease has not become too deeply seated, a cure may be confidently looked for. If you would have satisfactory evidence of this, send to Drs. Starkey & Palen for such documents and reports of cases as will enable you to judge for yourself, and they will be promptly furnished.

Curious Old Burial Customs.

Charlemagne was buried seated on a throne, with Royal robes, his arms and ornaments, and the book of the Gospels on his knee. The Scandinavian Viking was buried with his arms because his Valhalla was a fighting place; but the Christian Kings of Denmark continued to be buried with their arms, although there was no Valhalla prepared for them. And now a strange fact has to be recorded. The burial with grave goods which was a distinctly Pagan character, and which the early Christians abandoned, and which afterward fell into desuetude even with Christian kings, was still retained by the clergy, and specially of the highest order. Thus Kornerup, describing the practice in Denmark, says the burials of the higher orders of the clergy in the Middle-Ages—"On their heads they bore the mitre, on their shoulders the cloak of gold brocade, on the finger the Episcopal ring, and the crozier lay by the corpse. Their feet were shod, and the chalice and paten were placed in their hands." Again, in the Twelfth century, a curious variety of lay burial prevailed, when it was not unusual for laymen to be buried in a monkish habit under the notion that the sanctity of the dress would preserve the body from molestation by demons.—[Scottish Church Review.

The Boy And The Man.

Many years ago a poor shepherd boy, clad in an old plaid mantle, went into a bookstore in Edinburgh and asked for a second-hand Greek Testament, being unable to buy a new one. The bookseller having handed him one, the boy asked the price. "For whom do you want it?" asked the bookseller. "For myself," answered the boy. "Can you read Greek?" "Yes, sir," modestly said the boy. "Then," said the bookseller, "if you read and translate a few sentences I will give you the book." The boy, highly pleased with the proposal, read the Greek text, and then translated it into English. "Take the book," my boy," said the bookseeler;,"you are welcome to it." The boy thanked him, clapped the book under his arm, and walked off in trinmph to the pasture to attend the sheep. Many years afterward that same boy (ah! he had grown to be a man now) stepped into the same bookstore, entered into conversation with the bookseller, and asked him if he remembered giving a second hand Greek Testament to a poor shepherd boy one morning.

"Yes, I remember it well," said the bookseller, "and I should like to know what become of that boy, for I am certain he has risen to eminence in some profession or other.' "Sir," said the man, "you see him before you." Now, who do you think he was? The Rev. John Brown, of Haddingtou, one of the most eminent authors and commentators of the scriptures the world has ever produced. It is a well-known fact that the children of parents in humble circumstances often succeed better than the children of the rich; and their greater success must arise from their being stimulated by their scanty means to improve to the utmost the talents which God has given them. To the sons of the poor man, then, say I, in the words of Solomon, "The hand of the diligent shall bear rule; but the slothful shall be under tribute." Be industrious, be frugal, and attentive to every duty. To the sons of the rich I would say; "He that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man; and seest thou a man diligent in business, he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men."

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Advantageous in Dyspepsia.

Dr. G. V. Dorsey, Piqua, Ohio, says: "I have used it in dyspepsia with very marked benefit. If there is deficiency of acid in the stomach nothing affords more relief, while the action on the nervous system is decidedly beneficial."

The First Steps.

No man ever became a drunkard, lived a drunkard's life, died a drunkard's death, and filled a drunkard's grave, as a matter of free choice. No one ever became an excessive drinker who did not begin the habit of being a moderate, a very moderate drinker. If it were the habit of all not to take the first step, and thus not become moderate drinkers, the unutterable horrors and woe, the destitution and crime, which results from this master evil of intemperance would cease. Wives and children, and friends and communities, would not mourn over loved ones thus dishonored and lost. But it is the habit of drinking becoming the law of their being and of their daily life, the lack of resisting power resulting from this terrible thraldom, the fever of habitual temptation and appetite, which causes that yearly death march of sixty thousand of our people to the saddest of all graves, followed, as mourners, by half a million of worse than widowed wives and worse than orphan children.

A strange story as to how the plans of a thief were thwarted is told by Parisian paper. In 1666 a diamond valued at over $600,000 was found in a Chilian mine near Caracotes. Its owner, Mr Joam Pareso, hawked it about Europe, and at length found a purchaser in Queen Victoria. It was put into the hands of a London jeweler to be set, and for eight days was exhibited in his window. One fine morniug the jeweler found the case in which it was specially set apart broken, and the jewel gone. No trace of the thief could be found, and the jeweler partially indemnified the Queen for her loss. On May 7 there died in a miserable lodging in Strasburg a man of seventy, named Julian Partridge. His landlord was amazed to find in Partridge's pocket a huge diamond; wrapped up in a letter, telling that he, finding himself dying, wished to explain that the diamond in his pocket was the "Sunbeam," which he had stolen, but knowing that Mr. Pareso had shown it all over Europe, he had not, after all, dared to attempt to sell it. The diamond was returned to the the Queen, who of course, repaid the jeweler.

Do you think of one falsity as harmless, and another as slight, and another as unintended? Cast them all aside; they may be slight and accidental, but they are ugly soot from the smoke of the pit for all that.—John Ruskin.

That preacher who is making no special effort to circulate the literature of the Church is failing of duty at a vital point, and should make haste to correct the error.—Central Methodist.

Mischief Is Wrought.

By bad cooking, tough meats, late hours, business worries, irregular lives, sour dispositions, evil digeston and impure blood. Much of this mischief can be overcome by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters—the best tonic ever made. Mrs. Emile Crawford, Reidsville, Ga., writes. "After trying Brown's Iron Bitters we are persuaded that it is all that it claims to be—a good and reliable tonic." Thousands of others speak in like manner.

CORRUPTIONS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT. By H L. Hastings, Boston. Price 15c.

This is the third volume of the Anti-Infidel Library, and is bound in cloth, 80 pages. It is a carefully prepared book showing how hifting are the assertions that the New Testament has been so compted that we do not know what the authors originally wrote. The London Times dispatch of July 31 says: China has refused to pay the indemnity demanded by France. The time granted China by France to decide upon the matter is not beyond Aug. 1. A secret edict has been issued ordering the Chinese not to molest foreigners or French civilians. The mandarins, however, assert that the lives of foreigners are not safe. The English fleet is landing sailors to act in defence of foreigners in Foo Chow. The China merchant fleet has been sold to an American firm for 5,250,000 taels, nearly $7,300,000. Organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States of America.

A Centennial Paper.

BY REV. MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D.D.

Prepared and read before the Lexington Conference, at its session held in Ninth Street M. E. Church, Covington, Ky., March 26, 1884, and ordered by that body to be published.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen—I am here to lay before you such historic facts as I have been able to collect, in reference to the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The subject has been so fully discussed by our church historians, Drs. Bangs, Porter, Stephens and other eminent authors, that little remains to be said about it, and that little resulting, in the main, from a reading of their able essays.

ITS HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT.

The organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, under God, was indeed a momentous occurrence! for, in the development of this great religious movement of modern times it was not the result so much of human forethought and planning, as of Providential direction. God was in it, and caused it.

Coincident with the advent of our Lord and Savior; or, rather, one hundred years ago, in 1784, there assembled in Lovely Lane Chapel, Baltimore, Maryland, the day before Christmas of that year, the most important convention of Christian men that ever met together on the American continent—the advent of a new adjunct and impetus to the Church of the living God—of the proclamation of "peace on earth and good will to man." This convention continued its session during the whole week, and has passed into history as the Christmas Conference. Its constituent members were not noted for fame or wealth; but to the glory of those early Methodist preachers, their coadjutors and successors, poor themselves, they preached the Gospel to the poor! Neither was it the influence, shed over the country by the convention, great as that was, which gave this Conference its chief notability; for it towers above all subsequent Methodist conferences, in the fact that the Methodist Episcopal Church was born then and there, and in concurrence with the Father of Methodism, Mr. Wesley, its polity arranged.

THE HUMBLE AND SMALL BEGINNING.

From this auspicious gathering of humble ministers of Christ, the history of Episcopal Methodism began, the influence of which branch of the Christian Church it was to become, and has since been demonstrated to be, a moral lever in the hands of earnest Christians everywhere, quickening the zeal of all other religious institutions around it, and permeating all countries with its moral tone and spiritual life. Its importance cannot yet be estimated, though considered in the light of the glorious results of the conflicts and triumphs already achieved in the past hundred years of American Methodism. We say American Methodism, because all Methodists, of every shade and type, in this country, germinated from that Christmas Conference. It was, hence, the further development, growth and extension of "Christianity in earnest," rather than being circumscribed to the present, that made the all-important occasion it was. Its effect upon the moral tone of the colonies, which a little while before had torn the womb of European monarchy, cutting the umbilicus of tyranny, thereby bringing into political life a confederation of independent States, cannot, even now, be fully calculated.

THE PATRIOT WORTHIES OF 1776.

The independence of those colonies was declared July 4, 1776. Richard Henry Lee, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robert R. Livingston are names whose memories have become fragrant for the patriotism they exhibited, in the fulmination of that famous document, the Declaration of Independence. "Liberty Bell" rung out to the nations the grand event and tolled the death knell of kingship, advertising to the world that a Republican Nation had been violently born across the sea. During this revolutionary war, Mr. Wesley and the English preachers had very properly continued their allegiance to Great Britain. They were patriots, not traitors, rendering obedience to the country of their birth, believing "the powers that be are ordained of God," hence, "honored the king" and his government. In preaching Christ, whose Kingdom is not of this world, their action was consistent and proper.

THE PATRIOTIC SUCCESSORS OF A NOBLE BAND.

The ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, succeeding them, has been true to the interest of the United States, always opposing revolution, treason and traitors. In the late civil war they loyally stood by the Union cause. In this our Church differed widely from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The English Fathers were loyal men. Strictly, the date of the Confederation of the Colonies, under the name and style of the United States of America, was June 12, 1776, and they had to make their Declaration of Independence good at the bayonet's point and cannon's mouth. Thus, armed with a sense of the justness of their cause, they went forth "to do or die." Many battles were fought and many heroes fell in the revolutionary field of glory; many equally patriotic wives and mothers were made to mourn, and orphans wept for their gallant fathers slain, while bravely fighting in the colonial army; but, before the notes of peace fell upon the listening ears of the still struggling survivors, ere the smoke of battle had rolled away and the roar of artillery ceased, their independence was admitted, and the fire-tried, blood bought Nation recognized among the powers of the earth.

MR. WESLEY'S SANCTION OF THE NEW ORGANIZATION.

Although Mr. Wesley and his preachers adhered to the British crown in the Revolutionary War, at its close they accepted the result, and adjusted their future proceedings to its demands. He neither believed it proper or practicable, after the independence of the Colonies, ecclesiastically or politically, as churchmen or statesmen, and especially as American citizens, that they should be subject to English rule. He, therefore, prepared a form of government suited to their altered relation, and sent it to America by Dr. Coke, for submission to the American brethren. He had previously qualified Dr. Coke to exercise a general superintendency in the States and authorized him to set apart Francis Asbury already in this country, as associate superintendent.

THE CHRISTMAS CONFERENCE OF 1784.

The arrival of Dr. Coke for this purpose, eight years after the organization of the United States Government, was the occasion which brought this first and most important Christmas Conference together. The ministry of these preachers had been attended by many hardships, growing out of their English citizenship, since the struggle for independence began. The patriots, naturally, though unnecessarily, mistrusted, and in many ways annoyed them. None, therefore, could more heartily rejoice upon the return of peace, and none were more fully prepared to adapt themselves to the new order of things, than these zealous preachers.

It was soon apparent that the new government was to have no more faithful, loyal or heroic supporters than they were. Five years later, Bishops Coke and Asbury grasped the friendly hand of President Washington and presented him an address in behalf of the Conference then in session.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH, AND ADDRESS TO GEN. WASHINGTON.

This transaction is fully set forth in a letter from Rev. Thomas Morrell to Rev. Ezekiel Cooper. It reads as follows:

"ELIZABETHTOWN, N. J., Aug. 27, 1827.

"To the Rev. Ezekiel Cooper:

"With regard to the information you request, concerning the address to General Washington, I can furnish you with every material circumstance respecting it, having acted as sub-agent in the transaction, and having a distinct recollection of the whole business.

"The history of it is, that Mr. Asbury, in the New York Conference, in 1789, offered, for the consideration of the Conference, the following proposal: 'Whether it would not be proper for us as a Church to present a congratulatory address to General Washington, who had been lately inaugurated President of the United States, in which should be embodied our approbation of the constitution, and professing our allegiance to the government. The Conference unanimously approved and warmly recommended the measure, and appointed the two Bishops, Dr. Coke and Mr. Asbury, to draw up the address. It was finished that day and read to the Conference, who evinced great satisfaction in its recital. Brother Dickens and myself were delegated to wait on the President with a copy of the address, and request him to appoint a day and an hour when he would receive the Bishops, one of whom was to read it to him and receive his answer. It was concluded that, although Dr. Coke was the senior bishop, yet, not being an American citizen, there would be an impropriety in his presenting and reading the address; the duty devolved, of course, upon Bishop Asbury. Mr. Dickens and myself waited on the General, and, as I had some personal acquaintance with him, I was destined to present him with a copy and request his reception of the original by the hands of the bishops.

"The President appointed the fourth succeeding day, at 12 o'clock, to receive the bishops. They went at the appointed hour, accompanied by Bros. Dickens and Thomas Morrell. Mr. Asbury, with great self-possession, read the address in an impressive manner. The President read his reply with fluency and animation. They interchanged their respective addresses, and, after sitting a few minutes, we departed. The address and the answer was, in a few days, inserted in the public prints; and some of the ministers and members of the other churches appeared dissatisfied that the Methodists should take the lead. In a few days the other denominations successfully followed our example.

"THOMAS MORRELL."

BISHOP ASBURY'S FIDELITY, AND LOYALTY OF MEMBERS TO THE UNITED STATES.

This letter shows the eminent fidelity of Mr. Asbury and the Conference to the country. They esteemed it their duty, after the institution of the government, the adoption of its constitution, and election of a President, to give utterance to their desire for its prosperity, and assurance of their support. Dr. Coke could sign the address as a bishop, though not a citizen of the country, without either duplicity or inconsistency, and, with this godly judgment, he did so.

The creed of the Methodist Episcopal Church was the first to acknowledge the supremacy of the government: the authority of Congress, the President, the assemblies and governors of the States. Our 23d article of religion is to this point, viz:

"The President, Congress, the general assemblies, the governors and the councils of the State, as the delegates of the people, are the rulers of the United States of America, according to the division of power made to them by the Constitution of the United States and by the constitutions of their respective States. And the said States are a sovereign and independent nation, and ought not to be subject to any foreign jurisdiction. As far as it respects civil affairs, we believe it the duty of Christians, and especially all Christian ministers, to be subject to the supreme authority of the country where they may reside, and to use all laudable means to enjoin obedience to the powers that be; and, therefore, it is expected that all our preachers and people, who may be under the British or any other government, will behave themselves as peaceable and orderly subjects."

RECOGNITION OF THE NEW ORDER OF THINGS BY MR. WESLEY.

Mr. Wesley also recognized the sovereignty of the United States, and aimed to supply for its a Church which should be to it what the Establishment is to England. His intentions are clearly expressed in his letter to Dr. Coke and the American brethren, which is as follows:

"To Dr. Coke and our Brethren in North America:

"By a very uncommon train of Providences, many of the provinces of North America are totally disjoined from the British Empire, and erected into independent States. The English government has no authority over them, either civil or ecclesiastical, any more than over the States of Holland. A civil authority is exercised over them, partly by the Congress and partly by the State assemblies. But no one exercises or claims any ecclesiastical authority at all. In this peculiar situation, some thousands of the inhabitants of these States desire my advice, and in compliance with their desire, I have drawn up a little sketch of Lord King's account of the Primitive Church, which convinced me, many years ago, that bishops and presbyters are the same order, and consequently have the same right to ordain. For many years I have been importuned, from time to time, to exercise this right by ordaining part of our travelling preachers. But I have still refused, not only for peace's sake, but because I was determined, as little as possible, to violate the established order of the National Church to which I belonged. But the case is widely different between England and North America. Here there are bishops who have a legal jurisdiction. In America there are none, and but few parish ministers; so that for some hundred miles together there are none either to baptize or administer the Lord's Supper. Here, therefore, my scruples are at an end, and I conceive myself at full liberty, as I violate no order and invade no man's right by appointing and sending laborers into the harvest. I have accordingly appointed Dr. Coke and Mr. Francis Asbury to be joint superintendents over our brethren in North America; as, also, Richard Whatcoat and Thomas Vasey, to act as elders among them, by baptizing and administering the Lord's Supper. If any one will point out a more rational and scriptural way of feeding and guiding these poor sheep in the wilderness, I will gladly embrace it. At present I cannot see any better method than I have taken. It has, indeed, been proposed to desire the English Bishops to ordain part of our preachers for America. But to this I object—

"1st. I desired the Bishop of London to ordain one only, but could not prevail.

"2d. If they consented, we know the slowness of their proceedings; but the matter admits of no delay.

"3d. If they would ordain them now, they would likewise expect to govern them and how grievously would this entangle us.

"4. As our American brethren are now totally disentangled, both from the State and the English hierarchy, we dare not entangle them again, either with the one or the other. They are now at full liberty simply to follow the scriptures and the Primitive Church. And we judge it best that they should stand fast in the liberty wherewith God has so strangely made them free."

RECEPTION OF DR. COKE AND FRANCIS ASBURY.

The above letter fully shows how Mr. Wesley viewed the matter. It was the warrant for the assembling and proceeding of the approaching Conference. Mr. Garrettson had now returned from more than twelve hundred miles of riding on horseback to summons the preachers to attend it. In answer, at 10 o'clock on the memorable forenoon of Friday, December 24, 1784, preachers and appointees of the Father of Methodism, a peaceful cavalcade of King Jesus, rode from Perry Hall to the chapel where their Conference began.

MEMBERS OF FIRST CONFERENCE.

The members of that gathering consisted of Dr. Coke, Mr. Asbury, Richard Whatcoat, Thomas Vasey, Freeborn Garrettson, William Gill, Reuben Ellis, LeRoy Cole, Richard Ivey, James O. Kelly, John Haggerty, Nelson Reid, James O. Cromwell, Jeremiah Lambert, John Dickens, William Gleudenning, Francis Poythress, Joseph Everett, William Black of Nova Scotia, William Phoebus and Thos. Ware—20. There were eighty-three preachers in all; but it does not appear that the other sixty three were present, though some have supposed that others were there besides those here named.

The zealous labor of these men of God were crowned with so much success, that from 1770, when the nucleus of the Methodist Episcopal Church was formed in New York by Mr. Phillip Embury, a local preacher from Ireland, to 1784, the time of its organization, they numbered fourteen thousand, nine hundred and eighty-eight members in their societies, two bishops, twelve elders, one deacon and sixty-nine helpers, besides the English preachers not included in this enumeration. There was a reorganization of the Church in 1785; with it the present paper is not concerned, save parenthetically.

THE WORK OF THE FIRST CONFERENCE.

Dr. Coke and Mr. Asbury were elected superintendents, and the latter was ordained deacon by Dr. Coke, December 25th. On the following day, Sabbath, 26th, he was elder; and on Monday, th, he was consecrated superintendent (bishop). Thirteen deacons and twelve elders were also ordained. The project of Abingdon College was discussed. The twenty-four articles of religion, from the Church of England Prayer-book, were accepted, and one added on the sovereignty of the citizens of the United States. Also Mr. Wesley's liturgy for Sunday service. At this Conference a Book of Discipline was provided; a plan for preaching to the black people recommended. Mr. Wesley's rule against dram-drinking and the use of spirituous liquors, was adopted, and the following elaborate was inaugurated, and the accompanying plan of emancipation published, viz:

RULE AGAINST SLAVERY

"What shall we do with our slaves that will buy and sell them?

"Ans. If they buy with no other view than to hold them as slaves, they have been previously warned, and if they be expelled and permitted to sell on no consideration.

"What shall we do with our preachers, who will not emancipate their slaves in the States where the laws admit of it?

"Ans. Try those in Virginia another year, and suspend the preachers in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"What shall we do with our traveling preachers that now are, or hereafter shall be, possessed of slaves, and refuse to manumit them where the law permits?

"Ans. Employ them no more.

"What methods can we take to extirpate slavery?

"Ans. We are deeply conscious of the impropriety of making new terms of communion for a religious society already established, except in the most pressing occasion, and such we esteem the practice of enslaving our fellow-creatures in any country. We view it as contrary to the golden law of God, on which hang all the law and the prophets, and the inalienable rights of mankind, as well as every principle of the Revolution, to hold in the deepest abasement, in a more abject slavery than, perhaps, is found in any part of the world, except Africa, so many souls that are made in the image of God. Therefore we think it our most sacred duty to take immediately effectual method to extirpate this evil from among us; and for this end we add the following rules of our Society:

"I. RULES ON SLAVERY.

"Every member of our Society who has slaves in his possession shall within twelve months after notice given to him by the assistant, or one of the assistants, immediately and without any further delay to give in their manumission to the assistant, duly executed and recorded, whereby he emancipates and sets free every slave in his possession, who is between the ages of forty and forty-five, immediately or at furthest, at the expiration of two years from the date of the said instrument; and every slave who is between the ages of twenty-five, immediately or at furthest, when they arrive at the age of thirty; and every slave, under the age of twenty, as soon as he arrives at the age of twenty-one; and every infant, born after the above mentioned rules are complied with, immediately on its birth.

"II. And in consideration that these rules are a new term of communion, every person concerned, who does not comply with them, shall forfeit his membership quietly to withdraw himself from our Society, or within the space of twelve months after proper notice is given as aforesaid, the assistant shall exclude him from the Society.

"III. No person, so voluntarily withdrawing or excluded, shall ever partake of the Supper of the Lord, or any of our love feasts, till he complies with the above requisitions.

"IV. No person holding slaves, shall hereafter be admitted into our society or the Lord's Supper, till he fully complies with these rules concerning slavery.

"These rules are to effect the members of our Society no further than are consistent with the laws of the State in which they live; and respecting our brethren in Africa, who are concerned, we leave the consideration of their case to the Divine Disposer of all things, we allow ourselves only to recommend the following hints, concerning the expediency of gradually complying with the above rules:

"I. Let all our preachers that have any thing to do with those

The Conference was most deeply pervaded with a sense, not only of the sin of slave-holding, but the strange incongruity, made visible by the existence of this evil, in a country which had so lately gained its own freedom after years of terrible conflict and exhausted treasures: this, too, in the face of its boasted declaration that it was a self-evident truth, "That all men were created free and equal, and were entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that "these were inalienable rights."

Inspired by such reflections and their knowledge of the cruel wrongs inflicted upon the helpless victims of the abhorrent system, the new church took higher ground than had ever before, or since, been occupied by any American Church on this subject; and though these rules were altered, changed and modified, from time to time, the Methodist Episcopal Church never ceased its warfare on slavery until the slaves of this nation were all made free. To secure this freedom, its prayers, sermons and rules were more effectual, than any other known instrumentality. To the credit of this memorable Christmas Conference, must be awarded a most fearless confronting of "the great evil," then existing in the land; and the inauguration of the war, then and there declared against American slavery, never ceased until the last slave was freed and its last link broken.

PREACHING TO THE BLACKS.

The provision for "preaching to the black people," culminated in the planting of Methodist Episcopal churches for them in almost every county and State, from the mountains of Vermont to the "Land of Flowers." So that, now, from the Empire State to the Golden Gate, "the plan of giving Gospel preaching to the colored people," has resulted in the establishment of more than fifteen hundred Methodist churches, with thirteen hundred preachers, probably two hundred and fifty thousand members, twenty-one colleges and schools of high grade, wherein twenty thousand children and youth, indeed, two hundred thousand, indirectly, have been taught, as the final outcome of this "plan" for preaching and teaching the black people of these United States. What, indeed, has God wrought out for us! A sense of gratitude should always pervade the minds and hearts of our people, toward the self-sacrificing Methodist Episcopal Church, who, with the blessing of God, has thus been able to raise the down-trodden to the privileges now enjoyed by them. Ah, wherever the history of its efforts and loving labors in behalf of this people, is truthfully told and faithfully read by the present and future generations, their hearts will intensify with love to the now one-century-old Methodist Episcopal Church!

OPPOSITION TO THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

This first Conference, held in Baltimore, took a decided stand in opposition to the liquor traffic; and, the Church has never ceased to deal deadly blows on the infamous head of this nefarious business. This convention of God's ministers did not propose to form any new sect, but, to reform the continent, particularly the Church, and spread scriptural holiness over these lands. To this end, they agreed to form themselves into an Episcopal Church, under the direction of superintendents, elders, deacons, and helpers, according to the forms of ordination and discipline enacted and set forth in the minutes then adopted. The essential features of the Wesleyan system, such as an itinerant ministry, class-meetings, love feasts, etc., as well as the doctrinal platform of the British connection, were fully adopted by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

FORMER CHURCH COUNCILS AND THIS CONFERENCE CONTRASTED.

The first Council of the early Church had no higher mission than to condemn the opinions of Arius and level the Pope down to an equality with other bishops; the second—the Council of Nice—to authorize the worship of images; the first Council of Constantinople, to condemn the errors of Macedonia; the second, to condemn the Origenists and the three chapters; while the Council of Ephesus ends its mission in the deposition of Nestorius, and the Council of Trent, by an unsuccessful effort to define the Romish doctrines. How tame and common-place are all these ostentatious convocations, measured by their objects and results, when placed in contrast with this noted Christmas Conference! Emperors and prelates constituted the one, penniless itinerants the other. To maintain political power, the distinction of empty honor and the propagation of sectarian dogmas, were the objects of these hierarchical councils; but to spread scriptural holiness over these lands, and reform the continent, was the humble, prayerful desire and only intention of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, decided on at this conspicuous gathering or council! Its plans and members are alike illustrious, and have always been distinguished for their susceptibility of working out practical results.

LIBERTY AND EQUALITY—NOT CASTE.

True, she has recognized the presence of caste, in the course of her progress towards the conquest of the world for Christ; and, in her work of reforming this continent, has, at times, parleyed with that monster; but she has never at any time, place, or in any manner, endorsed it. Her creed and her progressive practice has been at war with all odious and invidious distinctions between men. What she could not demolish at once, has been borne with for a season; but her polity has been a continual warfare with sin, though "her weapons have not been carnal." She is for Christ, not caste. This fully appears as we study the work performed in elevating the colored people from 1784 to 1884.

Let there be an increase of faith and patience. Labor and wait. Another hundred years will right every wrong, and remove the last seeming cause of complaint. Our colored congregations are the logical outgrowth of the plan of preaching to the colored people, inaugurated by the Church one hundred years ago. The plan was made necessary by the relation the two races sustained to each other: a social antagonism, born of the effects of slavery on both master and slave. The Church recognized all these circumstances, and sought to correct the wrong by preaching the Gospel to all; by moral precepts, Christian example, and not physical suasion.

REVOLUTION—REFORMATION—CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

Revolution, while it has ever been the policy of the Church, and she might have even refused to preach to colored persons, unless their then owners, would both free them and all worship together on terms of equality; yet, such a revolution, it is easy to be seen, would simply have deprived the former of hearing and enjoying Gospel tidings and progress for their ultimate benefit, retarded, if not defeated, hence nothing gained for freedom, social recognition, or any of the advantages which have accrued to us. By proceeding according to circumstances, as Providence opened the way, plans so devised, have ever proven the blessed means, under God, of human elevation. All must recognize the existing line, by which white and colored people are separated, whether endorsed as a plan immutable or not, and that the natural sequence would be to work on both sides of that line, from extremes to the end desired. This is not fostering caste, but simply preaching Christ without stopping to contend with caste, with the distinct understanding that the Gospel is the power of God unto salvation; and that wherever it is preached, it will ultimately destroy all odious comparisons and individual distinctions. The Methodist Episcopal Church in, its history and its progress, knows no caste in its communion or Christian fellowships; in a word, is no caste Church.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK

TEXAS.

R. Weaver, Jacksonville. "We have had 8 additions to the church."

A. Jackson, Denison: "The children's day was beautifully observed for the first time here. Our Sabbath-school collected for the cause of education $2.60. Elder Gates held the second quarterly conference. Everything was conducted nicely. The reports from class leaders show that we are moving on. On Saturday night we had an old-fashioned Methodist love feast meeting. Sunday, at 11 a. m., the presiding elder preached an instructive sermon, after which sacrament was administered to 30 souls; six have been happily converted to God and joined our church. Collected for elder $6 25. Pray for us."

S. S. Riley, Flatonia: "Our Sabbath-school contains old and young and has 63 scholars. The parents are taking great interest, and sending their children regularly. Pray for our success. The school is six miles west of Flatonia, near Fivemile Creek."

Jeremiah Smith, Willis: "We are moving on slowly. The presiding elder held our quaaterly conference, and the power of the Spirit was felt among the people. In a protracted meeting of three weeks we had 34 conversions, and 6 received by letter. We will go to work on the church soon, and make it comfortable for the winter. Times are hard with us now. Elder Lee preached to and deeply interested the people. Paid him $11.25; pastor $23.85; on old debts $28.85."

J. M. Scott, Brazoria: "Our Baptist brethren frequently read our church paper. They are opposed to the establishment of the M. E. Church in Brazoria, but they want to know what is going on in the world."

J. C. Mays, Victoria: "Our second quarterly conference convened June 28. It was a meeting of great importance, and one in which I am not afraid to say there was much good done. Our presiding elder, Rev. G. W. Richardson, met us in due time, and conference, being sufficiently notified, was very well attended. Sunday was a day that I think will never be forgotten. With me it shall not. Our Sunday school is in a lively state, and has improved considerably since our first quarterly conference. The elder met with us in Sunday-school as is his usual custom, and gave an admired lecture. There was quite a congregation out at 3 p. m., to attend service; the subject was of the life and death of our dear Bishop Simpson, whose angelic form now swells the joyous host. Sunday night the elder preached to a full congregation a sermon which should always be remembered by all who heard it. It was one of full and deep interest. Collection $19.40, and the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to 91 persons. Our church in Victoria yet has life, but there are certain things which must be done ere we can prosper. Brethren, pray for our success here."

TENNESSEE.

S. Knight, Woodbury circuit: "I found members discouraged, as sheep having no shepherd; their pastor Rev. J. Sinclair had died in March. I organized two Sunday-schools, and they are in good condition, with 135 scholars and 25 teachers and officers. Rev. A. H. Gillett, Sunday school agent, donated us a lot of books, which the schools received gladly, and they are doing good work with them. Elder Key visited us in June. Collection $8. Received in full connection 2. We had a basket meeting. A steward went to the poor-house and brough a sister to church in his buggy. She had joined the church eight years ago but had not attended services for that time, and is 80 or 85 years old. I have 2 churches up but unfinished, and we are building the third. If pastors would get every family in their charge to take the SOUTHWESTERN they would have no difficulty in raising the missionary money. Let us circulate the church paper."

J. Kenseer, Tullahoma: "The Hillsboro and Manchester circuit is a very good work. In some degrees it will do very well for a man that has no family. They are willing to give any thing but money, this makes three years for me on this circuit. The night riding by masked men has run the people off and it is hard to bring up money for anything if the people are not there. My second quarter was held by Rev. W. C Miller. The weather was bad and raining all night and all day Sunday; only a few turned out; the amount received for the elder was $1.75; for the pastor this quarter $7.85"

"How to Make Life a Success.

Oration Delivered at the Closing Exercises of the N. O. University, by Rev. M. C. B. Mason at Winan's Chapel, New Orleans, La.

Wherever we cast our eyes we behold the evidence of labor, whether it be in the workshop of the inventor, in the studio of the sculptor or in the laboratory of the astronomer; whether turning to some beautiful leaf here or gazing with admiration and delight on yon portrait, the deeds which have made the lives of men illustrious in the history of the world have all been done by hard, persistent work. Nature as well as history confirms this testimony. It is the universal plan. It knows no race, no country, no clime. In all the walks of life it is so indelibly written that neither time nor eternity can erase it. Every leaf, every flower, every living being is struggling for life and supremacy. The lower animal and the vegetable world accept this order of things. Man, ushered into existence, and thrown involuntarily into the race of life—to him the world seems a contradiction of things. Instead of finding a shelter and a home, he must build one. The raw material which nature has furnished in abundance, must be sought and found and hewn and chiseled, and then the home. So that we cannot live unless we are alive to this order of things.

In this life-race every man is a competitor. There will always be obstacles, trouble and disappointments, but perseverance will at last triumph. Sir Isaac Newton was fifteen years finding out one philosophical principle, but by hard continued work he eventually conquered and gravitation was announced to the world. Let the spirit of true manhood arise in the breast of every young man. Let there be a determination to fight the battles of life without a demand for favor or sympathy. These are helps, but they can never accomplish the desired results. The ambition to arise above the petty details of life must be in the man or every effort thereat will utterly fail. Sympathy may open the door, favor may furnish the materials, but the former cannot seat you within, nor the latter accomplish the work. If done at all it must be done by you, and by you alone.

Be careful then to build aright for you are not only building for time, but for eternity. The first of all is to start right. Let your foundation be of the best material, packed and cemented together. Remember that a false hypothesis, though it be clothed with beautiful words pleasing to the ear, set to music, and though it may seem to open up, some field of adventure to the ambitious youth where honor and fame lie upon the surface, ready to be gathered abundantly, yet remember that such an hypotheses false in itself, will inevitably lead to a false conclusion.

Turn over one by one the leaves of history, where you see photographed in vivid letters the different characters of those who have played a conspicuous past in the affairs of life, and as you advance the admiring the one and condemning the other, entering the very secret chambers of life where you may see plainly the hidden sources for action, you will find some false theory at the very basis of the foundation of their characters. You will see that that brilliant star which rose so suddenly above the horizon, dazzling the eye with its brilliancy and then quickly disappearing would have continued to shine had there not been some defect in the materials which composed it and which gradually dimmed its lustre till it finally went out in gloom. Look at Aaron Burr, Benedict Arnold, and a host of others, and take warning. They continue for a time brilliant and honored but suddenly there came a crash in life and the man so highly lauded but, yesterday becomes the outcast of to-day. If the startling point is right, and the right direction closely followed, the conclusion will be right.

Build on a good foundation slowly but surely. In your education let there be line upon line, and precept upon precept, here a little and there a little, and the edifice will stand not only for time, but for eternity. But how shall this foundation be laid? By mastering the little things—learning perfectly what is attempted. Be a conqueror by overcoming every obstacle and difficulty by hard and continued work. Success in the solution of one problem though it may require hours and even days of hard work will give you strength and courage to undertake the solution of another still more difficult. Every victory strengthens, while every failure weakens. Never say "I can't." The "I can't's" have never accomplished anything for the world or for themselves. But the resolute "I will," encouraged by previous conquest, strengthened by sturdy toil, climbs over the hills, up the rugged mountains, faint it may be, yet pursuing and reaches the summit, while "I can't" creeps along in the valley far below.

If you would be a successful competitor in the race of life you must enter the course without the expectation of favors or rewards unearned. Thousands whose morning has been bright, who bade fair to attain the highest honors have been crippled—become enfeebled, weakened and ruined by favor. Do your own work. Let self reliance be your favorite weapon, and like the arm of the blacksmith by continued labor you will become stronger and stronger. Every man who has made the earth better, who has "turned the world upside down" has had difficulties almost insurmountable, has been pressed down by the strong, sometimes imprisoned by kings—even grim poverty with her thousand woes has stared them in the face, but perseverance stronger than any of these at last conquered. In our own day, in this enlightened land, there are some styling themselves followers of Him who is no respecter of persons and whose mission was to seek and to save the fallen, who attempt to teach that you should build only a part of the way and leave the edifice unfinished. But everywhere, from Maine to the Rio Grande, from the boisterous Atlantic to the calm Pacific, let the watchword be "Onward to victory," and Carthage will be conquered if not destroyed.

In conclusion—remember that you must build morally as well as intellectually. Your life's work will be far from successful unless the foundations of the moral character are well laid and built upon. You are far from right and wisdom when you sometimes think that intellectual training, independent of moral, is sufficient to make life a success. One deed occasioned by the weakness of the moral forces with the dark deed haunting you like some frightful ghost—despair will turn darkness into still grosser darkness and you will be ruined forever. Rear up then the two pedestals together, the moral and the intellectual, Jachin and Boaz, beauty and strength of character and trusting firmly in God you will pass safely through the intricate windings of the journey of life, and wrapping your mantle around you enter the kingdom of Him who shall say, Come ye blessed children of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

History of Clark Chapel—No. 3.

BY REV. L. M. HAGOOD.

PASTOR'S REPORT.

Our pastorate began the 29th of October, 1876, under rather gloomy surroundings. We had fears within and foes without. The building sadly needed repairs, and the membership was without order or discipline. A firm administration was at once inaugurated, and though murmurings arose and dissension threatened to assail us, we held to our way, confident that God would give us the victory; and so it has been unto us according to our faith. We have triumphed, and the work of our hands has been established, and peace and prosperity reigns in our beloved Zion. Our friends are rejoiced and our enemies discomfited. Others may pile brick upon brick, and tower upon tower, but God dwelleth not in temples made with hands, but in the humble and contrite heart, and we give it out to the community as an earnest expression of our belief that there are one hundred and seventy five members of Clark Chapel who will never forsake their present tents or cease battling for the "Old Mother Church" until God shall say to them "It is enough; come up higher." We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the members and friends for the gift of a handsome suit of clothes. May God bless them for their kindness and favor.

The building has been rendered complete in all its appointments, and its interior of handsome paper finish, is one of the finest and most tasteful in the city. The Trustees return thanks to the Sunday-school for the gift of $31 20 in cash and a beautiful Bible for the pulpit at a cost of $18. Also to Rev. John Braden, D. D., for favors received, and to the pastor for invaluable services rendered.

The pastor desires to express his thanks to the trustees for the very cordial support received during the year.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the quarterly conference and approved by the congregation:

Relation of the Sunday School to the Family.

In the primitive age of the human race, the family was the only society of men.

The institution of the family was of divine origin. The husband and wife were the joint rulers of their little kingdom, and the children the happy subjects.

The father was also the instructor and priest.

But as men multiplied on the earth, and families increased in number, and the duties, cares and responsibilities of the heads of those families also increased, it is evident that the necessity for other and more general means of instruction would appear.

Hence the organization of schools, by the general agreement of several families to come together for instruction in the common affairs of life, and by the choice of some one to preside over the school as governor and instructor.

Now it is plain that such a school would only be an enlarged family circle, the teacher and pupils sustaining the same relations as parent and children.

The Sunday-school differs from the day school only in the fact that the object of study in the former is the word of God, instead of secular books.

For whatever other book or books may be studied or taught, all is preparatory, or helps to the study of the Bible.

When council was held in heaven as to whether a certain thing should be revealed to Abraham, Jehovah decided the matter by saying:

"I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and that they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment, that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him."

From this passage of sacred Scripture it will appear:

1. That Abraham was the teacher of his household, and that he was recognized as such by Jehovah.

2. The object of this instruction was that they might keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment, and

3. That the Lord might bless his seed thenceforth and forever.

But since the moral and religious instruction of the youth has been facilitated by the organization of schools on the Sabbath, let it be remembered that the duty of parents to instruct still, is by no means done away with, or lessened.

Nor is the object of instruction different from that of Abraham's day.

As human nature is always the same, so the evil tendencies of that nature demand the same remedies under like circumstances.

Hence, children and households of to-day should be taught to keep the way of the Lord, and to do justice and judgment, that the Lord may bless them.

It is true there may be found in every community parents who are too incompetent or too unconcerned to instruct their children in their moral and religious duties. But it is unfortunate for those parents, and unfortunate for those children, and if not remedied it will one day be unfortunate for that community. But where such is the case, the moral and religious training of those children must be left entirely to the Sunday-school.

From this stand-point it is very easy to perceive the relation of the Sunday-school to the family, and the relation between superintendent or teacher and the pupils. The superintendent is the general parent, and as such he should govern and instruct with kindness and gentleness for the time being, regarding the school as his great family.

What are the duties growing out of this relation?

First, parents should co-operate with all plans for the success of the school. They should see that their children attend, and when practicable let them attend with their children, and this would be practical co-operation.

On the other hand, the Sunday-school should teach the children something.

There was once a little boy who went home from Sunday school, and a lady asked him: "Well, what did you learn to-day, Johnnie?" "Just what I always learn," said he. "And what do you always learn?" asked the lady. "Nuffin," replied the little fellow.

Now, just this thing is true of too many of our Sunday-schools, both in the city and country. Pupils attend and learn nothing as they know of, and where this is the case, it is cruelty to expect parents to be interested in the school, and blame them because they are not.

There may be various reasons for this state of affairs.

It may be from lack of qualified teachers. It may be from lack of literature. It may be from lack of proper organization. It may be from all of these combined. But whatever the matter the school should apply the remedy.

And when this is done, be assured that parents will be interested in the work. Few parents ever descend so low in the scale of being, as not to be interested in, and even enthused over the improvement of their own children.

The pastor and superintendent should see to it that the Sunday-school is what it ought to be, a place of moral and religious improvement, before they blame any one for not being interested.

I have known cases where the parents would not allow their children to attend Sunday-school, because they would be brought in contact with boys who would smoke and swear. Of course, temperance was an unknown quantity there, for the teacher smoked.

The Sunday-school should be an attractive place. I have read a fable which runs thus:

"It was observed by a shipmaster on passing a certain island in the sea, that the sailors were so harmed with the sweet strains of distant music—music of the sea nymphs—that he could not get them to mind their business. And after meditating over the matter for a great while, he came to this conclusion: that he would have musicians on board, who could discourse sweeter music than the sea nymphs could make. After that he had no more trouble in sailing by that island."

So with us, as Sunday-school workers. If we would save the youth from places of worldly amusement, and from the alluring charms of vice, let us attract them by offering something better.

As a general rule, children do not like to take medicine, and yet you may so disguise it in sugar, that they will cry for it. So with instruction. The skillful teacher will have the lessons and everything about the Sunday-school so attractive that the children will cry when kept away.

I visited a certain Sunday-school in Nashville, in which the superintendent took up a great portion of the time quarreling with the pupils. Above all beings in the world, children dislike quarreling.

THE MISSION OF THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TO THE FAMILY.

The Sunday-school has a peculiar mission to the families of our people in the South.

If any one will read the column in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, headed "Lost Friends," he will be able to form some idea as to how slavery regarded the family relations.

In the South to-day, we have but few whole families, save such as have been brought up since the war. Their condition may be aptly expressed in the words of the prophet, when he said: "They are scattered and peeled."

It is not surprising then, that many of the family virtues should be wanting.

Indeed, that any at all is left is a wonder, a miracle of grace; and is only to be accounted for from the fact that God planted some of these virtues so deep in the soul, that the plow share of Satan could not root them up.

We find, in a great measure, parental authority wanting. There is not always that happy relation existing between husband and wife, parents and children, and between brothers and sisters, which the word of God demands.

Now, the word of God is the balm of Gilead for all these bleeding wounds, and the teaching of this world must depend largely upon the Sunday-schools.

It is not enough that the word be read and taught in the school on Sundays, but methods should be adopted to have it read in the family circle.

Political Forecast.

In 1880 the total popular vote of the country was 9,219,947, divided as follows: Garfield, 4,454,416; Hancock, 4,444,952; Weaver, 308,578; Prohibitionist, Independent and scattering, 12,001. Garfield was the Republican and Hancock the Democratic candidate. The former was elected by a popular majority of 9,464 over the latter. But the total opposition vote was 4,765,531, or a majority of 311,125 over the Republican candidate.

Thus it will be seen that while Garfield had a majority over each, he did not have a majority over all candidates combined. This showing does not show the real Presidential possibility, however. Because the popular vote under our political economy is cast not for the President direct, but for Presidential electors. The basis of representation in Congress is the same as that for electors.

This has been changed since 1880, and a new apportionment made, as follows, viz:

	1880.	1884
Alabama	10	10
Arkansas	6	7
California	6	8
Colorado	3	3
Connecticut	6	6
Delaware	3	3
Florida	4	4
Georgia	11	12
Illinois	21	22
Indiana	15	15
Iowa	11	13
Kansas	5	9
Kentucky	12	13
Louisiana	8	8
Maine	7	6
Maryland	8	8
Massachusetts	13	14
Michigan	11	13
Minnesota	5	7
Mississippi	8	9
Missouri	15	16
Nebraska	3	5
Nevada	3	3
New Hampshire	5	4
New Jersey	9	9
New York	35	36
North Carolina	10	11
Ohio	22	23
Oregon	3	3
Pennsylvania	29	30
Rhode Island	4	4
South Carolina	7	9
Tennessee	12	12
Texas	8	13
Vermont	5	4
Virginia	11	12
West Virginia	5	6
Wisconsin	10	11
Total	369	401

Increase under the apportionment forty-four, necessary to an election on the old basis 179, and under the new 201. The following States gave the electoral vote to Garfield in 1880: California, 1; Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Wisconsin, 214. At the same time Hancock carried Alabama, Arkansas, California, 5; Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, 155. A majority of 59 for President Garfield. The posture of affairs at the present is materially different from that of the last campaign.

The powerful following of Mr. Conkling, indifferent at first, entered the canvass with great energy later in 1880, but this element is inactive in the support of Mr. Blaine, if not actively engaged against him. In 1880 General Grant was also a potent influence and contributed no little to the success achieved. Then the electoral college was strictly divided between the two great contesting parties alone. But the outlook now is that the prohibitionists may carry Kansas and possibly Maryland. By the fusion of the Greenback and Anti-monopoly parties, if General Butler accepts their nomination, Massachusetts will be placed in the list of doubtful States. Then, too, the Independents and Anti-secret Society parties may be able to imperil New York, unless their ability to do so is cancelled by continued dissatisfaction among the Tammany people. The States which may with certainty be set down as Republican are Colorado, 3 electoral votes; Connecticut, 6; Illinois, 22; Iowa, 13; Maine, 6; Michigan, 13; Minnesota, 7; Nebraska, 5; New Hampshire, 4; Ohio, 23; Pennsylvania, 30; Rhode Island, 4; Vermont, 4, and Wisconsin, 11. Total number of Republican votes 151, leaving Mr. Blaine 50 votes less than enough to elect him. The following States may be set down as sure to be counted for Mr. Cleveland, no matter how the vote is in some of them: Alabama, 10; Arkansas, 7; Delaware, 3; Florida, 4; Georgia, 12; Kentucky, 13; Louisiana, 8; Mississippi, 9; Missouri, 16; New Jersey, 9; North Carolina, 11; South Carolina, 9; Tennessee, 12; Texas, 13; Virginia, 12, and West Virginia 5. Total Democratic votes 154, or 47 less than the required number. The following States are doubtful, viz: California, 8; Indiana, 15; New York, 36; Oregon, 3; Nevada, 3; Kansas, 9; Maryland, 8, and Massachusetts, 14. Total, 96. The Democratic candidate for Vice-President is popular in Indiana and will probably carry it. Then if Mr. Cleveland can carry New York their election is secure, as this will give them 205, enough and four over. Or if the Republicans can carry New York and Massachusetts they will bring Mr. Blaine in with three votes to spare.

There is also a possibility of Republican success in the event of a divided electoral vote in New York this year as there was in California in 1884. But, on the whole, the appearance now is that there will be no election. This will throw the case into the House of Representatives, and that is Democratic. We are upon the verge of exciting, not to say dangerously critical times. It, therefore, behooves every American citizen to deport himself with courage, coolness and patriotic, conscientious decisiveness. A great deal is pending and a great deal has been accomplished by the 50,000 Negro voters in New York and the 10,000 in Indiana. The Negroes in Massachusetts can not be depended on to oppose General Butler, nor is it sure that those of Kansas will not support that Christian statesman, Gov. Jno. P. St. John. We can help some here in the South by fusing with everybody who opposes Bourbonism. But we repeat it, that the Negroes of New York and Indiana are in a condition to do again in 1884 what they did in 1880, save the country from a serious change in its political policy. We are not zealously favorable to Mr. Blaine, but as the Republican candidate, he represents ideas and measures which ought to survive in our politics.

The Methodist Quarterly Review for July.

The July number of the Methodist Quarterly Review comes to our desk looking as bright as ever, loaded with its usual fund of useful and scholarly information. Nine new books are in the press, and eight have recently left it. All of them are valuable contributions to the Church and promiscuous literary world. A fine steel engraving of the new editor, Rev. Dr. Daniel Curry, appears as a frontispiece. It is true to life except that it is too erect from the shoulders upward, and that the right arm hangs in an unnatural position for him. The hair, parted on the right side, drops down in careless freedom hiding the ear, and shading his fine intellectual Scottish face. Though an octogenarian, it shows a man whose eye is not dimmed or his natural force abated by uncompromising devotion to the work of the Church, in the study, pulpit and on the platform. Dr. D. D. Whedon, its late editor, is like the present one, a historic character in Methodism. His debut into general notice was signalized by a counter appeal which he wrote in opposition to one written by Rev. LeRoy Sunderland, of the New England Conference Anti-slavery Society, in 1835. As to his views of the slavery agitations, he stood in harmony with Wilbur Fiske, John Lindsey, Bartholomew Otheman, Hezekiah S. Ramsdell, Edward T. Taylor, Abel Stevens, Jacob Sanborn, H. H. White, N. Bangs, J. P. Durbin, S. Luckey, A. Binney, Dr. Bond, Bishop Heddings and Bishop Emory. They were not pro-slavery, but so conservative as to rather though unintentionally help than hurt slavery. Their position in the politics of the Church was as that of Henry Clay and John J. Crittenden to the politics of the country.

This statement makes it needful that we should further state that Mr. Sunderland's appeal held "That all slaveholding is sinful and therefore shoule be universally and immediately abandoned." The counter-appellants opposed this dogma, they admitted that the Bible is opposed to slavery, and disclaimed all purpose of defending it. In 1865 his views had become very much in harmony with the advanced type of thinkers in the Church, and even as early as 1860 he did heroic service in defence of the Church in support of the constitutionality argument of (then Professor, now) Bishop W. L. Harris, yet his idea was not fully in accord with that of Prof. Harris. It was his conservative views and the vigorous growth of genuine radicalism apparent in the General Conference of 1856, which caused his election as editor of the Quarterly Review by a very small majority. He is an able expositor of Methodist theology. An article from his pen, written for the April number of The Bibliotheca Sacra, 1862, is referred to as one of the ablest in print. He comes not to Fletcher in his statement of that theology with reference to the Calvanistic controversy.

Returning to the current number of the Quarterly, we find among its contents: 1st. The beginning of a discussion on "The higher criticism of the Pentateuch," by Dr. M. S. Terry, S. T. D., of New York. The style of this writer is so well known, and his ability so widely acknowledged, and the subject of such commanding interest, that the statement of its discussion by him at this time is sufficient notice of it. 2d. Rev. S. L. Baldwin, D. D., of Nyack, New York, furnishes a second article on the opium traffic in China. The results of the traffic he shows is greatly to the prejudice of legitimate commerce, and that its abolition would prove much to the benefit of English merchants; and that the purchasing power of the Chinese people is contracted by so much as they expend in the hurtful use of this narcotic. He shows the opinion of the Chinese with reference to it, and tells what ought to be done about it, after eating, the efforts already made for its suppression. This opium trade, like its associates, the liquor and the tobacco trade, is a paying business, and hence with the money-loving and money-getting spirit of our times it will show itself rather difficult to hedge in or destroy. 3d. The regeneration and glorification of the body is treated in a very instructive way by Rev. J. C. Jackson, of Chilicothe, Ohio. It is a subject of no little importance, and upon which a great amount of time has been expended. It will require close reading for clear comprehension. It sometimes happens that writers conceive better than they can express their conceptions. While this may not be laid down as the particular character of this paper it will require close and careful study to be understood. Some of the positions assumed therein requires a mighty lifting, if not a wresting of the Scriptures from their usual interpretation for proof. It evinces much learned research and systematic arrangement. 4th. Is on historical memorials of Westminster Abbey, by Dean Stanly. Both the author and the subject of the work will command attention on this side of the Atlantic. 5th. Comes Russia and England in Central Asia, by D. M. Wallace. 6th. Authorship of Ecclesiastes, by Rev. W. W. Davis, Ph., D., of Delaware, Ohio. 7th. William's Middle Kingdom, by Rev. E. Wentworth, D. D., Sandy Hill, New York. 8th. Some aspects of the Epistle to the Romans and the late General Conference, is by Dr. Curry. 6th. There is a symposium of the quarterlies, a brief reference to them, and a glance at the current book table concludes the volume.

It is a fit companion to follow those which have gone before it. It is a mistake of our preachers to decide that they can in any way supply the place of this invaluable and hoary periodical of the Church, without taking it. Then, too, there is an element of young folks in and just returning from school who greatly need such supervision in the matter of selecting their literature, as those of the Methodist persuasion can alone find in the Quarterly Review.

Immoral and Unprofitable

An average Sunday excursion carries about 600 people—youths and adults, pays out about $200 for car fare, and say $2 each for clothes and eatables, $1,200; and $50 more for liquors and cigars; total $1,450 expenses. Net receipts $120, rebate from sale of tickets. So the Church, society or individual, for whose benefit the excursion was run, receives about 1 12 of the amount they have caused to be expended in this sort of business. Besides desecrating the Sabbath and lowering the moral tone so, they waste the substance, and tend thereby to enslave the people by thus impoverishing them.

There is an average of one such excursion for every Sabbath in the year, from May to October, making twenty-two Sabbaths. Now, it is a very moderate estimate to set down one excursion in twenty different places for each of these twenty-two Sabbaths, or 440 excursions of this character in the seven months named, costing twenty two times $1,450, equal to $3,190 spent in that way; from which the total net return to the parties running them is $2,640, leaving the poor people who attend them $29,260 worse off than before they were given, with nothing whatever to show in return for this expenditure of money, and their moral perceptions damaged besides. One step toward real and true leadership on the part of colored ministers and other influential persons will be the abandonment and discouragement of this useless waste of the colored people's time, morals and money. We know the many excuses which have been and will still be given for this proceedure. But the bottom question is: Is it right? IF NOT RIGHT, CAN CHRISTIAN MEN AFFORD TO DO IT FOR ANY REASON? Brethren, let us hear from you on these questions.

Our Calendar of Methodist Events.

We have taken our calendar of important events in Methodism from the "Centennial Year Book," and they may be relied upon as correct. When there is matter wanting and it is not found there, it is secured by reference to Methodist History. For instance, we found nothing in it for the third of August. But our calendar shows that to have been a very important date in the history of Methodism among the colored people. The same want occurs for the 28th of September in the "Year Book." But our calendar shows an important event for that date also. Nevertheless the "Year Book," is an invaluable contribution to the current literature of Methodism, useful to preachers in every Methodist denomination, and ought to be in the library of all Methodist preachers and thoughtful laymen.

The Men and the Platform.

The Democratic platform is a glittering string of evasive generalities. It is for free trade, and seems to lean towards free liquor. But perhaps the integrity of Mr. Cleveland will answer for a platform. The party may not have thought about it when in the act of selecting Mr. Hendricks as their candidate for Vice-President, but he is in himself a platform about which there is no room for doubt. The colored people may not be wanted, and certainly cannot be found training in a crowd where he is next best man. His nomination to confront General Logan, the inflexible patriot and distinguished soldier, will tend very strongly to awaken discussion on topics causing, attending and growing out of the late war. As between Blaine and Logan or Cleveland and Hendricks, there is very little room for hesitation, and we do not hesitate to decide. The Prohibitionists may name a man, or Gen. Butler may conclude to stand for the Anti-monopolist and Greenbackers. There is yet time and room to look around.

What Do the Students Eat?

The object to be attained by sending our young men and women to college is their future usefulness. One of the essentials, and the most important of any is the maintainance of their health. This must depend largely upon the quantity, quality and preparation of their food. If the cooking is not wholesome or the diet nourishing and blood producing, they can be by no means healthy. To see that this, among other things, is done, devolves not alone upon the culinary mistress, but also upon the entire faculty, and conference board of visitors. We call upon all whose duty it is to give faithful attendance to this matter, since we cannot hope for the best results if our pupils, however learned, quit school with the foundations of their health undermined by poor and unnutritious diet. The hope of the country is its educated and pious young men and women. But they will be able to render it very ineffective service if their health is not preserved.

Colored Women to the Front.

We notice with a great deal of pleasure the fact that Sister Mary Marshall, Susan Baxter, Eliza Williams, M. J. Wilson, and Cora Redmon are down on the programme for addresses at the anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the Shreveport district, Louisiana conference. This indicates a change in the relation of colored women to church work and public matters in general. It is right, let it go all around. Home duties are vastly important, they must not be neglected, they must be faithfully attended to. But there are many ladies so situated that they can give their presence, voice and means to these matters of public benefit, let them by all means do so. So go to the front, sisters, be ashamed of nothing but sin.

Heaven in the Bible.

OLD TESTAMENT.

The word Heaven is used 466 times in the Bible, as follows, viz: Genesis 28, Exodus 8, Leviticus 1, Numbers 1, Deuteronomy 21, Joshua 1, 1st Samuel 1, 2d Samuel 5, 1st Kings 14, 2d Kings 7, 1st Chronicles 9, 2d Chronicles 7, Nehemiah 3, Job 19, Psalms 63, Proverbs 8, Ecclesiastes 4, Isaiah 26, Jeremiah 16, Lamentations 3, Ezekiel 9, Daniel 15, Hosea 1, Joel 2, Amos 3, Nahum 1, Zephaniah 1, Haggai 2.

NEW TESTAMENT.

Matthew 24, Mark 15, Luke 29, John 15, Acts 21, Romans 2, 1st Cor. 6, 2d Cor. 3, Ephesians 6, Phillipians 1, Collossians 5, 1st Thess. 1, 2d Thess. 1, 2d Timothy 2, Hebrews 13, James 2, 1st Peter 3, 2d Peter 4, 1st John 1, Jude 2, Revelations 51.

Now the Republican, Democrat, Anti-Secret Society, Prohibition and Anti-Monopoly parties each have their candidates in the field. There is a good lot of them, and the American voter outside of the South can take his choice and be satisfied. He can likewise take his choice in the South, but he must choose the Democratic candidates there.

Hon. James G. Blaine addressed the Grand Army of Maine, at Old Orchard on the 7th inst. About 25,000 were present, and Gov. Roble with Mr. Blaine held a reception.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS IN KENTUCKY.

The third annual Grand Conclave of the first Independent Grand Commandery of Knight Templars State of Kentucky, assembled in Lexington Aug. 5th. The special low rates by the L. & Nashville Railway induced quite a number of Louisvillians to avail themselves of this opportunity to attend. Sir George Taylor is Grand Cammander; Sir H. P. Gaines, Grand Recorder.

ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER.

The Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Kentucky, assemble in Lexington August 6th. M. E. James Ellis, G. H. P.; E. George Taylor, G. S.

The Masonic Centennial celebration will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29th, 30th and October 1, 1884. JOSHUA D. KELLY, Chief Marshall.

PERSONAL.

—Mrs. Ellen, wife of Rev. Aaron Jones, is seriously ill at the residence of her father and mother in Maysville, Kentucky.

—It was our good fortune to have Mrs Rev. D. S. Bently, as traveling companion, and be permitted to do her an important service recently.

—It was our good fortune to meet and journey with Sir Alexander Morris and lady. Grand Commander of Knights Templars of Ohio and parts of Kentucky.

—Sir Alex Morris of Louisville once decided that the conscience of a Mason was to be sacredly regarded in reference to the Sabbath, whether Jew or Christian.

—Thos. H. Harris, of Indianapolis, Ind., called to see us last week. He is a live Methodist, and formerly an attendent of Ames' church in this city.

—Prof. T. Angnstus Reid, of Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies, came into the United States years ago. Now leader, lecturer, and preacher of Paris, Kentucky.

—Mr. Cyrus Adams, son of the late Rev. Henry Adams of Fifth Street Baptist Church, colored, and associate editor and proprietor of the Louisville Bulletin, has gone to Europe to study German.

—Mrs. Jane Grey Swisshelm the well known editress and philanthropist, who died in Pittsburg, July 22, once taught a school for free colored children in Louisville, Ky.

—Sir W. H. Parham of Cincinnati holds that the idea of exclusive territorial jurisdiction is not an original land-mark of the craft, but an American inovation upon Masonic practices as held and illustrated in foreign countries.

—Rev. J. Christopher of Jericho circuit says that the SOUTHWESTERN is doing great good among both colored and white people on his charge. Things are prospering and he is going to have a great centennial Methodist celebration shortly.

—The genial face of Rev. John or James Transue, or both, may be seen as you emerge from the Grand Central Railway Station, in Cincinnati. They run two fine coaches, belong to Union Methodist Episcopal Church, are effective local preachers, and do valuable service as such.

—Rev. Nelson G. Merry, a prominent colored Baptist preacher in Nashville, Tennessee, died recently and was buried on the 16 inst. Rev. George W. Dupee and Rev. Daniel A. Geddis, the first of Paducah and the latter of Louisville, Kentucky, attended his funeral.

—L. D. Easton, Esq., is the assistant principal of Gaines High School, Cincinnati. He comes of Methodist Episcopal ancestry, his family connected with the old New [illegible] church, and some of them have been buried from Union Chapel.

—The Rev. Julius J. Holland of [illegible] Church, Steubenville, [illegible] Conference, [illegible] to his friend Rev. Prof. Summers writes that he was [illegible] on the third, to Miss Jennie Cook of Columbia, South Carolina, and would be in Covington Kentucky, en route home again.

—Mr. Edward E. Smith, of Maysville, Kentucky, after the death of his wife, declined to marry for the sake of his children, whom he has raised with care. At the same time conducting a large hauling business. He is gratified to see two of them graduates and all honest and respectable. He retained a housekeeper two weeks and then dismissed her, being thoroughly satisfied that the successful raising of his girls depended on such a course.

—Sisters Susan Barksdale, Peggy Powell, Mary A. Thomas, and Albert will participate in the centennial jubilee, temperance and home missionary exercises of the LaTeche district, Louisiana conference. This prominence of the women has an element of hopeful promise, and right race development in it next.

—James H. Moody, Deputy United States Marshall in Louisville was married on Monday, July 28th, to a lady in Brandenburg, Kentucky. Mr. Moody is well and favorably known in Louisville. He is the first colored gentleman who has held a Marshallship in the United States Court of that city.

We noted some time ago that the Freedmen's Aid Society had made our Seminary on the Teche one of its schools, and given it the name of Gilbert Seminary, in honor of Mr. William L. Gilbert, of Connecticut, who contributes $5.000 for the erection of a second building. Other friends have contributed $1,000. The Orphan's Home Board has deeded the old building and a campus of thirteen acres to the Society. The above $6,000 are the net proceeds of soliciting done by the Rev. W. R. Webster, of New York East Conference. Dr. Godman heartily joins in the good work of having La Teche Seminary merged into the new institution. The old building is to be completed and a second one erected at once. Gilbert Seminary will be a preparatory school to the New Orleans University.—N. Y. Advocate.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Cooper, Heidelberg: "I have been building up churches on this work. The elder visited us, and we raised for him $3.10."

KENTUCKY.

The Ninth Street choir, Covingington, Kentucky, is improving in their musical attainments, and it is pleasant to listen to their beautiful rendering of our sublime old hymns. But they are evidently falling behind the times in literature, as not one of them reads the SOUTHWESTERN.

Rev. Alexander Posey, of Coke Chapel, Lonisville District, Lexington Conference, has built a new parsonage. He regards the SOUTHWESTERN as the best of any of our church papers for the colored people. He is a subscriber to both it and the Western. That is right.

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Lewis, Bertie: "A young Baptist was admitted to our pulpit, and he described a war going on in Heaven, in which the Devil was about to get the best of the angels. Then God picked up the Moon and pitched it at the devil, who was smart enough to dodge it; and then a star was used in the same manner; then God got mad and picked up the Sun, and knocked him over the walls of Heaven. The Devil was nine days falling through the dark. Mr. Editor, do you think the man was called to preach?"

Henry Taylor, Washington: "We had a nice Sunday school meeting, with lectures from our pastor, Rev. B. Bolden and three local preachers. Afterward 24 enrolled. Pray for us on Waxia, that we may be able to build up the church of God and the Redeemer's Kingdom."

TEXAS.

M. Reddick, St. James: "We closed the third quarterly conference, and had a good time. Bro. Moore, P. E., was with us, and preached us a wonderful sermon, from Romans 1st Chap. and 16th verse, (I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ.) The Lord's supper was administered to 25 souls, all of which was enjoyed. Our benevolent collections were not so good. We paid to the presiding elder, $2.35; pastors, $41.65; trustees, $12; total $65. We received 8 conversions, and added to the Church 2. The Church and Sunday-school are moving onward."

Lee Reed, Luling: "My work is now in fine condition, and prospects are good for the future, of which I am proud. The Christian army here are working for heaven and to save sinners. I have just closed my third protracted meeting. The conversions in all are sixty-seven. As many as fifty-five of them joined our church. My camp meeting commenced on the 26th of July. Our presiding elder has been with us twice, and the two visits will not soon be forgotten. He is loved by all. Our aim is to build this year a house, when it is finished to be worth $2,000. Pray for success."

Mack Henson, San Antonio: "Notwithstanding the hot weather, the "marrying and giving in marriage" goes on still. We Methodist preachers will have to be sharp eyed and keen scented to sniff danger afar off, to be able to comply with the conditions of the ecclesiastic and high moral grounds taken by the Church at tae last session of our General Conference."

A Church Burned.

We received the following from Rev. H. Webb presiding elder of Marshall district, Texas conference: Paris, Texas, Aug. 2, 1884. Dear Editor—I arrived this 12 m., to hold my quarter, and found our beautiful church in ashes, was fired this morning about 3 o'clock. But Bro. Cole rallied his gallant band and resolved to rebuild, better than before. Insured $800, loss $1500.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

On the Road.

This little town of Albert Lea, out in the prairies of Minnessota, is the place where it is appointed for us to "lie over," from 3 p. m. to 6 a. m.; 15 hours, half of them in bed, perhaps. On the 14th inst., we, the writer and daughter, left Nashville in company with a number of teachers from Tennessee and other Southern States, for the National Teachers Association at Madison, Wis. We reached Louisville in good time, but had three hours to wait, which we improved by a run through a city thoroughly supplied with street car facilities. We visited Cave Hill Cemetery, a beautiful place naturally, and rendered more so by man. As we gazed on the many beautiful and costly monuments and other mementos of affectionate regard for the dead, we had a sort of feeling which prompted the query whether the same affectionate regard was shown to all the dead while they lived. We took the cars at dusk, crossed the Ohio river by the bridge over the falls, and after a night's ride woke up near Chicago, where, instead of hills, valleys and rocks of yesterday, we had broad prairies, marshes and lakes. In Chicago we met about four hundred school-teachers from New England, on their way to Madison, so we mixed as much as we could, and joined some genial spirits from the chilly latitude of Boston. A special train of a dozen cars hurried us on to Madison, where the train was met by Lender's band and hundreds of people, to welcome the teachers from New England. We were among them, and of course enjoyed our cordial reception. We found roomy and delightful accommodations at the Monona Academy, built originally as a Governor's mansion, then used during the war as an orphan's home, and now as a Lutheran theological school. Mr. and Mrs. Simes made our stay pleasant by many attentions. The gathering of teachers at this National Association was estimated as six thousand strong. The lectures and discussions were able and comprehensive. Nearly the whole field of educational topics was discussed. It was a marked feature of these discussions that the religious or rather moral training of chilkren was constantly presented, as a part of the teacher's work. This feature of the Association was so prominent that when Mons. Capel, the Romish priest and educator, abusing the courtesy shown him, took occasion to defend the position of his church, as so much opposed to the system of public schools, taught by the hundreds of teachers he was addressing, that they would not send their children to them because religion? (Romanism he meant) was not taught in them, it was considered decidedly Jesuitical, at least, if not insulting. The interest culminated in the closing meeting, which was a kind of a teachers' love feast, when persons from, the different States and territories, made short speeches on topics of intrrest to the Association, and the densely packed audience in the assembly chamber remained 'till nearly midnight, and then made the whole Capitol resound with "Praise God from whom all blessings flow;" and after the benediction the largest association of teachers and educators ever convened in this country adjourned.

In connection with the meeting of the Association was a very fine exhibit of school work, including examination papers, drawings, paintings, kindergarten and industrial work. This was great in quantity and excellent in quality. The entire available space in the fine capitol building was given up to the exhibition, and yet the space might have been doubled and would have done well filled. It would require a volume to particularly describe this school exhibit. There was but little from the South except from the colored schools. The schools of the A. M. Association had an excellent show of school and industrial work. Of the schools of the Freedmen's Aid Society, Rust University had a large and very fine exhibit of examination papers. Clark University was represented by specimens of class work of the different classes, industrial work from the carpenter shop, printing office, and needle work of the young women in the make-up of numerous garments. This whole exhibit would not do any discredit to schools of more mature years and students with white skins. The Central Tennessee College had eight volumes of examination papers, ranging from the lowest English to the sopheomore class in college, industrial work from the printing office, and from the young women plain and fancy worsted work, and also some practical illustrations of patching and darning. The whole exhibit of the school showed faithful work on the part of teachers and students, alike creditable to both. Prof. Crogman, of Clark University, made an address on the education of the colored youth of the South, which was honored with the closest attention, and elicited much favorable comment. It would have been well if all the freedmen's schools could have been represented, but all will have a chance in the New Orleans Exhibition next December.

How we enjoyed traveling through a State for hundreds of miles, and not seeing a saloon, and how we had to lie over at this place will have to be told, if told at all, at some future time. J. BRADEN.

COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. "H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

New Orleans District.

The church of the Lord Jesus in her efforts to "Go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature," has had to contend with difficulties. The kings of the earth and the rulers have taken counsel together against the Lord and his anointed. Many a Rabshakeh has insulted and blasphemed the name of God at the very walls of Jerusalem. Many a Nebuchadnezzar in his rage and fury has committed the Shadrachs, Meshacks and Abednegos who would not bow to his mandate into the burning fiery furnace. But all along the Lord has made the wrath of man to praise Him, and given an open door for those whom he has called to preach His Gospel. In Louisiana the Methodist Episcopal Church has an open door for the dissemination of the truth. Here there is plenty of room for her to spread herself and plenty of hard work to do. Men who have faith in God, a clear Christian experience, and are moved with the great purpose to help in the work of converting the world, can here have an open field for a free and fair fight with the devil, with no doubt as to the final issue.

At Camp Parapet and Kenner Bro. Johnson is pushing out into communities that have never been [illegible] Methodist preachers. At [illegible]ch, [illegible]or- [illegible]re- [illegible]ot to [illegible]n [illegible] a [illegible]e- lieves in what Bishop Taylor calls the "root hog or die," principle. With him a man cannot be a mere "dog in the manger," to bark and growl, he must work or get up and out of the way. In doing this outside work he has not neglected the home field. The parsonage at Camp Parapet standing out of sight in the rear of the church has been taken down and rebuilt, enlarged and placed on a front lot facing the street.

The Christian is a soldier enlisted in a warfare against all kinds of evil. His whole conduct must be that which becomes a man thus engaged. Keeping the end in view he cannot be a milk and water [illegible]. As a soldier of Jesus Christ he will have some long marches and hard fighting. He can never encourage self indulgence in himself or others, hardness, trials, and difficulties are inseparable from the soldier's life. The Christian soldier needs fortitude to bear all the hardships of his life and courage to do whatever work his Master may command.

Mandeville and Springfield circuit is not a charge where a Methodist minister can stay at home and do his work. He who is so fortunate as to have charge of this circuit, will have to take long and lonely walks through swamps, fords creeks and bayous, and be most of his time away from home, unless he is one of those happy spirits who can make home wherever he may chance to be. It is hurtful to misinterpret or misrepresent any people, but it is evident that at one point on this circuit there is but little care for their pastor, the church, or any thing that God loves. At Mandeville Bro. Bryant has had the co-operation of the people and a good work has been done. Thirty have been added to the church. The Sunday school has 120 enrolled with an average attendance of 60. The reports showed that since conference $425.35 had been raised for all purposes. At Springfield the Sunday-school has 15 enrolled, and $32.05 has been raised for the pastor. The writer is favorably inclined towards the religion of the Lord Jesus, but he despises cant and to him of all the humbugs on earth, mere life religion is the greatest; at the same time he has admiration for the people who stand by their church and pastor, and provide liberal but honest things for the house of the Lord.

At Simpson's Chapel the [illegible] keeps coming in. At a basket meetings held the last Sabbath in J[illegible] the trustees recieved over [illegible] dollars towards liquidating the debts upon the church.

L. P. CUSHMAN.

To educate your children in the and sympathy with the Church which you are a member, is to perpetuate your faith in them, and practice what you preach.—Methodist.

The Housekeeper.

Curried Tomatoes are well worth a trial, a delicious and novel dish being a certain result. Grate an apple and chop an onion—of equal size and fry them until tender; add a teaspoonful of good curry powder (not the fiery compound of a few years ago; there is now no lack of good brands in the market) mixed with a little flour or milk will do; simmer for a few minutes, and spread the tomatoes—first cut and fried, or baked—with the mixture; serve with boiled rice. This curry mixture can be varied in many ways.

MAYONNAISE OF SALMON.—Cut the remnants of a piece of boiled salmon into neatly-shaped bits and lay them into a previously beaten mixture of two table-spoonfuls of oil, one of tarragon vinegar, and salt and pepper to taste. Carefully lift the bits of salmon in a circle, without breaking each other. Cut cold boiled eggs into shape you like and artistically arrange with some hard-boiled white of egg and a few capers inside the circle of salmon. Pour over the whole a thick mayonnaise.

Tomato Salad, like most other salads, should be dressed only just before serving; and for variety, Spanish onions, or chives, may be mixed with the tomatoes after the dressing use oil to one of vinegar, with a little pale brown; season with pepper, salt, sugar, and mustard. Tarragon vinegar is a new condiment, clear and of a delicious flavor, very useful for salads. Tomatoes baked in a gentle oven for an hour or more are a wholesome accompaniment to roast joints, and go well with pork, tending to counteract the richness of the dish; they may be served with a very little dressing, and rubbed through a sieve, a good substitute for apple sauce is easily obtained.

CELERY GROWING.—In her prize essay on Celery, in Vick's Magazine, Mrs. C. H. Root, of Rip-Wis., recommends the following method of preparing for and cultivating the crop:

Select a place where you will be sure to get good seed.

Make a seed-bed out of doors, in situation. You can sow it early enough to transplant, for they grow much faster and are stronger than when started in a hot-bed.

Make the bed often to about one foot wide, and when the young plants are about three inches high transplant into rows, putting them about three inches apart in the rows about one foot from each other.

When the plants have become sturdy, have a trench dug about one foot deep, put into it about two parts of wood ashes and good stable dressing, add rich, black soil, and work all together with a hoe. Set the plants about five inches apart, and be sure to spread out the roots and press the soil firmly about them.

Sprinkle roots enough to keep them fresh until they are set in their places, and then give them plenty of water; you have a pail the more the better.

Before they have made much growth, to cause the branches to fill up enough to shade the ground, erect. Continue to hoe them at intervals of two weeks, being careful not to do so when the weather is hot, or in the afternoon when, the plants are wilting, but rather together, to prevent the soil from getting into the hearts of the plants.

When you wish to blanch, tie them to the top with a string; for white celery, remove the top from the plant in October.

THROWING STONES.

How easy 'tis for us to give
A sermon to our friends,
Whose sharp and burning eloquence
Our neighbors' faults condemns!
How clear and deep on logic is
Our argument, how strong!
And our conclusions—oh, what force
And power to them belong;

Meanwhile, we do not touch upon
Our own peculiar "cranks,"
We'd rather touch our neighbors'
And condemn their freaks and pranks!
Our peccadilloes—oh, but they
Are very, very few!
Correcting them is not the task
We've set ourselves to do.

Now, we prefer to teach the world,
And set it all to rights.
We'll have our neighbors shape their course
By our peculiar light;
Because we're sure that we can give
The very best advice,
And all our neighbors' home affairs
We can settle in a trice.

We have the whole thing upside down;
We've caught the wrong end first,
'Tis by this very meddling
The whole world is accurst.
Let each other mind his own affairs,
And leave his friends alone,
And while we are in a house of glass
Don't let us throw a stone.

There was a great demonstration of the English trades-unionist and agricultural laborers in London to condemn the action of the House of Lords in rejecting the franchise bill. The various divisions carried flags bearing mottoes expressing approval of Mr. Gladstone's course, and menacing the Peers. The streets through which the procession marched on its way to Hyde Park were densely thronged. The agricultural laborers were loudly cheered. At Hyde Park the great crowd was addressed by several noted Radicals, among them Sir Wilfred Lawson, Joseph Arch, Thorold Rogers and Mr. Caine. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the House of Lords as an irresponsible, unrepresentative body, and expressing warm approval of Mr. Gladstone's political course.

On 5th page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of various kinds of baking powders now in the market.

Apparently, there is no such thing as getting rid of Kellogg, the disreputable fellow who, as Governor, Senator and Representative, has done so much to disgrace the name of Republican in Louisiana. The Republican committee of his district met yesterday to arrange for calling the nominating convention, and, despite some opposition, formally indorsed his political course, which is taken to assure his renomination and re-election. Until the Republicans of Louisiana can select a better leader than a trading politician and star route conspirator like Kellogg they ought not to expect to carry the State, for the very good reason that they do not deserve to.—Brooklyn Union, Rep.

Let me give you the history of pride in three small chapters. I. The beginning of pride was in heaven. II. The continuance of pride is on earth. III. The end of pride is in hell. This history shows how unprofitable it is.—Dr. Newton.

"Fear brings disgrace, bravery brings honor, cowardice saves no man from his fate," says the Caliph Omar; but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has saved millions from an awful fate.

Mr. Gladstone, in moving a credit of £300,000 to provide for the expedition to the Soudan, said the purpose of the expedition was merely to relieve Gen. Gordon, and not to crush the Mahdi. It would be sufficient to secure good government in the Soudon. The evacuation of that country is now out of the question. England was bound to protect Gen Gordon.

Out of 9,947 prisoners in county jails in Illinois, more than 8,000 came up from the saloons. Illinois reaps the harvest of "high license."

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my aunt. She left us in Plaquemine, La., in the year 1866, and went to New Orleans to wait on Mr. Delaney's wife, and we have not seen her since. but we heard from her in 1879 when at the Starfield plantation. She has lost her husband, he died in 1871. She has two sisters living; the oldest is named Harriet Carr and the other Rhody Mims. When she left us Rhody was going by the name of Rhody Sirrean; and Cary Sirrean, her brother, is named Robt. Blanchard. Edmond Blanchard and Willis Strowes are the names of her other brothers. From Death's Door.

Many who were thought by physicians and friends to be at death's door have been restored to their families and to comparative good health by the new Vitalising Treatment of Drs Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard St., Philadelphia. The cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, and various Chronic diseases are indeed wonderful, and are attracting wide attention. Nothing like it is know in medical histoy. If you have an interest in learning all about this new Treatment, write to them and pamphlets and reports of cases will be promptly mailed.

The California Advocate says: "The town of Greeley, county-seat of Weld county, has always been a temperance town, and has never tolerated a saloon or saloon keeper. It is the most prosperous town in all nothern Colorado, and is now improving very rapidly. Its temperance principles attact the very best people and repel the worst. The whole county has followed the example of Greeley, and has not one saloon. The consequence is that its jail is generally empty, its taxes light, its criminal trials very few, its bill for paupers very small, and its prosperity very great. Fort Collins, Evans, Longmont, and Loveland, neighboring towns, all follow the example of Greely, and carefully exclude liquor-selling. About the only use they have for jails is to put in the rascals who attempt to sell whisky."

As when the bird flies, new evidence is within its reach that the air will bear it up; so, when the soul becomes Christian, new evidence is within its reach that God is, and that He rewards those who diligently seek Him.—Joseph Cook.

REVIVAL HYMNS.

By MARSHALL W. TAYLOR, D D.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION
By Rev. F. S. HOYT, D.D., Editor of the Western Christian Advocate.

Second Edition, Enlarged and Improved.

A remarkable and unique collection of religious songs, with their accompanying weird, pathetic, ever varied and charming melodies, as sung for generations by the colored people of America. A few of the songs will be familiar, but the great majority have never before been printed and are now given for the first time with the original words and music. Themusic has been carefully written, and is well adapted for quartet, chorus, and congregational singing, and is especially excellent for social evenings at home. All singers should have it. First edition was exhausted in sixty days. Send for a copy.

"These songs ought to be saved and they ought to be sung.."—Bishop I. W. Wiley. "Should think that the book would sell by thousands, and that it would do good."—Dr. J. M. Buckley. "It is grand. I like it."—Dr. R. S. Rust. "Just the thing—the gold saved from the dross."—Dr. Jacob Krehbiel. "Am perfectly delighted with it; it will sell by the thousands."—Rev. A. E. P. Albert. "There should be a copy in every household."—Rev. H. W. Tate. "Having carefully read your hymn-book, and being acquainted with many of the soul-stirring anthems spread upon its pages—especially one that was the cause of my conversion—I can and will commend the book, in the name of God, to all the world."—Rev. C. H. Collins.

THE NEW SHORT ROUTE
TO
Kansas and the West.

Attention is called to the new Kansas City railroad line now completed and in operation between Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City, Mo. By this new route the south and west is brought into close relation. Saving several hundred miles and many hours travel between the two sections. It is in fact now the only practical route from the south to all points in Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and all western states. A through train with Pullman Palace Sleeping car and elegant day coaches leave Memphis daily, running through to Kansas City without change of cars, where it arrives in time to make connection in the Grand Union Depot with all trains leaving Kansas City. For emigrants to the Pacific coast and the Northwest, or for home seekers in Kansas and Missouri, time and money is saved by this short route as against the circuitous routes via St. Louis, heretofore the only outlet. Special low rates are made for this class of business and all are carried through to Kansas City in first class cars on first class trains. Round trip, Land Explorers' tickets on sale at low rates. Send for the Emigrants' Guide, an eight page paper, giving full and reliable information in regard to Kansas and Missouri—mailed Free.

General News Items.

Cholera is on the decline.

The Democratic School Board of Richmond, Va., turns the colored principals out to make room for white ones; avowedly for that reason and no other.

Negotiations between France and China were definitely broken off on the 2d inst. Admiral Courbet's squadron has taken possession of the harbor and mines at Kee Lung. England has refused to mediate.

The trial of the action for libel brought by Crown Solicitor Bolton against Parnell and other proprietors of the Dublin United Ireland was concluded on the 5th. Instead of £30,000, asked for by Colton, the jury awarded him £500 damages.

Rev. Dr. Lafferty, editor of the Richmond Advocate, has been so dangerously ill that for some hours his life was despaired of. He has improved, but bears a burden of broken health from which he can hardly hope for entire deliverance in this world.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has a citizen who had not drawn a sober breath for a year before the prohibitory law went into effect. In recent conversation he said he was just clearing his system of alcohol and was beginning to feel like a new man.

The Ohio experimental farm, which is conducted in connection with the Ohio State University, will send to the World's Exposition a large exhibit of the results of its work. A single item of which embraces 150 varieties of wheat to be shown in grain and in the straw.

A Minnesota man took two little slabs of a peculiar stone, common in that State, to the Philadelphia Centennial. The value of the stone had hitherto been unknown. The result was that thousands of dollars [illegible] in the country that otherwise would have been sent to Scotland for Scotch granite.

In connection with the great reform demonstration at Birmingham an enthusiastic meeting was held at Bingley Hall. Twenty thousand people were present. Speeches were made by John Bright and Joseph Chamberlain, president of the Board of Trade. Mr. Bright said the Tory majority in the House of Lords was actuated by the same bitter hatred of the Liberals as in 1832. "Who were the peers?" he asked. "They were the spawn of the blunders, the wars and corruption of the dark ages of our history. They had entered the temple of honor, not through the temple of merit, but through the sepulchres of their ancestors. They were no better than their fathers. Some of them were worse, for their privileges had produced ignorance and arrogance." The reform of the House of Lords, Mr. Bright declared, was urgent and inevitable. In the creation of new peers, and to pass the franchise bill the country would only get rid of the present difficulty. What was wanted was a limitation of the veto power of the Lords. Should the people submit, or should they curb the nobles, as their fathers had curbed the King of England? Mr. Chamberlain read a long and powerful attack upon the peers. "The divine right of Kings," he said, "had been acknowledged to be dangerous; the divine right of the peers was a ridiculous figment. If the Lords remained obstinate in opposition to the popular will, the present agitation should continue to the bitter end." He looked forward, with eager hope to the result of this agitation. England, the chosen home of a self-governed people, could never be subservient to the insolent pretensions of the hereditary class."

Horsford's Acid Phosphate.
Good in the Best Tonics.
Dr. A. Atkinson, Prof. Materia Medica and Dermatology, in College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, says: "It makes a pleasant drink, and is one of our most reliable preparations of the phosphates in their simple form of the greatest value."

Troubles That Never Happen.

A story is told of an old man who in his long pilgrimage had borne many of the ills of life. His friends were condoling with him on the occurrence of some special affliction, and saying that he really had more troubles than any other man, when he replied:—

"Yes, my friends, that is too true. I have been surrounded by troubles all my life long; but there is a curious thing about them, nine tenths of them never happened."

What quantities of such troubles have afflicted us through all our pilgrimage. Most people take pains to secure all the enjoyment possible out of their troubles. They enjoy them in anticipation; and for all practical purposes a trouble which has not occurred is often fully equal to one which has. After having feared them, fretted over them, and talked about them in advance, then if they come, they have the good of them; and after they have come and gone they still can recollect them, and think them over, and derive great enjoyment from them. For these people who never are happy except when they are miserable, and who make the most of small troubles, seeing they are all they have, can derive nearly as much satisfaction from the dead trouble as they can from one that is alive. So by anticipating them in the future, making the most of them in the present, and recalling them from the past, they keep themselves well supplied with troubles.

Is it not time to forsake such foolishness? The past is dead; let it be forgotten. The trouble that is future is most likely never to happen, but if it does come we shall have help to encounter it. And for the present trouble, we have but to fly to the Rock of Refuge, and hide beneath the shadow of Jehovah's wing. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."—The Common People.

The Great Exposition.

The Exposition at New Orleans is attracting the attention of the press in all parts of the country and abroad. Almost every newspaper has something to say about the preparations that are being made to further the work of State or local associations. The special representatives of the Exposition commissioned by President Arthur, for the purpose of securing exhibits have found the newspapers ready to report speeches and print the latest news relating to the World's Fair. This circumstance no doubt springs from the fact that the people throughout the land read with much interest all that is printed concerning this great enterprise. By the wide-spread influence of the press the Exposition is known and talked about in India, Australia, on the banks of the Congo, in the South American republics, and in the frozen regions of the North. Seeming impossibilities having been overcome, and the scheme limited to a cotton exhibition at first, has been enlarged by degrees till it now embraces a grand exposition of arts, manufactures, mines, agriculture, and in fact about everything in which the people of to day are interested. This Exposition to be opened in December next, covers more ground, has more exhibits entered, than can be recorded of any other World's Fair ever attempted.

The Advance says: "Robert Ingersoll insorms us that he proposes to devote his energies to the utter destruction of the Christian religion." There was another Philistine who made a similar proposition. He defied the armies of Israel, and had a large following of admiring little Philistines. The Peoria Philistine has undertaken a much larer task, and will meet the same fate as his prototype. —Northwestern

Why She Didn't Marry Him.

"Yes, I live pleasantly enough with my husband," she said, "but I believe I should have married Augustus, if all the girls hadn't made fun of him, and said he'd be bald as a pumpkin in a year or two." Young men, take warning, and use Parker's Hair Balsam. Cleanses the scalp, restores color, removes dandruff.

The New York Tribune says: "Gen. Logan, born in this country of full Irish parentage, is the son of a physician educated in Ireland. He fought his own way bravely through college with what help a hard-working doctor in a pioneer country could give his several sons; was graduated honorably, studied law awhile with his uncle, and then was gradua ed from the regular law school. Perhaps his English may sometimes betray traces of the pioneer habits of a third of a century ago in Southern Illinois. He speaks the French and Spanish languages, is an enthusiast in Shakespeare, of which he can repeat whole plays by heart. He has been known among his brother senators to correct a Harvard graduate in Latin pronunciation and a Williams graduate in Shakespearean quotation, and his familiar acquaintance with modern tongues is reported to have stood in the breach where other senators faltered and fell."

A Good Many Failures.

During the year 1883 there were 10,568 failures in business in the United States and Canada. Some of these were big concerns, and some were very small. Failure is sorrowful business to any man, especially if it is his health that fails. A great many times 10,569 people fail in health in course of a year. Many of them might be saved if they would take Brown's Iron Bitters, the great family medicine and restorer of wasted health.

The value of expositions may be understood from one fact that seems to illustrate the point. North Carolina has already received a million of dollars from persons who have invested in her mineral lands since she made her display of mineral resources at the fair in Boston last fall. North Carolina expended $16,000 for the exhibit and as a return for her sagacity has received $1,000,000.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

...Quarter, Lesson VII.
...alom's Death. (2 Sam. xviii, 24—33.]

Disobedience to parents is one of the sins that seems to be punished in this world as well as the next. While the promise of long life is given to those who honor their father and mother, it is said that those who curse them will die the death. Children can curse their parents by their wicked deeds as well as by wicked words. In this lesson we have an account of a son who tried to take his father's life and kingdom. After a weary march David and his army stopped at the city of Manhanaim, east of the Jordan, which they had crossed in the night for fear Absalom and his followers would overtake them. The two armies met in battle in the wood of Ephriam." Twenty thousand men were killed, and Absalom lost his life in a strange way. He was riding under an oak, when his head caught in the thick boughs and held him fast, while the mule on which he sat went on, leaving him hanging helpless. When Joab, one of David's generals, heard of this, he thrust a dart through his heart, and killed him. His father had asked them to be gentle with him for his sake, but Joab acted as a warrior, and did not let his enemy escape. David had spent the day watching, and no doubt praying, in a little room over the gate. It was a hard day for the king and father, anxious both for his faithful subjects and his faithless son. At last the ...an a man running alone, and then another, and then they knew that something important ... had happened. They had ... of any such thing ... those days. Greenwood District Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—The Greenwood District Conference was held in Yazoo City, Mississippi, comencing June 26, 1884., Rev. H. R. Revels, D. D., presiding. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. S. Williams, reading 1 Psalm, and singing the hymn commencing: "And are we yet alive, and see each other's face." On motion, J. C. Houston was elected secretary. Twenty-one members were present, and entered upon the duties of the Conference with unusual vigor and intelligence. In the outset the Chair gave the Conference a very touching address, showing the great necessity of virtue and holiness in the ministerial life. He further stated the good Old Church had shown special love and care for us in that she had put her foot on all caste prejudice. Rev. L. N. Taylor, of the Missouri Conference, was then introduced, and on motion of Rev. D. D. Goodwin, was invited to take a part in all the exercises of the Conference. His lovely presents and profound speeches added very greatly to the intellectual value and spiritual life of the occasion. The first two days of the Conference were used in discussing points of ecclesiastical law and rules of evidence, the necessity of which is seen in the fact that, notwithstanding the simplicity of the Discipline, it is not fully understood by many of our ministers. The discussion, however, brought out great surprise and praise from the presiding elder and all present, which gave us the pleasant satisfaction that we were not so far behind as we had thought. At this end Rev. T. B. Holman, pastor Yazoo City M. E. Church South, was introduced, and invited to take part in the exercises, and did so to the satisfaction of all present. He is the right man in the right place. We could readily see that there were none of those feelings of egotism and caste prejudice in him, that too often control the mind and actions of the Southern pulpit.

Speeches made by the presiding elder and Rev. D. D. Goodwin, of Benton, Saturday night were listened to with great interest and profit. Sunday was the great day of the feast. Let me here say that the Sabbath-school there in its punctuality, financial life and Biblical knowledge, is second to but few, if any, in this state. Speeches were made and essays read at 11 o'clock by Revs. H. Heslup, C. L. Crump, J. M. Nevels and the writer, which brough out the hearty applause of the intelligent and attentive auditory. One good old brotner shouted out to the top of his voice: "It is good to be here to hear these men of God talk." At 3 o'clock p. m., Dr. Revels was expected to fire the Gospel gun, but the crowded house that heard him decided that he used a cannon. The Doctor has lost but little, if any, of his oratorical power. We hope that Our Father will allow him to remain with us for some years yet, to bless our Church and people.

Rev. C. L. Crump blew the trumpet in Zion Sunday night, which closed the grand work of the day. Monday morning resolutions were offered, expressive of gratitude to the chair and secretary, for the faithful discharge of their duties, and to the good people of Yazoo City for the hearty greetings and cordial reception that they gave the Conference. The presiding elder said in his closing address, that the minister who failed to study, would soon fail to be heard. The proceedings ceased with prayer and benediction by the choir.

Editorial Notes.

What do wealthy colored men do with their riches while they live and when they die?

The second catalogue of Baldwin Seminary was printed in New York, where President Fitch has been spending a few weeks.

We must not only attend church but we must worship the Lord there because of his holiness, after the example of Noah, Job, David, Daniel, John and Paul.

American politics is a system of compromises in which, if colored men effect anything of advantage to themselves, they must follow the best example of white men.

If a man cannot hold a yearling calf how can he hold a cow? No more can preachers hold a first-class appointment who fail in a second, or third or fourth class one.

We should serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with singing; we should enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise.

Be sure to secure a form of deed from the Church Extension room before you pay, and a plan before you build. Thus you will save much time, expense and disappointment.

Rev. Jas. Courtney, of the Ohio District Lexington Conference, says the SOUTHWESTERN is the greatest paper for colored people in the country. We like it forwarded to him on its work.

"When the white people see a colored man who is even and has capacity for a great place, they put him in. The promotion of Dr. Taylor illustrates this."—Rev. Jas. Turner, of the A. M. E. Church.

Do not forget the conference claimants. Time and the wear and tear of the ministry is constantly increasing them. This fact suggests the duty of not only not decreasing but of maintaining and increasing the collections for them.

The possession of money works evil [illegible]. Its right use, all other things equal, will take a man to heaven or its improper employment or getting there. [illegible] is the best use we can put money to.

[illegible] over the very [illegible] Salvation Army is making [illegible] Schenectady, N. Y., and a mob is [illegible].

There is a general revival of camp meetings and basket meetings with excursions to attend them, among the churches; there has been no conversions reported so far.

Some of the ministers in the African Methodist Episcopal Church keep up the practice of reporting it about where it serves them best, that the church property of the Methodist Episcopal colored people is deeded to the Bishops. They know that the reports they are circulating are untrue. A kind of ecclesiastical campaign lying as it were.

The elevents Annual Inter-State Picnic and Exhibition under the anspices of the Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey and Delaware will open at Williams' Grove, Cumberland county, Pa., on Monday, August 25, 1884, and continue until Saturday, August 30th. Excursion rates at reduced fare will be arranged over the principal roads in Pennsylvania and adjoining States. Address R. H. Thomas, manager, Mechanicsburg, Pa.

"The Black Woman of the South; her Neglects and her Needs," by Rev. Alexander Crummell, D. D., of Washington, D. C.; "What the General Conference of 1884 Did for the Woman's Home Missionary Society," and a circular descriptive of the Society and the illiteracy of the South, are tracts issued from headquarters for general circulation. Friends should get them and read them. Apply to Mrs. R. S. Rust, corresponding secretary, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. Taylor, the new editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, has taken hold like an old hand, and things are lively at that point.—Lamp of Life.

You are another, Bro. Berry, only you are not as new as we are in the business. The Lamp of Life burns more brightly than ever. Its oil is evidently standard. No paper reaches us with more substantial Christian heart and brain food than it. It is so good in the present number that we almost felt like we were doing sacrilege when we cut it.

The presiding elder is an element of great usefulness and success in Methodism; which can be exactly measured by the failure of that part of the Methodist family to succeed, which omits to include it in their polity. He earns his money, and should be faithfully, promptly, fairly, liberally and cheerfully paid. His work is arduous, constant and delicate. He is expected to reflect the sentiment, harmonize the differences, and adjust the requirements of the churches and the qualifications of the preachers so nicely as to prevent friction and maintain the peaceful equipoise of both.

Some first class "gentlemen" came to the door and sent into one of our colored churcees in Ohio, during a festival, for some colored girls who were supposed to be there. The pastor found it out and exposed it. The "gentlemen" thereupon threatened to drive him from town. But he succeeded in convincing them that it would be a difficult if not a dangerous task. They now regard him as absolutely essential to the moral well being of the colored people in that place. Watch it, brethren, let us stand and if needs be for the protection of the virtue of colored women.

Okolona District Conference.

MR. EDITOR—The first district conference of the Okolona District convened at Tupelo, Miss., July 3, at 3 p. m., Rev. D. A. Williams, presiding elder, present. After listening to a sermon by Rev. Miles Proctor, the presiding elder made a short and instructive talk to the preachers regarding their conduct during the session, asking and praying them to be lights in all their action and deportment while there; after which the conference was organized in the usual way. On motion I. B. Griffin and B. H. S. Ferguson were elected secretaries. The work of the first day was merely consumed in appointing the committees on the varions duties as required in a district conference. At night Rev. J. L. Pratt preached to the satisfaction of all. July 4th, at 8 p. m., the ministers of the district reported their charges and circuits, which reports showed that the district is marching forward under the leadership of Elder Williams. All of the churches and circuits of the district seem to be improving morally, financially and spiritually. the leading financial reports, for all purposes, are as follows: Starkville, $360.60, and on 4th of July cleared $40; Okolona, $538.25; Corinth, $227.30; Aberdeen, $279.30; Columbus, $234.25; Ripley, $125; West Point, $160; Starkville circuit, $140.10; Okolona circuit, $112 30. The other appointments showed good financial reports, considering the season and the hardness of the times. The 4th of July was observed by the conference as a national day. At 10 o'clock they commenced the discussion of topics according to the programme, which continued until 12 m. The brethren acquitted themselves very nicely in discussing their topics, which showed that they had studied them thoroughly. At 3:30 p. m., the conference listened to the national sermon delivered by the secretary; subject, "The Work of the Church and Needs of the Negro," followed by reading the Declaration of Independence, by B. H. S. Ferguson. It was said to be a grand occasion. At night R. Sewell preached.

THIRD DAY'S SESSION.

During this session the class-leaders made their report, which showed that all of the churches are trying to work according to Discipline. The local preachers reported also, which showed that they had been diligently working in the Master's vineyard. Then the district stewards reported, which showed that they had paid the presiding elder $375.95. Several local preachers were licensed. The various committees reported the work assigned them, including such as thanks to the good people of Tupelo and Mobile and Ohio Railroad for reduced rates, resolutions endorsing SOUTHWESTERN, Temperance and Rust University were passed. At night Rev. L. L. Shumpert preached.

Sunday services—Love feast, by Rev. W. James. It was a time of refreshments from the Lord. Elder Williams preached at 11 a. m., on duties of preachers, J. J. Harris preached, at 3 p. m., a memorial sermon, after which speeches were made by the elder, D. W. Calvert, J. L. Pratt, I. B. Griffin speaking of the life and character of Bishop Simpson. D. W. Calvert preached at night the centenary sermon; conference stewards reported that they had raised $35 during the session; after which a Northern lady addressed the conference and congregation on temperance. We desire to have the following resolutions published in the SOUTHWESTERN.

Respectfully,
I. B. GRIFFIN, Sec'y.

RUST UNIVERSITY.

Whereas, Other colleges and universities have traveling agents all through the country that are doing great good in getting money and students for their schools, and whereas, our dear school, the Rust University, is not as well known as it should be in this State, from the fact that many of our ministers never say a word about said school; and whereas, the Rust University was erected at a cost of $40,000, furniture and all, for the sole purpose of educating the youths, and there are many of the people of the State of Mississppi sending their children to other states to be educated and to local schools, all for the want of not knowing that we have a university at Holly Springs, Mississippi.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this District Conference that the University should employ and put out agents through the State to preach, talk and lecture about the school and its advantages.

Resolved Secondly, That we set apart the second Sunday in September to talk about the school and raise a collection for the benefit of the University, as a centenary offering.

Resolved, That the Okolona District do its utmost to lead the annual conference in finances, for the benefit of the University.

ON EDUCATION.

Whereas, We know that no church, Sunday-school or community can make progress to any considerable degree, if any at all,

Resolved, That each brother of this conference bend every effort to impress upon the minds of our people the importance of sending their children to school.

Resolved, That we being well aware that education is absolutely essential, not only to the civilization of any people, but also to their possession of a high, moral and unsullied character.

Resolved, That since there is so little time devoted by each pastor to this most important of all important things, and that we will never be looked upon with that respect due intelligence and our race, until we talk less, and do more to build up the young, who are to be the actors upon the stage of life in a few years, that we pledge ourselves as one to carry on our great educational work.

ON RUST UNIVERSITY.

Resolved, That we fully feel the good results of our Rust University, located at Holly Springs, Mississippi, and in order that we may still realize these results, that each minister shall pledge himself a committee to encourage the people, collect certain sums, so that she may still grow intellectually, morally, and in such a way that she will stand on the topmost round of intelligence, and further use his influence in procuring subscribers for "The Enterprise."

Whereas, Under our Almighty Father we are enabled to meet here, and are blessed with his ever extended mercies and love, and whereas we must still look to his open hand for the help that we so directly need,

Resolved, That we appoint a certain Sabbath—3d instant—on leaving this conference, in remembrance of this, our First Centenary District Conference.

Resolved, That on said Sabbath, each pastor be requested through our wide-spread connection to take subscriptions for our worthy paper, the SOUTHWESTERN.

Resolved, That this subscription be to impress the people, our children and friends generally, with the fact that this, the Centennial Subscription, will establish and strengthen the permanent agency of the SOUTHWESTERN.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, for furnishing us tickets at reduced rates to our First District Conference at Tupelo, and a copy of same be furnished to said company.

History of Clark Chapel.—No. 4.

On May 26th 1878, Rev. Charles Winterwood was sent to take charge. This young minister was a gradnate of the Normal department of Central Tennessee College. He was endowed by nature with the gift of speech and was an eloquent, earnest minister. But few knew him who did not love him. Though young, no one despised his youth; though talented, comparatively speaking, he gloried not, "save in the cross of Christ." Being young and inexperienced in the pastoral work, he soon found that the work was too much for him and, like a man of sense, finding his hold relinquishing, at the annual conference the same year, he was pleased to know he was to be succeeded by his senior in years and experience, Rev. D. W. Hays. "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," and among his own kin. Indeed the people must have forgotten that D. W. Hays was raised in Nashville. He came to the charge Nov. 21st 1878. He met it is true, many difficulties on his way from conference, and when he arrived, some thought he would not be able to "hold the fort" for six months. Among the masses of our people he is was failure as a preacher, because he preached the truth. He is a man of average height, personable in appearance, affable and therefore has many friends wherever he goes. If there be an objection or reason why he may not succeed as a minister anywhere, it is probably owing to his idea that every man or set of men in the church should be told his duty and then leave it between him and his God. He is quiet and unassuming in the pulpit, modest and dignified in his bearing upon the street. As to preaching ability he is a good preacher, very far removed from the ordinary preacher. Studious but sympathetic, religious but not emotional to the extreme or fanatic. For three years in succession he was pastor of the church, and when his term was ended he left a host of friends inside and out of the church. He was succeeded by Rev. L. M. Hagood a transfer from the St. Louis annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. From what has been said above one would think there was a very dark cloud before him. It is true that some of those who should have wished the church better things, declared he would stay only about six months. He found in the church "some for Paul, some for Apollas and some for Cephas," some opposed to ministers of the class who try to preach about duty to God and our fellow man or who have attended school; some who wanted only educated preachers. Revs. C. S. Smith and, D. W. Hays, if to be compared as to the manner of delivery of sermons and matter presented, are almost exact opposites; the one spoke for the moment, the other for eternity; the former was often exaggerative as to statements made; the latter scrupulously exact; the former often appealed to passion and prejudice or preconceived notions for momentary effect and applause; the latter seldom appealed to passion, but always discouraged preconceived notions; conceived them too highly colored or misleading. The former had the multitude before the looking glass of imagination, who, leaning straightway, forgot what manner of men they were. The latter had the earnest, patient, faithful few standing before the judgment seat of Christ, and upon their lips was:

"Nothing in my hand I bring;
Simply to thy cross I cling."

The Methodist Preachers Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society.

BY PROF. CLEMENT KIMBROUGH.

Sir, I am a member of the Methodist Preachers Mutual Aid and Beneficiary Society. I paid $6 to join it, under the promise that if I lived fifteen years and ninety days I should receive $1,000. And that in ninety days after my death my wife, children or legatees should receive $1,000 more.

Now, I find that before I have been a member one year there has been a change in regard to the benefits which I, with others, am to receive. I want to say to the managers, that I expect them either to credit $2 to my account to meet future assessments, or if not, to refund me the $6.

Lexington, Ky., August 1, 1884.

This society is composed of honored ministers, who are good for their promises. We hold a policy for ourself and wife. We have paid all assessments (one) which have been called for.

We consider our old policies perfectly good, subject to the conditions under which they were issued. We must of course perform our part of the agreement well and truly, and so must you. After this, we consider the society bound by its agreement, which could only terminate by our consent, or for causes which it was within the power of members to control. En.

Grand Conclave of Knights Templar.

The State conclave of Knights Templar convened in this city last Tuesday, they are a fine looking body of men, and presented a handsome appearance in their procession on the street. At the Park everything was conducted in fine style. The drill was very fine. Captain General M. T. Clay handled his man in a way that showed that they knew their business. At night quite a good crowd was in attendance, and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

We copy the following fair report from the Lexington Press of Wednesday:

The Bethany Lodge No. 1 of Knights Templars of Lexington entertained in grand style, the Louisville and Paris lodges yesterday at Woodland Park. The lodges met in a body at the Bethany Lodge about 2 p. m. and marched to the music of the Lexington colored band to the Park. Sir S. P. Young, prelate of the Bethany Commandery, delivered an address of welcome which did him much credit. After the address of welcome the grand Commander of the State of Kentucky, Sir Geo. Taylor, made an interesting talk. He was very hoarse and excused himself from making a lengthy speech. Then came an interesting drill by the Sir Knights, in which they showed considerable proficiency. The various evolutions were gone through with an accuracy and alertness which demonstrated that the Knights had been well-drilled.—Kentucky Republican.

During the progress of the revision of the Old Testament, 10 of the 27 original English Committee have died, and two have resigned.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

W. Davis, Trenton: "The Lord prospered the work here. Have received 15 in full connection, on probation 7, by letter 1. We are trying to build a church here."

TENNESSEE.

L. M. Moores, Cleveland: "My wife joins me in congratulating you in your new field of labor."

F. L. Donahoo, Morristown: "The S. S. Sunday-school celebration in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the M. E. Church, was a grand display. Friday, July 4th was the day set for the parade and celebration. Accordingly about 8 o'clock a. m., people in holiday attire were seen wending their way by scores to the court-house, where the line of march was formed. There were between six and eight hundred colored people here. At 9.30 a. m. the line of march was formed. On reaching the corner of Main and Cumberland streets the line was halted until a photograph of the same was drawn. The march was in the following order: Chief marshal, McFalton, horse-back; Morristown Brass Band, 11 pieces, Prof. Barns leader, followed by the M. E. Sunday-school, and all foot in the march; next followed Goddess of the 26 colored schools of learning of higher grade, maintained by the M. E. Church, in chariot and attended by a number of Misses dressed in white (emblematic of knowledge) each representing a school, and bearing its name on a white flag; hacks, vehicles, buggies and wagons in rear of the procession. On reaching the ground about 11 a. m., Rev. F. L. Donahoo, chief marshal of the day, called the assemblage to order. The programme was compiled from the one furnished the Board of Education for the Day, and select pieces from the Sundial report of said Board was greatly enjoyed by all. The singing was led by Prof. A. Newman, our Sunday-school superintendent. We had the hearty and earnest co operation of the most prominent young men and gentlemen of our city. Rev. S. J. Harris made hearts glad by his excellent remarks, after the children's collection, which was a handsome one, and it was made that a picnic would be held in the grove at night. S. J. Harris pronounced the benediction; and tables were spread in the grove. All partook of a good dinner and had a good time. The Mossy Creek band, of Morristown, the former 12 pieces, and a concourse of people on their way to and from filled to overflowing. Prof. Barns in front, with a large assemblage, who were making the welkin ring. Under the management of the committee, to secure refreshments. A good time was had and a bountiful sum for benevolent purposes of which I was given; but it would have been for our worthy "Sunday-school students, and the rest of our Baptist friends to have a dance in the grove continued until late. We shall be our guests and carry church members

TEXAS.

M. Smith, Winchester: "There are a large number of Baptists on my circuit who create much opposition. There are 4 preaching points, and the hearts of the people are changing toward us. Second quarterly conference was held at Salem. Collection $10.20. On third Sunday of June a protracted meeting began at Shiloh. There were 8 conversions."

A. Foster, "Mayfield: "Rev. H. Swann, of Austin, held our second quarterly conference. His sermon was full of thought. Sacrament administered to 65. The love feast was a soul stirring meeting. My people are farmers, and owing to the heavy and continued rain fall the financial condition is poor. We live in a locality bounded on the east and north east by Brazos river, and south and south-west by Little river. These rivers overflowed all the lowland farms along their banks in the country, and the water remained so long the crops were ruined. Notwithstanding this hindrance from a financial standpoint, we have built one new church, reduced the old debt from $156 to $28, made some improvements on parsonage, raised half of our benevolent collections, had 28 conversions. We have two Sunday-schools which have increased in scholars from 60 to 93, all of which number are young people. Children's day was observed; a grand day, one that the people say will never be forgotten. There was a committee appointed on decoration who did their work creditably. The church was decorated with flowers and singing birds. The service was used with the following emblems: a white floral cross; a wreath of flowers; a wreath a green leaves; a wreath of green and fading leaves and flowers; and a wreath of evergreen. A small ladder was erected and place in front of pulpit consisting of four rounds, decorated nicely. Upon each round of the ladder was placed a small ornamented basket with the missionary name of each class marked thereon. After the march, which was a grand one, with the Superintendent at the head, followed by teachers and scholars with banners, with the watchword "We are marching onward," each class was seated in their respective places; the introductory hymn, from centenary programme for children's day, 1884, prepared by D. P. Kidder, of New York, was effectively sung, followed by responsive reading of part first, "A glance at the past." When the recitations were all over the classes were presented with the basket bearing its missionary name. The collections were taken and the result was $4.75. Some of the brethren and friends said to me prior to this day, "You can't do anything in the way of raising money for the Sunday-school;" "it is impossible;" "the people haven't got it to give." I answered, "Friends it is my duty to present the cause; it is the duty of the people to give." You see what the result is. I am sorry we did so little for such a grand cause, but we have done our duty."

John Guess, Livingston: "The church is progressing; we have a fine congregation. We have organized a Sunday-school with 40 in attendance. Children's day was observed. Collection $5.30. We are preparing for a camp meeting Aug. 18, and invite all our friends."

J. C. Carter, Pennington: "This is a place where Democracy and the Baptist faith are in the air, and all I can say for the old Church is to let the fruits of her light shine. I am teaching a public school. Methodism was stamped in my forehead, and religion on my heart at the great fountain of East Texas, Wiley University. I have reached the degree of local preacher in our Church. We need 25 or 30 young, earnest, working Methodists for the old Church in East Texas. I am told there are some in New Orleans with nothing to do. Come here, boys, and fall in ranks. If you want to, address me."

E. M. Hall, Caney: "I came here to build up the Methodist Episcopal Church, which I am trying to do. It will take hard work to get the people where they ought to be, to be good Methodists, especially the older people, but there is hope for the younger ones. From what I can hear our children's day was more of a success than in some of the older and much larger circuits. Collection on that day was $2.40, which I will forward to the Sunday-school Union. Presiding elder P. M. Carmichael was with us on the 5th and 6th, and rendered us great service. His sermons and lectures will not be forgotten soon. Previous to the coming of the elder I commenced a protracted meeting. The church seems to be spiritually revived. Three joined on probation as seekers. The people here seem to be a little more awakened to their interests than they have been in the past. A celebration held here on their emancipation day, and the advice of our worthy presiding elder for them to purchase homes, is stirring them up somewhat. There is plenty of land in Matagorda county that can be bought cheap, and our people ought to buy now while they can. I am not coming to conference this year without all my benevolent money and the money for the SOUTHWESTERN. I am going to work soon to raise money to pay off an old debt that has been standing against the church here. The Sunday schools are doing tolerably well at present, hope they will soon become what they ought to be. Pray for us."

KENTUCKY.

Aaron Jones, Auburn: "My church is in a prosperous condition at present, and the work is moving on, and growing. We are doing all we can now to begin building. My Sunday school is doing nicely. We are endeavoring to raise the banner of Methodism in this part of the land and country; by the help of Almighty God we will take the field. Pray for us."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

From Columbus District.

MR. EDITOR: I have just finished the second round on the Columbus District, and perhaps it will do the public some good to know something about it.

May 24th and 25th found me at Weimar. I held the quarter, and preached on Sunday to a good crowd. Collection $5.45. We expect to complete two new churches on this work this year. From here I was to go to Industry, to hold Bro. J. Jarman's quarter, but hearing of the illness of my wife, I went home to attend her bedside. However, Rev. W. H. Davis held it for me on May 31st and June 1st; had a good time he said, and took up $5.25. My next place was on Bro. C. Chase's work (Ellenger and Toland), June 7th and 8th. This work was a little behind what I expected to find it. Bro. Chase is farming, perhaps that accounts for it. I found here that Bro. Chase and the brethren had purchased a lot in the little town of Ellenger, on which to build a church house. The collection at this place was $5.81. From here I went to Columbus circuit, where on the 14th and 15th of June I held Bro. P. Gates' quarter. All the brethren were present, and we enjoyed a nice time. At this place I found some conversions. Children's Day had been observed. Bro. Gates is one of those men that will work wherever he goes. He had managed to raise some of his benevolent money, I forget the amount. Our people and preachers are getting better about raising benevolent money. The elder received at this place $10.20. I will speak right here for our Egypt work. Bro. Thomas Derven has that work, and I don't think he has preached a sermon there this year to six persons. I held his quarter with Bro. Gates'. At first Bro. Derven wanted to be relieved from his work, but after a little talk he agreed to stay. It was thought by the Bishop and Elder Richardson that as Bro. Derven had a home down there and was doing very well, that he would be the man for the place; therefore they allowed him $30 from the Missionary Society to help him, but I think it is wasted, because Bro. Derven has not the courage to do anything there among those Baptists. My next place was Wharton, where I was met at the depot by Bro. R. Gilmore (one of Bro. Cæsar's stewards), and carried on horseback about fourteen miles down on what is known as Old Caney, where I found Bro. J. Cæsar, the pastor, in a protracted meeting. I stayed here three days and preached, and had three converts and $3.00, and left the meeting going on.

Monday, June 30, I left for Caney, via Houston. While on the train I met with Rev. V. M. Cole and Rev. W. P. Pullam. Bro. Pullam is presiding elder on the Navasota District, Texas Conference. Bro. Cole is of the same conference. We had a nice talk together about the work and the General Conference. We arrived at Houston about 5 o'clock, where I found a pleasant home with Bro. W. H. Logan. Having to wait a day for my train, I did not leave until Wednesday, July 2d, on the Columbia Tap. I arrived at Columbia about 7 p. m., where I met that good district steward, Bro. Baldrige, awaiting my arrival. After riding about ten miles we found a place to rest at Bro. George Boone's. Next day, July 3, we reached our place of destination, and you may know I was tired. I was very sorry to find Bro. Hall, the pastor, crippled, and suffering from a foot that he got hurt. Saturday, the 5th, I held the quarter, with a good attendance. Reports were good. I found that Bro. Hall had raised some of his benevolent money. Sunday, July 6, I preached to a good congregation, and seemed to make some impression on their minds. The collection at this place was $10. I feel hopeful for Caney.

Yours in the work,

P. M. CARMICHAEL.

Shall We Go to Africa?

BY W. D. GODMAN.

Brethren, let us answer this question, not for others, but for ourselves. First, Let us go because the Lord calls. It is as if the same who said: "Go ye into all the world and preach my Gospel to every creature," were now looking down from the clouds which surround His throne, and with his outstretched hand were visibly waving us to the climes where.

"Africa's sunny fountains Roll down their golden sand."

The great African peninsula has been kept of God a "sealed book" until our day. Its sable millions have been reserved as a choice jewel locked up in his casket, concealed until the time was come and the people prepared for its reception and keeping. On one side of the Atlantic God's servants were explaining the mysterious depths of the "dark continent," hitherto unseen by civilized man, and opening up their splendid resources to the world's commerce. On the other side, God's servants were breaking the bonds of millions of Africa's children who, in their bondage, had learned of Christ and His redemption. These two divine movements, the one with God's right hand and the other with His left, so to speak,—were parts of one providential plan to bring together the kinsmen so long separated and to make their reunion the salvation of the millions "sitting in the darkness and the shadow of death." Who can doubt this? When Joseph was reunited with his brethren in Egypt, he said, "It was not you that sent me hither but God." So now the saved Afro-American may say to the American people "It was not you that brought me hither but God, and returning to his kinsmen in the old country, may say to them, "It was not you that sent me thither, but God." He will say to them: "I went a bondsman, I return a freeman; I went a slave to Satan, I return God's child and freeman. I am born of the Eternal Spirit. I have the love of God shed abroad in my heart, and rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory, knowing that 'my name is written in heaven.' I bring to you the pearl of great price which I have found." This, the "sure testimony" of God; this "old, old story of Jesus and His love," is destined to kindle in Africa a greater flame than that of her burning prairies; a flame that will sweep from shore to shore, envelop the mountains, and rush through the valleys, carrying not devastation, but life and fruitfulness in its path. How glorious are God's plans. Let us rejoice that He is willing to employ us in their execution.

2. The people of Africa are calling. The few missionaries who have been sowing the good seed have made their record for good; and the cry of many princes and tribes is "send us missionaries." The lives and labors of Moffat and Livingston in South Africa; of Wilson and Bowen in Western Africa, give emphatic testimony to this Macedonian cry. Stanley found a pressing request for teachers in Eastern Africa. In Soudan, where Mohammedism dominates the tribes, there is less inviting than elsewhere. But even here, where the servant of Christ goes forward in the true spirit of his Master, he finds his way most wonderfully opened, and his very enemies become his friends. There is, moreover, a general awakening and unrest in Africa, particularly along the coasts and in Soudan, as of a transition state,—the people looking out for a new order of things. A very intelligent returned missionary says: "To us Africa presents a new and hopeful aspect, one which she has never before presented since the foundation of the world. Her primeval forests are gone and with them her savage state has perished forever. (This is applicable to the part of Central Africa where this missionary labored.) The new condition of the country has produced a new condition of people. New wants, new hopes, and new ideas are forcing her tribes upward in the scale of humanity. Almost the whole continent is agitated by the events of a transition state. The eyes of the world are upon her. The hearts and the hands of the world are drawing her into the great confraternity of man. The heralds of Christ are there pushing forward into the unknown depths of her interior nations, and now it requires no prophet to declare the natural result of all these potent forces. "Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God." Bowen's Central Africa, p. 327. These impressive words are even more forcibly true now than several years ago, when they were written.

3. We should go for our own sake, for humanity's sake. We need self-renunciation, not self-indulgence. The life of Christ in our own souls requires that we should break away from our bright worldly prospects, desert our pleasant homes and charming friends, give up our easy work and the flatteries of social life that only spoil our souls, and do some hard work that has in it no possible earthly reward. The church at home needs Africa for the draining away of her superfluous, corrupting wealth, and for the exercise of her faith and her energies in winning a continent to Christ. Science needs Africa's facts to solve her problems and answer her questions. Commerce needs her for the supply of the world's wealth. There are perhaps two hundred millions of people in Africa. Of these two thirds are true Ethiopians, or blacks, dwelling South of the tenth paralell of North latitude. These two thirds have not been subjected to Islam, and for the most part have never heard of it. Many of them are semi-civilized, many are pure savages. But they have, with all their savageness, much simplicity, much native kindness, much fidelity to engagements, and an abundance of rude talent. There is among them a marvelous mixture of truthfulness and lying, of good faith and treachery, of honesty and fraud, of nobility and meanness, of generosity and avarice, of manliness and bestiality. It requires not a little study for a European or American to understand them. But the servant of Christ, keeping himself free from money making and from all political connections, devoting himself exclusively and affectionately to the work of saving men, will by degrees make his way into their hearts, and gain unbounded influence over them, so as to lead them, princes and people, to the fountain of life in Christ Jesus.

The successful conduct of a Christian mission among such people demands men and women of entire consecration, of good sense, and of the highest culture. It has been said, and with truth, that the highest qualities are required in teachers of primary schools. It is, likewise, to be borne in mind, that the highest type of man is required to lift the victims of fetichism and of atheistic savagery. Shall we not, brethren—and I address particularly my younger brethren who are getting education—shall we not feel it to be the greatest privilege and the highest honor to enlist in the army that shall conquer Africa for Christ? Men die in Africa, and where do they not die? But there are fatal fevers there, yes, and in the face of the dreaded fever men go there for gold, or for the soldier's fame. Shall we claim to be soldiers of Jesus, and tremble at the fever? Where are the martyrs? Where are the brave ones who do not fear to die? It is inglorious to stay at home and do our easy work among friends. Let us undertake something that is hard, "endure hardness as good soldiers of Christ." The noblest thing we can do is to fling our lives at the feet of Jesus. There is no spot on earth now so worthy the martyr's blood as the torrid realm of Africa. They are poor people, uncivilized, helpless, no tribes known to civilized men are so helpless, so defenseless. The cataracts in Africa's great rivers and the fiery cordon of the terrific fevers generated on her coasts have been the best protection of these defenseless ones, through ages past, from the destructive advances of more powerful nations. Reserved have they been unto the time when the leading nations of the earth have caught the Gospel's sweet spirit of humanity, and are ready to send to the African the bread of eternal life along with the overtures of commerce and civilization.

The writer does but wish he was twenty five years younger, that he might offer himself to the church with the hope of being accepted for Africa. Prepare, brethren, let us be ready for the call. The church will want some of us after awhile.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Letter from Mrs. Howells.

DEAR EDITOR: Perhaps I ought to have made your acquaintance before, but as "it is never too late to mend," I will try to help you a little, as the months roll, by an occasional word of cheer or reproof, as occasion may require, for sometimes "the blows of a friend are better than the kisses of an enemy;" that is my experience.

I am very thankful for the action of the General Conference, in regard to yourself, on behalf of your people.

Your reminiscence of your people by mine, at City Road, London, will perhaps give you an idea of my interest in the elevation of the young. Some years since my husband refused a good situation, through sympathy for the people around him.

Since his death I have continued the work with a small degree of success, and have seen a few girls and boys pass into higher institutions of learning.

May God continue to bless your efforts, until He calls you to a seat in His palace.

I rejoice in the fact of the General Conference saving its honor as a Methodist body, and have no doubt the work of saving souls will be carried on much more rapidly than before.

I think the Sunday-school hymn book an excellent idea—have often thought it ought to be done—though I have very little objection to the other songsters.

My work is going on very slow, as I am not able to get about much while the weather is so hot; but the work of women is recognized, and by God's help, we "will labor on at His command, and offer all our works to Him."

Your sister in Christ,
ISABELLA HOWELLS.

Whitmans, Washington Co., Tex., July 7, 1884.

An Appeal.

MR. EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN—Please insert in your paper the enclosed circular appeal, as it may do us some good. My conference and Bishop (Bowman) request me to go abroad to solicit, and my health at present is not sufficient. My three score years and ten, and fifty-two years in the ministry, make me feel a little old. I am a native of New York, and most of my labors have been in Genesee Conference. Bishop Simpson transferred me here fifteen years ago. I am the only white man in this conference. They put me in this conference to help build. I always held that God made one man the property of another. I remember in Potsdam, New York, in 1837, my conference met there, Bishop Hedding presiding. Beeb. Storr and Sunderland came from New England to lecture on anti-slavery. The Bishop, conference and churches would not let them into any house. They (the lecturers) obtained a room over a business block, and we slouched our hats, disguised ourselves, and went through back alleys and in at back doors to hear an abolition lecture, thus avoiding public odium.

Yours for Christ and His poor,
D. B. LAWTON.

Bishop Taylor.

REV. JAMES MITCHELL, D.D.,

We learn that Bishop Taylor intends placing Africa on the list of fields in which to practice his successful system of self sustaining missions in all fields outside of Liberia. This is a fine opening for ministers, who feel the Divine impulse towards Africa, and there are many of these in this day.

Allow me to name a field not much thought of, outside the world of science and ancient history. All of Northern Africa, including that ancient Bible land, Egypt. Why should the sons of science keep their bands at work midst the wreck of empires, mining for the wealth and lore of ancient times, beneath pyramid and mound; and the sons of God rear to work for the salvation of the millions who dwell in those once favored lands.

Let it be the will and fortune of America's free sons, to claim all the honor, all the prescriptive rights that remain to the African race in connection with Egypt, and the ancient rival of Rome, Carthage; but from higher, nobler motives than that of empire as understood amongst men of the world, from the desire to bless the race and spread the kingdom of God.

I have just received a card from Bishop Taylor, in which he says he regards the action of the General Conference as the voice of God, and will place Africa in its full grand extent, on his list of fields for testing the theory of self sustaining missions, in all places except Liberia. May the Lord, our God, give him great success.

But there is something for the American church to do, not ours alone, but all the Protestant churches who feel debtors to Africa, and as yet have no missions of their own therein, let us aid him to men and means.

He needs money for the following objects, and it is the duty of the Protestant press to keep the subject before its readers, and dismiss that weakness of the press, i. e. a reluctance to publish old matter. Please contribute that much to Africa's regeneration, and produce the needed sentiment that will reinforce his movement, by a full and constant advertisement.

He will need means to start the work of self sustaining missions for the following objects.

1. "Outfit and transit of Missionaries."

2. "Traveling expenses of pioneer evangelists in Africa."

4. "The erection and purchase of houses, for dwellings, schools, and church purposes. These we provide for, but no salaries to be paid out of our transit and building fund."

This is his plan, let such as have means to devote to this special work send it to the Treasurer of our Missionary society in New York or Cincinnati and it will find its African destination in due time.

A Cheerful Account.

The Rev. Daniel Ware, the native African who represented the Republic of Liberia in the General Conference, preached to a large congregation yesterday morning in the Methodist church at Fortieth and Sampson streets. "And with thee shall all the nations of the earth be blessed," was the text, and the preacher thought the prophecy as delivered to Abraham was full of significance to all people. "The ways of God," said he, "are full of mystery to us. Nations are sometimes afflicted for a certain purpose. All people are peculiarly adapted to their surroundings. Thus the African, even in his little hut in the cold mountains to the north of Liberia, is blessed, and he is as happy with his surroundings as you who have all the light of civilization. But this is the contentment of a sleeping people. The light of the Gospel must enter there and the people will receive it. "I remember when, nineteen years ago, I went, in company with Bishop Roberts, to Mount Olive, a settlement way off in the interior of Liberia, for the purpose of administering love feast to a little mission church which had been established there. An old woman who was the mistress of the gree-gree bush where young girls are kept, said that the spirit of God had visited her there while she was in the midst of savage superstition and she had become a Christian. She had never heard the Gospel preached, but her husband had been taught by missionaries at a far-away station, and he had told her of the wonderful power of God. Hundreds are becoming Christians around Mount Olive.

On our way home from the mission we met a savage, a powerful man among his people, and he said that four years before he had heard the Gospel preached and had become a Christian. He had been attracted to the meeting by hearing women shouting and praying. He did not know what it all meant at first, and on inquiry found that they were Christians, and in a short time he became one of them." "I might relate to you," said the preacher, "many instances like these. You can have no idea of the great work which is going on in Africa. I came to this country simply in the interest of my people, and feel that a brighter day is dawning on the Dark Continent."—Philadelphia Times.

Echoes of Children's Day.

The Manual for the current quarter contains "specimen echoes" of the Centenary Children's Day as they have come to us from Maine to California and the intermediate States and Territories. But the late appearance of that periodical makes it desirable to acknowledge in a summary form through the weekly papers of the church the handsome pecuniary returns that have been paid in during the two months following June 8. Our friends everywhere will be gratified to learn that 3,200 reports, some in full, but some only in part, have reached us, bringing for our treasury not less than $35,554. As these reports represent only a part, and it may be supposed quite the smaller part, of the charges that took the Children's Day collection, we now invite returns from the remainder, wishing, if possible, to have them completed during the ensuing two months preparatory to closing our financial year.

The work of our office is so fully overtaken that official receipts can be hereafter issued without delay. Payments that are delayed till the Spring Conferences of 1885 cannot be included in our Report for 1884, and payments made at either Fall or Spring Conferences, and not reported in detail, cannot be specifically credited. Those, therefore, who desire to have their several payments distinctly credited in our next report are desired to send them to this office as soon as practicable, stating definitely their Conference and district.

The canvass for the historic Centenary Medal will continue open till the last day of December, and supplementary payments can be made on that account at any time. Specimens of the medal continue to be sent to pastors and Sunday-school superintendents who will promote subscriptions for it. Address the Educational Secretary, 805 Broadway, New York.

A special feature of the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, announced in another column, which will give it a value and an interest to the American people above any other ever held, will be that of the Mexican and Central American exhibit. A peculiar, almost a mysterious interest, is felt by our people in the inhabitants of those countries, of whom, though directly bordering our own, yet, owning perhaps to the difference of race, of customs, of civilization, and heretofore to the difficulty of access, less is known than of almost any European country. No one can read the weird and romantic history of that country, of the wonderful civilization of the Aztecs, the dark and mournful story of Montezuma, of the fierce conquests, voracious despoilment and virtual enslavement of the natives and of the ages of revolution since, without feeling an eager, curious interest in her and in her present people.

The opportunity has come, the age of progress is producing its fruits, Mexico and Central American have felt the impress of America energy and research. Their people are becoming imbued with the spirit of development. Railroads have scaled many of their loftiest mountians and penetrated almost unknown valleys. Ambition reigns where heretofore lethargy has held away.

A spirit of commercial and industrial activity has been aroused. A desire to make known the inexhaustible resources of their mines, their valleys and their forests, and to attract capital and skilled labor for their development, has become manifest. The opportunity they could most have wished for is presented to them. They have grasped it with the most intense enthusiasm. New Orleans is their natural gateway to the commercial world. In it they find much of the leaven of consanguinity. The Exposition there gives them their first chance of reaching the eyes, the judgment and the interest of the great business world.

The Mexican Government (which has appropriated $200,000 for the purpose) and people have determined on a most extraordinary and exhaustive exhibit. All their unique and peculiar manufactures and handiwork of their Indian and mixed races, the superb productions of their rich soil and richer climate, the priceless gems and treasures of their still virgin mines, the choicest, most incomparable specimens of their grand forests and their wonderful resources of archeological stores and relics of ancient civilization and greatness will form an exhibit in extent, in attractiveness and absorbing interest, unrivalled and unapproachable.

The World's Exposition seems destined to be the biggest thing of the century and all of our readers better arrange to put their house in order for the trip.

The Garden of Eden.

God, having created Adam, placed him in the Garden of Eden to cultivate the trees and subsist upon the fruit, but under an express command to refrain from the tree of knowledge of good and evil. The Almighty then brought him all the beasts and birds to be named, and made a woman from one of her ribs and gave her to him for a wife. Adam called his wife Eve, "the mother of all living." Eden was watered by four rivers, viz: The Hiddekel, Euphrates, Pison and Gihon.—Gen. ii.

Prof. R. T. Greener has recently made an extended tour through the Southern States. His opinions of the progress of his race, as reported by the daily press, are worthy of great respect. Few men are better qualified to form a correct judgment. He finds more pride of race, more independence of character, greater neatness of dress, a strong desire to enter business, and increasing thirst for education. He expresses high admiration for the work of the missionary teachers. He found the Negro not only in the cotton-field and tobacco factory, but acting as carpenter, wheelwright, hackman (often owning the hack), blacksmith, brakeman, and in other avocations. He returns greatly encouraged as to the future of his race. It is a burning shame that this cultured gentleman was four times ordered out of railroad cars; and it is to his credit that in each case he refused to go.—Christian Advocate.

You are right, Bro. Doherty. Prof. Greener is thirty-eight years old, brilliant, conservative, sensible, patriotic and brave. Ordering him from a first-class car affects the whole aristocracy and gives the color, but not him. "Where he will be least of the table." The shabbiest car on any railway would immediately dignity upon his entrance that from whence he would lose it in a corresponding measure. Richard T. ... is the coming young colored man. Methodist Episcopal Leaders.

In its review of our last General Conference, among a number of good things about it, the Christian at Work has this very crochety thing to say, which was probably written by a Methodist who found himself elected to remain not a Bishop for the present. It says: "After Bishop Simpson, there will not be a leader of men on the board; not one." Ah, indeed! How did you find that out? Now, neighbor, if you are not too sleepy or busy "at work," just listen a moment, and we will proceed to expell this nocturnal phantom from your morphian meditations by the ponderous weight of our full moon mental luminosity. Do you comprehend? The fact or fiction of your statement depends upon the sense in which you mean to apply the term "leader." If by it you mean path-finders, then you are right. In that sense under God John Wesley was the only "leader" Methodism will ever have. If you refer to men having ability to adapt and fit the machinery of our system to the broad, and now widening and developing missionary enterprises in which it has had its growth, and now has its chief strength and glory, that kind of leadership was supplied once for all in Francis Asbury. Executive leadership is the quality most in demand by our bishops, and the growth of the church attest their possession of it. If you mean to say that our Bishops are not great leaders in controversy, we grant it. They have never been such. The ministerial rank has ever proved abundantly competent for the management of the very few dogmatic questions about which we have been willing to contend. There was our Fletcher, Watson, Benson and Clarke of the past, and Hibbard, Whedon, Unrry, Nast and Buckley of the present, who are, with any number of others, able to take care of these things. It you refer to that kind of leadership, which asserts its own will and contends for its own rights, without due consideration for the wishes and rights of others, truly not one man of our whole Episcopal force is qualified to meet your demand. To dictate for and govern Methodism is the one thing which under God Methodists, by their chosen representatives convened in General Conference, propose to do for themselves. If for leaders you have as your ideal those men who have appeared at every great emergency in church or State, able to meet a crisis, to rally human forces, to fling their spirit and to infuse their ideas into other men; or by the quality of personal magnetism, and soul power within them, hold, sway, guide, move, restrain, command, mould, and thus govern men, we have now and always have had such men in our Episcopal Board. You would not trace in that man with close cut beard, face almost as void of any expression of brute force as that of the ideal woman, going on crutches in the habiliments of peace, the invincible hero of Appomatox, mounted on fiery charger and clad in military garb. You would not recognize in Galena's modest commander and Vicksburg's heroic conqueror one and the same person. The soldier depended upon the war for his manifestation. The hero was there, but it required that emergency to reveal him. In our Episcopal Board are like great leaders of men, and in every new reinforcement of their numbers, including the last, you will find them. Of Bishop Simpson, the least and the most that can be said is, that he was preeminently qualified for the high and holy trust committed to his care by an uncommon combination of the rarest and most essential graces ever bequeathed upon any man. But our chief joy and boast is that his colleagues possess all the needful qualities for the leadership of men in the same kind, if not variety, that himself does. In them are latent forces, dormant it may be, but only awaiting a demand for their use to arouse and bring them into mighty action. Look in the class of 1872 and there is Foster, cool, intrepid, courtly and erudite. To him it is given, and he will elevate and forward our standard where scholars contend for the mastery. And Wiley, quiet, earnest, yet mighty in skill to plan, and wise in counsel to guide. And Harris, indefatigably persistent in the prosecution of his grand conceptions, to success. And Merrill, a theological captain of the most orthodox and gigantic order. And Bowman, keen and far sighted, leading on and bringing out to the last degree the full strength of his army, and by his own quiet courage nerving them for the fray. And Andrews, hot with the heat of the popular heart, nervous in action and strong of will, he is an executive and governor of the highest type. In the class of 1880 there is Foss, a master of details. And Hurst, modest as a true woman and deep in letters as the sea; he can be relied on to illuminate the pathway of his colleagues in counsel, by the light of reason, if not to command them when human passions are least restrained. And Warren, a peerless captain of hundreds, like the dashing Sheridan, can harrass the flanks of opposing forces, and do in detail the work essential to general success. In special work few men surpass him. Coming to 1884 we have Ninde, a master of masterly politeness and Christian manhood, naturally gifted for the leadership of young men. And Walden, a man of business, wonderfully endowed to direct denominational interests along intricate currents of the on sweeping commercial floods, to a prosperous voyage, though wreck and ruin abound on every side. And Mallalieu, full of Huguenotic fire, radical and unyielding, his plume will wave where the battle is hottest. And there is Fowler, zealous, earnest in the hours of peril, when the tide sets strongly against his forces he will appear most brave, and dashing forward snatch the victory from the embrace of defeat. Any of these men, if borne on by the emergency, would prove equal to the leadership of an army or the conquest of an empire. In Foss and Fowler, as in Simpson, that golden rhetoric and flaming eloquence with which the senior Bishop fanned the dying embers of American patriotism into a fervent heat, and aroused his great Church to meet the demands of the present unparalleled period of Christian energy and work burns, and will come forth stimulated by future emergencies.

Our Duty to the Southwestern.

The New Orleans and Baton Rouge Districts of the Louisiana Conference, will in district meetings discuss the proposition which forms the caption of this article. We are obliged to Bros. Albert and Landry, with their associates and the committee on programme in these two progressive districts, for furnishing us thus with an excuse for a brief address to them considering the interests which they severally and unitedly represent. In no aspect of our Southern work have we observed greater cause for solid comfort in contemplating the future, in its relation to this work, than the evident public spirit of the women connected with it. We have reason therefore, to include them with our brethren of that section, and conclude that their discussion of this proposition will result in a favorable, prompt and decidedly substantial response to all needs of the SOUTHWESTERN, as these shall be made clear to them in their deliberations. The want long felt, expressed, and now undertaken to be met in the publication of the SOUTHWESTERN, is of a purely moral, truly, and in all things a Methodistically Orthodox Religious Journal.

It must be adapted to the uses of our Methodist population in the South, more especially of the colored members of our own Church, wherever they are. It must not be a substitute by any means, but it must always and in all things be a supplement to the work of the presiding elder in his district, and the pastor in his charge in the homes and families of his people. The general testimony now is that it meets the want, and is doing this work fairly well. It could be of no service in defending our people against discriminations within the Methodist Episcopal Church, assuming that such existed there. They are legally prohibited, and provision made against them; they are possible only through individual caprice, and in that event the Discipline indicates the method of procedure for us. Heretofore our members and ministers have labored at heavy odds while doing their work of morally and generally uplifting the colored people, and of breaking down prejudices long engendered and deeply rooted, by bringing the races into closer contact, in consequence of their unity and community of interests; because of their Church relation first, and the other relations which result from common church membership next. The African Methodist Episcopal, the African Methodist Episcopal Zion, the Colored Methodist Episcopal, the Baptist churches, through their organs, and many local newspapers have been devoting much of their time, talent and space to the work of discouraging and defeating your efforts in this right and praiseworthy enterprise. Have they not? You have felt it. It has done us no little damage in these efforts, and it did the people a great deal more. By concealing the truth, perverting the truth, and misapplying the truth, they have decoyed many from, and prevented scores of others who would have come to us. They have created by their persistent abuse of the white people, the sentiment which has been rapidly gaining ground, and which we have been endeavoring to counteract, that the black and white people are irreconcilably opposed to each other. They have not so intended; but by this course they have supplied argument with a semblance of truth, to certain implacable Negro hating newspapers throughout the country.

These have at no time been many, but they have at all times been noisy. By a great deal of dust raising and noise making, they have greatly disconcerted our friends, and paralyzed their efforts in our behalf to a considerable extent. We have stood unable to resist this course of things, because we were without adequate newspaper facilities for the purpose. White men there were good and true, who wrote long and learnedly upon the equities and ethics of the relation of the races to each other. They did good and lasting work, as between white people in this way. A work which, though well begun, is not yet done. But they did not touch the milk in the cocoanut, as between the Negroes themselves, because they could not break the hull. God has given this work to the Negroes. The Methodist Episcopal Church, recognizing the will of God in the matter, has called upon us to do it. A change is already perceptible in the tone of many of these colored papers, which used to abound in reckless and unprovable assertions at our expense, but which now recognize the need of care, because of our ability to demand the truth, or expose the untruth of what is said about us. Therefore the chief value of the SOUTHWESTERN at present, consists in: First, the opportunity and purpose to expose this class of unrighteousness. Second, in supplying a medium of free correspondence between the ministers and people, thus greatly contributing to the diffusion broad cast of church intelligence. We all heartily wish for many desirable improvements. We recognize that the Church has placed us on trial, as it were; and we will have no excuses in extenuation of a failure on our part to meet its expectations. God is also calling upon us to show ourselves men and be strong in this hour of poverty, in our prompt responses to the demands of duty. No one knows better the crippled and embarrassed condition of affairs than you do. Our only hope is in God and the people. The first cannot fail; the second will not.

The form of relief is threefold: First, an immediate extension of our subscription list. Second, cash with each new subscription, and a prompt response to the repeated request of our publishers for a settlement of old accounts. Third, an improvement, and if practicable a cheapening of the subscription price of the paper, so as to place it within the reach of all.

Brethren, we do not presume to dictate for or to you. We hope we have not infringed upon your courtesy by seizing the opportunity your polite invitations have afforded to thus address you. We have your welcome and your congratulations.

Shall we have your vigorous cooperation? Let the response come in the form of names and cash, then let the good begun work go on to perfection. Shall it be 10,000?

Missions.

The Missionary Society has especial claims upon the earnest and faithful support of the colored presiding elder and pastor in charge. This is more clearly displayed by the logic of figures. The following appropriations, apportionments and receipts appeal with Demosthenian or Simpsonian eloquence to the colored conferences, and to each presiding elder, pastor in charge and lay member thereof:

Total appropriations for	1884...	$52 550.00
" receipts "	" ...	17,235.00
" apportionment "	1883...	10 634.00

This shows: First, that the conferences paid $6,361 50 more than was asked of them in the aggregate. Yet there were some of them who failed to raise their apportionment, while others raised it with an excess. The following shows the details of appropriations, receipts and apportionment by conferences:

	Apportionment, 1884.	Received 1883	Appropriation, 1884
Central Alabama	$ 325	$ 89 60	$2 500
Delaware	1,200	1,225 78	1,500
East Tennessee	216	181 38	2,000
Lexington	400	377 31	2 700
Little Rock	250	198 65	3,000
Liberia	100	...	4,000
Louisiana	1,000	662 45	5,500
Mississippi	2 000	320 45	5 500
Missouri M. E. Dist	500	178 56	1,000
North Carolina	500	178 56	2,700
Savannah	700	390 68	3,150
South Carolina	2,500	3 282 92	6,0 0
Tuscaloosa	1,000	557 35	2 700
Texas	1'000	412 50	4 000
Washington	3,500	3,397 21	2 300
West Texas	1,000	480 25	4,000

Hence, it will be seen that the work among the Negroes is destined to be a paying investment, when measured by dollars and cents.

Yet they have great reason to rejoice in the liberality of their old Methodist mother, when they consider that our payment has been as $1 paid out to $3 received by us, or $35,315 more sent to the colored work by the Missionary Society than they paid into it; though they paid into the Society $6,361.51 more than was asked of them. Of this $52,550, there has been paid to 56 presiding elders the total amount of $21,804; and to 601 missions, $20,746; a difference of $1,058 in favor of the presiding elders. Of these presiding elders, from 6 to 10 are white ministers, having districts composed chiefly or wholly of colored members, and to these go the largest salaries, probably because it requires more for them to live on. Of the Missions, Ames Church in New Orleans receives the largest appropriations—$800, or $53 less than the North New Orleans District.

With such inducements and incentives to work, we cannot comprehend the state of mind into which a pastor, presiding elder or member has fallen, who would excuse himself, as we have heard some do, from working, on the plea that charity begins at home. It has begun at home, as $52,550 of what we raise for Missions, is spent right here among our colored brethren in the South, that is in the colored conferences. The returns to the Missionary Society can be largely increased:

First—By holding the monthly missionary prayer meeting or concert in every church, or both.

Second—By setting the committees at work in every place, and keeping them at it from the first of the year until near the conference.

Third—By reporting what is collected for that cause faithfully, and never omnibusing the collections, dividing the whole amount as you judge proper.

Fourth—By pressing the matter home upon the people, in a sermon carefully put together and thought out expressly for that purpose, at least once each year.

Fifth—Recording the names of all who contribute, and reporting them to be printed in the conference minutes.

Sixth—By the presiding elder carefully inquiring and faithfully going into all details, to ascertain whether the provision of the discipline for the support of missions is faithfully carried out in every charge on his district or not.

Seventh—By organizing the Sabbath schools into missionary societies, and devoting the proceeds thereof strictly to the cause of missions and no other.

We are receiving largely, but it is more blessed to give than to receive. The Lord helps us more and more to enjoy the blessing which flows from liberal giving. Every family might keep a missionary bank, into which the little ones could "drop, and thus save up the pennies."

"If you cannot give your thousands,
You can give the widow's mite.
And the least you do for Jesus,
Will be precious in his sight."

From our accompanying table the appropriation, apportionment and receipts for each conference can be seen at a glance.

It is not quite accurate, as some conferences do not seem to report details to the Missionary Secretary. It is the duty of each presiding elder to attend to this.

Rev. Nelson Gardner Merry.

The late Rev. Nelson Gardner Merry, pastor of the Spruce Street colored Baptist Church in Nashville, Tennessee, died at his home in that city at 4:30 in the afternoon of Monday, July 14.

With his death closes a pastorate of twenty-eight years duration in one charge. Under his leadership the congregation has grown from one hundred to possibly three hundred members, and was the largest Baptist congregation as to membership in the South.

He was twice stricken with paralysis, of which from the second stroke he died. His death was unexpected and sudden. On Sunday he had closed the evening service in his church by a stirring exhortation. The whole concluded with the following, one of his favorite hymns, led by himself:

"Canaan, sweet Canaan,
I'm bound for the land of Canaan.
Sweet Canaan, it is my happy home.
I'm bound for the land of Canaan."

He was born in Christian county, Kentucky, July 10, 1824; removed to Tennessee two years later, and remained there ten years. On May 15, 1840, he returned to Tennessee and settled in Nashville, where he resided from that time until he died. He was converted at twenty-one years of age, and immersed in the Cumberland River by Rev. Dr. Howell. He was early convinced that he ought to preach, and in 1853 he was licensed to teach the colored members of the First Baptist congregation in Nashville.

He began the work, impressed with its solemn responsibilities and consequent fear. But he grew rapidly in favor with God and power over the people. He was ordained under the usual forms of his Church, November 29, 1853. His labors have been abundant.

He has organized fourteen churches, presided in the State Baptist Convention, and over the city Baptist preachers' union, and he has four times enlarged the meeting house of his congregation. His influence for good among the colored people was unbounded. He was greatly respected by the white people for his clear, sound sense. At times Mr. Merry found his views strongly opposed by the people of his own race. He generally sought to maintain the most cordial relation between the races. As a means to this end, he sought for mutual concessions on points of difference between them. He did not always succeed in convincing those he sought most to aid that his way was the better way, [illegible] testimony which all now bear to his worth, is evidence of the correctness of his policy. He was sincere and conscientious in all his purposes, if all were not apparently wise.

"Stop, muse; o'er Nelson's ashes drop a tear,
The man of worth, for all was patent here:
The wondrous man of strong unlettered sense,
A moveless bulwark in the truth's defense
Him, neither lutes could charm nor terrors awe,
The captain's insult, nor the quorum's law,
Nor prison gloom, could his firm purpose shake,
Nor hireling sage, whose logic is a stake.
Midst surging waves he rose a solid rock;
Bent, broke the billows, and defied the shock.
If other refuge failed, he nobly stood,
Resolved to seal his mission with his blood.
Nor men nor fiends could make him quit his post;
The truth had formed him mighty as a host."

These reflections cause us to revert to the memory of Dr. E. Q. Fuller of our own Church, and to the words of Dr. Curry, touching his memory, after a very fulsome eulogy had been pronounced upon him: That "it was better to say some of these good things about a man when he was alive." Nelson Merry deserved the good sayings, but had to take them as a post mortem tribute. He belonged to a school of men, within which might be classed Henry Adams, Richard Sneathen and few others who held, molded and ruled the people by the strength of their culture and character. His close of life in the midst of unbroken and universal esteem, proves that the character, more than the color of a man anywhere South or North, decides the measure of his usefulness within the limit of his sphere of operations.

How applicable are these lines of Maradon to Bro. Merry:

"As [illegible] leaves drop from the trees and fade,
When gloomy Autumn sweeps along the glade,
Our fathers die; the 'prophets are no more'
Life's but an isthmus, to the awful shore
Of vast eternity—my soul prepare!
A palm, a breath, a moment lands thee there!
Ah! What is time? The turnpike to the shroud!
And what is life? An iris on a cloud.
Awake, my anxious heart! with caution steer,
Death's dreary continent of souls is near.
A moment man their little playthings use,
Wait arts and sciences these, and I my muse;
Another moment, and the tale is done!
We [illegible] add to annual stars and suns.
Another world suspends of woe or bliss,
Or [illegible] eagles, as we live in this.

It is about time for colored bishops in the North to learn that it takes quite as much character and ability for successful work South as North. And for them to let their profiting appear to all, by the class of religious teachers they assign to this section of their work, then, too, more pains should be taken to develop men who are native to the South.

PERSONAL.

—The degree of D.D. was conferred by the Florida University upon the Rev Henry E Pilcher of the Central Ohio Conference.

—M. Simpson Glenn, son of Wm. Glenn, a prominent Methodist in Cincinnati, O., died at Clifton Springs, N. Y., July 17, aged 41 years.

—The Rev. J. W. Hamilton, of the People's Church, Boston, called at our office on Friday last, on his homeward journey from the Commencement exersises of Mount Union College, where—as others tell us—he did his full share toward securing an endowment for the proposed alumni professorship. Before he left $13,000 was pledged. This is a noble beginning, and the friends of Mount Union will not soon become "weary in well doing." —N. Y. Advocate.

—Mount Union College honored itself by conferring the degree of LL.D on the Rev. William H. De Puy, D.D., formerly Assistant Editor of this paper. The degree of D.D., was at the same time conferred upon the Rev. Thomas N. Boyle, Presiding Elder, Pittsburg Conference, the Rev. W. W. Case, Presiding Elder in the East Ohio Conference, and the Rev H. A. Cleveland, of Philadelphia Conference.

—Bishop William Taylor has issued in the interest of his self-supporting missions, three circulars. He describes the condition and outlook of the work, and asks his friends to aid his "Transit and Building Fund." He declines to receive any salary as Missionary Bishop to Africa, and expects to push into that field on the basis of self-support as in other lands. Concerning his personal needs he remarks: "As to salary, I have had none from any source for 27 years, but have supported myself and family by my authorship, and preached gratuitously. Of late God has made some provisions for my family, and gives me a private part in the missionary business, who supplies my shortage." He closes his third circular with the following request: "Pray for India! Pray for Central and South America! Pray for Africa, the birthplace of Moses and the hiding-place of the infant Jesus!"

—In a letter dated July 17, Chaplain M'Cabe gives his impressions of the sturdy Swedish Conference. He says: "I have just been to the Swedish Conference at Upsala. Had a glorious time. I have seen mountains, rivers, seas, picture-galleries, statues, and specimens of art every-where within the last month, but the vision that moved my heart most was the Swedish Conference. We had a great day Sabbath. Dr. Carroll gave $1,000 for the theological school for Sweden. We will need $20,000 to buy the land and put up a small building. A good site is what we must get first. We intend to purchase five acres on the grand drive leading to the King's Park. (Stockholm). The Swedish Conference pledges $12,000; a friend $1,000. Who will give $8,000 more? Great revivals in the Conference this year. Bishop Hurst has invaded Russia.

Mrs. Long, daughter of ex-Governor Call of Florida, means to have a United States flag of silk sent to the World's Exposition. The silk is to be derived from Florida silk worms, and the flag when completed, will be as cut and cut home achievement.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

S. Williams, Smithland: "I have a splendid Sunday-school in Pleasant Grove Church, but need books."

Charles Crockett, Grand Cane: "My second quarterly conference was held at Mt. Zion Chapel. We had a grand time; received 7 on probation. Raised $17, paid elder $5. A. J. Pickett was with Elder Duncan, and they remained a week."

Henry Richardson, Trinity: "The overflow was a great hindrance, and the worms cut the cotton down."

TEXAS.

A. Britten, Danville: "Elder Lee held our third quarterly conference. Collection for elder $5. Children's day was observed and we raised $5. We had a nice time."

Rev. J. L. Smith, of Millican, sent warm congratulations to the editor, and promised that at his camp meeting, Aug. 14-22, he would make a grand effort to get subscribers for this paper.

ARKANSAS.

H. McDaniel, Russellville. "Elder G. W. Sams was gladly received at one of my appointments. We have bought a church lot at Atkins, and have taken in about 24 members since I came. I will start a building at Russellville, where the church is in a growing condition. We have a fine Sunday-school. I have added to the subscription list of our church paper. We wish the editor grand success."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. McBeth, Edwards: "It is with a heart full of joy that I tell you of the spiritual and financial condition of the Church around here, for during the past few months Providence in its bounty has bestowed many and great blessings upon us. Our second quarterly conference was well attended and harmonious in its workings throughout. The reports presented were good and clearly showed that willing hearts and busy hands are taking hold of the Lord's work here. I hope you will not think I am not modest, when I say that my own report was all I could wish. During the last quarter baptism has been administered to five adults and eight infants, while several erring brothers, finding the ways of sin very rough to the feet of the wicked, have been reclaimed. Would to God that every lamb that has gone astray on the mountain side would hear the sweet voice of the Master calling him and come back to the fold ere it is too late. There have been sixteen accessions from other churches, making a total of 31 added to our church. Among the distinguished visitors present at the conference was brother P. H. Davis, the resident minister at Bolivar. One night he preached for us. There was a large congregation present, and I will venture to say there was not a man or woman among them who did not go home better and purer for hearing that sermon. We enjoyed it so much that we can but regret we do not get a chance of hearing him oftener. As an evidence of the spiritual health of our church we will say one hundred and thirty-eight communicants partook of the sacrament during the conference. We purchased a large organ about last Christmas, and have nearly finished paying for it. We raised $6 for our beloved presiding elder. It would do your heart good or that of any man who is interested in the breaking of the bread of life to sinners to see our Sunday school. We number between seventy-five and one hundred, and meet every Sunday morning and afternoon. We use, of course, the International Lesson, and there is many a little colored boy and girl who can tell all about the life of the little shepherd boy who rose to be king over all Israel and was called David, a man after God's own heart. The Sunday-school lately bought and presented to the church a handsome lamp. The children's day was observed with proper ceremonies and the collection then taken up amounted to $5.35. In the field of temperance we are doing noble work. God helping us we will make Hinds take its place among those counties whose banners bear the inscription of prohibition in golden letters. We have a regular temperance society, and in addition thereto a class in Sunday-school where the people are taught all about the evils of strong drink. Brother, join us in the prayer to God that we may soon be able to fetter in chains that cannot be broken this demon of drink, who desolates so sadly our land and wh is more cruel and harder of heart than Moloch of old; claims not only our children, but our fathers and brothers and husbands as well."

TENNESSEE.

J. W. Hall, Alamo: "Our third quarterly conference was held June 21-22, 1884. Elder Price was on time Friday night at a public gathering and lectured for us; subject: "Morals and manners." His talk was very animating to the people. Rev. J. B. Marbry, of Mason circuit, was with us on Saturday when we had our centennial meeting of the Methodist Church. He preached an awakening sermon on Methodism, which I truly believe will be seen and felt throughout the section for some time in the future. This was a good quarter with us; the reports proved the circuit to be in a good condition. On Sunday morning the elder addressed the Sunday-school on a glance at the past and the present, being followed by Rev. J. B. Marbry and others. A collection for centennial purposes $4.50. Oother monies raised as follows: Mission cause, $5; Sunday-school, $2; tract, 25c.; educational funds: 50c.; Freedmen's Aid, 50c.; presiding elder $11.50; pastor, $42.50."

D. Collier, Waynesboro: "On July 5, the children met at Pleasant Grove to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of American Methodism. There was music, singing and speaking and a supper at the church at night. Raised $14.85. J. B. Bradford, of Clifton circuit, was with us, and preached. Children's day collection $1."

Cincinnati Colored Orphans' Home.

Mr. Robert Gordon, Mrs. Abigail Dewit, and Mr. A. F. Lewis, the last a late wealthy colored citizen of Cincinnati, have each donated one hundred dollars to the Colored Orphans' Asylum of that city. The report of the trustees handed us by the courtesy of Lewis D. Easton, Esq., the secretary and assistant principal of Gaines High School, show two thousand six hundred and twenty-two dollars and forty-nine cents receipts, against one thousand, nine-hundred and ninety-three dollars and eighty-four cents expenses. Leaving a ballance of six-hundred twenty-eight dollars and sixty-five cents, in treasury. Also one thousand, five-hundred dollars loaned on the First Mortgage security. With an outstanding debt of five hundred dollars. They have cared for sixty-four orphans, of whom one has died during the year. We notice that Saint Pauls and Trinity Methodist Episcopal Churches are set down among the donors, but there is room for many more.

The Home is wholly carried on by philanthropic colored ladies, and gentlemen of the city.

A valuable property has been secured for their purposes, and a great deal of good has been accomplished by the directors in securing homes for destitute children, outside of the asylum.

The asylum has been kept free from denominational control, though all churches have been invited to look after the moral and religious welfare of the inmates, as well as to aid in its support, since it is entirely sustained by charity.

Its successful management reflects great credit upon all concerned in it. Mr. Peter H. Clark has for many years been its honored chief manager, and he has lately resigned that trust, at present holding no official relation to it.

BAKING POWDERS CONTAINING LIME.

Why "Royal" is Absolutely Pure.

Analysis shows the presence of Tartrate of Lime in several brands of Baking Powder placed upon the market.

"DR. PRICE'S" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"PEARL" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"GROFF'S SNOW-FLAKE" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

"DE LAND'S" Baking Powder contains Tartrate of Lime.

All BULK Baking Powders contain Tartrate of Lime.

The presence of this substance in the above-named Baking Powders results from the use of inferior Cream of Tartar in their manufacture. The Cream of Tartar of the market, from which they are made, contains Tartrate of Lime in amounts varying from six to ten per cent, and hence these powders contain this impurity as a foreign substance to a corresponding extent, which is of no value, but a positive detriment in any powder in which it is found.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from Cream of Tartar specially refined and prepared for its use by patent processes by which the Tartrate of Lime is totally eliminated. This highly important result has been attained only with great care, labor, and expense. In money alone a quarter of a million dollars has been invested in patents, machinery and appliances by which the crude Cream of Tartar, being procured direct from the wine districts of Europe and subjected in this country to these exclusive processes, is rendered entirely free, not only from the objectionable Tartrate of Lime, but from other foreign substances. This adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing Royal Baking Powder; but, as all its other ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care, and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is entirely free from any extraneous substance, and chemically pure in all respects. No lime, earth, alum, or impurity of any kind can, by inadvertence, or by the use of adulterated articles or otherwise, be introduced into the "Royal," and it contains no ingredients except those certified by the Government and other eminent chemists necessary to make a pure, wholesome, and perfect Baking Powder.

It costs more to manufacture the Royal Baking Powder than any other, but it is, as shown by chemical analysis, the only "absolutely pure" Baking Powder made.

The Housekeeper.

CORN VINEGAR.—Boil a pint of corn until it is soft, put it in a jar and add a pint of molasses and four quarts of water: mix well together, and set it near the stove. In two or three weeks it will be very good vinegar. The same corn will do six months, by adding to it the molasses and water as required. When the vinegar is made pour it off and bottle it.

ROYAL TEA-CAKE.—Take one cupful of flour, put into it a piece of butter the size of an egg, sift in one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream of tartar, add two well beaten eggs, and enough milk to make a batter as stiff as can be easily stirred with a spoon. Bake in a flat pan about two inches deep, and break in squares when done; it requires from fifteen to twenty minutes, according to the heat of the oven.

WHIGS.—To four cups of sifted flour add a piece of butter the size of an egg, a little salt, half a teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar; mix in gradually two cups of milk, and last of all two well-beaten eggs. Bake in cups or gempans. If the housekeeper is fortunate enough to possess a waffle-iron she may indulge in these delicious cakes; they do not taste the same baked in any other form.

DUTCH DROP-CAKES.—Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda, and put it in a quart of sour cream; beat separately the whites and yolks of three eggs; stir them into the cream with enough sifted flour to make a stiff batter. Drop spoonfuls of the mixture into a well-buttered pan, not to close or they will run together, and bake in a quick oven. It is understood in all these cakes that a pinch of salt should be added, to make the flavor perfect.

The Old Man's Tale.

"It was in this very room we sat," said he, "Maggie and I. It was a sorrowful meal. We had just started life, and every dollar we had in the world was in the factory over there, and the flames had devoured all. I was discouraged, but Maggie was full of hope in God. Of all good gifts of God to me in this world that blessed woman crowned them all. Even while we sat conversing the goodness of God appeared. The door opened, and in came a neighbor, rough but kind, who at once said:

"I hear you are out of a job."

"Yes the fire has left me nothing to do."

"Well, I want you to do something for me. I have a mortgage on a farm near Rochester, and it is to be sold in three days' time. I want some one to go out and secure my interest, and you are just the man, will you go?"

"What do you think, Maggie?"

"Why, if you think you can do the business satisfactorily, then go; you have nothing else on hand."

"I will be ready, sir, to-morrow morning."

So I left Maggie and the children, and started next day for the boat. And here the Lord surprised me again. On the way to the boat I met—, who said:

"Where are you going?"

"Rochester."

"I heard that you was. Will you do some business for me by the way?"

"Certainly; what is it?"

"I own a store at Palmyra. The rent is past due. If you will stop and collect it, I will pay you well."

"So thus it was again," said he, and the tears streamed down his face as he lived the dark days over. "I was ready to come home, and passing down Main street, Rochester, I met the owner of a line of packets, an old friend:

"Why, what are you doing here?"

"Transacting business."

"When are you going home?"

"I am on my way now to find a boat for the east."

"Get into my buggy, I will drive you down." I got in with him, and when we reached the basin, he reined up before a new boat, a perfect beauty. I read her name, 'Mount Morris,' and looked her over. He said:

"What do you think of her?"

"As pretty a boat as ever rode the water."

"I want you to command her this summer."

"What, what, me? I never ran a boat in my life. I don't know the first thing about it."

"Never mind, you are a reliable man. You can learn. We want you."

"And there it was again," said he. "One thing right upon another. I have been a special object of God's goodness." Well, I said to him:

"I will go home and speak to Maggie about it. I am greatly influenced in everything by her opinion. If she thinks best I will do it."

"In case she does, said he, you meet me at the Albany Office."

"Very well, sir."

I came home, and Maggie said: "Why, if you can get along with it, I can stay here with grandmother and the children. You have nothing to do." So I wrote him that I would take the Mount Morris on one condition, viz.: she should be known as the Cold Water Boat. I would have no drunkenness, nor nonsense of the kind about her. To this he assented. I shipped a crew on those express terms. First along they hissed me and hooted at us as we went through the locks, but presently God [illegible] my resolve with new [illegible] of goodness, for He caused [illegible] to talk about us, and [illegible] interest in us that we always loaded down to the water's edge with passengers. People would wait for days with their furniture and baggage piled up on the shore, and allow [illegible] to go past that they might take the Mount Morris. It was all out of [illegible] line, but it was all in God's [illegible]. It was not my way, but it was His way, and it was a good way. It was a profitable summer for the boat, and for me, and it tided me over a very troublesome bar. O! that men would trust the Lord."

Negro Scholarship.

An article on this subject appears in the first number of The Church Review, a new periodical, edited by Dr. B. T. Tanner, and published by the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The prospectus informs us that the object aimed at by the new publication is to "give outlet" to Negro scholarship. At present, we are told, this scholarship is practically hedged in. The standard magazines and reviews are in no need of it, and are in no humor to try experiments. Nothing remains but for the Negro to open a channel for himself. He is evidently well disposed to undertake this task; and his ability to perform it is indicated by the vigor and taste displayed in the first issue of this Review. Bishops Payne, Campbell, and Dickerson contribute able essays on theological and ecclesiastical subjects; the Hon. B. K. Bruce, Register of the United States Treasury, furnishes an article on his office; Dr. Scarborough writes cleverly on the Greek of the New Testament, and a variety of subjects are treated with ability in the remainging seven papers. The editor's part is well performed.

But no peper in this Review will excite greater interest among readers of Caucasian descent than the one entitled, The Negro in Science, Art, and Literature, by D. A. Straker, LL.B. The writer claims that in no stage of the world's history has the Negro been absent from among the contributors to these three great forces of civilization, and displays much learning in the endeavor to prove his claim. The portion of the article, however, which is of more immediate and practical interest is a cleverly compiled list of contemporary scholars of the colored race. Theres lives in Barbadoes, one of the West Indies, the Rev, Joseph N. Durant, a black astronomer, whose observations touching the recent comet called forth the commendations of the scientists of England. Mr. Durant's frequent astronomical articles are highly esteemed. "He is a linguist of large acquaintance, a theologian of eminent learning, and a scholar of general literature." Next comes the name of the Rev. E. W. Blyden, D.D., whose ability and scholarship have won the admiration of men of letters everywhere. His Negro in Ancient History is referred to in merited terms of praise. In the United States we have Dr. Wm. Wells Brown, Dr. Alexander Crummell, James A. Trotter, Dr. B. T. Tanner, William Still, A. A. Whitman, R. T. Greener, George W. Williams, and several others, whose works have all taken respectable rank in their various lines, and some of whom have shown rare originality. The poems of Phillis Wheatley were not long ago reviewed in these columns. Professor Scarborough's First Book in Greek has "received the approval of the most distinguished professors of Harvard University." Besides these authors, Prof. Manning and Miss Edmonia Lewis are promising artists, and the Negro is not unrepresented in science and invention.

Before the colored race in America is opening the way to the highest intellectual development; and thus far there is little sign on their part of a disposition to lag. Christian Advocate.

"Wonderful Efficacy"

He has personally experienced the most satisfactory results from the use of this valuable medicine. Make a memorandum of this, all ye whose systems are run down. Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you.
